—Fail. A thorough trial will give positive proof of this.

HARDENED LIVER.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could save me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been in my grave. J. W. Morey, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

POVERTY AND SUFFERING.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused a sick family and large doctor bills.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctors visit will cost I know it,"—A Workingman.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, "convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

'Ah, how do you vote this year. Smith?' 'Same as I did last—at the polls,' And they passed on.

A gentleman who had been bitten by a dog was asked, 'Do you suppose the dog was mad?' 'Mad. What right had he to be mad. He wasn't half as mad as I was.'

'No, indeed,' said Mrs. Parvenu—'no; I don't think she is a fine looking woman at all. She may have nice eyes; but, mercy on me, she's got no physic.

RINGING UP TALMAGE.

New York Sun,

Assemblyman Patrick Burns of Brooklyn amused his friends yesterday with the story of a search for him by a Willismsburgh admirer.

'He invited me to speak over in his bailiwick the other day, and when we parted I told him he could ring me up at any time. I had been discussing the past Presidential campaigns, and somehow got the number 329 on my mind; so, when quitting him I said:—'My number is 329' Well, this morning he went to Real Estate Agent Green's office and whooped up 329. When he got it he yelled:—

'Is Paddy Burns there?'

'Paddy who?' the young lady at 329 inquired, and he replied:

'Paddy Burns the Assemblyman. Every one knows him.'

'The answer to this was not intelligible, so Mr. Green and others who were in the office began shouting at the box, and finally there came a sound of a rough, sharp twangling voice yelling:

'Know Paddy Burns by reputation, but he's not on my line.'

'This surprised the Williamsburghers, and they searched the telephone directory and who do you think was 329: Well, sir no other person than the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

'I guess I'm on the right track even if I ain't on his line, added Mr. Burns.

THE NATIONAL GAME A NATIONAL DANGER.

From the Raleigh Biblical Recorder.

Love for our country and best interest of the Church of God and the rising generation must sooner or later arouse the Christians everywhere to the danger which is imminent. In the interest of the wives and children dependent on men wasting time and talent on these games, in the interest of the business character of our young men, in the interest of good feeling between neighboring and distant towns and villages which is being torn by quarrels, jealousy, and ill will growing out of match games, and for the sake of the financial and religious interest of the whole country, North and South, let's check up a little on the base ball excitement.

I hear that in some sections in the country even the fields are being prepared as base ball grounds which ought to be planted in corn and cotton, peas or potatoes. Farmers say they find it difficult to keep their boys and horses at home when it is announced that a game of base ball is to be played near by. A friend tells us that he was unable to get a doctor's prescription filled in a neighboring town because the drug stores were closed that all might attend the game.

When a game is to be played here handbills are scattered and posted in all directions, gates opened on the grounds, admission fees collected amounting to from $25 to $50. Was the like ever know before?

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain a[illegible] [illegible] you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that [illegible] value for your money. Druggists

"Blood Food" is the suggestive name often given to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, because of its blood-enriching qualities.

THE SMALL BOY AGAIN.

'Say, mister, what are you coming around here for? Didn't you know my sister Mary was engaged to be married?' said a 9-year-old boy to a young man whom he had seen visit the house several times, but whose name he did not know.

'Yes, my boy, your sister is engaged to be married to me,' said the engaged man of a few days, pleasantly.

'What? You don't mean to say you are the man that Mary is going to marry?'

'Yes, that's what I mean to say.'

'Well, I don't think you are so frightfully homely.'

'Frightfully homely! What do you mean, my boy?'

'Why, when Mary was speaking to papa about you the other day she told him that you were frightfully homely, but that she understood you had plenty of money.'

The engagement is off.—Yonkers Statesman'

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public, Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

SALUTATORY.

The "new editor" enters upon his duties to-day. Though unable to boast of lengthened experience, or transcendent ability, it will be his endeavor, by every effort in his power, to maintain the reputation won for THE ONTARIO by his predecessors as a live, reliable local journal. At present he labors under the disadvantage of being a stranger in the city, and would gladly welcome any assistance from well-wishers of the paper. Reporters and editors are not altogether ubiquitous, and many a newsy item escapes the news-gatherer in consequence of the fallacy of the common belief that they are so. Friends, please take the hint.

PROTECTING OUR INDUSTRIES.

The N. P. is no longer a rallying cry. A comparatively short time ago some of the most earnest advocates of a protective tariff were to be found among the independent press. Protection has not stood the test of time [or accomplished the results anticipated by its admirers. Few have been benefitted by it even when times were "good," and now when the inevitably recurring period of depression has again come around its total uselessness—and worse—to ward off disaster to business and avert hard times to the laboring class is so apparent that even its erstwhile admirers are forced to admit its utter failure, and only a few are even found to apologise for it. We commend a perusal of the following synopsis of Hon. E. Blake's speech the other day at Cornwall as a clear and candid showing of the effects of protection, so called, on the great bulk of our people:—

The great industry of Canada was the agricultural interest. According to the census one thousand millions of dollars were invested in the land; in manufactures not more than $82,000,000 were invested. It could be seen that the prosperity of the country depended on the condition of the greater industry. All lesser industries must look to it for sustenance. To attempt to build the prosperity of the country on the growth of one or more of the lesser industries was like trying to make a pyramid stand upon its apex. It was a mistake to suppose that the country could be made richer by taxing the farmer for the support of other industries. Mr. Blake then went on to show that the price, not only of all articles produced by labor, but of labor itself, depended on the laws of supply and demand. When labor is scarce the employer looks round him to see where he can find it at a cheaper rate than it can be procured here, and when his necessities require it he does not scruple to import it from wherever it can be had. He did not blame employers for this, He simply pointed out the fact that the price of labor like the price of anything else depends upon the proportion that the supply bears to the demand. The promises of those therefore who tried to make the workmen believe that they would secure to them good wages were deceptive. The artificial dearness made by high taxation, pressed most heavily on those whose margin between expenditure and income was the narrowest. To the man in good circumstances a few dollars increased taxes was a comparative trifle, but to the hard working man who, as it had been proved could not on an average save more than ten dollars a year the difference of a few dollars outlay was most important. The taxes raised from customs and excise in 1883 amounted to $29,253,000 or about $34 for every head of a a family, and the taxes paid into the treasury did not represent the whole burden which the people were compelled to bear. Every dealer who advances money for duties paid charges a profit on the money so advanced, so that it is but fair to assume that the consumers have to pay to the different dealers through whose hands the goods pass fifty per cent. more than is paid into the treasury. The taxes collected by Mr. McKenzie amounted to a little more than $22,000,000, so that that the $7,000,000 of additional taxation raised by the present Government with the precentage to distributors mounts to about $10,000,000, or between $13 and $14 a year for every head of a family. This was a sufficient answer to those who contend that the people do not feel the taxes. Thirteen dollars a year increased expenditure to men who by the utmost economy can save only ten dollars a year is a very heavy burden.

WANTS TO BOOM IT.

Our contemporary is engaged in the arduous task of trying to work up a Ministerial 'boom,' and devotes considerable space to that object. Strange to say, it does not do so on the ground of the exceedingly beneficial effects of the Tilley tariff on lowering the price of grain, or its failure to induce those mythical "foreign capitalists" we used to read about to bring their hoarded millions here for investment. It does not even hint a desire to crow over Sir John's constitutional statesmanship. In fact, the only reason put forward is that the Murray canal is now under construction and a Ministerial inspection would be a good chance to arouse the flagging enthusiasm of the "party" so sadly in need of a revival—if not resurrection.

One dollar will buy a pair of women's fine leather button boots in any size at Haines & Lockett's.

Be sure you get the genuine Murray & Lanman's Florida Water. There are counterfeits but if you will hold a leaf of the pamphlet, which is around each bottle, up to the light, you will see in faint letters water-marked in the paper, the words "Lanman & Kemp, New York," and where you cannot see this, you may be sure the article is not genuine.

WELL POSTED ON PRISONS.

On President Lincoln's first visit to a house of correction, an old criminal, looking through the bars of the cell, remarked:—'Well, Mr. Lincoln, you and I ought to be well posted on prisons—we've seen all there are in the country.' 'Why, this is the first one I ever visited,' said Mr. Lincoln, to which the criminal promptly responded, 'But I've been in all the rest!'

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its pro

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IF GRIFFIN has really retired from the editorship of the Mail it is a sad loss to the Reform party.

ONE method employed by the Democrats to lessen Blaine's chances is to circulate the report that he suffers from Brights' disease and is really in very poor health though he doesn't seem to know it.

CANADIAN, as well as American statesmen would do well to ponder the truth of the following on the Presidential campaign by a Brooklyn divine:—"Governors and senators and presidents should be made to understand that the ten commandments are for them as well as for the masses, that their private lives are legitimate matters of public inquiry."

SIR FRANCIS HINCKS once had a constituency of eleven in British Columbia. But this is nothing to Attorney General Miller's constituency of Varennes, which, since the decision of the Privy Council re the disputed territory, is found to contain one voter. What a field that would be for the peculiar genius of a Shields or a Wilkinson should an election contest occur!

THE SPECIOUS invitation to all "irrespective of politics," to join in the proposed demonstration is just a little too thin. The Murray canal is undoubtedly likely to prove a benefit to the country, but if a desire to spite a hated political opponent had not influenced the decision of the government, it is altogether probable that the shorter, less costly, and better route would have been chosen.

Haines & Lockett have received 60 cases of the very best make of American rubbers. These shoes are all stamped with a glove on the bottom, and are considered by far the best rubber shoes made in the world.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

NOT FAR ASTRAY.

The true cause of Canada's trouble lies in the fact that the majority of Canadians have voted to a majority power to sponge upon the industry of the m-jority.—Hamilton Times.

EVEN KING DODDS DISGUSTED.

The senseless abuse of the young Reformers by the Mail largely increased the attendance of that class at the Mowat demonstration. Downright vulgar abuse finds no favor with any but the hoodlum element of society.—Canadian Sportsman.

JUST A WAY THEY HAVE.

After doing all in their power to decry and belittle the Mowat demonstration, it shows an unlimited amount of cheek for Tory papers to appeal to Liberals to sink party considerations and help to make the proposed demonstration to Sir John A. Macdonald a success.—Brockville Recorder.

A CHANCE FOR EXPLANATIONS.

The London Free Press boasts of the prominent positions numbers of Canadians hold in Chicago. Canadians get up in the world wherever they are, but the Free Press used to tell us that they would go to the States no more, as there would be plenty for them to do here. The F. P. should explain the inconsistency of the two statements.—Clinton New Era.

THE READJUSTED TARIFF.

A business man of this city entered, or tried to enter, at the Custom House, yesterday, a lot of horse blankets. The goods are largely made up of coarse cotton, and the duty is by weight, as well as at a specified rate. The coarser the blankets are the heavier they are. When all his calculations were made the importer found that he was asked to pay a duty of ninety seven per cent. on the invoice price of his goods. At this rate it certainly must pay better to send the horses out of the country than to import clothing for them, —St. John Globe.

AWFULLY BUSY.

More than one of the cabinet ministers is so devoted to the public interests as to work several hours after mass in transacting public business, and another cabinet minister could not attend a meeting in connection with a charitable institution on Sunday because he had an appointment for a fishing excursion which conflicted with the date. The day having the advantage of having a few callers. Some of our Tory memoers too have imported into Ontorio the Quebec practice of addressing political meetings on Sunday.—London Advertiser.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LIBERAL LEADER.

The Hon. Edward Blake's visit to Eastern Ontario bids fair to be a success. Saturday was a most unpromising day, yet there was a good attendance in the Cornwall Town Hall not only of the townspeople, but also many from the township and the more distant villages and settlements of the county of Stormont. The way in which intelligent people flock to hear Mr. Blake is strong evidence of the high place he holds in the esteem of men of all parties. Those who do not agree with him on political questions respect him for his ability and honor him for the purity of his character. The presence of their leader and his words of counsel and encouragement will no doubt, stimulate the Reformers of Eastern Ontario to make their organization more complete, cause them to renew their efforts to make converts to their principles, and infuse new life into the party generally.—Montreal Herald.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.

That many with the glad consent praise newborn remedies; especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practiced in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitutes lies at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson H Co, props Kingston.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

A MURDEROUS BURGLAR

Shoots a Would be Captor and Thereby Escapes.

BROCKVILLE, Sept 30.—Considerable excitment was caused here by the report that C. Richards, of Irish Creek, had been shot at Bellamy's Station, nine miles from here on the Canada Pacific Railway. The facts are:—Early on Sunday morning three burglars entered the general store of Mr. C. Richards, but when they were alarmed they took a hasty departure without securing any booty for their trouble. Mr. Richards surmising that the burglars had gone towards Brockville, started in pursuit taking eight men with him on a hand car. When they arrived at Bellamy's Station at three o'clock on Monday they discovered three men sitting on the fence beside the railway. The hand-car was stopped and Richards asked where they were going, whereupon one of the men pulled a revolver and shot him through the face, the ball entering his cheek on the left side and after passing through his mouth and dislodging a number of his teeth passed through his right cheek. He was at once placed on the hand car and the alarm was given in the neighborhood where the affair occurred. The Chief Police accompanied by two officers and a number of men armed with revolvers and rifles, immediately started for the scene of the shooting, and hopes are entertained that the guilty parties will be captured.

THE CHOLERA.

MARSEILLES, Sept. 30.—The Cholera Commission has submitted a report stating that they followed the progress of the disease by hourly examining the blood of persons stricken with it. They found that in each case, at first two of the globules presented an unhealthy appearance, then one third of them were affected; then one half, then two two thirds, and finally death resulted. The important fact was developed that all the globules were not simultaneously affected.

ROME. Sept.—321 new cases of Cholera and 229 deaths in Italy during the past 24 hours. At Naples there were 122 cases and 57 deaths. At Genoa, 66 cases and 68 deaths.

MADRID, Sept. 30.—The floods and maintenance of cholera cordons and lazarettos are paralyzing trade. The Spanish working classes are suffering greatly.

Six fresh cases of cholera and four deaths are reported in Spain,

MANITOBA CROPS.

Telegraphic reports covering nearly all the districts of importance, say that the wheat harvest is completed, some oats are yet left out. A good deal of threshing and some marketing has been done. Wheat is reported as averaging from twenty to forty bushels; in various districts it will probably average at least 25. The quality is reported good. Fall ploughing is rather backward, though the weather is now fair and settled.

A RARE PLANT.

The Wild Strawberry Plant possesses rare virtues as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it is an unfailing remedy in all Bowell complaints.

A NOTED WAR-VESSEL.

ARRIVAL OF THE BRITISH FRIGATE SHANNON AT NEW YORK.

The old British frigate Shannon, which captured the Chesapeake in Boston harbor in June, 1813, arrived in New York on Monday. She has virtually been built over several times, but her old lines have been preserved and her interior arrangements are the same as when she fought the memorable battle in Boston Bay. For many years she was used as a British tranport. She was then sold, and used in the Australian trade, and has arrived at New York after an absence of 71 years. The cabin of the Shannon is 90 feet long and 32 feet wide. The panelling is of walnut and oak. She has 15 staterooms and 4 bathrooms.

The furniture that was on board during her remarkable fight is still in place, and being of the solid kind it looks as good as ever. The grated staircase leading to the officers' quarters of the upper deck are a little worn by age, but are as fine work as can be seen in these days. The swinging trays, lamps and the same old compass that pointed the way to Boston 71 years ago are still in place. On the quarter decks are the same fixed seats on which Capt. Brooke often rested. In the chart room the sofa of Captain Brooke remains intact. The binnacle and water tanks for supplying the bath rooms are all original, and the fore and main lower masts that were in her in 1812 are still standing as reminders of her strength. Her chief officer, in speaking of the vessel, said: 'She is an old beauty, and a gallant one at that.' Said the first officer. 'We were 35 days coming from London with a cargo of chalk, and in four weeks from now we sail for the West Indies.'

DARING HIGHWAY ROBERY.

BRANTFORD, Sept. 30.—A daring highrobery was committed in the city last evening, Mr. M. McCutcheon, a wealthy farmer of Linwood, Waterloo county, was walking across Lorne Bridge about six o'clock when he was knocked down by too men, one of whom held a knife over his head and threatened to stab him if he cried out, and $40 was taken from him. After knocking and otherwise maltreating their victim, the men effectually made their escape.

CORRECT, BUT BAD GRAMMAR.

The editor of a country paper, in 1848, speaking of the Provisional Government in France, says in a beautiful fulminating leader that 'When they promised the laboring classes that they should never again want either work or high wages, them asses actually believed it.' We thought this rather strong and a little ungrammatical when the next week's paper contained the following: 'Erratum—For them asses in our last, read the masses.' However, there is a good deal of coarse truth wrapped up in a bit of bad grammar sometimes.

Jos. Acandia, M. D. Hull, P. Q. writes: Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil commands a large and increasing sale which it richly merits. I have always found it exceedingly helpful; I use it in all cases of rheumatism, as well as fractures and dislocations. I made use of it made use of it myself to calm the pains of a broken leg with dislocation of the foot, and two days I was entirely relieved of the pain."

A YEAR AGO.

I was so rich a year ago
That very day
A little child looked up to me
Amid its play.
I was so very rich because
The child was mine;
I did not think he was but lent
A little time.

I dreamed for him, bright dreams,
And he?
The castles that he built
Were all for me.
I cannot tell you, if I try,
How golden bright,
The head upon my pillow,
Every night.

I never could begin to tell—
I wish I could—
How sweet this child of mine,
How sweet, how good;
Or half how rich I felt myself.
You do not know
How very rich I was
A year ago.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says:"I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corn."

THE ZUFELT GANG,

On Trial for Burglary at Shannonville Last July.

At the police court this morning John Frall, John Henry Zufelt and Mary Ann Harrigan, who were committed for trial last Saturday on a charge of committing a burglary at Mr. H. B. Rathbun's, on 29th July last, were arraigned and pleaded not guilty to stealing two diamond glass cutters from Mr Hiram Holden on the 26th April last. Mr. Burdett appeared for the prisoners and Mr. L. H. Henderson for the crown. Mr. Holden, who at the time of the robbery lived in Shannonville, testified that on the night in question burglars entered his house through a back window and stole about $6 in money and the two diamond glass cutters. He identified the latter articles which the Chief of Police found on the prisoners, as those stolen from him.

Mrs. Robison, of Consaul's hotel, said the two male prisoners had dinner there at noon on the Saturday of the robbery. An attempt was made the same night to break into her house. Mr. Holden's residence was directly opposite the hotel.

Donald McLennan recognized Frall as the man he saw in Shannonville selling table knives after the robbery. Louis Young corroborated his evidence.

Wm. Clare swore he saw Zufelt in his house on the night of the 13th of May, between 12 and 1 o'colck The witness heard a window fall and getting up met Zufelt walking towards him on his toes. Zufelt then turned and as he was making his exit through the window a shot was fired, the ball smashing the lamp in his hand. Clare thought the shot came from outside the window, presuming that the man outside on watch had fired the revolver. His pants had been carried out of the house before this.

The prisoners will be brought up on Friday to answer to a third charge of burglary, that of breaking into Mr. Thos. Vanallen's house in this city and stealing certain articles. Mr. Vanallen identified a pair of scissors which the chief of police found at the prisoner's house.

DE GRISY THE CONJUROR.

THE TRICK HE PLAYED UPON AN ITALIAN CARDINAL.

De Grisy applied for permission to give his entertainment in Rome and was very desirous of appearing before the Pope. While he was in a watchmaker's shop one day a gorgeously liveried servant of one of the cardinals entered and asked for a watch which had been left for repair.

His Eminence values that watch at ten thousand francs,' said the shop keeper to De Grisy, 'but a young man offered me one of exactly the same workfor a tenth part of that sum.

'I would like to find that young man.' said the conjuror.

That will be no difficulty.' was the reply.

In a few days the duplicate of the Cardinal's watch had become the property of De Grisy, and he had that dignitary's arms engraved on the back to correspond with the engraving on the original. In the evening he was invited to appear before the Pope and the papal household, During the course of his entertainment he asked for a watch, and as he expected, the Cardinal offered that precious time piece which had recently being undergoing repairs.

'Be very careful of it, Monsieur,' said his Eminence. 'I prize that watch very highly.'

Does it go?' inquired De Grisy, tapping the object referred to on the floor. The Cardinal protested.

'Be careful!' he exclaimed, 'You will ruin it,'

'I assure your eminence that it shall not be injured' the conjuror coolly replied, and thereupon dropped the watch into a mortar and pounded it vigorously, while the owner fumed and fretted to the amusement of the Pope.

Presently De Grisy ceased to use the pestle and dropped a chemical in the mortar which produced a red blaze. The Cardinal could not control his rage, and the Pope impelled by curiosity approached the table and looked into the fiery vessel. The conjurer was improving his trick and this gave him an opportunity to slip the duplicate watch into one of the Pope's pockets.

'Alas! Your Eminence's watch has disappeared,' he said to the Cardinal gravely, as the red glow faded out. 'But I can as easily cause it to reappear in 'another place as to vanish in the mortar. I am sure it is the pocket of his Holiness.'

The Pope felt in his pocket, and, to his confusion and the Cardinal's delight, brought forth the duplicate watch. The original had really been destroyed, and the trick cost De Grisy a thousand fracs, but it made him so famous that the temporary loss evidently proved to be a gain.

SHANNONVILLE NOTES.

From our own Correspondent.

SHANNONVILLE, Sept. 30.—Barley is moving but slowly yet, prices ranging from 50 to 60cts.

The schooner Delaware cleared from Lazier's dock here a few days ago, with three thousand bushels of barley, the first instalment of the season; the balance of her cargo was taken at Belleville.

The revival services at Lonsdale will come to a close with a grand Hallelujah festival on Wednesday evening, Oct. 8th. Tickets 75c per couple. It is thought that the house will be densely thronged.

The Albion hotel here is about changing hands, Mr. Davison, the present lessee, intends moving to Belleville. It is reported that our esteemed townsman, Mr. Fraser, has had the courage to negotiate for the purchase of the property, and will enter into immediate possession.

A fine vigorous young fellow by the name of Winters, son of the late Samuel Winters, of Lonsdale, was brought home yesterday from Michigan a corpse. He was crushed to death in a saw mill, and his untimely end has awakened universal sympathy and sorrow. His funeral takes place to day in the Presbyterian Church, Lonsdale. SIR:—In your issue of Saturday last you quote the Kingston Whig in saying that Albert College has changed its name to "Belleville Business College." This is an injustice to Albert College, the name of which cannot be changed by our Executive Board, being fixed by Act of Parliament. The only change of name is that of the Commercial Department—one of the nine departments of Albert College—which department is now called 'The Belleville Business College."

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York. Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED. The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health ... these Pills ... examinations, ... that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to remedy them, in removing ... and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerations, inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills ... with perfect success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying 'Directions.' Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The ointment assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by ... ing exhausted nature just when she needs ... succor.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Well, you see, lad,' answered the trapper, 'I know this country perfectly. I know that the Sarakow nearly encircles this part of the land to which we are heading and as the tributary is only fordable at one spot, it is pretty certain that Stuart will have made for that spot. Aware pursuit was sure it is not likely he'd have lost time by taking a long detour.'

Eustace was struck by the force of this reasoning, and also by the lucky chance that made this man his friend.

But he couldn't help suggesting—

'Should you be wrong?'

'Then, lad, we must track back. But it isn't probable, so don't think of it.'

Perhaps to keep our hero from reflection or perhaps because of a sociable spirit, Brixham entertained his companion by recitals of many adventures he himself had gone through. Eustace could not help but listen with an interest despite his cruel anxiety respecting Pauline's danger; for other traces of whom, such as the tiny glove, he kept an eager watch.

As to rest, he was by no means inclined to take any; and whether out of consideration for him or no, the trapper was apparently as indifferent about the matter.

So they camped when their horses' fatigue made it imperative.

'We can rest in our saddles,' laughed Brixham; 'but these poor dumb brutes have to do all the work.'

And affectionately he patted the silky mane of Prairie Belle.

On reaching the Sarakow and fording it, the trapper alighting, attentively examined the ground.

The close proximity of the river rendered the earth rather soft, but so many hours had elapsed, that none but a practiced eye could have detected indications of the fugitives, or perhaps prisoners might be a better term. Kneeling, Brixham carefully scrutinized the place while Eustace bending from his saddle watched him.

'Well,' he asked nervously.

'We are right so far,' replied the trapper. 'I see the marks of hoofs the one effacing the other, as if the party made a halt here.'

'And the road branches both ways,' cried our hero excitedly, 'Can you tell the way they went?'

'Well, I suspect is doesn't need tracks to tell,' remarked Brixham, rising.

'Why?'

'Simply because that,' and he pointed to the right, 'leads to several English settlements where if the Misses Beauchamp had demanded protection, they would have instantly got it, which wouldn't have suited John Gibbon or Stuart Loring, for do you all our way we have passed neither settlement nor ranche.'

'That is true, and the other road?' inquired Eustace.

'Leads to ——' began the trapper, and stopped.

'Well,' he went on; 'it leads to nowhere in particular, but trackless prairies. It is a wilderness.'

'And he would take that direction?'

'I am sure of it.'

'Why should he?'

'Because there'd be a better chance of avoiding being overtaken. Be certain Stuart Loring lays his plans well,' he, remounting his horse he started again on the trail.

'Poor lad,' he muttered, riding a little ahead. 'I darent tell him my doubts; he has enough trouble already, but I suspect my suspicion of John Gibbon's destination is correct. Its Utah; that infernal place has given him shelter once before.'

It was some time after this as night had closed in, that our hero broke in a rather long silence by a cry of joy.

'See, see!' he cried; 'a house at last! Surely here we may get intelligence, if it only be that they passed this way?'

'Yes, lad, there's a ranche sure enough,' he said drily; 'and we might get intelligence, but it would be of that sort that if it said go south, I'd start north.'

Eustace stared at him with surprise and inquired.

'It's just this,' proceeded the trapper, answering the mute interrogation; 'yonder house, known as Stretton's ranche, because a man of that name built it, years ago, until the Indians came down and murdered him and all his family, belongs now to one of the vilest rogues in the States. I believe he'd sell his own mother for a hand full of money, only she, being as vile as he, would be pretty certain to make him get the worst of it in the end.'

'Still,' persisted Eustace, rather irritably, 'he might at least know if they had passed.'

'He might, and no doubt does.'

'What interest then would he have in deceiving us—strangers?'

'Listen to me, lad, you've trusted me in bringing you right up to this, eh?' asked Brixham.

'Yes; implicitly grateful.'

'Well, ... Loring has selected a route to avoid every ranche, for fear, undoubtedly of information being given to his pursuers.'

'That appears evident.'

'Then why has he passed by the very door of this one?'

Eustace was silent.

'Because,' proceeded the other, he knows the scoundrel, Ventena, as well as I do. Because he is his friend, and is aware that his tongue and his hand can be bought by a bribe. Now, therefore, if we proceed, we may get lies told us for our pains, and tumble into a hornet's nest that will imperil our lives; for isn't it possible that Loring has paid him to send word if he finds us on the right trail?—then we're done for.'

Our hero caught and warmly pressed the speaker's hand.

'What an idiot I am, and what dangers I might get into but for you,' he exclaimed. 'How can I ever show my gratitude? Henceforth I will be silent and agree to all you propose; consent—nay glad to follow. No doubt Stuart Loring believes me dead, or too badly wounded to proceed; did he learn to the contrary, more hired assistance would be sent to dog my step and put an end to my existence.'

'There's truth in that,' said Brixam; 'and I propose, as our horses need rest, or they'll drop beneath us, that we camp awhile in the forest, and afterwards make a detour, strike the trail again some distance above Stretton's ranche.'

Eustace consented readily.

—Take all the Great health restorers.
—In short, take all the best qualities of all these and the —best —Qualities of all the best medicines in the world, and you will find that —Hop —Bitters have the best curative qualities and powers of all —concentrated —In them, and they will cure when any or all of these, singly or combined —Fail. A thorough trial will give positive proof of this.

HARDENED LIVER.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could save me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been in my grave. J. W. Morey, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

POVERTY AND SUFFERING.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused a sick family and large doctor bills.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctors visit will cost I know it,"—A Workingman.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s, own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

EMIGRANT EXPERIENCES IN NEW YORK.

AS PORTRAYED BY AN IRISH LADY.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Miss Charlotte O'Brien writes in the Nineteenth Century for October on 'The Emigrant in America.' Her account of her experience in New York after having crossed the ocean in the guise of an ordinary emigrant in the steerage of a mail steamship, is vivid and interesting. She says the streets which the average emigrant finds in the lower part of New York and by which he has an opportunity of judging of that city are incredibly filthy. They are filled in the summer time with children whose scanty attire has no pretence of decency, and with careworn, drunken and slatternly women mothers of constantly increasing broods, whose only heritage is misery. The internal arrangements of the houses in which the emigrants are herded are described as being quite as horrible as the outside filth. In summer the temperature in these compartments is such that sleep is impossible.

LIFE IS A CONSTANT BURDEN.

The blazing heat in which the brick tenement are baked during the day radiates at night and compels the inmates to flee to the roofs or streets for air and relief. In winter the conditions of the poor are even worse. They either suffer from intense cold or they baked as a victim to a close coal stove demon which seems to be the Moloch of the Americans from October to June. Miss O'Brien mentions the case of an Irish American physician who had successfully practised for eighteen years in Brooklyn, but who told Miss O'Brien that he felt compelled to return to Ireland because he found he could not rear his children in the neighborhood of New York. In the opinion of Miss O'Brien this is a great evil—that the children of Irishmen and Englishmen going to America are bound to GROW UP DISEASED AND DEPRAVED.

It is moreover an evil that is only partially remediable. The British Government, she says is now trying to send emigrants to those vile tenements, those dens of disease, poverty, and immorality, and it is time to let the English people know that such action is equivalent to the social murder which continues in light or darkness to darken modern civilization. It is a new application of the old proverb 'To hell or Connaught,' which means that anything bad is good for an Irishman. Miss O'Brien warns the English people that there is another nation beyond the sea that is watching England, and whose people bear in their hearts sentiments more deeply implanted than in Irish breasts, of anger, bitterness, and hopes of coming revenge. She says she was ignorant of what meant until she went to America and mixed with the exiles there. Miss O'Brien next pays her respects to those Irishmen who, having grown rich in the new world, leave their newly arrived countrymen to suffer all the horror she has described. If she say, the wealthy Irishmen in America did by their fellow countrymen one tithe of what the poor are doing unnoticed every day in Ireland, there would be indeed a great future for Irishmen beyond the sea. Miss O'Brien concluded by commending the authorities of Castle Garden, who do their utmost for new comers; but, she says, work that should be done for them is beyond their power, and the problem that is to be solved must be dealt with by a far higher authority.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell

STRANGE MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

A curious marriage ceremony took place in the Edinburgh Burgh Police Court recently. By an act of Parliament passed in the reign of Charles II. irregular marriages are declared illegal and punishable. Under this statute a young man and a young woman were on Tuesday brought before Bailie Hall charged with having declared themselves to be husband and wife in the presence of witnesses, without registration or celebration. They pleaded guilty, and two witnesses having deponed to the correctness of the charge, the accused were each fined 1s. The curious facts connected with the case are that the conviction becomes legally recognisable as a celebration of marriage and the document recording the conviction becomes a certificate of marriage to the Registrar.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

LOYALTY AND OATHS OF ALLEGIANCE.

A tremendous amount of balderdash had appeared, and is likely to appear, in the columns of the chief Tory organ bearing on this question. Its chief grievance is that some newspapers and public men have had the nerve to criticise the existing relations between Canada and the Mother Country.

The original idea of loyalty was personal, abject submission to every wish and whim of the sovereign, who was regarded as God's vice-gerent and more than mortal, and rebellion against him, or opposition to his will or caprice a mortal sin.

Taken literally, the oath of allegiance to-day, as in olden times, binds one to become, not the servant of Canada or Great Britain, but of the Queen personally.

In reality, however, no person takes the oath in this unrestricted, literal sense, but only as the Queen is the representative of law and order. The law decides the form of government. The people are the law-makers, and, therefore, should they deem it necessary to make a law altering the form of government and relieving Her Majesty from the position she now holds, the oath of allegiance binds to obedience to whoever, or whatever, is her successor "according to law."

The really disloyal citizen is not the man who frankly discusses, pro and con, such questions as independence or annexation, but he who agrees to what he believes will be hurtful to the country. When, some years ago, it was stated that the then proposed high tariff would injuriously affect British commercial interests, the Mail "loyally" cried out, "So much the worse for British connection!"

The truth of the matter is that if John A. had to choose between going out of power and becoming an annexationist, he and the Mail party would take the latter course, despite a thousand oaths of allegiance.

"IMPUDENT AND UNTRUE."

Under the above caption the Peterboro' Review says the ONTARIO asserts that Sir John did not propose to settle the Boundary question by a reference to the Privy Council, and says we have not offered "one iota of proof" that Mr. Mowat suggested such a reference.

Of course, we expect that our contemporary will submit that the correspondence between the two governments should show who was willing and who was unwilling to have the matter settled. That correspondence plainly shows that Sir. John's government was only willing to take the question before the Privy Council under conditions that Mr. Mowat could not, consistently with his expressed views on the matter, consent to.

The Review says that the following despatch dated Feb. 18, 1882, to the Dominion Government is proof enough that Mowat opposed the reference :—

> "The recognition of the award, by the Parliament of Canada, is desirable to prevent doubts and disputes ; but my Government do not admit that the award has no legal force without such Parliamentary action.'

The mind that could extract such a meaning from this must be a unique one.

The Review asks for proof of the ONTARIO'S assertions. A reference to what we did say will show that both the Kingston News and the Review falsely assumed that we stated that Sir John did not suggest a reference to England 12 years ago and then proceed to ask proof for what we have not stated.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Political issues do not seem to be the main factors on which the result of the campaign will hinge. So far the fight has simply been one of filth and foulness, and a disgrace to the American nation.

Blaine accepts without reserve the doctrine of protection. Cleveland is silent on the tariff question, and is evidently a believer in the maxim that "Silence is golden," on that point. The prospects of "Bias-eyed Ben Butler," as he is lovingly called by his opponents, do not appear very brilliant, notwithstanding the vigorous support of the New York Sun. The prohibitory candidate, St. John, will make a good showing especially in the rural districts, and it almost seems a pity that there is no chance of his election, if a tithe of the charges against the other candidates be correct.

The chief battle grounds will be Ohio and New York, and the campaign in these states for the next five weeks is sure to be an intensely hot one, and the result far from certain.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

In a recent speech before the Great Trades' Union Congress at Aberdeen, Lord Roseberry, the distinguished Liberal statesman, after showing the advantages likely to result to the working classes of Great Britian in the event of Imperial Federation with the colonies, said :—

> "I quite admit the sublimity of that conception. But we are practical men ; we have to deal with what is next to our hand, and likely to be achieved. I don't believe that a league of English speaking people is likely to be achieved in our time, though a later generation may well hope to see it. But I do point out this : that whether it comes in our time or not, I don't suppose that Great Britain, when she entered that federation or league, would be less considered if she came as the great head of a great empire than if she came with only the two islands, to which the nihilizing sect of colonisers would wish to reduce her."

Jos. Aeaudin, M. D. Hall, P. Q. writes Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil commands a large and increasing sale which it richly merits. I have always found it exceedingly helpful; I use it in all cases of rheumatism, as well as fractures and dislocations. I made use of it made use of it myself to calm the pains of a broken leg with dislocation of the foot, and two days I was entirely relieved of the pain."

"Blood Food" is the suggestive name often given to Ayer's sarsparilla ; because of its blood-enriching qualities.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IN the good old campaigning days of 1878 the "Home Market" theory of the protectionists did good service. Wonder what's become of it now. Apparently "she's busted her biler."

PROF. BLACKIE'S 'EIGHT POINTS'

A Characteristic Harangue by the Scottish Parnell.

Prof. Blackie presided at the Dingwall Land Law Reform meeting the other day, and in the course of a racy speech said he claimed not to have a single drop of Highland blood in his veins, but to have a great amount of Highland love in his heart. He came to the Highlands, not to kill grouse, or pick out salmon, or run after dear, but to assist his Highland brethren, and he said that the men who lived in the country and cared only for the wild beasts ought to become wild beasts themselves, for they were not much better. To preside at that meeting was one of the greatest honors ever paid him in the course of a long and prosperous life—a prosperous life, not in the worldly sense — for what did he care for any honors the Scribes and Pharisees and the hypocrite might confer. It was not for them and the respectable Whig and Tory party that he cared. It was for the Apostle Paul and for the prophets. This was the company that he kept. He had always been the most practical man in the world. He had studied history, ancient and modern—that was his business as a professor—and truth was his motto ; and he knew that that meeting would either be a complete failure—which it could not be—or it would be the germ of one of the greatest movements there had been in the country during this century.

The land question has not been settled ; it has been scarcely touched in the country ; but now it would spread like a mighty tree which would overshadow the land. They were only bit by bit, inch by inch, wrenching the land from unwilling Tories and pseudo-Liberals (that was Tory Liberals) in the same way as was done at the French Revolution in 1792. He did not think that was a model to be followed. Still they must make the old Tories shake in their seats. They would not be comfortable, and they would have some pins stuck in the soft part of their body. Two things nailed him to this banner of land reform thirty or forty years ago, and to these two and most important general principles he confined himself. One was that absolute power entrusted to any class was sure to be abused, the second, that the most important element in society was the rural population. The idea that society could consist of a few big men holding all the goods, with a perfect blank in the middle, and the rabble of once respectable men huddled down to the sea shore to eat whales and such things, was an inhuman, unchristian, and altogether impolitic idea. The strength of the State consisted in that which had been crushed and attempted to be exterminated. 'All great things are difficult,' was the great motto, and if they wanted to get to the house that was beautiful they must ascend the mountain of difficulty. They should fight like men. He rejoiced to fight the devil and all his works. It was not to be done to-day or to-morrow—it was not to be done in this Parliament; but if they were true to themselves it would be done in the next Parliament, as sure as God was in heaven. The enemies they had to fight and the friends they had to support them he would mention. He had put them down on paper, because when he spoke without notes he ran on like the waters of Ben Nevis. There were eight classes of their enemies—first, the gentlemen who set down Mr. Gladstone as the incarnation of Satan, and read the Courant and the Standard; second, lawyers, next, the political economists of the old unregenerate school ; then the plutocracy of the large towns; and besides that, English sportmen, London brewers and London lords; not all, but some of the large farmers; the pseudo-Liberals, who arrogated to themselves a name to which they had no right and who put party above principle : and, lastly, there were the mad men and bad men of their own party. These were their enemies ; and he would simply tell them that the land belonged to those who, by the history of the world and the law of God, put the spade into it first. On the side of the crofters were ranged eternal justice, divine right the British instinct of fair play and common sense. Next, they put aside the teachings of Adam Smith and McCulloch, which formed the Gospel according to Mammon. On their side they had the genuine and uncorrupted members of the Liberal party—a whole row of them—like Herbert Gladstone, Sam D. Smith, the member for Liverpool. the Irish members, the most intelligent of English lawyers, the Democratic Tories, including Mr. Gorst. In concluding, the learned Professor "tenthly and lastly," pointed with pride to the fact that the Grand Old Man was on their side, and that justice would yet be done them. (Cheers.)

THE MERCIER COMMISSION.

A Bombshell Thrown into the Conservative Camp by the Editor of Le Canadien.

An extraordinary sensation was caused in Quebec yesterday before the Royal Commissioner by the testimony of Mr. Tarte then editor of Le Canadien. He gave the entire history of the coalition negotiation in detail, and some of his disclosures were absolutely startling. Among other things he stated that the parties whose names, his own included were before the public as the chief actors in negotiations to effect a coalition between Mousseau and Mercier, were not the only ones ardently desired and promoted a solution of the Quebec situation. some of the most eminent men in the clergy including a certain Bishop., and some of the most marked laymen in the Conservative party not only favoured but authorized the negotiations. The basis of which satisfied at least the clerical element on the head of education—especially as it was shown that a coalition with the Liberals would be without danger to existing institutions and would otherwise be an immense benefit to the Province.

AN UNDERSTANDING WAS REACHED,

Asked by Mr. Mercier if he had any objection to give the name of the Bishop in question, Mr. Tarte said he did not care to do so but would give it if insisted upon.

Mr. Aymot, for the prosecution, said he objected as a Catholic, and the commissioners asked until the afternoon to consider. Mr. Mercier urging that it was only simple justice to him who had been charged by Trudel and Consevative press with cupidity and personal interest in wishing to force a coalition, that the witness should be allowed to make a clean breast of the whole affair. When the Commission met again the chairman announced that a majority of his colleagues had decided not to permit the witness to give the name of the prelate in question, whom, every one, however, knew to the Bishop Lafleche, of Three Rivers.

Mr. Tarte then continued his evidence, showing that this first attempt at a coalition was perfectly serious and that it only failed through subsequent circumstances. Respecting the second and last attempt he declared that it was tried by Mousseau authorization, Mousseau giving strong reasons why he desired it.

Asked by Mr. Mercier to specify these reasons witness, after strong opposition from Mr. Amyot, declared, amid the breathless suspense of the the crowd present that Mousseau told him he wanted a coalition because a certain Federal Minister was seeking to interfere in Provincial affairs and force him out ; because a union with the other side was absolutely necessary to protect Provincial autonomy, in view of the existing divisions in the Conservative camp ; and because the Federal Minister in question (Sir Hector Langevin) was endeavoring to thrust his son-in law, or then future son-in law, Mr. Chapais now editor of Le Courrier du Canada, into the Quebec Cabinet by compelling Mousseau to discharge one of his colleagues to make room for him.

A TOUNDED.

For fully three minutes after this extraordinary revelation was made by such a man as Mr. Tarte it seemed as if an underbolt had fallen into the room. A a blank look of dismay sat on the faces of the Ministerial Commissioners and their party friends, and a general titter ran though the remainder of the audience who, though not surprised at this new exhibition of Sir Hector's nepotism, could not help laughing at the absurdity of such a Ministerial appointment as he wished to force upon Mousseau, while congratulating themselves upon the narrow escape of the Province.

After this the remainder of Mr. Tarte's evidence was comparatively dull and uninteresting, the only important feature being his emphatic denial that it was ever contemplated by Mr. Mercier or any one else connected with the negotiations that the disqualification proceedings should be used to force Mr. Mousseau into a coalition, and also that the failure of the last negotiations was due to Mr. Mercier, who positively refused to join Mr. Mousseau under any circumstances after the scandalous manner in which Mosseau's press has treated him in the matter of the $5,000.

Mr. Mercier then asked to be examined himself, which was granted, when he specified one by one the numerous inaccuracies and falsehoods in Trudel's evidence, some of which he characterized as pure invention and others calumnies of the worst kind concocted between Trudel and his abettors. Among the confederates he specially singled out Mr. Tasse, M.P., of La Minerve, who he said was actuated not only by political but personal hostility to him. Mr. Mercier's statement made a powerful impression on his auditory. After this de declared his evidence closed. when the Commission adjourned to Wednesday of next week to permit Mr. Amyot to call witnesses to Trudel's character if he thought proper.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A sad accident occurred on the railway crossing on Hotel Street shortly after seven o'clock last night. A lad named Merrill was coming down the street with Ritchie's delivery wagon in company with Mr. A. W. Challen, head clerk in that establishment, when a train coming up Pinnacle Street struck the rig and carried it over a hundred yards. Merrill, as soon as the rig turned the around the corner, saw the approaching danger and jumped, but not before the engine struck the wheel. He, however, escaped uninjured. Mr. Challen, remaining in the wagon, was frightfully injured. His left leg was badly bruised and will in all probability have to be amputated. The carriage was turned around several times while on the front of the engine, but at the turn where the railway leaves Pinnacle Street, the rig was thrown to one side. Mr. Challen was conscious when picked up by those who saw the accident, and was carried into Dr. Tracy's office, where his wounds were dressed, Dr. Eakins assisting. The wagon was considerably damaged but the horse was not injured.

At 2:30 this afternoon the injured leg had not been amputated.

SPORTING NEWS.

O'Connor and Enwright won the amateure double scull race at Toronto yesterday, in 8:35.

Kingston, Oct. 1.—The races here today were very sparsely attended, only about 300 being present. In the green trotting race four horses started. The entries were Joe Brown, Lady Maid, Butcher Boy, and Glenburnie Boy. The two latter were ruled out for running in the first heat, leaving the race to be contested between Lady Maid and Joe Brown. The latter won in three straight heats.

The second race was for three minute horse, Joe Hooker, Watertown; Little Vic. Carleton Place; Thunder, Newboro'; Eastern boy, Watertown; and Joe Brown, Watertown. Joe Hooker got first place, Eastern boy second, and Little Vic third. Three heats were trotted, Joe Brown retired at the end of the second heat and thunder dropped out at the end of the first.

The hurdle race was contested by Major Short's Marta Burnette and Mr. J. D. Petrie's Pathmaster. The latter won easily.

The Bellevile Quoit Club visited the city yesterday afternoon and played a match on the cricket field. Score—Kingston, 361; Belleville, 358. The visiting club were entertained last night.

THE CHEESE MARKET.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Commercial Bulletin of yesterday says:—Receipts to-day, 4,188 packages. Quite a number of buyers were looking around to day and while none exhibited any special degree of hurry, all appeared willing to talk about strictly fancy stock and to negotiate at about former rates. Indeed, it seemed to be generally conceded that 11½c could be made for September dates in perfect condition, and receivers who expected anything of that kind among their, supplies to arrive asked more money by ¼c and even ½c per lb. It is generally understood that the combination; factories have fixed their inside limits on September stock at 12c for first half and 12¼ for all the month, with an expressed determination to carry rather than shade. They are still permitted to carry. For all qualities in any way defective the market for the present is simply nominal, but by no means promising. Holders ask quite as full rates as before, in some cases higher, but find no response, and shippers complain of less encouraging cable advices, increased freight charges and lower exchange, with no inclination to venture upon positive bids for the offering here or that expected to arrive. On home account business is very fair and at about former rates, with nice night-milk skims particularly in favor, cable 53s. 6d.

HOP MARKET.

New York, Oct. 2—Market gossip has it that contracts have been made with brewers during a week's time to the extent of at least 2,500 bales. The alleged prices range from 18@21c., delivered, with the inside rate exceptional. Some of the sales are credited to local and some to interior dealers; while all are, as usual, subjects for quite conflicting statements. As aside from what there may be doing in this way. business is certainly very slow, and the demand quite the reverse of animated. Some few goods are going forwar on consignment, but bona fide export purchases are rare, the inquiries light as well, and offers seldom above 20c free on board steamer here. England is said to have bought freely in the German market the past week, and that fact is looked upon by most shippers as indicating that purchases of American hops will therefore still further delayed. As matters stand, it would thus appear that there is more anxiety on the part of sellers than among buyers. Interior holders are not forcing stock by any means; but brewers have more goods offered them than they seem inclined to take up, and the same may be said of exporters. In a small way 21@22c is obtained here for choice stock, but 20c seems all that there is any chance of realizing at the moment for round lots. Good quality '83s are scarce and worth fully as much, if not a little more, than new crop.—Commercial Bulletin.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

A RARE PLANT.

The Wild Strawberry Plant possesses rare virtue as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it is an unfailing remedy in all Bowell complaints.

COSTLY WHALE FISHING.

A MONSTROUS WHALE CAUGHT BY A TELEGRAPH CABLE.

Mr. Robinson Kendal, chairman of the West Coast of America Telegraph Company, has communicated the following extracts from letters received from that Company's officials on the west coast of South America, to the papers. The captain of the company's repairing steamer writes: "Having picked up 21 knots of cable, and while continuing picking up, an immense whale came up to the bows entangled in the cable. It seemed to be about 70 feet in length. In its struggles to get free the cable cut right into its side, the whole of its entrails coming out, and great streams of blood. In its last dying struggle it parted the cable on the bow sheaves and floated to windward of the steamer.

"The cable was twisted up in the form of a wire rope for about two fathoms, and in six different parts it had the appearance of having been bitten through sufficiently to stop all communication. There is no doubt the whale has been the cause of the interruption." Their manager also writes: "The cause of the breakage of cable, as has been pointed out to you in Captain Morton's report, was a huge whale which became entangled in the turns of the cable, and was held prisoner for seven days; the interruption was unfortunate, but it is at least satisfactory to know that the cable did not give way naturally, and that where picked up, the sheathing yarn and core were found to be in an almost perfect state of preservation, in fact, looked as good as on the day the cable was first laid."

THE ORILLIA MURDER

TRUE BILL RETURNED AGAINST DR. CASE BY THE GRAND JURY.

Barrie, Oct. 1.—At the Assize Court here yesterday the case of Dr. Corse, who killed a man named Hamilton in a house of ill fame in Orillia some time ago, was before the grand jury, who brought in a true bill for murder. The doctor achieved some notoriety last winter by visiting Ottawa, and pretending to be aware of a proposed dynamite plot, but little notice was taken of him. After leaving the capital he assumed the role of private detective, and during a dispute shot Hamilton.

KINGSTON'S ASSESSMENT.

Condensed from the Whig.

The Assessor's rolls have been handed to the City Clerk. There have been increases in the values of real estate, and taxable personal property, but the greatest is in taxable income.

To save figuring we may state that the increase on the value of real estate is $113,915, and the increase in personal property is $17,150. The chief advances are in Cataraqui and Sydenham wards; the other wards show decreases. The taxable income has been advanced to the extent of $44,725. In 1884 it was increased $66,975, and the total now is $397,575.

The city's population, notwithstanding the withdrawal of young men and mechanics, is well sustained. The falling away has been seventy, comparing this year's figures with those of last year. St Lawrence ward showed the greatest decrease.

There are 490 horses, 162 pigs, 2 sheep and 336 cattle. Dogs and other canines owned in the city, a total of 800 against 750 last year. 367 persons will pay statute labor next year. The population is 15,287 as compared with 15,297 last year.

FARMER'S FOLLY.

Some farmers adhere, even against the full light of discovery, to the old-fashioned folly of coloring butter with carrots, annato, and inferior substances, notwithstanding the splendid record made by the Improved Butter Color prepared by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. At scores of the best agricultural Fairs it has received the highest award over all competitors.

WITH SATISFACTION.

Polson's Nerviline the new and certain pain cure, is used with satisfaction in every instance There is abundant reason for this, for it performs all that is claimed for it. Nerviline is a never-failing cure for cramps, pains in the side or back, lumbago, sore throat, chilblains, toothache. Nerviline is in fact a sure remedy for all pains, both internal and external. Try 10 cent bottle. Large bottles only 25 cents at druggists.

Barthelow's Fruit Evaporators.—This Evaporator, made at Vanessa, Ont., is shown with specimens of work in all kinds of fruits and vegetables, perfectly dried and the natural flavor retained. The very strongest testimonials are given by those who have used them. The process is simple, the price low, and as fruit is abundant every fruit grower should have one. Mr. W. H. VanTassel, of Belleville, handles the evaporator, and also various agricultural implements, from an engin down.

DID GOD MAKE THE DUDE?

St. Paul Herald.

The other day a little cherub of but a few summers sat at the window of her residence on East Fourth Street, when a genuine dude walked wearily by. His legs were phantom like, his shoes long and pointed, his dress foppish, he wore a single eyeglass and carried a diminutive rattan cane. As he started about idiotically the little one said:

'Mamma, did God make 'at man?'

'Yes, my darling.'

The little one looked again and giggled and with a merry twinkle in her eye said:—

'Mamma, 'Dod likes to have fun 'des as much as anybody, don't He?'

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York. Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and the natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours, J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swaton, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. y 2md&w

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED. The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

So diverging slightly, they regained the shades of the forest, where having selected a convenient place for their bivouac, and seeing their horses well provided for, they partook of the provisions that Brixham had wisely brought with him in a haversack.

Then wrapping themselves in their blankets with one which Ned had provided our hero, they stretched themselves on the ground to rest, but not to sleep; for they had to be on the alert against merciless enemies.

Since Eustace's arrival at New Orleans, it may be safely said without fear of contradiction, that he had taken little, if any rest: and even what he had had been so disturbed by his dreams as to render slomber rather another species of fatigue. But now, the cool atmosphere after the heat of the day, to which he was so unaccustomed, his long quick ride, and above all, the hopeful reliance he felt in his companion, produced so unusual a calmness of the body, and ease of the mind, that he was suddenly seized by an uncontrollable drowsiness.

His thoughts refused to dwell any longer on the subject.

They shifted like a kaleidescope.

Mists crept between him and them.

He made one or two vigorous efforts to resist the somnolent feeling, but without success, and finally his eyelids closing, he slept heavily.

Brixham had no sweetheart in peril to keep him awake; nevertheless he had no inclination to follow his companion's example.

The fact that he knew the forests well, and was aware that if one didn't keep on guard, the slumberer might be awakened by the spring of the jaguar, or a prairie wolf family gnawing and tearing at his limbs.

Thus, seated rather apart, and under the deep shadow of a pine tree, against which leaned, with his fur cap over his brows, and his blanket around him, he kept on the alert, though to all seeming apparently asleep.

Only a close observer could have detected the glitter of the keen eyes as now and again they flashed a sharp glance around.

One hour—two hours passed.

All was still.

The wild denizens of the forest appeared to have deserted the spot the travellers had chosen for they came not near.

They were only heard howling in the distance, and every now and then the silence was broken by the clear, singuar bell-like note of the campanero bird,

The quiet was so perfect, the night so calm, that even the old trapper began to feel its effects and dozed.

But abruptly the sharp eyes flashed into activity again, though the figure gave no sign of life.

Why?

His acute hearing had caught a slight a slight rustle in the underwood nearly opposite to where he sat.

What was it?

A jaguar?

A puma?

No.

The trapper was to conversant with the sound of the lithe yet weighty tread of those quadrupeds, steathily advancing towards the prey they scent on the breeze to be deceived.

Drawing himself noiselessly on his knees he retreated slowly behind the tree at the same time grasping his rifle.

In a few moments the sound ceased.

Had Brixham discovered himself?

Had an animal or man whichever it was detected his presence?

No.

The rustling almost immediately recommenced.

Now nearer.

What was the purpose of the midnight prowler.

The truth flashed across the trapper's brain.

Was it not that 'confounded cowardly skunk' again after the lad's life?

One question was not left long in doubt.

Out from among the bushes in front, there suddenly rode the form of a man.

An instant he stood, a broad-brimmed hat shading his face his long neck craning out, evidently in search of some particular thing,

O what?

His victim.

Yes.

And that was our hero.

Brixham saw by the turn of the murderer's head, when his eyes rested upon the young fellow lying, sleeping soundly, ignorant of the danger threatening him within two yards.

A second the man remained motionless, like one gloating over his prey.

Then slowly he raised his rifle to his shoulder, carefully covered his victim and took aim, muttering, the words coming indistinctly to the trapper,

'I'm near enough to make sure work this time.'

Hardly was the sentence completed when the sharp crack of a gun awakened the echoes of the forest.

But the report had not come from Ezra Grum's weapon, but Brixham's,

From the first the trapper had covered him with the barrel, and had followed every movement, and no sooner than he he felt perfectly sure of his intent, than his finger pressed the trigger, upon which it had all the while been resting.

His shot at least went home.

With a terrific howl as blinded surprise and rage, as his rifle went off in the air, the would-have-been assassin flung up his arms wildly and fell with his face downward on the ground among the bushes.

The double report brought our hero to his feet.

Seizing the rifle Ned had so thoughtfully given him on his departure, he looked around.

'What is it,' he called, 'Brixham are you safe?'

'As a trivet lad,' answered the trapper from the bushes.

'Where are you?'

'Here: come lad, and see a good night's work?'

'What is the matter,' demanded Eustace, striding forward, 'what was the meaning of those two shots?'

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and t all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. "TRUTH" ON PASSING EVENTS.

London Truth has the following notes:

The mounting of M. Sardou's new drama at the Porte Saint Martin will cost upwards of £12,000.

The post of Lord President can only be held by a Peer, and there can be no doubt that Lord Roseberry will be the new Cabinet Minister.

Mrs. Fred. Burnaby, who is travelling en garcon in Switzerland, has just distinguished herself by making a first ascent.

Mr. Gladstone was dreadfully mobbed during his visit to the Forestry Exhibition on Friday, and the enthusiasm of the vast crowd of visitors was somewhat exuberant.

I observed the other day in a newspaper that some coach-maker in Scotland had shown the Prince of Wales a hansom that would open and shut. This is the sort of vehicle which is wanted in London.

The interesting 'Literary Recollections' of Mr. James Payn, which have been one of the most attractive features in the 'Cornhill Magazine' during the last year, will be published in a complete form in November with additions and corrections.

When the French made Admiral Carbet a Peer and gave him 1,000,000f. for sinking some chinese gunboats, and when they compare this victory to the greatest achievement of modern war, it will be time enough for us to abuse and jeer at them.

The army tailors are once more in high glee. Another windfall has come to their lot. In a week or two an order will be published changing the uniform of the medical officers of the army, the Indian medical service, and the militia and volunteers' surgeons, altogether some 2,000 officers from scarlet to blue.

The late Lord Lauderdale has bequeathed the whole of his personal property to his niece, Miss Dyer, who resides with him at Thirlstane Castle. The entries are in strict settlement, and pass to the new Peer, They extend over 25,000 acres in Mid Lothian, East Lothian, and Berwickshire and are worth £15,000 a year.

IT WAS NOT A ROSE.

From the Chicago Herald.

'Oh, Alfred!' cried out the bride on the train, 'do look at those weeds and see that wonderful flower! It is like a great red rose, and is just the shape of a heart. I should so love to have it! Won't you get it for me, love? I will carry it home and preserve it as a souvenir, you know, pet, Do hurry, Alfred!'

The obedient husband hastened out. Breaking his way into the weeds he seemed just ready to grasp the peculiar prize, when right in front of him rose the form of an Irishman, evidently a section hand with his back to the track. Hearing the noise he turned and inquired, "What ye want?"

'I—oh—ah—beg pardon,' stammered the young husband, 'but there is a heart shaped wild flower in there.'

'What ye givin' me?' returned Pat, indignantly, but puzzled; and then, light breaking upon his mind, he added, 'Can't a man's old woman put a red patch on the sate of his pants widout a dood insultin' of him? Git out wid your wild flower nonsense.'

The bride did not get her souvenir.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

SAT DOWN IN THE PUDDING,

A story comes from rock-ribbed Windham Co., Conn. The use of names would be unkind, It concerns a spruce young city lawyer, who led a blushing damsel as a bride from her rural New England home and returned with her to the hospitable mansion of his hospitable father-in law to anjoy the Thanksgiving festival. He was given the post of honor at the table and called upon to carve according to the time-honored custom. The turkey was baked pretty hard and was somewhat tough withal. The spruce young lawyer struggled. The baked bird did not yield. An enormous plumb pudding stood beside the turkey platter, and was somewhat in the lawyer's way, finally he took up the pudding dish and placed it in his chair behind him, and then renewed his attack on the turkey with redoubled vigor, His face was red with effort and embarrassment, his glasses steamed with perspiration but still he struggled, At last he made a desperate effort and succeeded—in landing the imperious bird on the other side of the table. "There,' he said in despair, 'now I've done it,' and sat down in the pudding!—New Haven Register.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

MR. BLAKE AS A LEADER.

The following extract from a letter by "Young Canadian" in yesterday's Toronto News is so apposite that we take the liberty of inserting it:—

"There are very many points in your program with which I am in perfect accord, and I recognize the ability and 'snap" of your advocacy of them. But there is one matter on which I, and I am sure many others must disagree with you—I mean your hostility to Mr. Blake. Your constant assertion is that he is too cold and distant to attract personal adherents, too slow to seize an opportunity and turn popular feeling to his own and his pa,ty's advantage. You do not deny his ability. No thanks to you, by the way, for not denying what is so apparent. You do not impugn his honesty of purpose or cleanness of record. I cannot but think that your course toward Mr. Blake is extremely mischievous. You as good as say that he should watch every passing whim of the people, and take advantage of it by means of such catch-cry as 'No Chinese need apply or 'No more Britian mechanics.' If Mr. Blake did that sort of thing, do you think he would hold the place in the estimation of the people that he does to-day? If you do you are mistaken. It is because he does not stoop to clap-trap that he is respected as he is. If he were less manly and fair towards his opponents, or less honest with the people he might gain occasional applause or some momentary advantage, but it would be at the expense of the public confidence in him as a statesmen who is above the petty artifices of small politicians.

"The people of Canada now know how they have been duped for a generation by tinsel statecraft, by shoddy politics and by real corruption. They are looking forward to better days when the gold of true statesmanship, an honest policy, and their own unbought votes shall bear sway in the Dominion. And, the News notwithstanding, it is to the Hon. Edward Blake that their eyes are turned as a setter up of a higher standard for the politics and politicians (of, our young nation. Mr. Blake's reputation is too great—it has been the growth of too many years of patient, unostentatious toil to be damaged seriously by these attacks.

THAT DEMONSTRATION.

Our local contemporary exhibits characteristic littleness and partizanship in endeavoring to induce Reformers to abstain from taking part in the coming demonstration of welcome to the members of the Dominion Government who will pay a visit to the Murray Canal on the 14th inst. The demonstration is in no sense a party one, as is shown by the composition of the various committees, in which the Conservative and Reform parties are equally represented by members. It is simply a welcome to the Ministers, as such, on their visit to a great public work which the Government of which they are members have undertaken at the request of the people, without regard to party. We therefore hope that both parties will be largely represented on the occasion; that the intentions of the gentlemen, representing both parties, who arranged the programme, will be satisfactorily carried out, and that the bigotry of the ONTARIO will receive a fitting rebuke.—Intelligencer.

If "the domonstration is no sense a party one, as is shown etc.," why were the names of many Reformers published on those committees without their knowledge or consent? The ceremony, or whatever it may be called, will, undoubtedly, be made the occasion for indulging in political clap-trap, and while we think that Reformers will be well represented on that occasion as spectators, we certainly do think they would be foolish to allow themselves to be inveigled by specious representations about a "great public work," "without regard to party," &c., into even an apparent acquiescence in the Tory sentiments, and gratulations which are sure to be indulged in. If for no other motive, they should remember the utterances of the Conservative press and party anent the Mowat demonstration. We heard nothing about "without regard to party" then, although the occasion was one that called for the congratulations of every loyal lover of his country.

MR. MOWAT AND THE FARMERS.

The Hon. A. M. Ross said at Alexandria that "laws were made in the interests of other classes and against those of farmers.' Mr. Mowat has a majority in the Legislature including a large number of farmers. He has shown himself capable of forcing through legislation in favor of certain of his political tools. He would have no difficulty in legislating for the farmer if he wished to.—Mail

It probably did not occur to the ingenuous mind of the Mail editor that Mr. Ross' remark was made with reference to our Dominion laws—especially such ones as impose a tax on what the farmer consumes. Mr. Mowat's legislation has been eminently satisfactory to the farmers or they would not be so enthusiastic in sustaining him in power. Does the Mail have no recollection of making the extension of the franchise to farmers' sons and the Ontario Government's liberality to the Agricultural College counts in its indictment against Mr. Mowat?

"ROUGH ON DENTIST" Tooth Powder. Smooth, Refreshing, Harmless, Elegant, Cleansing, Preservative and Fragrant. 15c Druggists.

WHY HE DID NOT GO THERE.

The Paris (Ont.) Transcript relates the case of three brothers named McCullough, and of one McDonald, who with others have moved from Southern Manitoba into Dakota because of the absence of railroad facilities in their old home. This is a section of country which Sir Hector Langevin studiously avoided seeing while on his recent visit to Manitoba. If he had gone there he would have discovered plenty of dissatisfaction, and might possibly have convinced the Dominion Government that it is quite as necessary to build railroads to retain the settlers we already have as it is to build them for settlers who have yet to come.—Winnipeg Sun.

Jos. Asaudin, M. D. Hull, P Q. writes Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil commands a large and increasing sale which it richly merits. I have always found it exceedingly helpful; I use it in all cases of rheumatism, as well as fractures and dislocations. I made use of it made use of it myself to calm the pains of a broken leg with dislocation of the foot, and two days I was entirely relieved of the pain."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

TORY PAPERS make the mistake of accusing Mr. Blake and other Reformers of blaming the N.P. for the low price of grain. What they do say is—just what they predicted before the birth of the disreputable bantling—that it does not advance the price of farm produce, a fact patent to all now.

THE Ottawa Citizen speaks of Hon. O. Mowat as 'the successor to the goddess of liberty," and as having formed a partnership with the same ideal divinity, all in the same article. It may be an impossible thing for the Citizen to be witty, but it should try to be consistent in its figures of speech.

THE Trenton Courier rises to remark: "The Supreme Court are considering their verdict on the constitutionality of the McCarthy License Act. Should the verdict be in favor of the Province, the Tory papers will have another chance to convince the people that Sir John was always in favor of the provinces, and had the McCarthy Act passed to get an authoritative decision of the License question."

SHADES of Michael Angelo! what crime have the people of Ontario committed that they should be doomed to this incessant cramming of the Mowat demonstration down their throats!—Ottawa Citizen.—When the virulent abuse heaped upon Mr. Mowat by such papers as our contemporary is taken into account it is no wonder that the triumphant vindication of the rights of our province as upheld by the premier, and the almost universal rejoicing thereat, should be gall and wormwood to the editor's poor soul.

THE Kingston News is in great trouble over THE ONTARIO. On Tuesday it accused us of disliking Butler because we published part of a speech Ben made many years ago, and snappingly adds, "Well, let it dislike him." As "Biaseyed Benjamin," is not a candidate for political honors in this country, nor ever likely to be, we don't feel called upon particularly to like or "dislike" him. It is pleasing, however, to know that the pugnacious old war horse has such a powerful pen to defend him from all open and covert attacks, real or imaginary. The immense influence of the News on American politics will decidedly—most likely, perhaps—put Ben in with a rush.

Haines & Lockett have received 60 cases of the very best make of American rubbers. These shoes are all stamped with a glove on the bottom, and are considered by far the best rubber shoes made in the world.

Our name appears as one of the Committee to present an address to the Dominion ministers at the laying of the corner stone of one of the public bridges on the Murray Canal. We beg to decline the honor with thanks.—Trenton Courier.

A GOOD "RECOMMEND"

No feature of Mr. Blake's political make up recommends him more highly to the young and independent-minded men of Canada than his departure from the beaten track of party politics in the advocacy of measures far in advance of the party platforms of either side.—Montreal Herald.

A NAUGHTY BUT "MAGNETIC" OLD MAN.

It is not necessary to have a profound admiration for the Conservative chieftan's character or his methods, in order to realize the fact of his popularity. Like the Republican candidate for the presidency, Sir John is a "magnetic" man. A quarter of the misdeeds which have been brought home him would have suffered to drive any other leader out of public life in disgrace.—Toronto News.

THE SCOTT ACT.

HASTINGS PASSES RESOLUTIONS FAVORING THE ACT.

At the conclusion of a lecture delivered by Mr. Thomas McMurray in Madoc recently, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Moved by Rev. F. B. Stratton, and seconded by Rev. W. C. Beer, "That in view of the great evils arising from the cause of intemperance, and of the efforts now being put forth for the suppression of the traffic in the Province of Ontario, by the passage of the Scott Act, it is hereby resolved that the time has come when the temperance people of the County of Hastings should take the necessary steps to secure the adoption of said Act in this county."

The Committee met in the office of Mr. Wood on Monday night, and appointed A. F. Wood, M.P.P., chairman, and E. D. O'Flynn, Esq., secretary. It was agreed to write to several of the leading men at once to ascertain the feelings in other parts of the county regarding the submission of the Act.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.
The Best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chill blains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by B. Templeton.

Be sure you get the genuine Murray & Lanman's Florida Water. There are counterfeits but if you will hold a leaf of the pamphlet, which is around each bottle, up to the light, you will see in faint letters water-marked in the paper, the words "Lanman & Kemp, New York," and where you cannot see this, you may be sure the article is not genuine.

"Blood Food" is the suggestive name often given to Ayer's sarsaparilla, because of its blood-enriching qualities.

OUR CHICAGO LETTER.

Sights and Wonders in the Great Western Metropolis.

NOTES OF FORMER BELLEVILLE BOYS

(From our own Correspondent.)

CHICAGO, Saturday eve., Sept. 27.—Presuming that some of your readers will take advantage of the excursions next month I think it well to mention a few of the plans of special interest that are often forgotten or thought unworthy of a visit, while in reality they are of particular interest. The panorama of the battle of Gettysburg is one of the most magnificent and wonderful creations of ingenuity and art—words cannot describe it—nothing but a visit will do. If not more than satisfied call on me and have your money refunded and a chromo. It is in a building, built specially, located corner of Wabash Avenue and Hubbard's Court. Another place I love to visit is that wonderful place called 'The Fair,' on State, Adams and Dearborn Streets. Imagine sixty stores under one roof. Here you can buy your dinner, your photograph, your jewelry, stoves, bangs, medicines, shoes, sewing machines, millinery, refrigerators, carpets, dresses, furniture, tinware, books, baby carriages, fishing tackle, corsets, in fact anything we girls want or will want after we are married for house keeping or our husbands would want. You can hardly think of a thing but here you will find it and at a price always below the general price. 'Peck's Sun,' in speaking of the place says:—'One of the possibilities of this glorious climate is illustrated by the case of a man in Chicago named Lehman. Years ago he used to work Cheboygan when he was a boy; but he drifted to Chicago and peddled around the streets awhile, then got a little store, kept adding to it, until now his business covers half a block, and he sells more goods of all kinds than any man in Chicago. This Lehman must be a thoroughbred any way you can fix it, and curiosity if nothing else should cause every visitor to Chicago, from every place the sun shines to go and look over The Fair.' Visitors not wishing to purchase are not annoyed by the salesmen in any way, but are always welcome to look through and investigate this unequalled curiosity shop. Lincoln Park, beautifully situated on the lake shore, should also be taken in if possible on Saturday afternoon in order to see in addition to its natural beauties the magnificent turn outs of the wealthy, the masses of the common people and hear the splendid music of the military bands. The Palmer House is generally regarded as the finest hotel in this city of palatial hotels, and is well worth visiting. Walk right in as if you boarded there, there are so many guests they will not know you have just been revelling in a 15 cent dinner. The court house no one can help seeing, is the most magnificent pile of buildings, occupies a block bounded by Washington, La Salle, Randolph and Clarke Streets. Water works, about a mile and a half north of the Court House on Pine Street. This great establishment with crib and wonderful pumping facilities cost eight million dollars. It has five hundred miles of water piping, three thousand five hundred hydrants, and can supply one hundred and fifty million gallons of water daily.

The Industrial Exposition will be open until Oct. 18th; is held in exposition building on Michigan avenue, and is the last place of interest I will speake of. Do not miss it while here. The other day, in passing a gents' furnishing store, I was much amused by seeing in the nicely dressed window filled with garments of white, a large card lettered 'Slumber Robes,' must have some poetic soul in that establishment. I have seen very few parasols this season, so few ladies carry them, I've not used mine during the warmest weather. Of course one gets much freckled and tanned, but powder will cover it over. Never thought I would come to it, but frescoing is very common. This week I have met quite a number of familiar faces and had the pleasure of chatting over old times with friends I had not seen for many years.

Henry Stevens, an old Grammar School boy, and for several years with M. Sawyer, in the drug store, called and renewed old acquaintance. Alex. Chisholm, of the old firm of J. & W. Sutherland, I also had the pleasure of a friendly chat with. He is manager for the Chicago Sugar Refinery, is as young and jolly as twenty years ago, hopes some day to settle on the banks of the bay of Quinte in dear old Belleville.

Henry Neilson, who has been for the past three years and a half a resident of Kansas City, spent two or three days here this week. He reports business prosperous, is pleased with life in the west, believes it the place for our young men. Walter Donnelly left for a trip through Indiana on Thursday, in the interests of a leading firm he has the honor of representing. The corner in corn has cornered a great many, one firm losing $250,000. For the benefit of the gentlemen readers I will give a few particulars regarding the the markets as reported to-day. Provisions quiet, except October lard, short ribs were very dull, wheat is active, corn quiet and steadier, oats quiet and rather easy, hides and tallow quite firm, grease moderately active, nails exhibit no improvement and whisky ruled steady.

HAMILTON LABOR DEMONSTRATION.

HAMILTON, Oct. 2.—This evening the Hamilton Labor Political Association held a demonstration. The held a procession, headed by a fife and drum band, and paraded the principal streets, carrying Chinese lanterns and transparencies bearing the mottos—'He who will not reason is a fool, he who dare not is a slave;' 'Measures before party;' 'No convict labor;' 'We are all opposed to the importation of Chinese pauper contract labor, and condemn the action of the Government in expending the taxes gathered from the people of such purposes;' 'No lepers wanted;' 'No room for paupers;' 'Not another dollar for immigration;' 'No competition with prison, Chinese, or pauper labor;' 'This is a warning to politicians to beware,' 'No Chinese;' 'No lepers;' 'We demand the franchise as our right;' 'The ballot is our dynamite,' &c. After the parade an open-air meeting was held on the Market Square.

THE COACHMEN AGAIN.

TROY, Oct. 1.—W. R. Bartholomew, a coachman employed by W. J. Simmons a wealthy business man, secretly married Simmons' adopted daughter, Mary Emma Babcock, 19 years old, on Friday night. Bartholomew is thirty, and was born in Schoharie county. Simmons is a widower with no children, and resides in a fine mansion in in the suburbs. The couple are preparing to leave Troy. Simmons was not informed of the marriage till this afternoon.

Persons of sedentary habits, the greater part of whose time is passed at the desk, or in some way bent over daily tasks, cramp the the stomach, weaken its muscles, and incur dyspepsia early. NIPPED IN THE BUD.

A young and lovely daughter of a Quebec banker and an ambitious young lumber merchant, had arranged for an elopement, but the stern parent of the lady got wind of the affair, and, of course, the performance did not come off. The lady is now kept a pretty close prisoner in her father's mansion. An Island in the vicinity of the ancient Capital is the scene of this little romance.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.
That many with the glad consent praise new-born remedies; especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practised in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitute. Lies at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson H Co, props Kingston.

A PASSIONATE BARBER

Attacks a Man with a Razor and is Killed.

A VICTIM OF PASSION.

CALGARY, Sept. 24.—That Wm. Foster, formerly a barber in this town, was murdered at End of Track, was the brief intelligence received here on Sunday last. From particulars we have since learned it appears that Foster was in the habit of moving forward with the C. P. R. men. On Friday last his outfit was being carried to the front on a train which was in charge of Finn. In unloading the effects a barber's chair was broken, which aroused Foster to almost an uncontrollable degree of excitment. After the matter has subsided Foster called Finn into his tent and commenced to abuse him shamefully. Finn retaliated, and Foster then rushed at the former with a razor. Finn receded until cornered, when he drew his revolver and fired four shots, three of which took effect Foster died the next day. The victim was of morose disposition, and regarded as a dangerous man. It is said that he shot a man in Montana, and that this was the fourth time he was known to have drawn in one case cutting a man seriously in the abdomen. Finn has been engaged on the C. P. R. Construction some two or three years, and at the time of the shooting was foreman of the iron car. He is represented as being a quiet and inoffensive man, and was a favorite with the workmen, who believe the act was done in self-defence. Finn was arrested yesterday at Eldon by Constables and Gould, to whom he stated he was then on his way to Calgary to give himself into the hands of the police. He was brought to Calgary, but will be sent to British Columbia, as Northwest magistrates have no jurisdiction in the matter.

THOUSANDS OF SCOTS.

DEMONSTRATION IN GLASGOW TO PROVE THAT THE LORDS MUST GO.

From Detroit Free Press Letter.

Since I last wrote there has been a tremendous demonstration against the Lords in Glasgow, which is the biggest thing in that line since the London affair. Seventy thousand good men and true marched 'shoulter to shoulter,' to show that they thought we had enough of lordly legislation There were 400 carters mounted on their tremendous horses; there were 500 old veterans who had taken part in the reform troubles of 1813 and 1833, and their banner bore the strange device, 'There's life in the old boys yet.' A huge loaf that took a whole dray to carry it was followed by a procession of bakers 'all dressed in spotless white,' as the hymn says. Think of forty brass bands in one procession. Eight platforms were erected on Glasgow green, and as many speakers spoke at one time to the immense gathering. Trevelyan, the nephew of Macaulay, and the secretary for Ireland, was the lion of the day, and spoke to a large audience in the evening.

Sargeant Downs, yesterday, arrested two boys, Edward Janeway and Thomas McDonald, for stealing a wedding cake from Mr. J. Shearing's Wednesday afternoon. It appears the lads saw the cake on the window through the shutters, and after stealing it ate about half of it. The balance they put under the sidewalk, and yesterday their breakfast and dinner consisted of wedding cake. At the police court this morning the boys were remanded until Monday.

At the police court this morning John Heary Zufelt was assaigned on a charge of breaking into the house of Wm. Clare, Shannonville, on the night of the 13th of May, and carrying off a pair of pants a vest and 35 cents in money. He pleaded not guilty and made no election. Mr. Clare swore that on the night in question after being aroused by a noise got out of bed and met Zufelt walking on his toes. He at once turned and jumped through the window, a pistol shot at the same time smashing a lamp which Mr. Clare held in his hand. Zufelt was committed for trial. The charge against him and his partner Frall, and the woman Harrigan for committing a robbery at Mr. Thos. Vanallen's in this city, will be investigated at the assizes, when they will also be tried for burglary at Mr. H. B. Rathbun's and Mr. Hiram Holden's.

RUM AND THE RAILWAY.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—On Tuesday night as the late train on the Wellington, Grey & Bruce Railway was nearing Lucknow, the engineer felt a sudden jolt, as if he had run down something, and on examination subsequently, the body of a man named A. McCurvie was found on the track, horribly mutilated, one leg and one arm having been taken off by the ponderous wheels of the engine. The unfortunate man died soon after he was discovered. He was a constable in Lucknow for some years, but of late had been leading a rather dissipated life, and it is supposed that he committed suicide, in the manner stated while under the influence of liquor.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

STRUCK ON THE RAILWAY.

John Fitzgerald, lately from Ireland, was found yesterday morning lying upon the track of the Bay of Quinte Railway with his head all cut and his person otherwise injured. He had been drinking and it is thought that he sat down and and was struck by the early morning train which had connected with the Grand Trunk express. He was conveyed to Deseronto and his injuries attended to. They may prove fatal.

MERITED PRAISE.

The universal praise bestowed upon Kidney-Wort as an invaluable remedy for all disorders of the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels is well merited. Its virtues are universally known and its cures are reported on all sides. Many obstinate cases have succumbed to it after they have been given up by the doctors and a thorough treatment will never fail to cure. Sold by all druggists. See adv't.

TRENTON TOPICS.

From our own Correspondent.

TRENTON, Oct. 3—The schooner Blanch, laden with coal, is aground in the harbor here, and I just received word that the Western, of Port Hope, with lumber, is ashore at Weller's Bay with little prospect of saving her.

Capt. Cuthbert, the celebrated yacht builder, will remain here this winter. He has received an order to build a yacht of about the same dimensions as the Iolanthe of Belleville. The new yacht will be one foot more draught and 18 inches more beam, with the same canvass as the Belleville flyer. The builder is confident he can model one that will outsail the Iolanthe. He has also received an order to build a fish boat for a Brighton party.

HIS RIDE WITH A LUNATIC.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 2,—William Bunn, an employee of the Pompey House, near the eastern extremity of the city, hitched a horse to a carriage about 6 p. m. yesterday and started for a farm near the East Avenue Driving Park. At a street corner near the edge of the city a man sprang from behind a tree, jumped into the waggon and, placing a revolver at Bunn's head, demanded the reins which were handed to him. He lashed the horse into a run, still covering Bunn with the weapon and threatened to shoot him if he stirred. The man guided the horses toward Thompson's Landing, on the Erie Canal, and thence drove to Messina Springs, which is four miles east of the city, making the distance in less than half an hour, the horse running all the way and the wagon thumping about fearfully. From the man's actions and words Bunn saw that he was insane. He asserted that he was pursued by a band from Buffalo Bill's gang of showmen, who were here recently, and who demanded $10,000 of him and would kill him unless it was paid. At Messina Springs he turned the horse toward the city, and again urged the terrified animal to a breakneck pace. At the corner of James and Lodi Streets the lunatic sprang from the wagon, which passed over him. Still flourishing his revolver, he jumped up and disappeared down a side street. Bunn drove into the city, and officers were sent out to search for the companion of his thrilling ride. They found him dragging himself about with a broken leg. He was recognized as Wm. T. Denison of this city, and was taken to a hospital. Denison was a hard drinker, and his insanity is due to alcohol.

IT WAS TOO LONG.

'In soft adumbrant meshes of seived silver the sunbeams melted the leaves and dripped in spangles of gold upon brown and black moquetrie of the shadows that led to the ragged edge of the curb, where a fragile little fragment of humanity lay moaning.'

'That's all right enough,' said the managing editor, 'but it's a little too long. Make it shorter.'

'But what will I say sir?' asked the blonde reporter.

'Oh, I'd just say, 'Hennessy Mulcahey's little boy Pat fell into an open sewer and broke his nose.' That'll do for an introduction, and then you can go on and say what's necessary about the careless manner in which these things are conducted, and that under another administration of our local and so on, you know. FRONT STREET, BELLEVILLE.

ONE OF THE PROFESSION.

A Wall street friend who had just returned from the west told a rather good story yesterday. Said he:

'I went out to the Yellowstone with a party and we had a curious adventure. There were in the crowd two brokers, a bank cashire, a railroad man, and a couple of Englishmen. In a lonely spot we were suddenly held up by four mounted road agents, who, with carbines levelled at our heads, shouted to 'put up your hands.' our party was pretty baddly shaken up, I tell you. We were ordered to step out while one of their men ransacked the coach.

'Look here, men,' said one of the Englishmen, 'you don't want anything of us. We are traveling with just money enough to pay our expenses. This gentleman here is the cashire of the——bank; but he doesn't carry the bank funds with him, you know.'

The fellows looked at him a moment then one of them asked of our companion:—

'Are you really a bank cashier?

'Yes,' said he rather faintly.

'Then,' said the leader of the gang, 'then boys, we're off this hunt. Them gentlemen kin go. We recognize a professional when we see him, and we take off our hats to a bank cashier because he's the boss in our line of business. You can have your wallets, gentlemen, and we hope you'll have a safe journey.'

And by—, sir, would you believe it the rascals actually handed back our things intact, lifted their hats to the cashier and dashed off like the mischief. We were rather scary about travelling in his company after that, but the poor fellow assured us on his soul he had never robbed a bank in his life, and he attributed it to the fact that a few rascally cashiers had made the banking business disreputable for a person of refined instincts.—N. Y. Star.

RELATION OF MANUFACTURE AND SALE.

The Week.

The belief that miscellaneous newspaper reading has a demoralizing effect upon the memory and perceptive faculties has not a few adherents. This theory appears to receive some confirmation from the unintelligent deductions which are occasionally drawn from editorial writings—a result probably attributable to a cursory style of reading. A case in point is that of a correspondent to a daily paper, who voices a delusion under which some others apparently labor: that the Week upholds the use of ardent liquors—in the phraseology of these critics, that it is a "whiskey organ." Nothing could be further from the truth. Every person who has intelligently noted the position taken by the Week upon this question is aware that whiskey has been held up as the principal contributing cause to drunkenness, and as being worse than valueless as a beverage. Further, the opinion has been stated in these columns, that the total suppression of the manufacture of whiskey would be of immense benefit to the community. Once made, it is a farce to attempt to prohibit its sale, as all experience shows. What the Week has maintained is, that Prohibition as a panacea for all ills resulting from drinking has been and must be a failure, as it is also an injustice to a specially licensed business, and to those who are not subject to depraved appetites. Numerous as are the attributes of alcohol, it cannot create or develop qualities in those who use in which were absent previous to its being taken.

FARMER'S FOLLY.

Some farmers adhere, even against the full light of discovery, to the old-fashioned folly of coloring butter with carrots, annatto, and inferior substances, notwithstanding the splendid record made by the Improved Butter Color prepared by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. At scores of the best agricultural Fairs it has received the highest award over all competitors.

WITH SATISFACTION.

Polson's Nerviline the new and certain pain cure, is used with satisfaction in every instance. There is abundant reason for this, for it performs all that is claimed for it. Nerviline is a never-failing cure for cramps, pains in the side or back, lumbago, sore throat, chilblains, toothache. Nerviline is in fact a sure remedy for all pains, both internal and external. Try 10 cent bottle. Large bottles only 25 cents at druggists.

A RARE PLANT.

The Wild Strawberry Plant possesses rare virtues as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it is an unfailing remedy in all Bowell complaints.

WALK AND CONVERSATION.

A tutor of one of the Oxford colleges, who limped in his walk, was some years ago accosted by a well-known politician who asked him if he was not the chaplain of the college at such a time, naming the year. The doctor replied that he was. The interrogator observed 'I know you by your limp. 'Well,' said the doctor, 'It seems my limping made a deeper impression than my preaching.' 'Ah, doctor,' was the reply with ready wit, 'it is the highest compliment we can pay to a minister, to say that he is known by his walk, rather than by his conversation.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,

J. M. JOHNSON,

Missionary to Swatou, China.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—THE GREAT NEED. The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Only lad, a skunk dared to push his nose where he wasn't wanted and I sent a bullet into him.'

By this time Eustace had reached the spot where Brixham knelt.

He started back in horror on beholding what was really lying prostrate there on the grass.

'Great Heaven!' he cried, 'it is a man.'

'Yes said the trapper quietly, raising his head to the other's face; 'Its a man, sure enough, the one I expect who has twice before attempted your life, as he did again to-night.

'And you—you shot him?'

'I did but don't look so scared, he isn't worth a thought,

'I now can scarcely comprehend,' ejaculated our hero: 'you never mean that —.'

'That man is Stuart Loring's paid assassin. You've had a narrow escape before but not like the one to-night.'

'And for the second time I owe you my life,' exclaimed Eustace as he pressed the trapper's hand.

'Well, I think so,' was the quiet rejoiner "this time was pretty surely aimed this time.'

'How can I ever repay you? Is the miserable fellow dead?'

'That, lad is just what I am about to see; I strongly suspect that there isn't much chance of his playing his villanous trade again. My bullets seldom err.'

CHAPTER XL.

THE INTERVIEW—SALVED BUT NOT DEFEATED.

The interview to which Stuart Loring had consented, and which he passed in eager impatience, and Pauline in terror; had gone by.

In vain had the poor girl hoped for rescue,

Day and night on her knees she had prayed for it.

But no rescue had come.

Accompanied by its escorts the caravan had rumbled on over the prairie, through the primeval forests uninterrupted.

Not a soul did they encounter.

The sisters seemed alone.

Deserted by all on earth,

Deserted even by Heaven.

That last night Pauline slept but little,

Neither did the Creole, who had her own private thoughts to occupy her,

They sat close together, (the position being poor confiding Pauline's selection), sometime's buried in silence, sometimes conversing in low whispers, Keziah being in the outer room.

Not that Pauline, like the Creole mistrusted the negress. She yet believed in her as she did not know all her enemies.

Oh! Juliette Juliette,' moaned the unhappy girl for the twentieth time, 'how shall I meet this man?'

'With calmness and courage,' answered the Creole, promptly - 'you must, indeed, you must compose yourself,'

Compose myself?' cried the girl in a passionate outburst of grief, how is it possible? If nothing else exists to frighten me, is not that awful vision—that dream in which I beheld my darling dead—oh dead Juliette—sufficient?'

Tut, tut, Pauline, it was but a dream, the fruit of your sad waking ponderings; it was but a dream, dear.,

'Yes, a dream.' answered the girl, raising her tearful, haggard eyes, her accents increasing in intensity; but no common one—a dream such as those that visited us in London,'

'This, Pauline, is a return of your old nervousness; I shall, indeed fear for for you if you again succumb to it.'

'Again', responded her half-sister; 'with me, it has never ceased. I may have hidden it, aye, even tried to banish it, but fruitlessly, I feared this man when I saw him in my dreams, before I met him at aunt's; I knew he would bring evil upon us. and, was I not right?'

'You were,' answered the Creole in a low tone.

'I was not deceived.

Juliette slightly averted her eyes as she said——

'Apparently not.'

'Why was it that I so weak, with not half your cleverness saw through this man when you did not" Why through those very dreams that came to me as a warning They were true, and—and that of Eustace true,' she concluded, with a fresh burst of grief.

Thus the night passed and the day dawned.

Noon had barely arrived when the caravan came to a halt.

A few minutes afterwards Keziah appeared with a message that Stuart Loring hoped Miss Pauline Beauchamp was well enough to favor him with an interview.

'A hope—that is a command,' remarked Pauline, bitterly. Go, good Keziah, say in five minutes I shall be prepared to receive him.'

As the negress, who might never blushed had her blackness not rendered it impossible, at the adjective, 'good' being addressed to her withdrew, the Creole rose to from her seat.

'You are not going, Juliette? you will not leave me? exclaimed the half-sister, with a tremor.

'My dear, have I not said just now when you spoke of it, that it was better so,' was the rejoiner. 'Alone you would more readily discover this man's intentions, consequently, the better guard against them. At a call, I will return; I shall be near you, remember that.'

Pauline shivered.

'Perhaps what you say is true; let it—at least—it must be so,' she answered faintly 'but should I call, oh come, if you love me.'

The last sentence came as a cry—a piteous appeal

'Do not doubt that, said the Creole, softly as she passed into the inner room, and closed the door.

Owing to the apparently lucky forethought of Keziah in loading herself with so many packages, for, of course, she could never have dreamed of their journey being so prolonged, the sisters had been able to change their heavy travelling dresses for a more comfortable toilette.

Great Medical Work on Manhood

Exhausted Vitality, Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline in Man, Errors of Youth, and the untold miseries resulting from indiscretion or excesses. A book for every man, young, middle-aged, and old. It contains 125 prescriptions for all acute and chronic diseases, each of which is invaluable. So found by the Author, whose experience for 23 years is such as probably never fell to the lot of any physician. 300 pages, bound in beautiful French muslin, embossed covers, full gilt, guaranteed to be a finer work in every sense—mechanical, literary and professional—than any other work sold in this country for $2.50, or the money will be refunded in every instance. Price only $1 by mail postpaid. Illustrative sample 6 cents. Send now. Gold medal awarded the author by the National Medical Association, to the officers of which he refers.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE should be read by the young for instruction and by the afflicted for relief. It will benefit all.—London Lancet.

There is no member of society to whom THE SCIENCE OF LIFE will not be useful, whether youth, parent, guardian, instructor, or clergyman.—Argonaut.

Address the Peabody Medical Institute, or Dr. W. H. Parker, No. 4 Bulfinch-street, Boston, Mass., who may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience. Chronic and obstinate diseases that have baffled the skill of all other physicians a specialty. Such treated successfully without an instance of failure. Mention this paper.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that, the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnesia Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all Druggists

PILATE'S WASH BASIN.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Comments on Conscience.

Last Sunday Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage preached on Conscience, taking for his text :—

> "He took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it."—MATT. 27 ; 24.

The bloated-lipped governor takes the cushioned seat, but the prisoner stands, his wrists manacled. In a semicircle around the prisoner are the Sanhedrists, with flashing eyes and brandished fists, prosecuting this case in the name of religion, for the bitterest prosecutions have been religious prosecutions; and when Satan takes possession of a good man he makes up by intensity for brevity of occupation. If you have never seen an ecclesiastical court trying a man, then you have no idea of the foaming infernalism of these old Jewish Sanhedrists. Governor Pilate cross-questions the prisoner, and finds right away He is innocent, and wants to let Him go. His caution is also increased by some one who comes to the Governor and whispers in his ear. It is a message from Claudia Procula, his wife, who has had a dream about the innocence of this prisoner and about the danger of executing Him, and she awakens from this morning dream in time to send a message to her husband. And what with the protest of his wife, and the voice of his own conscience, and the entire failure of the Sanhedrists to make out their case, Governor Pilate resolves to discharge the prisoner from custody. But the intimation of such a thing brings upon the Governor an equinoctial storm of indignation. They will report him to the Emperor at Rome. The Emperor at Rome has already a suspicion in regard to Pilate, and that suspicion does not cease until Pilate is banished and commits suicide. So the matter, and proposes that Christ be whipped instead of assassinated. So the prisoner is fastened to a low pillar, and on His bent and bared back come the thongs of leather, with pieces of lead and bone intertwisted, so that every stroke shall be the more awful. But the Sanhedrists are not yet satisfied. They have had some of His blood; they want all of it, down to the last corpuscle. So Pilate surrenders to the demoniacal cry of 'Crucify Him!' But the Governor sends for something. Yonder it come, a wash basin. Some pure, bright water is poured into it, and then Governor Pilate puts his white, delicate hands into the water and rubs them together, and then lifts them, dripping, from the towel fastened at the slave's girdle, while he practically says: "I wash my hands of this whole homicidal transaction. I wash my hands of this entire responsibility: you will have to bear it.' That is the meaning of my text, when it says, 'He took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person; see ye to it.' Behold in this, that ceremony amounts to nothing, if there are not in it correspondences of heart and life. It is a good thing to wash the hands. God created three quarters of the world water, and in that commanded cleanliness; and when the ancients did not take the hint he plunged the whole world under water and kept it there for some time. Hand washing was among the Jews. The Jewish Mishna gave particular direction how the hands must be washed. Pilate's wash basin was a dead failure. Ceremonies, however beautiful and appropriate, may be no more than this hypocritical ablution. In infancy we may be sprinkled from the baptismal font, and in manhood we may wade into deep immersions and yet never come to moral purification. When that bronzed slave took from the presence of Pilate that wash basin he carried away none of Pilate's cruelty, or Pilate's wickedness, or Pilate's guilt. Nothing against ceremonies; they are of infinite importance. Nothing against sacraments; they are divinely commanded. But ceremony is only the sheath to the sword, it is only the shell to the kernel, it is only the lamp to the flame, it is only the body to the spirit. The outward must be symbolical of the inward. Wash the hands by all means but, more than all, wash the heart. Behold, also, as you see Governor Pontius Pilate thrust his hand into this wash basin, the power of conscience. He had an idea there was the blood of an innocent person, whom he might have acquitted if he only had the courage. Poor Pilate! his conscience was after him, and he knew the stain would never be washed from the right hand or the left hand, and until the day of his death, though he might wash in all the lavers of the Romish Empire, there would be still eight fingers and two thumbs red at the tips. For every sin, great or small, conscience, which is the voice of God has a reproof more or less emphatic. Charles IX., responsible for St. Bartholomew massacre, was chased by the bitter memories, and in his dying moment said to his doctor, Ambrose Perry: 'Doctor, I don't know what is the matter of me; I am in a fever of body and mind, and have been for a long while. Oh, if I had only spared the innocent, and the imbecile, and the cripple!' Rousseau declared in old age that a sin he committed in his youth still gave him sleepless nights. Charles II., of Spain could not sleep unless he had in his room a confessor and two friars. Cataline had such bitter memories he was startled at the least sound. From what did Adam and Eve try to hide when they had alll the world to themselves? From their own conscience. What made Cain's punishment greater than he could bear? His conscience. What made Ahab cry out to the prophet, 'Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?'

PILATE COMPROMISES

A RELIGIOUS CEREMONY

Why is it that that man in this audience with all the marks of worldly prosperity upon him, is agitated while I speak, and is now flushed and is now pale, and then the breath is uneven, and then beads of of perspiration on the forehead, and then the look of unrest comes to a look of

HORROR AND DESPAIR?

I know not. But he knows, and God knows. It may be that he despoiled a fair young life and turned innocence into a waif, and the smile of hope into the brazen laughter of despair. Or it may be that he has in his possession the property of others, and by some stratagem he keeps it according to law, and yet he knows it is not his own, and that if his heart should stop beating this moment he would be in hell forever. What made that farmer converted to God go to his neighbor and say: 'Neighbor I have four of your sheep. They came over into my fold six years ago. They had your mark on them, and I changed it to my mark, I want you to have those these sheep, and I want you to have the interest on the money, and I want you to have the increase of the fold and if you want to send me to prison, I shall make no complaint'? The infidel heard of the man's conversion and said: 'Now, now, if you have got those sheep you are welcome to them. I want nothing of those things at all. You just go away from me. Something has got hold of you I don't understand. I heard you were down to those religious meetings.' But the converted man would not allow things to stand in that way, and so the infidel said: 'Well, now, you can pay me the value of the sheep and six per cent, interest from that time to this, and I shan't say any any more about it, Just go away from me,' What was the matter with the two farmers? In the one case a convicted conscience leading him to honesty, and in the other case a convicted conscience warning against infidelity. Convention amounts to nothing unless the heart is converted, and the pocket book is converted, and the cash draw is converted, and the ledger is converted, and fire-proof safe is converted, and the pigeon hole containing the correspondence is converted, and his improvement is noticed even by the canary bird that sings in the parlor, and the cat that licks the platter after the meat, and the dog that comes bounding from the kennel to greet him. A man half converted, or a quarter converted, or a thousand half converted is not converted at all. What will be the great book in the Day of Judgment? Conscience. Conscience recalling misimproved opportunities. Conscience recalling unforgiven sins. Conscience bringing up all the past.

ALAS! FOR THIS GOVERNOR,

Pontius Pilate. That night, after the court had adjourned and the Sanhedrists had gone home, and nothing was heard outside the room but the step of the sentinel, I see Pontius Pilate arise from his tapestried and sleepless couch, and go to the laver and begin to wash his hands, crying, 'Out, out, crimson spot! Tellest thou to me, and to God, and to the night my crime. Is there no alkali to remove these dreadful stains? Is there no chemistry to dissolve this carnage? Must I to the day of my death carry the blood of this innocent man on my heart and hand? Out, thou crimson spot!' But is there no such thing as

MORAL PURIFICATION?

If a man is a sinner once must he always be a sinner, and an unforgiven sinner? We have all had conscience after us. Or do you tell me that all the words of your life have been just right, and all the thoughts of your heart have been just right, and all the actions of your life just right? Then you do not know yourself, and I take the responsibility of saying you are a pharisee, you are a hypocrite, you are a Pontius Pilate, and do not know it. You commit the very same sin that Pontius committed. You have crucified the Lord of glory. But if nine tenths of this audience is made up of thoughtful and earnest people, then nine tenths of this audience are asking within themselves, 'Is there no such thing as moral purification? Is there no laver in which the soul may wash and be clean?' Yes, yes, yes. Tell it in song, tell it in sermon, tell it in prayer, tell it to the hemispheres, That is what David cried out for when he said, 'Wash me thoroughly from my sin, and cleanse me from mine iniquities.' Behold, filled with living fountains. Did you ever see the picture of the laver in the ancient tabernacle or in the ancient temple? The laver in the ancient tabernacle was made out of the women's metallic looking-glasses. It was a great basin, standing on a beautiful pedestal; but when the temple was built, then the laver was an immense affair, called the brazen sea; and oh, how deep were the floods there gathered! Here is the laver holding having for its pedestal, the Rock of Ages, carved with the figure of the lion of Judah's tribe, and having palm branches for victory, and wings suggestive of the soul's flight toward God in prayer, and the soul's flight heavenward when we die. Come, ye auditory, and wash all your sins, however aggravated, and all your sorrows, however agonizing. Come to this fountain, open for all sin and uncleanness, the furthest, the worst. You need not carry your sins half a second. Come and wash in this glorious Gospel laver. Why, that is an opportunity enough to swallow up all nations.

THE LAVER OF THE GOSPEL,

A LITTLE CHILD

that had been blind, but through skilful surgery restored to sight, brought to sight, said.—'Why, mother, why didn't you tell me the earth and the sky were so beautiful? Why didn't you tell me?' 'Oh,' replied the mother, 'my child, I did tell you often; I often told you how beautiful they are; but you were blind and you couldn't see!' Oh, if we could have our eyes opened to see the glories in Jesus Christ we would feel that the half had not been told us, and you would go to some Christian man and say, 'Why didn't you tell me before the glories in the Lord Jesus Christ?' and that friend would say, 'I did tell you but you were blind and could not see, and you were deaf and could not hear.' History says that a great army came to capture ancient Jerusalem, and when this army got on the hills so that they saw the turrets and the towers of Jerusalem, they gave a shout that made the earth tremble; and tradition, whether true or false, says that, so great was the shout, eagles flying in the air dropped under the atmospheric percussion. Oh, if we could only catch a glimpse of the towers of this Gospel temple into which you are all invited to come and wash, there would be a song jubilant and wide resounding, at New Jerusalem seen, at New Jerusalem taken, and hosannas of other worlds flying midair would fold their wings and drop into our closing doxology! Against the disappointing and insufficient laver of Pilate's voice, and Pilate's cowardice, and Pilate's sin, I place the brazen sea of a Saviour's pardoning mercy!

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitud, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

WHAT "CRIME."

Alarmed by the evident change in sentiment and feeling with which the people are beginning to regard the Ottawa administration, their growing knowledge of the insincerity of the professions made by those entrusted with power, their disapproval of the reckless management of the country's finances, the blunders, nepotism and strong determination of the Ministry to over-ride provincial rights and centralize all authority at Ottawa, making a supposed federal union really legislative—and an oppressive one at that—together with the almost universal abhorence expressed at the Dominion being bound hand and foot at the mercy of the C. P. R. Syndicate—all these have conspired to arouse the Tory leaders to the fact that something must be done.

But what do they do? Do they go to work to remedy the evils complained of? Not much! The N. P. is a dead failure. Do they strive to put matters right? We trow not. Do they give any sign that, like honest men realizing their errors, they are prepared to rectify their mistakes? No, you don't catch them doing any such thing. They believe firmly in Barnum's theory that the people like to be humbugged, and, finding them now disgusted and dissatisfied, endeavor to draw their attention off their own misdeeds by a labored attempt—a lame one too—to convict the Liberal dealers of a "Crime," the awful crime of saying—which is at least partly true—that a great portion of the Northwest was not fit for agricultural purposes, or, the organs say, "arid". As a futher aggravation of their offence they actually had the audacity to acknowledge that a better acquaintance with the country had given them a better opinion of it.

This attempt to injure the cause of progress, and avert the disaster that is impending over the Tory administration is altogether too transparent and will have little effect.

We give, as a sample, one of the indictments drawn up by that great swelling bull-frog of misrepresentations, the Mail, and echoed by all the little wriggling Tory tadpoles in the country, to show the heinousness of the offence, alleged to have been committed by the Reform leaders.

> In that very year 1880, within a few weeks, not days, of the delivery of Mr. Mackenzie's speech, Prof. Macoun exploded forever the theory of "aridity," by discovering that the "arid" region was really of the richest character. The Grit organ accepted Prof. Macoun's views and professed to be glad of the discovery.

What is so wonderfully wicked about that? And recent reports of men who have had time to more thoroughly examine the country—many thousands of square miles in extent—than our respected friend, Professor Macoun, could possibly have had in a tour of limited duration, only taking in a very narrow strip of country, emphatically state that his reports are too rose-colored, and, may we add, Reformers are not glad to hear it. Here is another:

> In 1879 Sir John Macdonald informed Mr. Mackenzie that fuller investigation had revealed the fact that instead of 100,000,000 acres of good land, there were in the Northwest at least 150,000,000 or 180 000,000 acres of available and: and Mr. Mackenzie dared not question the statement.

Oh, my! Gracious sakes alive! Did you ever! Well, hardly! Almost too, too utterly horrible, isn't it!

We are afraid that after all the mismanagement and oppression of John A.'s administration, its culpable blunders, the failure of its fiscal policy, the $30,000,000 more to the Syndicate, its disregard of provincial autonomy, the awful "crime" charged against Mr. Mackenzie and others of being willing to accept as true statements that corrected former misapprehensions will forever debar them from holding the reins of government.

We must apologise for noticing at all this ridiculous attempt at drawing a red herring across the trail, but it is really so ludicrous an affair that our sense of the humorous and absurd has led us to pay that attention to it that its lack of weight, and its utter insignificance, as well as the utter falsity of many of its statements would fail to attract.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE TERRIBLE CRIME imputed to Blake, Mackenzie and others of accepting authentic information, and on that account changing former opinions on certain matters, is receiving a tremendous degree of attention just now. The Tory press evidently imagine Canadians to be a race of condemned idiots.

THE CHOLERA scare has passed away to a great extent on this side of the Atlantic. Still it would be well for corporations, as well as private individuals, not to let false notions, of economy, or safety, interfere with their taking necessary sanitary and other precautions against a possible visitation of the dread scourge in the future.

THE Bobcaygeon Independent will now be hounded to death for its "disloyalty." It actually speaks favorably of parts of Africa and South America as compared to Manitoba, as fields for emigration, provided, of course, that stable government is established, and property and life secured. It says:—"There is no wisdom in choosing a cold and rigorous climate, where Nature yields subsistence only to those who possess indomitable powers of labor and equally great powers of endurance, when other countries are equally available, where winter brings no terrors, and where food is produced almost spontaneously."

WHEREVER that symbol of liberty, the union jack, has been borne among the uncivilized tribes of the world, the aborigines have melted away like frost before the sun. In many islands of the South Seas, in New Zealand and wherever the Anglo Saxon race has penetrated, the original lords of the soil have dwindled away into insignificant numbers. The vices and diseases introduced by the whites, but oftener oppression and cruelty, have been the main causes to this result. And now the poor blacks of Australia will soon be extinct, for have they not had the audacity to attempt the like of an English duke? The colonists of Queensland hunt them down like wild beasts for cow stealing.

THE BRIBERY COMMISSION.

When the Royal Commission resumed Thursday afternoon Hon. Mr. Mowat was examined by Mr. McMaster, Q. C., M. P. He said the report of his speech on the 17th of March to the effect that every action, every promise and every attempt made by the bribers was reported to one or members of the Government was substantially correct. These reports were made to his colleagues and not to him. Personally he had little knowledge of the affair as he left the conduct of matters to his colleagues, satisfied that what was right would be done. They had reason to know that the conspiracy began began early in the session, but the temptations then held out totally failed of their object. The attempt was resumed at a later stage of the session. He was not aware of the movements of the emissaries or their professions of being in the confidence of Bunting, nor did know about the actions of McKim or Lyon or the offers made them. The delay in making the arrests was for the purpose of obtaining corroborative evdence. The evidence was obtained when money was paid and then disclosures were made. The charge made by Meredith was entirely false, so fare as he was concerned, and he had no doubt was equally false as regarded his colleagues. In answer to Macmaster he said he had informed Meredith that attempts were likely to be made to blow up the Parliament Buildings. Information to that effect having been received from Ottawa. He did not inform Meredith of the attempt being made against the honor of the House, because the attack was being made in Meredith's interest, and at that time they did not know but what he had a hand in it, though now he believed the leader of the Opposition was entirely ignorant of what was going on.

A TRAMP NORTH.

Notes About Thanet; Brisk Trade; Barren, Rocky Regions; Lovely Landscapes; a Quiet, Orderly Village; a Contrast.

From our own Correspondent.

After an absence from home, I take up my notes of a tramp north. Returning again from St. Ola, I again strike the Hastings road at Thanet. I enquire the distance to the next habitation and am told Thomsett, 5 miles. The same rugged landscape presents itself. In time I pass a few straggling farm houses, when I again dive into rocks and mountains. I finally meet a lad on a remnant of a horse and asked him, 'Where is Thanet?' 'You passed that a mile back.' So I had passed the town and did not know it. I had often heard of Thanet as the terminus of the Madoc stage route, but I fear

ITS GLORY HAS DEPARTED

as the stage now runs to Wallaceton. It is fearfully hot on these barren plains, but I push on to Bathbun, the point where the C.O.R. crosses the Hastings road. True, there is nothing attractive about the appearance of this place, yet unless a railroad is extended north north from here it might have a bright future, as it will command the trade north, east and west. In the few hours I was there two carloads of goods were unloaded. If one of our business men would plant himself there with a general wholesale and forwarding business, with one or two good teams, he might monopolize

TRADE TO THE OTTAWA.

There are now, in addition to the company's buildings, a fair sized frame grocery and boarding house, and a large frame under way for another boarding house, and a man was pullings stumps for a hotel site. As I travel north the face of the country seems more desolate and barren, until I reached the house of Mr. D. Cavenagh, Reeve of Dungannon, and from here there is a change for the better, and some comfortable houses present themselves. The next village is L'Amble, a pleasant little place with grist mills, post office and machine shops, and the loveliest little lakes dotted with tiny green islands I ever saw. The country from here to Bancroft is very good, with passable roads. Arrived at Bancroft, put up with mine host. Mr. Davy, over Sabbath. He has a large hotel (Temperance) with commodious outbuildings. The village shows.

NESTLED AMONG THE HILL,

PROSPERITY AND ENTERPRISE;

saw mills, grist mills—the property, I am told, of Messrs. Flint and Holton, cloth factory and stores and shops.

I could help but admire the quiet and good order of this village. Not one oath; not an intoxicated person; no sign of the rowdy element which will be brought out, if ever, on a Saturday evening. On inquiry I find that the Scott Act rules here, and I cannot help but contrast this with what I witnessed in another pretty village I afterwards visited. Before reaching it I heard and as I rode up to the bar-room door a lot of men were acting as only drunken men can act, and the air was filled with yells, oaths and imprecations. Is the Scott Act a blessing or a curse? On Sabbath morning I saw a neat little church perched on the top of a hill, and quite early I observed a well dressed crowd of people making their way towards it. I fell in line, and on arriving found a fine congregation, a fine choir of good voices, good music, and a plain, practical sermon, by the Rev. Mr, McDonald, Methodist. Again, at 3 p.m., Presbyterian service by Rev. Mr. Craig, of Deseronto, who was through the missions administrating sacrament and the ordinances. He gave a fine sermon and administered the Lord's Supper

UNEARTHLY YELLS

AGAIN IN THE EVENING.

Rev. English Church. He is a fine speaker, his sermons pity and short. This was a new experience. Three sermons in one day, in the church, same choir and nearly the same congregation, by three ministers of different denominations.

In looking back over the journey so far, while to me it is uninviting, it may be ignorance on my part I know nothing of geology, I took up Hugh Miller, and wandered and staggered through stratas, and gneises for about an hour or more. I laid it down and never took it up again—had I done so, I might have followed the example of the author,—but had either Professors Bell, or Dyer been with me they might have pointed out the grandest wealth of the Dominion. My next will be north of Bancroft,

CLOSING UP THE IRON MINES.

Kingston Whig.

The iron market is at present very much depressed, the price of ore having fallen $1 per ton lower than it has ever been. The mines in this county, in consequence, are to be closed up. The Levant mine, which has been in operation for three years closes on Tuesday. From it nearly 40,000 tons of ore have been taken. The Robertsville mine, which has not been very productive for a year has also been closed and its owners are now operating at Sand Point, P. Q. Other mines have ceased work until the outlook brightens.

FOR THE LADIES.

FEMININE FASHIONS, GENERAL GOSSIP, AND HOME NOTES.

American ginghams in pretty, dark shades are selling rapidly.

Escurial lace forms a pretty dress trimming and will be freely used.

Olden time moire ribbons will be seen on the handsomest hats, as ties.

No matter how pretty or young a widow may be, she always looks as if she had lost something.

Work aprons are now made of Turkey red calico, trimmed with Hamburg to suit the wearer's taste.

Darts, bugs, buckles and every conceivable shade of long pin will decorate the hat and bonnet this season.

Every man is born with a mentor. That's his conscience. When he gets older he often gets a tormentor. That's his wife.

It is a question whether it is better to talk in church, as the members of the choir do, or to go to sleep like the oldest deacon.

The latest song is 'Papa's Home to-night.' It will be sung by young ladies to their beaux, as a gentle hint that there is danger ahead.

It is now the fashion among Chicago girls to have their boots blacked. This will undoubtedly have the effect of raising the price of blacking.

A black silk dress can be brightened nicely by the addition of a gay puffed front, confined at the neck and waist by the ornamental clasps new in use.

Girls, never allow even a lover to put his arm around you. The papers show daily that thousands of our brightest young men are going to waist.

Bag straps are daily growing in favor. Ladies who have occasion to carry parcels find the bag swung from the shoulder quite a relief to the burdened arms.

When one sees a pretty society belle showering impassioned kisses upon the nose of her pet poodle it does make one ready to howl for a $500 tax on dogs, and no mistake.

'Can you draw a dog?' asked a lady of a gentleman caller. The youth blushed crimson and said it depended upon two things—the size of the dog and the strength of the material in his pants.

The fall bonnet is becoming more of a bonnet with each season. The present shapes are closer at the sides, higher on top and show an effort to contract the back with a prolongation slightly akin to the bays of bonnet capes. The poke bonnet has become more of a high front, and a faint shadow of the 'coal scuttle' bonnet of the past may be discerned. In walking hats the stiff square crown is regarded as the best. It certainly is prominent enough in style for the most persistent admirer of distinct outline. Care seems to be taken in many cases to preserve the stiffness of appearance, little heed being paid to the fact that the curved line is the line of beauty. Feathers are bunched in with breasts, wings and ornaments, sometimes giving a hat the appearance of carrying off the relics of a bird battle field, so diverse is the plumage on one hat.

'Larry,' said a bridegroom to his servant, my wife and I have both noticed that the towns people stare at us bad. You haven't been telling anybody that we are newly married.' 'Me tell 'em; sor? Is it likely I'd go agin my express order? Why, whinever anybody thryed to pump me, sor, I tould 'em you wasn't married at all,'

Do they have house cleaning days in Heaven, Ma?' a little Somerville girl inquired the other day.

'Why certainly not, my dear; what put that into your head?'

Because the angels sweep, don't they?'

'What gave you such a notion as that?'

'Pa did. He said you were a spectacle in a Mother Hubbard that would make the angels sweep.'

'Oh! ma, I am so happy since I said yes to dear George.'

'I am glad to hear it, my dear.'

'I never shall forget his first kiss. He put his left arm around me, placed his right hand lovingly on my hair, and pressed my lips so gently.'

'See here child, you had better break with that young man.'

'Why, what for ma?'

'He has had too much experience.'

A RUM SUGGESTION.

Hamilton Times.

Of all the rum suggestions that we have heard, that of founding a "Sir John A. Macdonald chair of Political Economy" in Queen's College "takes the cake." The kind of political economy Sir John Macdonald preaches was very generally accepted two hundred years ago, but it has very few adherents now among men of liberal education. It abounds in fallacies that have been refuted in the schools of both continents. It appeals to greed alone and generally cheats the dupe out of the promised consideration. When the Tom Paine chair of Natural Theology, and the Bob Ingersoll chair of Moral Science shall have been established, it will be time enough to found the Sir John A. Macdonald chair of Political Economy.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD,

That many with the glad consent praise new-born remedies: especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practised in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitutes lies at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson H Co, propra Kingston.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

Three men, supposed to be the parties who perpetrated the burglary at Irish Creek on Sunday, and one of whom afterwards shot Mr. Richards, near Brockville, were captured near Morristown yesterday afternoon and a subsequent search in the woods where they were camping discovered a complete burglar's outfit.

LIME IN BAKING POWDERS.

Prof. R. A. Witthaus, M. D., Medical University, Buffalo, N. Y., who is the highest authority, says that "Calcium Tartrate (improperly called Tartrate of Lime), advertised as the lime found in Baking Powders is derived from the wines that produce Cream of Tartar. It is a constituent of the grape and other fruits, and is absolutely harmless.

AROUND ABOUT US.

North Hastings Teachers' Convention at Madoc next Thursday and Friday, 9th and 10th inst.

Mr. Samuel Bower and wife of South Napanee celebrated their golden wedding on Wednesday evening.

Mr. John Dale, the oldest merchant of of Madoc, has retired from business, after an active experience in it of thirty years.

A few days ago Mr. John Galvin, an employee Potter & Williams, liverymen, Napanee, had a new $18 watch stolen from his pocket while he was asleep in the stable.

One of the waiter girls of the Brisco House, Napanee, had a narrow escape from being burned to death Wednesday morning.She was standing near the stove when her dress caught fire. One of the girls promptly seized a couple of pails of ails of water;and threw it over her. Her hands were the only portion of her body anyway seriously burned.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. SIDNEY SOUNDINGS.

From our own Correspondent.

BAYSIDE, Oct. 4.—The Granger's wharf having been struck by the burning tug Sherwood, was considerably damaged. The people of the neighborhood have thereby sustained no small inconvenience as well as loss, and hope that Mr. Rathbun will repair the damage.

A revival meeting is being carried on at Johnstown, On Thursday evening it was conducted bo the "Hosanna Band" from Trenton.

Mrs. John Meyers, who had her arm broken and received other injuries by being thrown from a buggy near Trenton, as reported in the ONTARIO, is recovering slowly.

Mr. Wm. Hagerman, of the Front of Sidney, has rented his farm and sold out his milk business to Mr. John Hunt, of Prince Edward.

Arthur Massey, who passed the Intermediate Examinations this summer, is attending Albert College.

Missionary services will be held in all the churches throughout this circuit to-morrow.

Finkle Brothers have just finished a house for Mr. Sidney Rowe on the Front.

Mr. David Digweed is suffering severely from a lame back.

Diphtheria is prevalent on the Front.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says:"I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

AND STILL THEY COME.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—And still they come. Finding it impossible to select from a long list of Canadians, who have credibly passed Civil Service examinations, one qualified to fill an ordinary position in the Interior, Sir David Macpherson, has imported a nice young man from England, of aristocratic birth to fill the bill.

What Toronto's well-known Good Samaritan says: "I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint for over 20 years and I have tried many remedies, but never found an article that has done me as much good as Northrop & Liman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure."

SPORTING NEWS.

At Chicago yesterday, Johnson, the pacer, was driven to beat his record of 2.10. He accomplished the mile in the unprecedented time of 2.06¼. Richball also tried to beat his old record but failed. Minnie R, with running mate, made a record of 2.03¼.

A meeting of the Hastings Reform Club was hold in their rooms last night, when the report of the Executive Committee recommending a constitution and by-laws was received and adopted. Several other matters of interest to the club were discussed.

At a meeting of the Market Committee last night it was decided not to tender for the plastering of the floor in the basement of the city building this fall. Inspector Taylor has placed several pipes running to the sewer, which carries off the water without any difficulty.

Mr. Ben. Church, who has been in the employ of Mr. H. Corby for the last ten years, has purchased the grocery and liquor store of Mrs. Wright, Madoc. The transfer takes place on the first of November. Mr. Church is well known in that section, and with his experience in the business he will no doubt do a good trade.

After the death of A. W. Challen last night Dr. Farley, coroner, empannelled a jury who elected Ald. Macoun foreman,and after viewing the body, an adjournment took place until Wednesday. It was deemed advisable to have a coroner's inquest in order that all the evidence, connected with the accident, might be received as early as possible.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council was held last night when the accounts were endorsed as presented by the other committees. The letter from Henderson & Henderson, claiming $200 damages for injuries which their client, Mr. Parker, received through an alleged defective sidewalk, was referred to the Solicitor. The committee instructed the City Solicitor to prepare a by-law for the investment of the sinking fund.

ONLY DEATH DO US PART.

A. W. Challen Carried Away two Days After the Accident.

Mr. A. W. Challen, who was injured on the Grand Junction railway Wednesday evening, died a few minutes before ten o'clock last night. He never full recovered from the effects of the chloroform administered while the doctors were amputating his left leg, but calmly passed away in the presence of his wife and a few friends. The deceased enjoyed the warm friendship of a large circle of acquaintances in this city, and in his daily labors he was always respected and honored as a gentleman whose word was never questioned. His sad death,under such distressing circumstances, will never be forgotten by many.

Mr. Challen came to Belleville about six years ago, from St. Thomas, and entered the store of Messrs. George Ritchie & Co., where upon the death of Mr. Neil two years ago this month, he was chosen as head clerk. Being a good salesman and a kind-hearted, christian gentleman, he was not long here before he became a favorite in the store, and at the time of the accident few in this city were unacquainted with him. He was a member of the Baptist church, and belonged to the Masonic Order, under whose auspices he will be buried at St. Thomas. The remains will probably be taken west to-night in charge of his brother who arrived last night.

Mr. Challen was 32 years of age, and leaves a young widow to mourn the loss of an indulgent and affectionate husband. She will receive the sympathy of friends in her sad loss.

AN EARLY BLAZE.

Destroys a Dwelling House and Barns and Sheds.

Shortly after one o'clock this morning the barns and sheds in the rear of the Willard House were destroyed by fire together with the contents. Three horses were also burned. The fire was first seen by Sergeant McCrudden, who at once gave the alarm, and the brigade turned out. At that time the fire was confined to a small space in the east end of the barn and might have been extinguished, had sufficient men been on hand. But while waiting for water the strong wind fanned the flames into a fierce blaze and in a very short time the fire was beyond control. Mr. F. Gauthier, lessee of the hotel, and Wm. Lynch broke open the stable and attempted to rescue the seven horses tied up in their stalls, but after getting out our of the animals they had to leave the premises to save their own lives. A valuable bay colt, belonging to Mr. Gauthier, worth about $250, was lost in the flames, but the stallion was taken out. Samuel Wannamaker,of Madoc, lost one horse and a se of new harness. He saved the other horse, but it was terribly burned. William Ransom, cattle buyer, from Montreal, lost a bay mare which he had in the stable for the night. Mr. Gauthier also lost several sets of harness, hay, straw and grain on which he had no insurance. Mr. Samuel Kyle owner of the barn, had an insurance on the building of $500 in the London & Lancashire, which will probably cover his loss. A frame dwelling house on Pinnacle street, owned by Mr. J. W. Walker, was completely gutted. The tenants, Henderson Brown and Mrs. Kenny, especially the former, lost considerable furniture. It is supposed the fire was caused by an incendiary.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Fernham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured hem of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

TORONTO NEWS.

McMaster Hall opened yesterday.

Hon. Messrs. Hardy, Pardee and Frazer were examined before the Bribery Commissioners yesterday.

This morning early as C. P. Charles Jarvis was on duty on the Esplanade, he saw three men acting in a suspicious manner near the back enterance to Lyman & Co's warehouse, Upon seeing him they ran away and he gave chase along Front street, calling to P.C. Geddes to stop them, This constable jumped out of a doorway and caught the foremost of the three when either he or one of his companions shot at Geddes,who immediately returned the fire The three men then continued the their flight, keeping up a running fire at Geddes, who being a good runner, pressed them hard. Other constables came to their assistance, but the burglars succeeded in eluding pursuit, and up to three o'clock had not been captured, although a vigorous search was prosecuted. When last seen the last men were in the neighborhood of George and Duke streets. While searching the buildings in the neighborhood the constables came across three tramps sleeping in a barn, and one of them drawing his revolver ordered them to throw up their hands. This they did, at the same dropping on their knees and begging the constable pitiously "not to shoot." They were let off with a caution.

MEXICAN ETIQUETTE.

I was given a lesson in etiquette by a Mexican young lady I met on the train. I chanced to be the only man on the sleeping car when it drew out of El Paso, and after an introduction by the conductor, to whose charge the young lady had been committed, she and I became quite well acquainted. 'I saw you eating an orange on the depot platform,' she said. In Mexico that would be be considered as unmannerly. There it is unmannerly to eat outside of a house,even candy. And I noticed Mr. Romero gave you a Mexican' match you threw it away after using but one end of it. The other was still serviceable, and you should have returned it with thanks. If you hand one a cigar or cigarette to light with you must take a whiff after it has been returned to you, though it may be so short as to burn your fingers.' This I received with good grace for my young lady was but ten years old.

VISIT FROM BISHOP CLEARY,

Interesting Confirmation Service at Tweed and Madoc.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MADOC, Oct. 4.—On last Saturday, Sept. 27th., Bishop Cleary, accompanied by Father Hartigan, arrived, per C. P. R. train, at Tweed, and was met at the station by Fathers Davis and Fleming and a large number of the laity, among whom I noticed Thos. McCann, Joseph Woodcock, F. Gabourie, A. A. McDonald, solicitor of Madoc, and a number of others. A number of children were also present. The Bishop was hospitally entertained at Thos. McCann's, and on Sunday morning proceeded to the church at Sugar Island,accompanied by some twenty carriages forming an impressavel procession.

At the conclusion of mass, an address of welcome, in the name of the congregation,was read and presented to the Bishop by A, A. McDonald, and to which the Bishop replied in most suitable terms, and in his sermon he expressed his delight at the pleasant things said of the clergy and himself,and was pleased that the people appreciated their late pastor, Father Davis, and loved his successor, Father Fleming so well, concerning whom he spoke with the tenderest feelings of respect and affection and complimented, him, and the congregation upon the condition of the parish, the prospects of their soon having a new church and presbytery at Tweed,and promised to give the priests all the support he could in the erection of the same.

On Tuesday morning the Bishop administered the right of confirmation to about one hundred and fifty children, and immediately afterwards accompanied by Father Fleming Hogan and Hartigan started for Madoc,where he was met by a number of the parishioners in carriages about two miles east of the village and forming a procession escorted the Bishop to the Presbytery, where he was formally received by Father Davis, and on Thursday morning confirmed eighty-seven children, whose general proficiency elicited from His Lordship complimentary remarks. At the conclusion of the service an address was presented to the Bishop in the name of the congregation of Madoc, Marmora and Trenton, by Mr. A. A. McDonald, to which the Bishop made a lengthy and appropriate reply, thanking Mr, McDonald on behalf of the people for their beautiful address, and stating his great satisfaction at finding everything so prosperous in the parish and complimented Fathers Davis and Kelly upon the same,

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Seephers, of Harrisburg, Ill,, says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to save the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by R. Templeton.

LIKE LIGHTNING.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store. The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT,

The Clergy, the Medical faculty, the Press and the People all endorse Burdock Blood Bitters as the best system renovating blood purifying tonic known. Its work bears out their best recommend.

A Chicago paper says that during the convention the consumption of pie was enormous. We'd like to know when they got to calling whiskey by that name.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important discovery is that which brings that which brings the most good to the largest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. WARREN LELAND, whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,
J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. y 2md&w

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in affecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Pauline, therefore, was now attired in a blue-trimmed pearl-grey dress of a soft diaphanous texture, the graceful folds of which added fresh grace to the young girl's figure.

A ruching of lace clasped her delicate throat, while her long hair, gathered together by a blue ribbon, tumbling in shimmering, undulating masses below her waist, for she had no heart to dress it, rendered the pretty, pale, sad face still more youthful in appearance.

When imperative necessity requires, or when driven to desperation, seeing no escape, nowhere to turn, the weakest, gentlest natures will not uncommonly display, a sudden force of character, self-control, and power of determination, of which previously they would have deemed incapable.

It was thus with Pauline.

She wept.

She despaired.

She prayed.

Until finding the interview with her captor unavoidable, she suddenly grew composed, in fact almost apathetically resigned.

Upon Juliette's leaving her, she moved quickly to a small shelf from which she took a sharp edged knife that she had herself concealed.

as she hid it in the pocket of her dress; there was an expresion in her eyes, and upon the innocent face of such firm though quiet resolve, that proved her honour was in her own hands, and that at any price she would defend it.

Returning, sitting down at the table, she leaned her elbow upon it and, her head upon her hand she waited Stuart Loring's coming.

He was not long.

He must have watched the five minutes elapse to a very second.

As his tread sounded on the steps outside, an icy terror, like the grasp of frozen fingers, settled upon Pauline's heart.

Then a shudder ran through her frame, without the creek of the opening and closing door, she knew the American was in her presence.

She had intended he should have been the first to speak, but hearing him approach, she feared he might dare to touch her.

With an involuntary recoil, she raised her head, and meeting his glance of with one of cold contempt, that belied the trembling heart beneath, she said haughtily —

'I pray you sir come no nearer. What you have to say I can hear at the distance you are now. You desire to speak to me, To what purpose?'

Her change of manner surprised him, while it served to increase his admiration and the fierce heat that was consuming him.

He trembled before his captive.

As he answered his voice shook with emotion.

'For what purpose? Can you ask the question, Pauline?'

'Sir,' ejaculated the girl rising from her chair with dignity, 'by what right do you thus dare to address me? To you I am Miss Pauline Beauchamp.'

'To me you are Pauline,—angel—my heaven—my soul.' cried the American both abruptly away by his passion as he looked upon her.

'Pauline, my angel, my life!' he exclaimed, his voice thick with emotion, 'I love you.'

'Love me! You?'

No pen can depict the abhorrence, the disgust displayed on the lovely face, and in the clear musical thrilling tones.

'Rise sir,' she added impetuously, 'and rid me this instant of your presence.'

'A moment——'he began.

'Back sir she interrupted; 'I would rather die—aye, any death — than you should lay a finger upon me.

The American regarded her a space in in silence then he said.

'Is it possible that such love as mine can be thus scorned? Has vanity died in the heart of woman—has tenderness—has pity?'

'Tenderness, pity are not created in her for you, Mr. Loring,' remarked Pauline, her lips curling, her eyes full of scorn.

Juliette, listening, was filled with wonder as she heard.

'It is only upon the honorable, the worthy, they bestow that. You have so debased yourself as to be even beneath hate —a thing called human from which every virtuous woman should recoil, from which every thinking upright man spurn. I repeat, leave me.'

As she concluded, she drew her skirt around her, and with a movement of her tiny hand, and swept from him.

Juliette's countenance dakeened at these words.

'Is she mad?' she murmured; 'she brings the consequences upon her own head. does she not know this man?—that she has to do with one more terrible more cruel than a juguar?——a demon. Is this the tragedy, the dissembling she agreed ta play?'

No.

True, Pauline had agreed to dissemble, but she had unconsciously consented to more than her pure disposition was capable of,

She could not even in such danger play the hypocrite,

At the sight of Stuart Loring, all her repugnance, her disgust burst forth in voice and expression.

Still, it was not wisdom.

It was not policy.

She only goaded him to madness.

At those sting words of insult, his entire manner changed,

He sprang to his feet.

His entire frame shook like leaves on a tree.

His countnance was flushed and agitated.

He extended his trembling hands towards her.

'You—you tell me this—you?' he cried 'whom I love, whose love I have sworn shall be mine, and no other's? And by Heaven, no other shall ever call you his. Pauline Beauchamp, take care what you do.'

The girl's heart died within her; but she would not let her terror be visible to her persecutor.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience, says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column.

YOUNG MEN!—READ THIS.

THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated ELECTRIC APPLIANCES on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and manhood, and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty days' trial is allowed.

The reason why "Nonesuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all Druggists

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHY IS THIS THUS?

Many farmers and others will recollect that while Sir John and his faction were booming their projected N.P., in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, that right here, in this loyal city of Belleville, he told the assembled multitudes that "Mackenzie's policy is the cause of a loss of 15 cents on every bushel of barley you sell. If you put us in power we will give you that 15 cents."

At that time barley brought from $1.10 to 1.15. As it has never since reached that figure and now only commands between 50 and 60 cents, we suggest that every farmer make out an account of the quantity of barley he has since raised and sold, multiply it by the difference between the received and promised price, and demand payment. And if Sir John is a man of his word he has far more right to honor such a draft than he had to take $30,000,000 of dollars of the people's money and give it to his masters, the C. P. Syndicate.

While we think of it, we would like to ask what has become of the swarms of American buyers who used to pester our farmers and try to get them to sell grain, stock, etc., at prices then declared to be low but which would be gladly snapped at now. Will the Honorable, the Minister of Customs, be kind enough to reply to this query, as it is currently reported that he has caused them to be confiscated or transported to the Fiji Islands to prevent futher annoyance from that source to Canadian farmers!

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Meredith's "forlorn hope" endeavor, by "carrying the war into Africa," to make a point against the local Ministry has been a dead failure. Bunting was to have been white-washed, and Mowat, Hardy and Fraser covered with confusion and disgrace, but the program has broken down and the oft-disappointed Weathercock Rightabout has scored one more defeat. Alas! Poor William!

Wasn't it too bad that Fraser and the rest didn't tell McKim and Balfour to spurn indignantly the offers of the conspirators? So 'disloyal,' you know, to allow things to proceed and 'entrap' Meek, Bunting, and Wilkinson, et al. Why, if they had known they would be caught do you think they would not have dropped the whole business—until they got a better chance? Certainly; every time. And then for Mr. Fraser to come out boldly and take the responsibility of enticing those pure and honorable men, poor little 'Big Push,' 'Bye Baby,' and 'Meek as Moses,' into the pit-fall dug in the path of sinners!

The Tories, since their first feeling of utter consternation at the exposure of the bribery brigade tactics, had time to calm somewhat have been straining every nerve to throw the guilt of the transaction on the Ontario Cabinet Ministers. Absurd as this is on the face of it, it had some weight with bitter, unreflecting partizans. Another object as eagerly sought after was the exculpation of Bunting from all blame. A portion of Mr. Hardy's evidence shows the utter nonsense of pretending that the Mail manager was enticed or coaxed into the trap. He says.—"Mr. Bunting was always to be seen on the floor of the House when the bribery business was first talked of, and when it closed Mr. Bunting ceased coming to the House; when the business began again Mr. Bunting came back. He (witness) did not know but Mr. Bunting was an eighty-ninth member. There were no detectives employed in the matter till they were wanted to arrest the defendants."

BED-BUGS, FLIES.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed bugs, rats mice, gophers, chipmunks, cleared out by "Rough on Rats" 15c.

THE DRIFT OF IT.

The following shows the drift of the examination of the members of the Government before the Commissioners:—

Mr. McMaster—Did you not discuss it with your colleagues that it would be important to entrap Mr. Bunting in this matter? Mr. Hardy—No, we never talked about entrapping Mr. Bunting. We had expressed our surprise that Mr. Bunting lent himself to such low work of the party.

Q.—Did you ever express your desire to entrap Mr. Bunting? A.—I expressed no desire about it. I only wanted to get at the real facts of the case.

Q.—Did you not express your desire or wish that Mr. Bunting should in some way be connected with the matter? A.—Not unless Mr. Bunting was a guilty party. If he was guilty I was always anxious and desirious that he should suffer the penalties of his guilt but not otherwise.

Q.—Will you swear you did not indicate these wishes? A.—I did not intimate any such views in the sense in which you put them. I said if Mr. Bunting had been a party who had been approaching parties he should suffer along with such men as Wilkinson. I had no desire to catch Mr. Bunting more than Mr. Meek, unless Mr. Bunting opened up the way.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Fernham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

For fifty cents you can buy a pair of women's prunella shoes with elastic in the front at Haines & Lockett's.

There are many perfumes which, when applied to the handkerchief, have a very agreeable odor for few moments and then die away, leaving only a sickly disagreeable smell, Not so with Murray & Lanman's Florida Water; the longer it is exposed the more delicate and delightful in its rich aroma.

THE BRIBERY COMMISSION.

ANOTHER COLD DAY FOR THE TORY BRIGADE —A MYSTERIOUS AGENT'S EVIDENCE EXPOSED.

The Tories played their last card at Saturday morning's session of the Royal Commission. When the proceedings opened Dalton McCarthy put E. J. S. Vicars in the box. This individual stated that he was an agent and a Tory. Toward the close of last session he was much around the House and knew Messrs Hardy and Frazer by sight. Either on Thursday or Friday before the bribery plot was exposed he was standing about eight o'clock in the evening on the corner of Wellington and Simcoe streets, Messrs. Hardy and Frazer came along arm in arm, and he witness swears he heard Mr. Hardy say to Mr. Frazer, "If our little scheme with Balfour works we will fix them." He heard no more and about the 26th of May told what he had heard to Ernest Langtry, a local tory heeler and a worker in the Shields' frozen whisky brigade. Langtry told Meek, and the result was the appearence of the witness in the box to-day.

Hon. A. S. Hardy took the stand and denied that he had walked arm in arm with Mr. Fraser during last session, or that he had ever used the words alleged on any occasion.

Dalton McCarthy tried to squelch this witness, but was so vigorously snubbed that he subsided. Hon. C. F. Fraser pronounced Vicar's evidence a lie made out of whole cloth.

The Commission adjourned until Monday' when evidence proffered by Bunting or Meek will be taken. The Tories feel greatly depressed over the utter failure to substantiate the charges against the ministry.

Haines & Lockett have received 60 cases of the very best make of American rubbers. These shoes are all stamped with a glove on the bottom, and are considered by far the best rubber shoes made in the world.

WALKING ON THE WATER.

New York Letter.

A tall, good-looking, brown mustached young man, with a jaunty step and a complacent smile, walked quietly over the pathway leading from the Manhattan hotel to the bathing pavilion, Coney island, the other afternoon. He entered, paid for a ticket and shortly afterward reappeared on the beach, clad in a suit of resplendent tights and carrying in his hands a pair of objects shaped like snow shoes, but considerably thicker. Fitting them on his feet he waded into the water. He sank no further than half way to the knees. A crowd of nursemaids, children, policemen and idlers gazed at him from the pier, and the bathers all suspended operations to watch his movements. He walked out into deep water, balancing himself and shooting forward as though skating. The water was calm and he turned and wheeled about on its surface. The nursemaids said, 'Oh, my,' the children cheered, and the idlers looked awed and the policeman smiled in calm superiority.

The young man amused himself for a quarter of an hour. Then he revisited the bathing pavilion, and came out clothed and carrying the aquatic shoes under his arm. A crowd pressed round him and made inquiries, and a young man begged a trial of the shoes. He got them and, procuring a bathing suit, started out to experiment for himself. When he got to deep water he lost his balance. There was a wild yell, and the next moment the shoes were kicking wildly on the surface of the water. What was going on beneath was left to the imagination of the beholders. A boat pulled in and rescued the shoes, and a very much bedaggled and discomfited dude crawled into the boat after them. When he got his breath he said he didn't know they were loaded. The crowd laughed and cheered him when he restored the treacherous articles to their owner. The inventor of the shoes is a natatorial artist by profession, and he proposes giving exhibitions at all the seaside resorts.

SIX MILES UNDERGROUND.

EXPLORATION OF A WONDERFUL CAVERN—BEAUTIFUL NATURAAL FORMATIONS.

Pittsburg, Oct. 3.—For years the existence of a large opening in the hill-side near Dunbar, Fayette county, was known yet nobody ever seemed anxious to explore it, probably on account of the cold water and narrow entrance one must pass through before getting into the main entrance. Yesterdry morning a party of gentlemen from the city succeeded in passing through the narrow entrance, which is about fifty yards long. They were surprised to find themselves in a spacious cavern with solid limestone walls, leading straight into the centre of the mountain, When they had followed this for a few hundred yards they came to a large room where the water was drifting from the ceiling and trickling down the sides of the room, and had formed what is known as dripping limestone. These formations were hanging from the ceiling in long pointed sticks, like icicles. Some were white as snow, some brown and some as transparent as glass. The sides of this room were decorated in every conceivable shape and form. The explorers declared the sight well worth the trouble and risk of getting lost in the numerous passages with which the hill is literally honeycombed. After wandering for sometime the explorers came to the main passage and went on and on into the centre of the mountain. They were determined to find the end of the cave, and so pushed on until the sides began to narrow and the ceiling to slope until there was just room enough for water to pass through, There they gave up the search. When they returned to the mouth of the cavern the sun was sinking in the west and they were surprised to find that they had been in the bowels of the earth the entire day, They think they must have gone at least six miles underground. The cave is a solid limestone rock, and the locality has been noted for the past few years as a summer resort, on account of the cool refreshing water that flows from the cave in a never failing stream.

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, New York, says: "Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of piles of 8 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, 'besides two Buffalo Physicians,' without relief; but the Oil saved him; he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly." There being imitations on the market of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, customers will see that they get the genuine.

HIS WORST ENEMY.

There was a party up town the other night and at one time during there was a pause. Nobody could think of anything to say, and if they did they wouldn't. Finally someone proposed that a song be sung, but this seemed to fall flat too. After a long pause, Erastus Plunkett got up and said that he knew a song and would sing it. He did so, and everybody who heard him seemed to be affected with a desire to get mustard plasters and put them on their stomachs as quickly as possible. After he was through there was a sigh of relief, and young Woggles a friend of his, took the blushing Plunkett into one corner.

'Say, Plunk,' said he, "who told you you could sing?'

'Why—er—my—er—my chum, Cholmondely. Plug told me I was a pretty fair singer.'

'Well you want to lay for him and kill him as soon as possible: thats all.'

'Kill him! what for?'

'He's the worst enemy you ever had."

—Youngstown (O.) Saturday Night.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

HE LEADS US ON.

He leads us on
By paths we did not know.
Upward He leads us, though our steps be slow,
Though oft we faint and falter on the way,
Though storms and darkness oft obscure the day,
Yet when the clouds are gone
We know he leads us on.

He leads us on
Through all the unquiet years;
Past all our dreamland hopes, and doubts and fears
He guides our steps. Through all the tangled maze
Of sin, of sorrow, and o'erclouded days
We know His will is done;
And still He leads us on.

And He, at last,
After the weary strife—
After the restless fever we call life,
After the dreariness, the aching pain,
The wayward struggles which have proved in vain,
After our toils are past—
Will give us rest at last.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell

WHAT TO DO.

If troubled with an unhealthy, slow-healing sore use McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. You will find invaluable for healing, cleansing and completely removing your trouble. If the Blood is out of order, take with it a few doses of McGregor's Speedy Cure from Jas. Clarke Co's Drug Store cor. Front and Bridge St.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

DAIRY MARKET.

New York, Oct. 6.—The Commercial Bulletin of Saturday says:—Receipts to-dy 8,602 packages. There is little or no change in the general condition of the market. Exporters are on the outlook for gilt-edge stock, and everything coming up to that standard found prompt sale at 11½c and we have heard of even a fraction more on some special marks. As usual, "September" stock is what all are looking for, and a few positively refuse to handle anything else. Yet, undated lots showing perfection of quality have sold at extreme quotations. and we even hear of goods carried over from last week doing as well. All the balance of the stock, however, was in a decidedly nominal condition and had no fixed value, but it may be noted that some lots apparently as fine as anything offered, but, unfortunately branded with August dates, would not on open offering bring more than 11c. and some have sold at 10½c, while positively faulty had no basis at all, Some stock will carry over again, and most of it undesirable, in quality. Home buyers pay fair rates, but are not very liberal operators at the moment. Cable 55s.

MAKING A MASH.

Yonker's Gazette.

'Henrico!'

'Andromeda!'

'The gods forfend, but this, though form and speech attest it, is surely not the classic face, whereunto me lips do sometimes move with am'rous purpose.'

'Nay, but it is, sweet houri, and though there may be here and there a lineament disarranged, or features pressing from its wonted place, yet I doe wear thee 'tis the old, the oft-kissed countenance.

'Now, be me sire's crest you are dazing me. Why, this, thy dial's front belikes the pattern of some crazy quilt, or semblance the focus of some blasted sweetmeat mint where jellies multiply that had mixed in carouse.

'I like thy similes, fair maid, exceeding well. They dovetail nicely with results that do attest me mild indulgeance in that fistic realm whose patron was the duke of Huckleberry. 'Twas but a friendly jolst; at match whereat—'

'Aye. surely. 'twere a match! The lurid lightning of the front piece doth that proclaim.'

'Tush thee, thou prattler! 'Twere a match, I say, whereat both friendly rivalry and manly culture did meet——'

'That somethings met, thy countenance gives ample proof, and that they met as two toppling towers, e'en so it testifies.'

'Why, girl, soft as thy downy pillow, were the gloves we wore——'

'And softer yet this wreck of facial pulp wherewith thou greetts me. Had'st thou been bathing in an abbatoir thou couldst not glimmer with such bright veneer.'

'And yet me very feature answers to the roll. But had'st thou seen me rival, gentle one ah! there were ruin worth thy studious gaze. One ear hung pendant by a filmy thread, his dental parts macadamized his throat, on either cheek his nasal wings flapped i' the gory air, and through the other facial rim peered bones that did of dexterous fracture hint. Ah! 'twere a dainty picture, dame, and breathed sweet tribute to the manly art.'"

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it. that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public, Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

AN HONORABLE ACT.

SIR;—We addressed a communication to you on September 10th, complaining of the action of the Albert College authorities in naming their Commercial Department "The Belleville Business College"—a name by which our institution is so largely known. Since then we have shown to the gentlemen who compose the Board of Albert College how injurious their action would be to us, and they have in the promptest and most honorable manner passed a resolution to discontinue the name. We are now convinced that the board had no ulterior object in view in adopting the name complained of, the best proof of which is the following letter we have just received, which we hasten to publish, and for which we thus publicly express our hearty thanks. Yours faithfully,

ROBINSON & JOHNSON.

Ontario Business College,
Belleville, Oct. 4.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 3.

Messrs. Robinson & Johnson, Proprietors and Professors of the Ontario Business College.

GENTLEMEN:—At a meeting on the Executive of the Albert College Board this evening, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Moved by Mr. S. B. Burdett, and seconded by Dr. Jacques, and resolved, That in view of the very friendly and conciliatory communication from Messrs. Robinson & Johnson, that we hereby discontinue the name of "Belleville Business College," and that a copy of this resolution be fowarded to these gentlemen.

Signed { S. B. BURDETT, President.
{ JAMES CURTS, Secretary.

AROUND ABOUT US.

Mrs. McDonald, of Point Anne, died Friday night, after a lingering illness and was buried Sunday afternoon. A tumor in her stomach became so troublesome that she decided to have it removed, and on Friday Dr. Sullivan, of Kingston, and Drs. Murphy and Gibson, of Belleville, performed the operation. Over a pail of blood was taken from the tumor. The patient only lived a short time.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corn."

City council to-night.

Good weather for fall fairs.

Are you going to the West Hastings fair Wednesday night?

The new sidewalk on the east side of Front Street was badly needed.

The Huntingdon Township fair will be held to-morrow at the Town Hall.

A regular monthly meeting of the Rambler's Wheel Club will be held to-morrow night.

The mail from the east on Saturday night was five hours late, occasioned by a run-off near Kingston.

The Ometa went down the bay Saturday afternoon on a pleasure trip with a small party on board.

The Women's Christian Association will hold their annual meeting to-morrow in the council chamber.

The case of Rathbun Company v. Baker, of Trenton, charged with stealing timber from the river there, was laid over until Monday.

Sunday morning, a woman was picked up on the street, drunk, by a policeman, and last night two more inebriates were added to the list.

T. V. Powderly, General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, will deliver a lecture on the labor question in this city next Friday night.

Gunner Huddlestone, in gaol charged with the dangerous assault upon Mr. Geo. Hoggard has been discharged from the battery at Kingston.

The two lads arrested for stealing a wedding cake from Mr. John Shearing, was discharged by Police Magistrate Flint to-day, with a caution.

A meeting of the Belleville Legal and Literary Society will be held to-morrow evening at eight o'clock, at the law office of Messrs. Wallbridge & Marskell, for the purpose of reorganization.

Walter Fanning was charged at the police court this morning by Harry Corby with trespassing at the driving park, but as both parties were absent the case was continued until Wednesday.

Miss Herbert, Bridge street, west, is still prepared to re-dye and re fit fur goods of every kind. She also makes Persian lamb and seal goods to order, as good as can be bought in the leading manufactures.

The remains of the late A. W. Challen were taken west to St. Thomas on the late train Saturday night. In several of the city churches yesterday reference was made to the accident and the death of such a good citizen.

The Board of Examiners chosen by the Board of Trade to appoint grain inspector's have done—nothing, and the grain is moving every day. Surely the Board should not tolerate such indifference on the part of any committee.

Anna McAuley, a servant girl, was arrested Saturday afternoon by the Chief of Police for stealing a pair of gold ear rings at Mr. Retallack's. She was taken up to the gaol. She says that she got the ear rings in exchange for another pair from a former servant girl at Mr. Retallack's.

Donald Smith appeared before the police magistrate to-day on a charge of drunkenness, discharged. Wm. Beatty, find $2. Samuel and Robert Bird claimed each $1 25 as wages due from E. H. LaRoche, which he denied having refused to pay, but said the plaintiffs never asked him for the money. The case will be disposed of on Wednesday.

The Anglo-American Hotel changed hands on Saturday. The new proprietor, Mr. B. McMahon, took possession in the morning and in the afternoon Mr. Hoggard was removed in a carriage to his private residence, North Moira street. West Belleville, where his recovery will be more speedy, although as yet he is by now means out of danger.

The Bell Telephone Co., after giving notice that they intended to withdraw their services from this city, are now veering around again. They are renewing their efforts to be allowed to erect their poles on Front St. The reason is, presumably, because the Dominion Telephone Co. are taking steps to introduce their service here. The latter company has the promise already of fifty-two subscribers.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

The Court of Chancery opened here shortly after one o'clock this afternoon, Chancellor Boyd presiding. The docket published on Saturday is not as lengthy as usual. The first case taken up and one which will occupy the attention of the court for probably two days, was the Ontario bank v. W. C. Jones. This was an action to set aside a conveyance to defendant's wife in order to make the lands liable for payment of his debts, Moss, Q. C., and Dougall, Q.C., for plaintiff; Clute & Williams for defendants.

SHANNONVILLE FAIR.

The Show of Horses Better than Last Year.

INCREASED NUMBER OF ENTRIES.

From our own Correspondent.

SHANNONVILLE, Oct. 6.—The annual fair for the township of Tyendinaga was held at Shannonville on Saturday last. The number of entries was 430, being considerably over that of last year, and many of the exhibits showed a decided improvement on former years. The horses exhibited, and especially the colts of various grades were superior to any former show, while the live stock on the whole was every way creditable to the enterprise of the township. As usual, Mr. Martin took off all the prizes for his really superior show of poultry. The vegetables were a fine sample for the year. In the ladies department there was a decided advance in variety and quality. Mr. Osborn, of Lonsdale. exhibited some fine samples of harness work The following is

HOP MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Small sales to brewers in lots of ten to forty bales covers pretty much all there is in the way of business here at the moment, Shippers look over samples and offer about 20c. for moderate quantities of choice goods, but show no anxiety about buying even at that rate. Dealers find the country markets relatively higher that this. and hold back pending some change more favorable for business. Interior holders seem to stop at 20c. as a rule, but reports come from different sections of 18 c being accepted for fine goods.—Commercial Bulletin.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Shephers, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by R. Templeton.

NARROW ESCAPE.

An accident that might have been attended with more serious consequences happened to No. 2 express train, a short distance west of Kingston on Saturday evening The axle of the tender broke and tore and bumped along the trrack for over half a mile. The jerk on crossing a culvert alarmed the driver and he promptly brought the train train to a standstill. Had the engine been de-railed, as might easily have happened, the cars would inevitably have telescoped each other and a fearful tragedy resulted. The train was delayed several hours by the accident.

LIKE LIGHTNING.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

A RARE PLANT.

The Wild Strawberry Plant possesses rare virtues as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it is an unfailing remedy in all Bowell complaints.

—Ladies of all ages who suffer from loss of spirit, from imperfect digestion, low spirits and nervous debility, may have health renewed and life extended by the use of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies for all complaints specially incident to the female constitution. We not only have a living faith in Mrs. Pinkham, but we are assured that her remedies are at once agreeable and efficacious.

At marriage the bride always meets her betrothed at the altar with gloves on, but after marriage she generally handles him without gloves.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT,

The Clergy, the Medical faculty, the Press and the People all endorse Burdock Blood Bitters as the best system renovating blood purifying tonic known. Its work bears out their best recommend.

A Chicago paper says that during the convention the consumption of pie was enormous. We'd like to know when they got to calling whiskey by that name.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important discovery is that which brings that which brings the most good to the largest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this get a trial bottle Free, at R. Templeton's Drug store.

"No" she said "there is no deception about me, When my first husband died I didn't take on like a sick calf. It must be a calamity of some kind before I make any fuss.

A SAD NEGLECT.

Neglecting a constipated condition of the bowels a sure to bring ill health and great suffering. Burdock Blood Bitters regulate the bowels in a natural manner, purifying the blood and promote a healthy action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and Bowels.

Little Jack—"Lets play we is married," Little Nell—"No I wont. It ain't right." Little Jack—"Why ain't it?" Little Nell —"'Tause mamma said we musn't quarrel."

A common cold should not be neglected. Downs' Elixir will cure it.

A boarding house in Saratoga displays a sign: "This house will remain open until Blaine is elected."

Arnica & Oil Liniment is very healing and soothing, and does wonders when applied to old sores.

AN EX-ALDERMAN TRIED IT.

Ex-Alderman Tayler of Toronto, tried yard's Yellow oil for Rheumatism. It him after all other remedies had failed.

Try Ayer's Pills and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the mischief to body and mind caused by habitual constipation. The regular use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills in mild doses will restore the torpid viscera to healthy action.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by reaching exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY
OR,
THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Why, then do you urge me to speak thus ?, she said. Why by a dishonorable act have you caused my words to be just ? Why have you received with all hospitable courtesy by my aunt, Lady Dudley, so outraged, so cruelly treated her niece ?

'Outraged ?'

'Yes ; for I am your prisoner : am I not by a cruel deception, by a base, unmanly trick, being carried I know not where. Have I not been trapped into your power ? Could such deeds win respect? Does it not proclaim you unworthy all consideration? Sir, you are a coward.'

The American's complexion went white and red.

His strong chest heaved.

He ejaculated hoarsely, as he spoke a cry of warning.

Beware, beware, you are insane. I done all this, being governed by one thing. It ruled me, I was helpless before it—my passion for you. Is not all fair in love ?' said Stuart Loring.

'Love, Mr. Lorine ; you are ignorant of the pure meaning of the word you use. The fierce wild passion you so designate is as different as the desert to the blooming savannahs. They who truly love sue humbly hope secretly, feeling only happiness in creating that of those whom they the being for whom they would die rather than cause pain,'

A sweet radience illuminated her countenance as she spoke.

She was thinking of Eustace Belmore

The American divined it.

'So, Pauline Beauchamp, I would have sued,' he remarked, 'so I would have humbled my self, had I dared to hope you would listen—could you believe I thus might have won you. But you would have rejected me, you know it as I.'

'Love, is heaven's choicest gift, she said quietly, it is Heaven born, by Heaven's will it enters our breast—it cannot be acquired by man. Still, had I rejected, my heart would have been full of sympathy and and kindness for one who had done me so much honour.'

'Pity and sympathy.' replied Stuart Loring, 'would not have healed a passion such as mine. When the prairie is on fire it is not the tears of a summer cloud that can extinguish it. I would have made you mine—you would have rejected me.'

Pauline was silent.

'Why ?' he asked.

Because the woman should love him whom she weds.

'No, that is hardly the reason. Do all in that pure English society with which you mixed marry for love ? Is there no buying and selling? No, it is not for that you would have refused me. It was because another had sued at your feet—and not in vain.'

I have said we cannot govern our love love. It is born in heaven.'

'And yours was born for Mr, Eustace Belmore.'

A vivid blush dyed the the listener's cheek.

She hastily averted her eyes.

'Yes, he was my rival,' continued the American. his piercing eyes watching the effect his words were about to cause. 'But Heaven is kinder than you are to me; Pauline. It has had compassion. He was an obstacle in my way to your affections, so Heaven has removed him.'

The bright color fled from the girl's countenance leaving it ghastly white.

She remembered her dream.

'What do you mean, she demanded, bending her eyes quickly upon him.

'That Mr. Belmore is now dead on the Prairie ! His body is here—h's soul is in Heaven!'

Uttering a piercing scream. Pauline staggered, sick and faint against the side of the caravan.

'It is true, then it is true!' she cried, 'Oh my dream, my dream.'

In a space, however, her eyes flashed.

Her slight form quivered with fury, as advancing upon the reporter of this terrible news, she cried—

'Assassin ! it is you—you who have murdered him!'

'You accuse me wrongly,' responded Stuart Loring, firmly. 'How could I have done this deed? Have I not been with you—protecting you all along ?'

Pauline's burst of passion was but brief.

Her misery was too great to bear.

She was overwhelmed with the confirmation of her dream.

She reeled and sank upon a chair.

Her tears fell fast.

Sobs rent her bosom.

Oh, Eustace, Eustace. my darling—my love ! Dead—dead!' she moaned piteously.

Stuart Loring stood motionless.

The sight of Pauline's agony was dreadful to him.

Yet, on the other hand, the knowledge that it was created by affection for his rival stung him to insanity.

What would he have given for even half that love ?

As her grief increased, a fear seized him for her sanity.

He recollected the Creole's warning words.

Taking a step nearer he exclaimed involuntarily.

Pauline, If I were to say he lived, would you love me for the news ?'

The girl rose quickly into a sitting position,

Leaning forward, she eagerly scanned the agitated countenance bent towards her own.

An exclamation of joy issued from her lips.

'He does live !' she cried, clasping her little hands 'You would have not said that were it not so. He is not dead.'

'You are deceived,' broke in the American, menacing angrily at the interpretation of his words. I would tell anything—swear anything to please you, Pauline ! He is dead.'

'He lives, she repeated. 'You have overheard me relate my dream. and have played upon my fears. He lives, and you know is now in pursuit, to save us—to punish you, Ah.'—and her countenance broke into an ectatic smile, 'you cannot deceive me again. I no longer dread you.'

For a space Stuart Loring's rage was beyond control.

He mastered it, however, by a violent effort.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in nother column,

THE CROAKER.

'Laugh at those who grumble,
And be merry as you can.'
'We must travel through life, but why make a dead march of it?'

Oh, the melancholy croaker,
With his croak, croak, croak.
He can always toll a funeral,
But never tell a joke;
He, in his ready coffin,
Can drive a nail, no doubt;
But with a smiling visage
He never draws one out.

Oh, the poor, unhappy croaker,
Like a revolving vane,
He antedates the weather,
Is sure it's going to rain;
He knows the crops are ruined,
His memory he jogs
To prove that now the country
Is going to the dogs.

The dreary, weary croaker
Will have to die some day;
Perhaps he'll go to heaven
And walk the golden way;
But when the shining pavements
His gloomy eyes behold,
He'll shake his head and mutter
'I-d-o-n't be-lieve—they're—gold.'

THEY WON'T ELOPE.

He went home an hour earlier the other afternoon, and calling his 18-years old daughter into the parlor he began—:

'Susie, I have been thinking.'

'Yes, papa.'

'I have been thinking that it would be a good plan for you to marry William our coachman,'

'W-what!'

'He is old enough to be your father, to be sure, but he would doubtless make you a good husband.

'Never! never!'

'He is plain-looking, uneducated, and sometimes gets drunk, but I believe I could respect him as a son-in-law.'

'Why father, have you lost your mind? I marry William! I wed that long-nosed, hump backed, big-mouthed boor! I'll die first!'

'But Susie, you know——'

'I'll not listen! Say another word to me and I'll take poison.'

Then the old gent slid out to the barn, assumed his humblest look and said to the coachman:

'William I've been wondering why you don't get married.'

'Humph!'

'There's my daughter Susie. She's young but will make a woman of sense I believe in early marriages, and if you and she can agree I shall offer no objections,'

'Your Susie! Me marry her! Begging your pardon sir, and hoping you won't throw me out of my place for my boldness, but if that impudent little chit was the only female left on earth I'd turn my back on her!'

'But William, I would try to be a good——'

'No use sir! There is never an hour that I don't want to box her ears! If you insist I'll skip the country!'

And when the old gent picked up the daily paper and seeing the heading 'Another heiress goes off with the Coachman.' he leans back and chuckles and slaps his legs and cackles: Haw! haw! haw!—Detroit Free Press.

MONEY MIND.

A French experimenter, Mons. J. Fischer, has given an interesting account of observations on monkeys, especially Macacus rhesus. One of these animals, having been frightened at seeing a gun discharged at some sparrows, extended his fear to a toy pistol suspended from his master's watch chain, and even to the figure of a revolver illustrating an armorer's catalogue. Several species of monkeys recognize pictures of animals, a proof of the superiority of their intelligence over that of dogs and elephants. The rhesus knew the names of some sixty or seventy animals confined in cages in the same room; he could fully understand the expression of the human countenance, could estimate weights, and had a certain—though not strong—sense of number.

AN OBSERVANT YOUNG LADY.

She was a remarkably sensible young lady who made the request of her friends that after her decease she should not be buried by the side of of a brook, where babbling lovers would wake her from her dreams; nor in any grand cemetery, where sightseers, conning over epitaphs, might disturb her; but be laid away to her last sleep under the counter of some merchant who did not advertise in the newspapers. There she said was to be found a depth of quiet slumber on which neither the buoyant foot of youth nor weary shuffle of old age would intrude.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

A CYCLE OF WHAT?

A certain class of ontologists, who break away from the orthodox maxims of metaphysics, teach that there are cycles of crime as well as cycles of virtue, and that during these periods a mysterious influence seems to govern the actions of individuals of a peculiar temperment, and generally with uniform motives. If this doctrine has a reasonable basis, we would conclude that the influence of the cycle now spanning our existence must result in insane matrimonial freaks. The gentler sex are most affected, probably because they are more naturally the victims of Cupid's darts when the little rogue employs such unusual agencies. We are puzzled, however, how to account for the strange monotony of choice that all, or nearly all, the smitten maniacs indicate by their actions. There may be some method in this kind of madness, after all. Our news columns show that almost daily elopements are recorded, and that in most instances a "coachman" wins the mad affections of a young, handsome and wealthy lady. Now, we know by observation, if not by experience, that a fashionably attired Jehu is something more than a "masher"—he is an Adonis in other than Cyprian costume. It is, therefore, really little wonder that the susceptible hearts of gushing maids and even blooming matrons yield to the fascinating powers of these masculine anemones. Venus might have yielded quite as readily had she seen one in all his glory, instead of the delicate beauty that met such a sad fate on the horns of the mythological bull. But we are slightly digressing. From what is transpiring now on this mundane sphere we conclude, reasonably, it seems, that there is a mysterious influence shaping Cupid's affairs, much to the annoyance and discomfiture of the average wooer of genteel professions. As science, such as we have it, has not yet discovered a means of counteracting this antihetical lovemaking, we presume the parties most concerned will express a fervent hope that the cycle may be of short duration. The subject is not exactly comically interesting. It has a grave significance, too. If the "coachmen" continue to turn the heads and hearts of eligible young ladies, and the persuasions and menaces of stern pater familias avail nought, the present social status must become revolutionized, and a new order of precedence be established. What will the result be? We give it up.

CHARACTERISTIC CONSISTENCY.

The Spectator has never pretended—no Conservative authority has ever pretended—that the National Policy could affect wheat to the extent of the duty except when the home crop is short. East year Canadian farmers got the whole benefit of the duty. When there is a surplus for export, the price will be governed mainly by the Liverpool market. That fact we have stated many times. This journal never held any other opinion. Those who say to the contrary say what is false. That also was the opinion of Sir John Macdonald before the National Policy was adopted. It is his opinion to-day.—Hamilton Spectator.

Wheat sells in Kansas for forty cents a bushel. How would Canadian farmers be benefited if that forty cent wheat was allowed to enter Canada free of duty?—Hamilton Spectator.

The charming consistency between the two extracts is obvious.

In the very improbable exigency of our supply running so short that we need some from outside, a few thousand bushels from Kansas would be very acceptable, no doubt, but as grain dealers are business men and not philanthropists, it is extremely likely that they will carry their Kansas grain to the Old Country rather than dispose of it here at a sacrifice to keep down the price of Canadian grown, as the price in Liverpool governs the markets without much reference to whether Canada has a surplus or not.

The question for the Conservatives to dispose of is simply this:—The N. P., despite present disclaimers, was warranted by its framers to ensure good prices for farm produce. We have now very low prices. Why is it thus?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Catholic Record hits the nail on the head when it says that the Mail's tirade on the Minister of Education, on the ground of his supposed disloyalty, is simply disgusting.

IT TOOK the Commission sent out to British Columbia just three days to collect necessary evidence on the Chinese question, but it is expected that they will occupy more than as many weeks at Ottawa arranging it in order.

* * *

WOULD it not be as well for our citizens to "make haste slowly" in the matter of telephone service. Let each interested be fully posted in the matter in all its bearings and then act accordingly. Why disfigure Front Street, for instance, with poles and wires, unless it be necessary? And let it be remembered the city is not at the mercy of a single corporation, but has a free choice. Let calm judgment prevail.

THE VERDANT innocence of the Kingston News is refreshing. It actually accepts our remarks about its wonderful influence (!) on American politics as a compliment, and pulls down its vest, wipes off its chin and tries to look wise and let people understand it is some pumpkins after all, "don't chew know." And then it actually thinks we were angry with it. What Conceit!

THE CONDITION of the British Navy has been the subject of much comment and speculation of late, many contending that a thorough overhauling is required. As a consequence, a Royal Commission has been appointed to investigate the subject. According to some authorities the propositions made by the grumblers would, if acceded to, bring up the annual expenditure to $65,000,000. There are 63 ironclads in the naval service, and a number more on the stocks so that the charge of neglect does not seem well founded.

MONEY AND MADNESS.

Three People Driven Insane by a Bank Failure.

The timely interference of the authorities of at Erie Pa., on Friday prevented a horrible tragedy, for which arrangements were being made by Mr. and Mrs. George Schreck and John Flick, all three of whom were driven insane by the wreck of the Erie Company Savings Bank by its rascally manager. Schreck, and his wife and little children, and their friend lived on Myrtle street, and had $118, the savings of four years, deposited in the bank when it suspended. Their grief was heart-rending, and for weeks they hung around the bank doors, ringing their hands and cursing the cashier. Their minds gradually sunk under the strain, until it became evident to their neighbors that all three were mad. A visit to the house on Friday disclosed

A HORRIBLE STATE OF AFFAIRS.

Under the impression that God was punishing them for sin, they were trying to expiate their imaginary crime by self flagelation and fasting. The four children were found nearly dead from starvation, the addults were kneeling and passionately exhorting the Almighty to forgive them. The assistance offered was resented as an interference with the will of God, and the neighbors were driven out.

Officers Dundenbeffer and Metz observed the man and woman digging a grave in the back yard, and fearing that something as wrong inside entered in time to PREVENT A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

They had decided to enact the death of Christ. Schreck was to be the Saviour, Mrs. Schreck the Holy Mother and Flick was to do the killing, which was to be followed by a realistic representation of Herod's slaughter of the children.

Dr. Germer, health officer, reported these facts to Judge Gailbraith, and the unfortunate people are now in custody awaiting the decision of the Lunacy Commissioners.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, and given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

A SINGULAR THEFT.

Over 1,000 Signatures Stolen From a Scott Act Election Petition.

A decided sensation was created in Cobourg yesterday when it was announced that the discovery had been made that over 1,000 names had been purloined from the petition lying in the Sheriff's office praying for the submission of the Scott Act in the united counties of Northumberland and Durham. It bore the signatures of 4,712 bona fide electors of the united counties, 500 more than the number required. Since this voluminous document has been in the Sheriff's office it has undergone thorough examination and a vast amount of fumbling at the hands of numerous parties, the majority of whom have been interested in its failure. The apparent and avowed object of their scrutiny was to obtain the names of the petitioners for the Act in the various municipalities. Yesterday as Mr. T. T. Baine, a Port Hope barrister, was going through the petition on behalf of certain interested clients, he discovered the abstraction of a number of the petition sheets, and immediately called the attention of the Deputy Sheriff, Mr. McNaughton, to the fact. The enormity of the theft was soon ascertained. It was found that the petitions from the villages of Brighton and Colborne have been stolen in their entirety, while eight other municipalities suffered heavily as the following will show:

	Names Missing.
Village of Brighton	127
" Colborne	110
Township of Brighton,	42
" Cavan	107
" Cartwright	50
" Darlington	135
" Clarke	272
" Hope	37
" Murray	100
" Cramahe	97
Total missing	1,077

This nefarious act will simply have the effect of rendering null and void the present petition, and it will so delay the submission of the Scott Act in these counties that it cannot take effect in case of adoption till the end of the next license year.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Farnham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

MEDICAL MEN'S FEES.

Canadian Lancet.

A test was recently tried in Belleville, Ont., to determine whether or not a patient is liable for the fees of a medical man who is called by a friend or relative. In this case the brother of the patient summoned the consulting physician, who assisted in the amputation of a finger. The patient refused to pay the consulting physician on the ground the ground that he had not engaged him, and told him to look to the attending physician for his fee. The Judge who tried the case ordered a non suit, holding that the patient was only responsible to the physician he engaged. We were a little surprised at the ruling of the Judge in this case, as we had always entertained the idea that if the patient accepted the services of a physician he was bound to pay him. It is a well recognized principle among the medical profession that when a medical man is called in consultation the patient is responsible for the payment of the fee. In view of the Judge's ruling in this case the question might well be asked. Who is to be responsible for the fees where the patient is unconscious and incapable of engaging anyone? One not versed in the intricacies of the law would naturally suppose that a patient's brother could safely be considered an authorized agent to engage the services of a medical man. but such it seems is not the case. And if a patient is not responsible for the fees of a medical man who has been engaged by his brother, what are the chances of having a legal claim to renumeration for services rendered when the party who calls the physician is only a neighbor, a friend, or, in case of emergency, possibly a stranger?

MADOC NEWS.

From our own Correspondent.

MADOC, Oct. 6.—The fall grain looks well in this locality, and there is a large acreage sown. The only drawback to successful farming this year is the lowness at which prices rule. I suppose this is due to Sir John's policy, for when prices were good and crops also, they (the Conservatives) said it was due to that cause, and it is a very poor rule that won't work both ways.

We have to record another victim to the waters of Moira Lake. On Saturday last a young, a teacher in the Irish settlement, went in bathing, and it being the third time that day it seems he was seized with cramps and sank to rise no more. He was from Toronto. Two of his brothers came here, arriving at midnight. It will be sad news for his widowed mother, who lost her husband by accident on the G.T.R last winter. The body after being taken from the water yesterday morning, was brought to the residence of Mr. Mackintosh in this village, and his brothers left about 5.15 p.m. for Toronto with the remains. They were accompanied by several from the village and vicinity as far as Ivanhoe station on the C.P.R. This is the fifth sudden death in this vicinity in the last two months, viz: Miss Carrie Wood, by drowning; Master Rollin's, killed instantly at his uncle's barn; Young Bronson, by falling off a load of grain and the wheel passing over his neck, and young Lancaster by being thrown out of a wagon while the team was running away and striking on his head was instantly killed. Surely this is an awful record, and is intended by Him who doeth all things well, as a warning to those who are left to be ready, for they know not the day nor the hour when the son of man cometh.

A MAN, WIFE AND INFANT MURDERED AND ROBBED—THE MAN'S BODY GNAWED BY HOGS IN THE FIELD.

FULTON, Neb. Oct. 6.—Harry Percival, wife and infant, and a young man living on a neighboring farm have been murdered ten miles west of here. The mother and child were shot in bed, and the father was found beside a hay stack, with his body patially consumed by hogs. The young man was shot in bed at Percival's house and robbed of everything of any value except his wife's watch. The deed is supposed to have been committed by a farm hand, and a partner who is missing.

THE SINKING FUND BY LAW.

At the meeting of the City Council last night, Ald. Diamond introduced the by-law of which notice had been given by Alderman J. W. Johnson to establish a Sinking Fund to meet debenture debts. Of these the city has now about $400,000.

Funds for this purpose have been previously raised, but not having been placed beyond the reach of needy Finance Committees, they have been used for other purposes and then replaced by issuing debentures—and then again exhausted, etc.

The sum of about $10,000 now being in the hands of the Council as a Sinking Fund Ald. Johnson's by-law places it in the keeping of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, under such provisions that it cannot be drawn except by a special by law passed for the purpose.

The promoter of the by-law and the whole Council deserve credit for this business like action, and the only wonder is that it was not done earlier

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by B. Templeton.

THE HOGGARD ASSAULT.

Chief McKinnon yesterday arrested in Kingston William Abernethy on a charge of being one of the five young men who assaulted Mr. Hoggard on the 18th August last. He was brought to the city but was not locked up. The Chief thinks that Abernethy is not guilty as he says while he was in Belleville on the day of the assault he never saw the other prisoners before, besides the Mayor of Kingston and several of the best citizens of the town give Abernethy a good certificate of character. At the police court this morning James Huddlestone, Wm. Jas. Mills and Wm. Henderson were up on the same charge, but were sent back to gaol for another week, Abernethy being allowed to go on his own recognizance until that date. Wm. Severn was at the court and was quite sure Abernethy was one of the five men who committed the assault. It was the bar tender at the Anglo American who swore out the warrant against this party, but he is now in Toronto. The fifth party has not been arrested.

Mr. Hoggard is not so well since being removed to his private residence.

The City Solicitor, on behalf of the Crown suggested at the court this morning that the prisoners might be brought to Mr. Haggard's house someday this week when his evidence could be taken.

RESPECT AGE.

Age should always command respect, in the case of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it certainly does, for 25 years that has been the standard remedy with the people, for Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colic and all Bowel Complaints.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

Chief of Police Huff, of Madoc, arrived in the city this morning, and in company with Constable Hayes arrested Alexander McDonald on a charge of horse stealing. It is stated Mr. McDonald was driving in Huntingdon on Sunday in Mr. Gilbert Dafoe's rig, and when the latter got out for a drink of water along the roadside McDonald hurriedly drove off. The police officer traced him to Belleville, where McDonald was trying to trade the horse.

The Oneta returned home last night from a pleasure trip down Hay Bay, the crew expressing themselves as delighted with their trip and Mr. H. Corby's hospitality. They stopped over Sunday at Davey's Island, and spent yesterday trolling in Hay Bay, where they caught five beautiful muskallonge. The The largest weighing 34½ pounds was caught by Mr. J. K. McCargar, who is an old time angler. The report therefore that he bought the fish is untrue. To-day four of the fish were on exhibition in front of Thomas' meat store, and were admired by everyone as specimens of what sort of fish can be caught in the bay.

TELEPHONE TROUBLES.

The Bell Company not Going to leave at Present.

INVESTMENT OF SINKING FUND.

At the regular meeting of the City Council last night, Mayor Dafoe presiding, there were present, Ald. Vandusen, Hanley LaRoche, J. W. Johnson, L. Johnson, Petrie, Clarke, Tickell, Baker, Cooper, Pringle, McIntosh, Diamond, Macoun, Campion and Biggar.

The members of the Congregational Church requested that the gas lamp in front of the church be lighted again at nights as formerly.

The Secular Society petitioned for the use of the city hall for a lecture by Chas. Watts on the payment of the usual fee.

The City Treasurer asked the council to furnish him with a copying press.

W. J. Clarke, of Trenton, offered to furnish the city with an electric fire alarm system for about $350.

The Woman's Christian Association showed the expenditure for poor and sanitary purposes for September to be $42.20; for the year ending October 1st, 1884, $1,164.55.

The Board of Health asked the council to remove the carter's stand from the corner of Front and Bridge Streets.

The reports of the committees were passed without amendment; the Market Committee recommending the purchase of a new dial for the city clock.

THE TELEPHONE BOOM.

The Bell Telephone Company presented a petition signed by several ratepayers asking the council to grant the company the use of Front Street on which to erect their poles. The petition contained 116 signatures.

Ald Diamond, in asking that the petition be allowed to remain on the table stated that as representatives of both companies were present it would be advisable to settle the question at once. He did not care which company had the telephone service in Belleville so long as they kept the poles off Front Street. The Bell telephone company said they were not "bluffing" when they gave their subscribers notice that they intended to withdraw from the city, but their present conduct in view of the fact that a rival company company wanted to start here was a little suspicious,

Mr. Stewart Hunter for the Dominion telephone company, stated they were willing to place their instruments here for $30 each and give a night and day service for $15 to each subscriber, without placing their poles on Front street. He solicited subscribers and among the many names which he got were several previous subscribers to the Bell telephone company. The Dominion telephone company was composed of sound, reliable, business men, and he believed they would do all they agreed to. The report that the Bell Company had brought an action against them was simply nonsense, and a waste of time discussing it. Mr. Hunter added that the Dominion Company was now building a trunk line between Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. Edwards, a representative of the Bell Company, was allowed to address the Council. He said his company had issued writs against the other company and were now awaiting the decision of the Courts. There was a strong objection to running wires over the buildings, and in all his experience he found the poles on any street preferable. No other town or city in Canada had refused the company the use of any of their streets. He thought it better for the citizens to lease the instruments than to buy them. When the company sells the instruments the purchasers will find trouble in securing competent men to repair the same when required.

ARE THEY IN EARNEST.

Ald. Diamond—Was the Bell telephone company in earnest when they stated they would remove their instrument from Belleville.

Mr. Edwards—I believe they were.

Ald. Diamond—And why have they changed their mind?

Mr. Edwards—Since the company gave that notice they have started a trunk line, and wanted a connection with Belleville, and I was sent here to make the best arrangements I could.

Ald. Diamond—Then I understand from you the company will stop here if they don't get Front Street.

Mr. Edwards—I have no authority to make such an assertion.

Ald. Diamond—Then I would like to know whether the Bell Telephone Company intends to stand by their notice of withdrawal.

Mr. Edwards—I can't say, but at present that notice has been withdrawn.

Ald. Diamond—This Council must know before long just what you intend to do.

Ald. Diamond thought the Bell Telephone Company did their patrons an injustice when they refused them the use of their instruments for private purposes because the Council denied them the use of Front Street. But this change of base just now was noticeable. He was opposed to granting Front Street now for that purpose as he was before and no one could find fault with the Council for accepting the notice of withdrawal of the Bell Telephone Company, more especially as their representative had stated through the press that they did not do it to "bluff" the Council, and look up a rival body. He moved that the prayer of the petition be not granted.

Ald. J. W. Johnson wished both companies success, but he was in favor of keeping the poles away from Front Street.

Ald. Biggar was of the same opinion, but if the merchants were sincere in signing the Bell Telephone petition he would not allow his private feelings to interfere with the interests of the ratepayers. He favored shelving the petition for a few days.

Ald. Tickell would like to learn if the parties who signed the petition were aware that the Dominion Company were ready to introduce their system in the city, before he committed himself to any scheme.

Ald. Vandusen thought the matter was worthy of more mature consideration, and he moved the petition be referred to the Board of Works.

Ald. Diamond withdrew his motion and agreed to refer the petition.

SURE TO BE LOST ANYWAY.

Ald. Macoun was sorrow to see Ald. Diamond withdraw his resolution. This council should not let it go abroad that they had lost their back bone. The merchants had been denied the use of Front street for their signs, and so ought the telephone company. The petition might just as well be referred now as two weeks hence, which would certainly be its fate.

Ald. Hanley would rather see the poles on Front street than lose the telephone.

Ald. Vandusen's motion, referring the petition, was carried.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Ald. Biggar called the attention to the fact that the by-law respecting the storage of gun-powder was not observed. He thought the dealers, and he believed they were willing, should be allowed to build a powder magazine, which would be safer than the present system of storing it all over the city.

FOUR PER CENT ON SINKING FUND.

A by-law providing for the investment of the sinking fund and all sums levied for that purpose was passed, allowing the Bank of Commerce the use of the money at 4 per cent. per annum, the interest to be computed semi-annually.

Ald. J. W. Johnson gave notice of a motion selling the non-resident lands on which taxes are due.

The council then adjourned.

THE "CITY MISSION."

We are in receipt of a communication, signed "A Worker," giving a somewhat extended account of the origin of this institution. We are sorry our space will not admit of the insertion of the letter as it is rather too lengthy, but we assure our contributor we appreciate his motives. We like all correspondence to be brief and to the point.

Briefly, the chief points mentioned are as follows:—Five years ago a converted German Jew came to this city and without being connected with any sect or party held meetings among the neglected inhabitants of south east Belleville. He depended on the Lord to supply himself and family. Without a dollar, he bought a lot and commenced to erect a building for worship. In answer to prayer the money was ready when the deed for the land was ready, and more came to pay men's wages and material. When the house was finished and furnished there was $500 due the contractor, which must be paid before the place was dedicated. A prayer meeting was held on Dec. 22, 1882, and before the 1st of January 1883, the debt was swept away, the money coming often from unknown persons in sums of from $1 upwards. The writer regards the whole as a striking example of the value of faith and prayer.

The edifice is situated on Dundas Street and is an unpretentious brick building.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabin, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

A SUCCESSFUL COMPANY.

One of the most successful dramatic companies last season was the celebrated Stafford-Foster organization, headed by those sterling artists, William Stafford and Evalyn Foster; and whose magnificent productions of legitimate drama received the cordial support of cultured and enthusiastic audiences, together with the highest praise from competent critics. Manager Tammadge with considerable enterprise has secured this attraction for Wednesday 15th Oct., in Shakespere's most popular play, Merchant of Venice.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store. The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup. – A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by reviving exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions. both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so,

LOVE'S LOTTERY
OR,
THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Pauline,' he exclaimed his accents agitated, 'give me your love I will do anything. You shall be the captor. I—how willingly!—the captive. I will be your slave—see, I am at your feet! Place your foot upon my neck, and I shall feel blessed above all men. Order—command. Your slightest word or even look shall be divined and obeyed; I will hang upon both. anxious to catch upon your wish before and to fulfil it, whatever be its nature. Only give me your love—give it me, or you will drive me mad; give it me or I die! Pity, pity!'

As he had spoken he had fallen prostrate prostrate before her his face downwards' as though he expected he would carry out his words, and showing her power, trample him beneath her tiny foot.

He did, indeed, humble himself.

His tones were passionate, prayerful, beseeching.

His last words came a cry rather than being spoken.

He had risen to his knee, extending his arms towards her.

Then, with a beseeching 'Pity, pity,' he dropped his face on his hands and sobbed so violently, that every nerve of his herculian frame quivered.

Pauline regarded him more in alarm than scorn.

'This is not love,' she said; 'It is frenzy a passion that lives upon a desire; that satisfied, it dies.'

He looked up.

His features were awfully convulsed.

There was an expression in his eyes that should have warned the young girl, warned her not to irritate him further.

'Is this your final determination?' he asked, hoarsely. 'Do you give me no hope?'

'I cannot,' she replied; my feelings are unchangable. You know they are.'

He rose to his feet.

Apparently his anger had subsided.

'I have given you a chance, Pauline Beauchamp, and you have cast it from you,' he said. 'Even though my rival being dead keeps you no longer to your word.'

The girl smiled incredulously.

'What I say is true,' he repeated, in clear deep tones; 'he is dead. It is not safe for men to journey alone in these American prairies.'

She smiled again.

She would not let is be seen how his words tortured her by re-occurring doubt.

She infuriated him past undurance.

'He is dead—you free,' he proceeded, 'I have sued as lover's sue. I have asked you to be mine promising you such devotion as man never yet gave woman, You reject it. Do you reflect how alone, how helpless you are here? I humbly crave that which I have the power,' he added, dropping his voice, 'to enforce.'

She started; but she answered firmly—I do not fear you. Even if Mr. Belmore be really no more,' and her voice trembled a little, 'then I am a widow, being married to his memory, to which I will be as faithful as the truest wife. Your supplications are more detestable to my ears than your threats. I do repeat I do not fear you.'

'You do not fear,' he said after her with a mocking smile, 'because you are ignorant of my power,'

'Your power is that of a strong, unprincipled man over a weak woman. A power sir, of which few men would boast. I am. knowing your capability, prepared,'

'By Heaven, you have lost your reason to thus goad me,' cried Stuart Loring, in an outbreak of frenzy. The result is your own work. Listen, Pauline Beauchamp. I have vowed you shall be mine, and mine you shall be.'

His face was flushed crimson with anger.

A moment he paused, then by a rapid movement, sprang towards her.

He would have clasped her in his strong arms; he would have pressed burning kisses on her white cheeks—on her pale lips.

But Pauline avoided the desecration.

She had during the interview, been perpetually on her guard, and the American now abruptly beheld before him; no longer a trembling timid girl, but a defiant woman defending her honour with the only weapons she possessed, her bravery and the keen knife she had drawn from her pocket.

Stuart Loring stood petrified.

He saw it would be perilous to advance.

If he did the knife would most likely find a sheath in his breast.

After a space a smile came over his features.

He bent his eyes fixedly on hers.

She met them firmly, though conscious of a strange thrill running through her frame.

For some minutes in silence he maintained that fixity of gaze.

'You have derided my power, Pauline Beauchamp,' he said at last. not shifting his eyes. 'Derided being unaware of its nature. You call me strong; I will not use my strength. Your weapon is a deadly one: but see. I will render it as harmless as a blade of grass.

As he concluded, the expression of his countenance changed to one stern command.

The piercing eyes concentrating her whole attention, seemed to dart into her very brain.

Swiftly he extended his arms towards her exclaiming in a voice of authority.

'Put down that knife. Sleep.

The wretched girl made a violent effort to cast of a strange dizzy, numb sensation stealing over her.

'It was impossible,

To her horror, she felt her strength, her senses going.

The knife dropped from her relaxing fingers.

She staggered back.

'Juliette,' she managed to shriek, 'Save save me.'

Then consciousness left her.

Uttering an exclamation of triumph, Stuart Loring leaped forward to catch the falling victim.

At the same moment, the door of the other room opened, and the Creole emerging, caught her unconscious sister in her arms, and, with a face as stern, as commanding as his own, she confronted the American.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column.

ABSENCE MAKES THE HEART GROW FONDER.

It was in the early summer when my love and I last parted;
She the seaside sought, and left me in the city broken hearted—
I to swelter through the summer, she on sea-kissed shores to wander;
But her last words gave me comfort, 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.'

How I loved the little letters that from time to time she sent me!
As I read, it seemed that they a momentary sea breeze lent me—
When she wrote of picnics, bathing, yachting trips; they made me ponder
Well the truth of that old say, 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.'

Oft she spoke of her admirers; how she bade them dance attendance,
Made them carry books and papers, and forswear their independence;
Spoke of one she nicknamed Crœsus, who on her his wealth would squander;
But she added, 'Dear old goosie,' 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.'

So I worked away quite happy, through the broiling summer weather,
Longing for the coming autumn, when we'd walk the world together,
Though her letters were less frequent, still I very often conned her
Last one, where the postscript told me, 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.'

Fewer still were now her letters, and she wrote: 'I very busy.'
I expostulated—mildly—with my wayward, witching Lizzie;
Once more came the same old answer—any other seemed beyond her;
'Don't you know you stupid Willie, 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.'

One more letter yet she sent me while she at the seaside tarried;
Laughing at our 'mild flirtation,' telling me that she was married;
And 'twas thus her note concluded—as I read my face turned yellow;
'Absence makes the heart grow fonder—fonder of the other fellow.'

BEECHER AND HIS COW.

'I can remember,' said Henry Ward Beecher, 'when I received an old cow in payment of a bad debt. It was a very bad debt, and I came to consider it a bad payment. She was a thin cow, but the former owner said she was better than she looked, being a cross between a Jersey and the Durham. She looked as if she might have been a cross between an old hair trunk and an abandoned hoopskirt. I kept the brute three days, and no one, except perhaps Lieutenant Atwell, could ever appreciate the suffering I endured in that time. The first night she broke through the fence and reduced to a pulp all the underclothing belonging to my next door neighbor. She put her horns through my bath tub and ate up all my geraniums. She was to give three gallons of milk a day, but she seemed short just then, and never had that to spare while we kept her. The second day she walked into the kitchen, upset a pan of butter and a tub of lard. Then she fell down a well, and when I got her out, at a cost of $5, she took the colic, whooping-cough or something and kept us awake all night. Not a green thing was left in my garden; my neighbor's peach trees and the rope on which his underwear grew were as bare of fruit as a single-tree and he did not have a twig of shrubbery left. My neighbor came over to see me and said:

''Now I do not desire a quarrel, but I want you to keep your cow out of my shrubbery.

''And I want you, my friend,' said I, 'to keep your shrubbery out of my cow.' '

Worms derange the whole system. Mother Grave's Worm Exterminator deranges worms and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be convinced.

FORGOT THE MAIN FEATURE.

From the Arkansaw Traveller.

The other day while Major Dodridge was sitting in his dooryard, the gate opened and a strange-looking man hastily approached.

'Is this Major Dodridge?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Of the eighth Arkansaw during the war?'

'Yes,' beginning to look with interest at the stranger.

'Don't you remember me, Major?'

'No, I can't place you.'

'Take a look at me,' shoving back his hat.

'Don't remember that I ever saw you before.'

'I am Hank Parson!' exclaimed the man bracing himself as though he expected the Major to rush into his arms.

'Don't recall the name said the Major.

'Is it possible? I did not think you would ever forget me. I'll refresh your memory. At Shiloh while the battle was raging in murderous fury, I found you lying on the field shot through both legs. I took you on my back and carried you to a spring in the shade. Now don't you recollect me?'

'Let me see,' mused the Major. 'I remember having been wounded: but I can't recollect the fact, if it be a fact, of any one taking me to a spring.'

'This is indeed strange,' said the disappointed man. I looked forward to meeting you with some anticipation of a warm greeting. Well, well; the world has at indeed, reached its ungrateful age. The occurrence is as fresh to my mind as though it had taken place yesterday. I gave you a drink of whiskey and—'

'What,' exclaimed the Major, springing to his feet. 'Gave me a drink of whiskey! Oh, yes, I remember now,' seizing the man's hand. Oh, I'll never forget that drink! The whiskey was so new that corn meal was floating around in it, but we enjoyed it. Remember you! Why, I should cavort. Why didn't you guard against possible embarrassment by mentioning some of the main features of the occurrence?'

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE VETO POWER.

The Toronto Mail declares:—"The veto power is an essential part of such a constitution as ours. It is specially provided for in the British North America Act. It must reside somewhere. If it did not reside at Ottawa, it would reside in England. We deem it better that it does reside primarily with our own Ministers, who are responsible to the people." Yes, but the exercise of the veto power by these ministers has done more to jeopardize the success of our confederation than the conflicting interests of which the union is formed. Had the representatives of the different provinces understood at the time they entered confederation that they were to retain no rights save those which the Dominion Government might allow them to exercise, does any one believe that the project then in view would ever have been carried out? The provincial legislatures have certain defined rights, and in this sphere have equal authority with the Federal power. This was the spirit and intention in framing the British North America Act; this the imperial Privy Council has, when occasion has presented itself, fully maintained. That there must be a veto power somewhere to prevent conflicting jurisdiction and secure easy working of the somewhat complicated machinery there can be no doubt. But that veto power when exercised should be in the line of carrying out the provisions of the confederation act. Any other exercise of it is a breach of faith with the colonies which gave up their separate existence for the purpose of becoming a link in the union. Experience has shown that that power should be vested elsewhere than with the Dominion Government.—Winnipeg Sun.

ONE INCIDENT

Meredith's coup d' etat has ended in a fiasco. Even the ridiculous and manifestly perjured testimony of the young man Vickers availed nothing, and was, on the face of it, a deliberate lie made out of whole cloth.

It would perhaps be pertinent to refer at this juncture to the partizan conduct of the manager of the Montreal and Dominion Telegraph Lines, Mr. H. P. Dwight. At first delaying to produce telegrams which might have implicated some of the members of the Dominion Government, he afterwards destroyed them, and defied the law.

Affairs have surely come to a strange pass if the servant of a strong corporation at the bidding of his political friends can take such an extreme course, and shield from merited disgrace those who were, if the truth were known, at the bottom of this hideous attempt to thwart the will of the people and debauch their representatives. We would like to see Mr. Dwight's actions in this matter thoroughly sifted, for if such a course as he pursued is allowable and a bigoted partizan can with impunity take advantage of his position as manager of a telegraph company to render null and void all attempts to clear up a mystery whose solution might show the connivance of the political leaders of the party with which he is identified in the plot then such, a state of affairs is not in harmony with the supposed popular government of the country.

THE MURRAY CANAL.

In response to the query of "Citizen" in another column, we may state that we are credibly informed that Mr. Ritchie did make the offer referred to, is still prepared to carry it out, and is willing to make a deposit of $1,000,000 as security. But there is little hope that the Government will pay much attention to it. They have already selected and partly constructed a canal eight miles in length, when one of one-fourth the distance would better answer the purpose. When it comes to a choice between favoring a friend or spiting an opponent on the one hand, and the real benefit to the country on the other, the latter gets left every time—and it has to pay roundly for the privilege too. Masters and sailors when being towed through the long eight miles from Presqu'Isle bay, in future years—if it don't fill up—will bestow left-handed benedictions on the memory of the bitter partizans who thwarted their wishes at great expense to the country, simply because the better, cheaper, and more popular route would have benefitted the McMullens.

THE PROJECT of the annexation of Jamaica to Canada, at one time looked upon as a very chimerical idea, is likely from all appearances to assume a more serious phase. There is a strong feeling in the maritime provinces in favor of the scheme, but we very much question if the game is worth the candle.

CONSERVATIVES are pointing with pride to the low prices of sugar and cotton as proofs of the beneficial operation of the Tilley tariff. All rot! They are as cheap in England and no exorbitant protection there either. But if the prices were high instead of what they are, there are lots of Tories who would seriously, tell us that high prices are always a sure sign of good times.

THE Bribery Commission investigation has done one good thing for the Conservatives. It has given them a chance to inveigh on the awful enormity of using profane language. It may be excusable to attempt to bribe members from their party allegiance; it is perfectly right and just to debauch the electorate; it is even praise-worthy to destroy compromising telegrams; and the false swearing of a red-hot Tory witness may be winked at; but a rough-and-ready, friendly salutation, if tinged with profanity is a certain index of a mind lost to all sense of honor, a reprobate, degraded and unreliable character—not only in the speaker, but in the person addressed.

The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

TELEPHONIC PROGRESS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—The Dominion Telephone Company has been fully organized. The following were elected a provisional board of directors: President, Mr. E. H. Johnson, Stanstead; Managing director, Mr. J. J. Webster, Magog; General superintendent, Mr. James Wright, Montreal, and Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Robert Dixon, Montreal. The company has a capital of $200,000, of which 100,000 has been already taken up. The company has been organized to construct and work a new telephone, the principal points of difference in which, and those presently in use, are in the receiver, in the construction of the electro-magnet and in the transmitter, the induction coil. The general construction of the telephone is also simple and cheaper. The charges to be made to supply instruments and work the exchanges, [illegible], are $55 the first year, and $25 subsequently. In small towns and villages the rate will be $45 for the first year and $15 subsequently. A new feature will be the supply of private switches for five, ten or twenty wires. The company's instruments are already in operation satisfactorily in Sherbrook, Megantic, Churchville, and other towns, and they intend to commence operations in Montreal early next spring. The charter was issued to the Company on the 9th of August last.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. LOST IN THE WOODS.

THE STORY OF FIVE DAYS' WANDERINGS IN THE FOREST.

Joseph Droillard and Gilbert Jubinsville, two farmers who live in Anderdon township, Essex county, Ont., went hunting on Tuesday. They intended to return in the evening but no uneasiness was felt at their continued absence, as it was thought they had gone to Amherstburg or Windsor. Both men turned up at their houses on Saturday in a half starved condition. Shortly after leaving home they lost their bearings, the first and second night were spent in wandering through the thick woods of Anderdon township. When morning came they found themselves near the spot which they had started from the night before. From this time to Saturday morning they were almost constantly on the move. They had about given up when they met a man of whom they asked where they were. The man probably thinking they were joking told them the wrong way out. Again they tramped around for miles. About Saturday noon they heard a whistle and knew it must come from a Canada Southern engine. They at once struck out in that direction, and finally succeeded in reaching the track, only to find themselves sixteen miles from home. This distance they walked and reached home in safety after an absence of five days.

A CHAIN OF CRIME.

A WOMAN AND HER GUILTY PARTNER PAY THE PENALTY OF THEIR SIN.

Sunday night Abiah A. Armstrong, a mechanic, of Newago, Mich., aged 35, discovered his young wife alone with George Bates, one of his boarders, under very suspicious circumstances. A quarrel ensued, and Mrs. Armstrong told Bates to go down stairs and get a revolver. He obeyed and Armstrong armed himself with an axe. His wife threw her arms around him to prevent him from hurting Bates. He swung the axe, which landed on her throat, almost severing her head from her body. Bates then clinched with Armstrong and met the same fate. Armstrong was arrested. He is terribly affected by the death of his wife, and swears he had no idea of taking her life. Mrs. Armstrong was a remarkably good looking woman.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Farnham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

INSANE JEALOUSY.

A LOVER ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT HIS RIVAL AND GETS SHOT IN RETURN.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa. Oct. 7.—Yesterday Frank Budman, book keeper, went to the house of Rose Andiago, daughter of a coal operator with whom he was in love, and fired an ineffectual shot at Count Armpaski, who was with her in the parlor. The count got a revolver and ordered Miss Andiago to count three. At the word three both men fired. Budman was shot in the shoulder.

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, New York, says: "Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of piles of 9 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, 'besides two Buffalo Physicians,' without relief; but the Oil saved him; he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly." There being imitations on the market of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, customers will see that they get the genuine.

There are many perfumes which, when applied to the handkerchief, have a very agreeable odor for few moments and than die away, leaving only a sickly disagreeable smell, Not so with Murray & Lanman's Florida Water; the longer it is exposed the more delicate and delightful in its rich aroma.

FAITH.

Notes of a Sermon by Rev. Dr. Jacques, of Albert College.

Contributed.

The Rev. Dr. Jacques, of Albert College, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist Church last Sunday in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. J. J. Baker. His text for the morning service was taken from the Gospel by Mark xvi chapter and 16 verse: 'He that believeth and is baptised shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.'

Infidels and skeptics have so bespattered the fair face of faith that some even professing christians have been almost ashamed of the faith that lifts them from their sins towards God. Whatever may be the prejudices of any man, any student of christianity, if he will read The Book, read it for himself faithfully, must admit this manifest fact, that faith is the cream of religion, the final condition of salvation. The unspeakable good of faith can scarcely be exaggerated. Christ's last words: 'He that believeth and is baptised shall be saved.' Nothing can be more plain, nothing more startling. This is the epitome of the gospel message. Certain objections are presented against the whole document of faith as the means of rescue for the soul. It is said that the whole doctrine of faith tends to the neglect of moral duties. The faith in Christ depreciates our regard for the practical duties of life and makes us careless about our outward life. Some liberal Christians take this view. The Bible teaches justification by faith, also justification of faith by works. Faith and trust are the two pillars upon which our Christianity is based. If either is wanting the soul will sink into the depths. Luther said 'justification by faith was the only way to salvation, not works;' and, therefore, thought the Epistle of James rather a chaffing one, as it was not profitable for him. But after a few years he found that the very people he had been teaching needed to be regulated by this very Epistle. Faith without works is dead, Now, as faith is the only condition of salvation it must be nurtured by works. Faith cannot beget looseness of life since it leads to well doing and Godliness. No man ever gets holy unless he begins to believe in the truth and believe it with all his might. Belief is therefore the spring of all human well-doing. Faith brings Christ to our help. It is a good period in the history of a man's life when he learns this grand lesson. Love is the fulfilling of the law, and faith always begets love. The scheme of faith cannot tend to the neglect of works. Where the Bible is read the most and where faith is cultivated there is the type of morality. So with whole districts. Where is there a greater average morality than in Scotland where God's word is so much studied. Faith is the ultimate condition of salvation. Now faith is the result of the examination of evidence and the examination of evidence is voluntary, therefore faith is voluntary. The world is full of men and women who will not believe what is unwelcome to them. A man has done a great wrong. Note the effects the telling of the news will have on a friend and on an enemy of the man. The friend will not believe it, he wants good proof before he will admit that the man has done what is said of him. The enemy will instantly say he believes it without thinking of enquiring. A mother will not belief that her boy has done a terrible wrong. Our belief is largely based on the inclinations of the heart. Faith is voluntary and unbelief is voluntary since sin is voluntary. Sin is the noise of unbelief. While we have sin it will always be a pleader for the wrong. However much we may read the Bible, faith is an impossibility as long as we cherish in these hearts of ours a single sinful purpose.

LIME IN BAKING POWDERS.
Prof. R. A. Witthaus, M. D., Medical University, Buffalo, N. Y., who is the highest authority, says that "Calcium Tartrate (improperly called Tartrate of Lime), advertised as the lime found in Baking Powders is derived from the wines that produce Cream of Tartar. It is a constituent of the grape and other fruits, and is absolutely harmless.

A RIOT AT A SUNDAY RACE.

At the Longchamp races in Paris on Sunday the mob dissatisfied with the riding of the English jockey, Sharpe, pulled him off his horse and brutally kicked and beat him. The horse was also injured by blows from sticks and stones. Sharpe was carried into the weighing enclosures in a critical condition, A violent riot followed the mob breaking into the enclosure. Soldiers were compelled to guard the place from the crowd one of whom was seized by the jockeys and narrowly escaped lynching by the intervention of the police. The jockeys had stripped his clothes off and were about to hang him. Another English jockey was maltreated and narrowly escaped.

Faces as yellow as that of the "Heathen Chinee" in consequence of bile in blood, grow fair and wholesome looking again when Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and great blood purifier is used to relax constipated bowels and expel the bilious poison from the circulation, Rheumatic and blood impurities are also driven out by it digestion restored, and the system benefited in every way by its use.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD,
That many with the glad consent praise new born remedies: especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practiced in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitutes lies at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson H Co. props Kingston.

A REMARKABLE GROUP OF BOOKS

is to be published by James R. Osgood & Co., of Boston, during the present autumn—and it may well be doubted whether any other American publishing house has ever put forth in a single season so many valuable and notable books. Among novels it includes Cable's inimitable Louisiana romance of 'Doctor Sevier;' Robert Grant's 'The Knave of Hearts,' in which the success of 'The Confessions of a Frivolous Girl' is renewed and prolonged; Henry James's 'Tales of Three Cities,' admirable Society studies by our cosmopolitan novelist; Craddock's 'Where the Battle was Fought,' a noble production by one of the foremost Southern writers; Edgar Fawcett's vivid and picturesque 'Adventures of a Widow' in New York society, and the new novel 'John Rantoul,' by Henry N, Nelson, the brilliant Washington correspondent of the Boston Post and Herald. Besides all these, in Howe's 'The Story of a Country Town,' the most remarkable novel of modern American literature, a spontaneous developement of prairie life in Kansas, painting Far Western life with rare precision and verisimilitude, in a succession of swift and brilliant touches which would have done no discredit to Dickens or Victor Hugo.

Among the autumn's poetical works to be issued by the Osgoods are the sumptuous new Holiday edition of Sir Walter Scott's 'Marmion,' crowded with illustrations; a richly illustrated new Holiday edition of Edwin Arnold's 'Light of Asia;' the Pocket and Tremont illustrated editions of Scott's 'Lady of the Lake Rolfe's admirable new annotated and illustrated 'Selections from Tennyson;' a handsome edition of Thackeray's Ballads; a new three-volume-in-one edition of that unrivalled collection 'Our Poetical Favorites,' containing over 300 of the choicest of all ancient and modern poems.

In biography the Osgood list has as its great treasure Julian Hawthorne's 'Nathaniel Hawthorne and his Wife,' (two volumes; illustrated), which has long been looked for with deep interest, as a work of genius and a filial tribute, Another volume contains the celebrated Concord lectures of 1884 on the Genius and Character of Emerson. The biographies of Forrest, Jefferson, Booth, Charlotte Cushman, Fechter, and other actors are now republished in three illustrated volumes, making a set which is valuable to all theatre goers.

Austin Dobson's illustrated life of Thomas Bewick and his Pupils, will have great interest to all lovers of art, as tracing the rise and development of modern wood engraving. Other valuable art books soon forthcoming are the revised 'Artists of the Nineteenth Century;' D. Cady Eaton's 'Handbook of Greek and Roman Sculpture;' Dr. A. C. Hamlin's 'Leisure Hours among the Gems;' and a large octavo of Picturesque Sketches of notable statues and buildings, etc.

Other notable books in the Osgood autumn list are Dr. Leonard Wood's 'History of Andover Theological Seminary;' Stanwood's timely 'History of Presidential Elections;' Edmund Quincy's 'Stories and Sketches;' a noble three-volume-in-one illustrated edition of 'Favorite Authors;' E. C. Gardner's useful and practical 'Homes and all about them;' Henry James' delicately drawn 'A Little Tour in France;' T. S. Perry's 'From Opitz to Lessing;' James S. Bush's 'The Evidence of Faith;' Susan Anna Brown's quaint leaflets entitled 'In Bridget's Vacation;' Brander Matthew's illustrated edition (with notes and biography) of Sheridan's 'The Rivals' and 'The School for Scandal;' Porter's 'Free Trade and Protection To-day,' and W. D. Howells's admirable comic opera 'A Sea Change; or, Love's Stowaway,' the last named of this wonderful list, but perhaps its chief ornament and pride.

SPORTING NEWS.

The Brockville Mutual base ball club go to Kingston on Friday to play the St. Lawrence club.

Patrick Fitzgerald, the champion pedestrian of Long Island, and Charley Rowell, of England have been matched for a six-day goose-you-please race to take place in Madison Square garden early in March, 1885. The race will be open to all comers.

John Murphy makes the following challenges in the Sportsman: "I will match a horse (trotter) to go a race to the pole with running mate, usual conditions, against any horse on earth, harnessed, and to go in the same manner, for any amount so long as it is enough to be a consideration, and will give or take expenses, as the case may be, according to where the match may take place. Also, I will match two horses to run to the pole, usual conditions, against any two horses harnessed and going in the same manner, for any amount.

A prominent athlete, supplied the following respecting the fortunes or winnings of the athletes named:—Charles E. Courtney, $20,000 made in rowing; Edward Hanlan $50,000, same; Wallace, Ross, Rosmer, Plaisted and Teemer, each $5,000 to $10,000, same; John L. Sullivan, $150,000, in slugging; Billie Madden, $15,000, same; Joe Coburn, $20,000, same; John Morrissey and Jem Mace made several fortunes, which they lost in gambling; Weston made $80,000, pioneer pedestrian of the world; other pedestrians—Rowell, $60,000; Ennis and Fitzgerald, $1,500, each, Harding, $7,000; Harriman, $10,000! Duncan C. Ross cleared $30,000 in wrestling matches.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Sephers, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by B. Templeton.

AROUND ABOUT US.

The Picton fair opened to-day.

A youthful legal light of Kingston has already begun his canvass for an Aldermanship. The early bird, &c.

Mr. Albert Loucks, of the 5th concession of Thurlow, had 725 bushels of oats this year on the strip of land that was flooded during the season of 1883 by the lumbermen backing the water with the logs and preventing any grain growing.

On Monday the damaged grain of the schrs. King and H. P. Murray were sold at Portsmouth by auction. Capt. Gaskin bought the King's cargo, 1,840 bushels of wheat, at 12½c, including duty and charges. The Murray's cargo, 214 bushels of wheat, was purchased by Mr. Fisher, at 32c per bushel, free of encumbrances.

MERIT PROVEN.

RESPECT AGE.

Age should always command respect, in the case of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry certainly does, for 25 years that has been the standard remedy with the people, for Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colic and all Bowel Complaints.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

LATEST CITY NEWS

Five tramps and one drunk in the lock-up last night.

The East Hastings Agricultural Society held their fall fair at Roslin to-day.

The new hardwood floor in the roller skating rink will be ready for use on Thursday afternoon.

Constable Huff took Alexander McDonald back to Madoc yesterday, where he will be tried on a charge of horse stealing.

Miss Wright, who taught the mission school a few months last year, but who had to retire on account of ill health, has returned and taken charge of the school again.

At a meeting of the directors of the Mechanics Institute last night a committee was appointed to arrange a class in drawing for the winter months and secure an instructor.

The West Hastings show will begin tonight, when the display in the building will be complete. To-morrow the fair will be in full blast, and it is expected the attendance of visitors will be large.

A petition was circulated yesterday asking the mayor to call a public meeting to discuss the advisability of the citizens of Belleville taking part in the celebration of the Murray Canal on the 14th inst.

There was only one case set down for hearing at the county court yesterday before Judge Lazier; that of Wesley Bullen v. German, an action on account, which was settled between the parties. Porter & Wallbridge for plff.; Burdett & Payne for defendants.

At a meeting of the Rambler's Wheel Club last night the prepared fall meeting was abandoned, but instead the members decided to have a tournament next summer on a big scale. A statement of the finances of the club was submitted showing a handsome sum in the treasury.

At the police court this morning in the case of Bird Bros v. LaRoche for wages, the defendant was ordered to pay the amount claimed and costs. Wm. Thompson, of Thurlow, acknowledged the charge of assaulting George Henry Harrison in Huntingdon on 1st of October. The magistrate will give his decision on Friday.

Frederick Duesberry was arrested yesterday afternoon while drunk and disorderly, and Sergt. McCrudden found in his possession a silver watch which was stolen from Alex. Deblow about a year ago. Duesberry was fined $2 and costs on the first charge, but the case of larceny was continued until Friday. Deblow identified the watch as the one he lost.

The St Thomas Times says: The funeral of Mr. A. W. Challen, formerly of this city, took place from the residence of Mr. Jas. Cole, Centre street, father-in law of the deceased. The esteem in which Mr. Challen was held during his residence here was evidenced by the large funeral cortage which followed his mortal remains to the cemetery.

The Women's Christian Association had their annual meeting yesterday in the council chamber. Fifty-two new trustees were elected, the most of whom held office last year. The secretary, Miss Osborne, presented her report, referring to the work of the Association during the last year, which was received and adopted. The other officers will be elected next Tuesday afternoon.

Walter Fanning was charged at the police court this morning with trespassing on the driving track. Mr. Wm. Donnelly, superintendent of the park stated that Fanning used the track all summer without a ticket and that on one occasion he speeded his horse there when the course was not in proper condition for trotting. The defendant was not present and the case was continued until Monday.

An adjourned meeting of the legal and literary society was held last evening. The following nine members were elected: F. A. Redick, J. McG. Young, B.A., S. C. Warner, B.A., Geo. Thrasher, W. P. McMahon, C. D. Macaulay, G. S. Moran, R. E. Elliott, H. Johnson, R. Fenwick, A Cott, and H. C. Pierson. The next meeting will be held on Monday the 13th inst at eight o'clock, at the law office of Messrs. Wallbridge & Marskell, when the nomination of officers for the ensuing year will take place.

An interesting event occurred at St Thomas Church this morning, being the marriage of Miss Julia Henderson, eldest daughter of Mr. Geo. E. Henderson, Q.C., County attorney, to Mr. W. A. Meehan, a wealthy merchant of Perth. The bride was handsomely attired in a dress of brocaded ecru satin. Miss Henderson, sister of the bride acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Hart, of Perth, assisted the groom, Rev. J. W. Burke, officiating. The happy couple left on the noon train for New York and Boston, accompanied by the best wishes of a host of friends in the City of the Bay for their future success.

KILLING ALL BUT FOUR.

Cairo, Oct. 7.—It is reported that after the steamer on which Stewart and his men were stranded, three natives came on board and stated to Stewart that they were only a short distance from Meramee, which he could easily reach on foot. When out of sight of the steamer a number of men sprang from an ambush and murdered the party. Afterwards they attacked those remaining on the steamer, killing all but four.

A Card.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE LIGHTS O'LONDON.

The way was long and weary, but gallantly they strode,
A country lad and lassie, along the heavy road.
The night was dark and stormy, but blithe of heart were they,
For shining in the distance the lights of London lay.
O gleaming lamps of London,
That gem of th' city's crown
What fortunes lie within you,
O lights of London town.

With faces worn and weary, that told of sorrow's load,
One day a man and woman crept down a country road.
They sought their native village, heart broken from the fray.
Yet shining still behind them the lights of London lay.
O cruel lamps of London,
If tears your lights could drown,
Your victims' eyes would weep them,
O lights of London town.

THE LADY GAVE THE WORD.

Mount Carmel, Pa., Oct 7.—Yesterday Frank Budman, book keeper, went to the house of Rosa Andrioga, daughter of a coal operator, with whom he was in love, and fired an ineffectual shot at Count Armapuski, who was with her in the parlor The count got a revolver and ordered Miss Andrioga to count three. At the word three both men fired. Budman was shot on the shoulder.

A Field of Corns.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever. but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns"

FEED-GRINDERS AND CRUSHERS.

To a Province in which stall feeding is becoming more and more important, appliances for providing food for live stock are worthy of much attention. Several firms exhibited at the Industrial show grinders or crushers for feeding purposes, several of these grinders being well known and approved by long experience. The latest novelty in this line is an excellent grinder, well worthy of consideration. The machine, which is compact and occupies but a small space, has a feed, with long vibrator, &c., the same in principle as the grist mill grinders, and is manufactured by Patterson Bros., of Whitby. The peculiarity is the pair of grinding plates which are small dies of very hard iron and are admirably adapted to grinding all kinds of grain in various shades of fineness, even up to wheat and corn flour for family use. The grain feeds into the centre of the plates. The ridged surface of these is very peculiarly marked by radiating corrugations, heavier at the inside, so that the grain is broken roughly, then finely, before it passes across the inner circle which is only an inch and a half in width. It then passes into a half-inch disc with a reverse motion and shallower and more regular grooves, where it is ground to mealiness. By bringing the plates close together real flour may be made, and by setting them further apart ground stuff for live stock, of any degree of coarseness. The rate of feed and degree of fineness is regulated very simply and easily by means of screw wheels turned by hand. The mill is made in four sizes, said to represent an average capacity varying from 15 to 50 bushels per hour, and requiring from two horse power upwards. For farm or little mill this grinder promises to be very useful.—Globe.

LIKE LIGHTNING.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store. The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT,

The Clergy, the Medical faculty, the Press and the People all endorse Burdock Blood Bitters as the best system renovating blood purifying tonic known. Its work bears out their best recommend.

A Chicago paper says that during the convention the consumption of pie was enormous. We'd like to know when they got to calling whiskey by that name.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important discovery is that which brings that which brings the most good to the largest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this get a trial bottle Free, at B. Templeton's Drug store.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882.

Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,
J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swatow, China.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Back,' she said, 'you shall not touch

'How,' he ejaculated furiously, by what right do you interfere?'

By the right your promise gave me, 'she answered back. defiantly. 'That there should be no violence. Mr. Loring, I understand your power now. Yes, I comprehend everything, my dreams as hers, but the knowledge in me has created an amount of resistance you cannot overcome. I feel, henceforth, that, despite your arts, I do not fear you.'

And her dark eyes met his which he had fixed on her, with a mocking, taunting scorn.

He saw, nay he felt she spoke truly; that in such a contest he might even prove the weaker of the two.

He removed his gaze.

'You have heard all, he said, biting his lips. 'Has your mind respecting our plan altered?'

'No. Yet stay. 'she added quickly. 'Tell me, is it true,' and a tremor ran through her tone, 'that Mr. Belmore—'

'Is dead?' he interrupted. 'No,' he proceeded, promptly aware that part, if not the whole of his power over her, would be gone. did he reply in the affirmative.

'It was a falsehood you told her?'

'Yes to win her more readily. my rival gone, Tell me now,' he went on angrily, 'if it is your intention ever to come between her and myself?'

'I intercede to prevent violence, which would ruin you.'

'You have heard her; how then shall I make her mine. ?'

'By waiting, if you terrify her, she will die a prisoner. far from help; in time, if you are patient, she will out of very desperation out of the craving for liberty accede to that which she now rejects. Go therefore, and leave her to me.'

The American hesitated, but he saw the Creole was to be obeyed.

'One instant,' he remarked, 'you have discovered my power. Let me exercise it your sister is restless, and when she recovers will be ill, if it continue. Hear how she sighs, Let me give her rest.'

Approaching Pauline as she laid in the Creole's arms, he gently touched her temples her forehead and breast.

Sleep,' he murmured, 'sleep in peace. Dream of sunshine, of flowers. of happiness.'

As he spoke, Pauline's breathing became more regular and she slumbered as peacefully as a child.

Stuart Loring gazed upon her in mute admiration.

Then before the Creole could prevent him, he bent down, clasped the girl to him pressed his lips to her brow then turned and hastily quitted the caravan.

CHAPTER XLI.

BRIXHAM PROVES HIS SKILL.—EUSTACE LEARNS THE TRUTH.

Brixham's examinations of Ezra Grum showed him that he yet breathed.

But the trapper had little belief that he would do so for long.

He had fired when his, spirit was boiling with indignation against the cowardly assassin.

He had given himself no time for consideration.

Covering his man, he had fired and knowing that our hero's life depended upon his shot.

He had fired, and his bullet had gone truly home, for on turning the miserable man over, he perceived the wound was just above the region of the heart, and must have also pierced the lungs as the blood was flowing in a crimson stream from the half-parted lips.

Eustace of a finer feeling than his companion, shuddered as he looked.

'Is he dead,' he inquired in a low voice.

'No; but I suspect lad, it's not far off. Do recognize him?'

Our hero carefully scrutinized his features, and shook his head.

'I have not to my remembrance beheld him before.'

'Though I imagine you have felt him twice.' said the trapper grimly. 'Hush! stand aside; he is coming to,'

During the above brief colloquy Brixham had used the slight means he possessed to restore Grum. and now the latter's eyes gradually opened.

A broad ray of moonlight penetrating the trees fell upon the group; it rested chiefly on the wounded man, making his cadaverous face look ghastly in the steel blue light.

'What's it all about?' he muttered, faintly, his voice broken by gasps, as he feebly gazed around, 'Why is it so plaguey misty and dark?'

'Keep quiet: do not agitate yourself.'

'Who are you,' he ejaculated almost inaudibly. Ah, I know. It's coming back, was it you who shot me?'

'Well, I suspect it was. It was your life for his. The guilty for the innocent,' responded Brixham sternly.

'Then I missed him,' cried Grum. suddenly grasping the other's arm. 'No! no! do not say that. If you'll only tell me I've hit him, at last. that I've done for him, I can die content.'

The trapper repeated the sign for our hero to stand back and keep silent.

'What could the poor lad have done, he asked, 'that you should bear him such hate?'

'Done!' ejaculated Grum with an effort at fierceness. 'Done! Baulked me twice when I vowed he should not see another day. Tell me, I say is he dead?'

Tell me first the name of him who paid you for assassinating this young man? But I need not ask. It was Stuart Loring.'

Ezra Grum with a start bent his glazed eyes with their vague expression on the speaker.

'Who told you that? Did he discover it?'

'He did. He knows his enemy.

'Then you—yes, of course you are—you are the fellow who saved him the other day.'

'I am. and listen. I will do my best to save you, if you answer me truly. In which direction has your master carried the young ladies he abducted?'

Grum looked at his interlocutor, and an evil smile flickered over his ghastly features.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasthy giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

AN ASTONISHING STORY.

From Petland Revisited,

A dog belonging to the B—s, which was a great favorite of theirs and regarded as of thoroughly irreproachable training, was charged by some of their neighbors with worrying sheep at night. The family rebutted this charge on the ground that the dog was fastened into their kitchen at night, and was never let out until the servants came down in the morning.

The farmers, however, persisted that they knew the dog well, and had seen him going from the sheepfold, though he had managed to escape them. When this was urged so strongly as to make it imperative on the B—s to take some further steps, one of the daughters volunteered to sleep in the kitchen and watch the dog's behavior.

When they made up the young lady's bed, the dog seemed very restless and strange, but by-and by he settled down, and all was silent.

A little after midnight he got up, came to the bed, and sniffed about until he had satisfied himself that the lady was not awake. Then he leaped into the window seat, lifted the catch of the shutters, and opened them. Then he undid the latch of the window, which he opened, and then disappeared.

After a long interval he came back, closed and fastened the windows and shutters, and finished by licking his own feet, and the marks which he had left by springing on the floor. To the terror of the seeming sleeper, he now came and closely scrutinized her, but she kept still and at last he crept off to his own bed.

As soon as she heard the servants stirring the lady rose softly and slipped through the door. But the guilty dog had marked her. He sprang up and made a dash at her with most undisguised fury, for he saw that his secret was discovered and his character blasted by one who he now regarded as a hateful spy.

Fortunately, she got the door fast shut in time, and at once alarmed the house. But the dog was now so furious that no one dared go into the kitchen and at last a gun was brought pointed through an aperture, and he was shot dead.

A Field of Corns,—Thomas Sabim of Eglington, says:"I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns"

WRITING A REPORT.

It is not every hero who can write a readable report of his victory. Cæsar's famous announcement. 'I came, I saw, I conquered,' is as terse as it is expressive. But the Roman, as his 'Commentaries' show, could write clearly and forcibly. Commodore Perry paralleled Cæsar's comprehensive brevity, in his despatch announcing the victory of Lake Erie, written on the back of an old letter: 'We have met the enemy, and they are ours.'

Gen. Taylor, a good soldier, but a poor writer, was fortunate in having on his staff an officer who wielded a ready pen. Bliss's reports, it used to be said, made Taylor president.

Mr. S. C. Hall tells in his 'Retrospect of a Long Life.' two good stories which illustrate the trials of a brave soldier when called upon to report his deeds in writing.

At a public dinner, some years ago, Mr. Hall was seated next to and an aged naval officer, who made some remarks as to his neither eating or drinking.

On his telling the officer that he was appointed to make a speech during the evening, the latter said it reminded him of an admiral with whom he had sailed, and related the following anecdote:

'We had fought and taken a French ship. After the batttle, it was my duty as a matter of form, to report the result. I found the admiral evidently in a mode of great irritation pacing up and down his cabin—pens and papers scattered over the table.

'Sir,' I said, 'I have the pleasure to report to you that the ship——has struck and is our prize.'

'Receiving no answer, I repeated the words; still the admiral gave no heed. In a tone that no doubt indicated annoyance, I was beginning a third time when the old fellow struck in sharply:

'Yes, yes, I know; we've fought a battle and won it; but the worst of it's to come!'

'May I ask what is that?' I inquired.

'Yes,' he said, pointing to the scattered papers: 'there's that letter to the admiralty!'

Not long after, Mr. Hall was telling this story to another naval officer, who gave a pendent to it.

'I once sailed with a captain who was ordered on a three years' cruise. He received a state paper with a long string of instructions—do this, that, and the other.

'On his return, it was his duty to make his report. How so do it was another thing. He cut the matter short by taking the paper that contained his instructions, and adding to each item the single phrase: 'Done't,' 'Done't 'Done't.'

'He then signed the document and sent it in to the Lords of the Admiralty.'

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Seephers, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now round and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by R. Templeton.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

FRUITS OF PROTECTION.

La Minerve, a Montreal Tory paper published by a Tory member of Parliament, calls attention to the fact that French Canadians are returning from New England to Quebec in great numbers. "This return movement," it says, "is explained by the fact that manufacturing industry languishes at present in the Eastern States. It even more than languishes. The condition of the working class is discouraging. Lowell, for example, which is the most important centre of that region, the factories, almost without exception, have remained closed half the time since the middle of August. The city is filled with dismissed men, without employment. Sadder still, it is not believed that the factories will renew operations before the end of winter."

The manufacturers of New England have been protected by a heavy tariff for 23 years and yet we find such a deplorable state of affairs existing. This is only the natural result of the whole system. Those industries which have been protected, and galvanised into a sort of life by being thus pampered and petted cannot, and do not, possessed the rugged vitality which characterizes those which have been built up by hard and unremitting toil and the good judgment of their promoters. A heavy protective tariff may, and often undoubtedly does, stimulate to an unhealthy degree the manufactories of a country, but there is sure to be a reaction, and in proportion to the amount of bolstering such industries have received and the artificial life infused into them by their being protected at the expense of consumers will they become embarrassed and unable to bear the strain of adverse circumstances.

The stagnation of trade in New England is, perhaps, not wholly due to high protective duties, but protection has been the main factor in producing this result and even the most pronounced protectionist will not say it has in any measure averted it.

THE B. N. A. ACT.

When the British North America Act received the sanction of the Imperial Parliament and confederation was made an accomplished fact, it was thought that there would be little cause for conflict of authority between the several provinces and the federal power at Ottawa. That expectation has proved fallacious, and more especially so within the past few years. Of course, if a province meddled with matters which affected the whole Dominion and in which its action would affect the rest of the provinces, such as affairs relating to commercial interests the use of the veto power vested in the Dominion Government by the act would be perfectly proper.

But this veto power has not been confined to such questions. Many appeals have been made against it to the supreme tribunal of the empire, and the contention for provincial rights has always been upheld. This can only prove one thing and that is, that the Federal Government, either wilfully or otherwise, misinterpret the Act.

But while it is possible to prevent injustice to the Provinces by appeals to the Privy Council, the necessity of such appeals is a constant source of irritation and the sooner the Act is amended and made more explicit on certain points the better.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A CONTEMPORARY suggests the desirability of enquiring if there are not ranker forms of treason than that with which Mr. Ross is charged: say, engaging in a conspiracy to corrupt members of the Legislature and thus thwart the popular will?

IN LISTENING to the evidence given at the inquest last night nothing would strike one more forcibly than the difficulty of fixing the rate of a train by looking at it, or estimating the time it took to go a certain distance. One witness was positive it was going at the rate of 15 miles an hour and took 10 seconds to get out of his sight. Another agreed as to the rate and estimated that it took 20 seconds to pass him.

THE Mail facetiously remarks that in case Sir John is elevated to the peerage he will select Lord Tomorrow as his title. Well, nobody will grumble about it—a more expressive could hardly be chosen. In view of the position the House of Lords are beginning to take in the eyes of the world, and particularly in the British empire, it appears ungrateful on the part of the Tories to wish to stow away their leader in such a pile of useless lumber.

IN ITS REMARKS on the bribery commission the Mail asserts that Mr. Fraser was snuffed out and subdued by Mr. McCarthy from the beginning of his evidence. The burden of proof, however, is the other way, as the independent journals unite in saying. Mr. McCarthy is pretty well used to being "snuffed out." The Privy Council pronounced his arguments on the Boundary Award trial as "perfectly absurd," but the Mail forgot to notice it. Truly the Mail has too strong a regard for the truth to wear it out by frequent use.

DURING the early days of the N. P. the statement was constantly iterated that high prices made prosperity. Now many of our industries which were inflated to an unhealthy degree by the high tariff have succumbed to the pressure of adverse circumstances and over production, and while thousands have lost their employment, or been driven to accept less remunerative work, certain lines of manufactured goods are being sacrificed in order to tide over the hard times. Now the apostles of consistency point to the low prices of cottons and sugars as a proof that protection is a benefit.

A FIRE UNDERGROUND.

A Number of Men Imprisoned Under the Flames.

DETROIT, Oct. 8.—An underground fire broke out in celebrated Calumet and Hecla mines at Hancock, Mich., 800 feet below the surface on Saturday night, and is still raging. The mine contains millions of feet of timber, which support a hanging wall, and if the fire is not suppressed it will cause irreparable damage. The smoke arising from the flames is so dense and stifling that the fire cannot be reached. Endeavors to extinguish it are necessarily attended with extreme danger. Its origin is not known. When first discovered, John Rapson and Thomas Gobble were sent down to start the pumps at the eleventh level. As they did not return a rescuing party was sent to their relief. They saw Rapson, who had been suffocated by heat and smoke, but could not reach the body. Subsequently the rescuers were overpowered by the fumes arising from the burning timbers and they were dragged out insensible. Restoratives were applied in time to save their lives. A number of men are still in the lower levels, but as plenty of air can be got to them but little apprehension is felt as to their ultimate escape. The work is suspended at the mine all the shafts being closed and the most strenuous efforts are being put forth to subdue the flames.

A LIVELY TIME.

FREAKS OF TEXAN STEERS—SEVERAL PEOPLE SERIOUSLY INJURED.

JERSEY CITY, Oct. 7.—Two Texan steers escaped from the Central stock yards yesterday afternoon and ran widly through several streets. Two men were knocked down, but escaped without serious injury. One of the animals butted in the large plate glass window of a drug store, ruining a quantity of display bottles and medicines. A laborer attempting to stop the animals by waving his coat was tossed into the air and his chest torn open. Geo, Irie, a broker, was next knocked kown and trampled on. Mrs. P. Vantassel was also knocked down and probably fatally injured.

WEST HASTINGS FAIR.

The Entries Over a Thousand in Excess of Last Year.

SPLENDID WEATHER FOR LAST DAY.

The Exhibit of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine.

AN ATTRACTIVE INSIDE DISPLAY.

The fall exhibition of the West Hastings Agricultural Society opened last night at the Crystal Palace under favorable auspices. The attendance in the evening was not as large as usual, but the excellence of the display surpassed any previous exhibition, and was worthy of a visit from the throngs of people from city and country who patronized the fair to-day. The entries on the whole were nearly a thousand more than last year and the show in every respect better. This should be encouraging to the directors, who in time hope to have a fair in Belleville surpassed by none between Toronto and Montreal. That their efforts may be crowned with success will be the effort of every citizen.

WITHIN THE BUILDING.

The root and vegetable department on the ground floor was one of the most attractive in the building, for the reason that the samples exhibited were the best ever seen at any fair, and were grown in this section. Mr. Wm. Conners, of this city, showed cabbage the largest ever grown in the province, and the potatoes from the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb were beauties. A very large potatoe sent by Chief Justice Wallbridge, of Manitoba, weighed 2¾ lbs, and was grown, it was said, in the gaol yard there. The turnips exhibited by Mr. B. Mallory and John Graham, of Sidney, were creditable samples, while Messrs. F. Clingbell, Wm. Peck, Elias Wallbridge and Levi Murray showed a general collection of garden products which were first-class.

A FINE DISPLAY.

The show of sewing machines and musical instruments was perhaps better than one could see at the Provincial or Industrial exhibitions. The Williams' Manufacturing Company, of Montreal, made a grand display of sewing machines, which was in charge of Mr. O'Brien, their general agent. They had eight machines in all. A new thing in Canada was the cabinet machine, shown by the Williams' company, made of French burr walnut with veneered pannels, set with pearls, which was awarded a special diploma at the Kingston fair, and was a magnificent piece of workmanship. An ordinary sewing maching with an attachment costing but $10 extra for making button holes, was a novelty, and will surely come into favor with the ladies; also an attachment on another machine for winding bobbins, which was a unique device, and said to be the best in use. The New York Singer Manufacturing Company, Mr. Benson agent, had no less than twelve of their best machines in the north wing of the building, including several of the latest improved make with the oscillating shuttle, the latest thing out. All their make of machines are highly recommended. J. & E. Barrett made a first-class show of ten machines, both styles of the Raymond make, and the White sewing machine, including a knitting machine and a fine Doherty organ. But the grandest display was in musical instruments by Mr. J. S. Powley. His exhibit consisted of one square piano made by the Dominion organ and piano company, of Bowmanville, which carried of the prize at the Industrial exhibition; a Parlor Grand organ with a chime of bells, manufactured by Kilgour & Co., of Hamilton, which is the best thing out in this line; a beautiful church or parlor organ, worth $1,050 with seventeen reeds, in fact every appliance of a regular pipe organ, the gold medal at Montreal having been awarded to this instrument and a double bank parlor Grand organ, an instrument highly recommended by purchasers. Mr. Powley also showed eight gold and bronze medals won by this Bowmanville Company on their instruments. Such a display as this was worthy of the thanks of the association, and was admired by everyone.

AN ENTERPRISING FIRM.

Walmsley & Spafford in the second story of the building, displayed a quantity of teas, coffees and general groceries, and to give every person an opportunity of testing the quality of their goods, hot tea and coffee was served out gratuitously to the many who passed by. In this way they advertised their goods and showed themselves to be live business men. The warm drink in such chilly weather was a rare treat at a fair.

FINE ARTS AND FANCY GOODS.

Mr. Fred Richardson, the well-known artist made an extensive display of oil paintings and crayon drawings, which were admired by all visitors as specimens worthy only of a first class artist. One of his pupils, Harry Johnston, showed a very good specimen of crayon drawing. Mr. Ira Barton, of Demorestville, as a sample of home talent, distinguished himself by a display of several handsome oil paintings two of which comprised well known scenes on the Bay of Quinte. A small collection of crayon drawings from the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb was creditable to the skill of the unfortunate little ones who are receiving an education there.

In fancy goods Miss O'Carroll and Miss Earl, pupils of Mrs. Sparrow, made the best display. The former lady showed samples of point lace and silk embroidery work, and Miss Earl had several beautiful pieces of embroidery in crewels on exhibition, the two forming a leading feature of the department. Miss Mansy, of Sidney, and others were contributors in this line.

THE HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

The show of flowers, considering the lateness of the season, was a credit to the society, inasmuch as the Horticultural Society did not unite with the association in their show this fall. The principal exhibitors were A. S. Brown, M. Mathews, and the usual display from the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, all forming an interesting show.

ON THE GROUNDS.

This morning the fair grounds presented a busy scene, the arrival of exhibitors and visitors beginning early in the day and at noon the attendance was equal to any previous years. The number of articles on exhibition, however, far surpassed those of any previous year in the history of the society. The irrepressible mountebank held forth on the grounds and did some business. The principal attraction in the afternoon was centered in the horse ring, when some fine equine specimens were exhibited and the speeding of course aroused the interest of the large number of admirers of fancy stock present.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

In this class the number of entries were considerably larger than in 1883, several new articles being on the grounds. A. N. & G. B. Denyes exhibited a Makwell load on binder, a reaper with an angler steel bar, a horse rake, mower, a grain crusher, a steel scraper, a gang plough and a Climax thrashing machine. Patterson Bros., of Whitby, showed a reaper, mower, a sulky plough, three different kinds of grain mills, steel plough, field and garden ploughs, corn sheller, a steam cutter, iron harrows, horse rake, a gang plough and seeder. H. Ashley & Co, had a corn cracker on the grounds. G. & J. Brown made a creditable display, consisting of reaper, mower, two fanning mills, a grain crusher, gang plough, four single ploughs, a corn cracker, and a steam engine and boiler, which was in motion during the day driving a corn sheller and a cord binder. The Moron Manufacturing Co. had a single and combined side hay rake and corn cracker. J. W. Manns & Co., of Brockville, showed a broad cast seeder and harrow combined, and the champion horse rake. J. M. Walker & Co.'s display consisted of several different kinds of ploughs, four corn cultivators, several gang ploughs, straw cutter, power cutter, and an improved school house seat. The Cochrane Manufacturing Company showed a cord binder and Emerson & Lazier, of this city, a horse hay fork.

CATTLE AND SHEEP.

Remarkably good as was the exhibit of live stock last year, it was excelled both in numbers and merit by the exhibit of the present fair. By noon the stalls and pens were filled. Judging by the arrivals the quality of the cattle and sheep will surpass any former exhibit in this section. In Shorthorns, which, of course, are present in strongest force, the display is excellent, but the animals will be hard pressed in the general competition. Of fat stock the show has never been better and the largest exhibitors have turned out. Grade cattle are exhibited in considerable numbers, and their plump appearance and large size are certain to produce an impression different from that produced by the rather lean specimens last year. In Ayrshires the number of entries is fair. Sheep make a very fine display. In hogs the exhibit will do credit to the county as the largest and best at any county show.

THE POULTRY SHOW.

R. G. Martin, of Marysville, had twenty two coops of fine fowls on exhibition, the samples on the whole being better than last year. Wm. Donnelly of this city showed three coops of geese and turkeys, which were considerably admired, J. L. Clapp's exhibit as usual was second to none. He had about forty coops in all, of the choicest fowls bred in this country. The poultry on the whole was better than ever before.

MISCELLANEOUS EXHIBITS.

The show of horses was capital,

Mr. R. C. Hulame showed an attractive pen of lap-eared rabbits.

G. & J. Brown made a display of several stoves and lawn chairs.

Mr. S. G. Retallack had several of his ready made shirts on exhibition.

The Glasgow Warehouse was to the front with an extensive display of carpets.

Mr. Wm. Taylor acted as chief marshall in the ring. His services were indispensible.

The show of dairy products and grain was not large, but the samples made up for any deficiency in quantity.

Mr. John Conley, of Stirling, in sewing machines exhibited the Davis, Wanzer C and Royal A, all good machines.

An interesting feature of the exhibition was the grand display of minerals and rare objects from the Albert College museum.

Mr. N. McArthur showed several sets of the finest harness ever made in the province, also saddles, whips and horse blankets.

Messrs. James St. Charles, G. A. Brown, and Harford Ashley, of this city, exhibited several of their carriages and sleighs.

Mr. Fred Frost, in the building, showed five of his glass show cases silver mounted, equal in appearance to those made abroad.

The collection of apples, pears and grape was large and worth of notice, Mr. A. S. Brown had the best samples of grapes.

Ashley, Biggs & Co. showed several buggy bodies, which they manufacture for the country trade and on which they won first prize at the Industrial, also a bronze medal on buggy gears, and a diploma on body gear and wheels, and a diploma on tubular axles. This is certainly creditable to this new Belleville firm.

Faces as yellow as that of the "Heathen Chinee" in consequence of bile in blood, grow fair and wholesome looking again when Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and great blood purifier is used to relax constipated bowels and expel the bilious poison from the circulation, Rheumatic and blood impurities are also driven out by it. digestion restored, and the system benefited in every way by its use.

IT JUST SUITED HIM.

The landlord of a hotel entered, in an angry mood, the sleeping apartment of a boarder and said, 'Now, sir, I want you to pay your bill, and you must. I've asked you for it often enough, and I tell you now that you don't leave my house till you pay it.' 'A' richt,' said his lodger, who was certainly a Scotchman, 'jist pit that intae writin; mak' a regular agreement o't; an' I'll stay wi' ye as lang as I leeve!'

There are many perfumes which, when applied to the handkerchief, have a very agreeable odor for few moments and then die away, leaving only a sickly disagreeable smell. Not so with Murray & Lanman's Florida Water; the longer it is exposed the more delicate and delightful is its rich aroma.

CABLE BREVITIES.

Sm[illegible]x has broken out in the Black Wat[illegible]ent stationed at Assouan.

A c[illegible] at Catania, Sicily, uprooted trees and destroyed houses. Twenty persons killed and fifty wounded.

It is rumored that the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Earl Spencer, means to resign, but the Times says it is a canard.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.
That many with the glad consent praise new-born remedies; especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practiced in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitute. Her at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson H Co, props Kingston.

Nervous Debility [illegible]

MURDEROUSLY ASSAULTED.

BRANTFORD, Conn, Oct. 8.—Dr. Beuk was found lying in his dining room last night with several ghastly wounds in the head. He had been robbed of his watch and money. It is thought the assault was prompted by revenge. The doctor has lately been prosecuting disreputable persons. The wounds will probably be fatal.

A. W. CHALLEN'S DEATH

Evidence of Eyewitnesses at the Adjourned Coroner's Inquest.

THE ENGINE DRIVER'S STORY.

On Wednesday evening Oct. 1st, as Mr. A. W. Challen was returning to his duties in Mr. Ritchie's store, riding in Mr. R's delivery waggon, a ballast train struck the rig as it crossed the G.J.R., at the Hotel Street Crossing Mr. Challen's leg was badly shattered, and on Friday evening it was amputated, but the shock and the effects of the chloroform proved too much for his strength, and he died shortly after the operation.

A jury was empanneled by Dr. Farley, coroner, and viewed the remains, after which the inquest was postponed to Monday evening, 8th inst., in the Council Chamber.

THE INQUEST.

The inquest was resumed yesterday evening at 8 p.m. in the Council Chamber.

Mr. Clute appeared on behalf of Mr. Geo. Frederick, the engineer, Mr. John Bell, Q.C., on behalf of the Grand Trunk Company to see that a thorough investigation, while Mr. Anderson watched the case on behalf of Mrs. Challen.

Daniel McKay, sworn, said,—I was returning to the store from my tea on the night of October 1st. My wife was with me. Just as we got to the corner of the bank of Montreal we saw the train and my wife remarked it was running fast, and we waited for it to pass. The engine was then a little distance south of the west portion of Hotel St. Did not see the collision. Heard the crash and saw the rear end of Mr. Ritchie's delivery waggon in front of the engine. Should judge the train was going about 12 miles an hour. Could not say whether the horse was under control. Ran across after the train passed to see if the boy was hurt. Know the horse to be a quiet one. The train struck the rig about 25 or 30 feet from the bank. Could not say how far the train went before it stopped. The bell was ringing up to the time of the accident Did not know Mr. Challen was hurt at that time. It was not very dark. It was about 7.30 p.m. The train was opposite me in less than half a minute after I first saw it, Did not see the horse at all. The wagon crossed the track a little north of the regular crossing. If the train had been running at 4 miles an hour I would have run across in front of it. Am satisfied the train was going faster than six miles an hour.

Geo. Reid, sworn, said,—Was on the east steps of the post office when I heard the train opposite the market, and waited till it got past before I crossed over to the Dafoe House. Saw the headlight. I think the train was going fully 15 miles an hour when it passed the post office. Judge the rate by the speed I go on a bicycle. It was about half past seven on the evening of the accident. It was a middling long train. I could see the train for about 10 seconds after she passed me, it was too dark to distinguish it after that. She went up the grade fast. Cannot say if the train went faster or slower than usual.

Mrs. McKay—sworn, corroborated her husband's evidence. Also saw the horse at the moment of the collision. The horse got over the track and the engine caught the wagon. Saw Mr. Challen shortly after the accident, The wagon was lying just at the bend of the road. The horse was rearing up when I first saw it.

THE DRIVER'S EVIDENCE.

George Frederick, sworn, said—I was the driver on the ballast train in question, Remember what occurred on the night of Oct. 1st. When the engine was partly across the Hotel Street crossing, I saw a horse coming towards the track going west. He was going at a fretful gallop. Thought at the time the driver was trying to get across ahead of the engine. Did not shut off steam because there was not time before he had got by out of my sight and I thought had escaped. I was then running between 2 and 3 miles an hour. Shut off steam about two car lengths after the collision, when my fireman told me we had caught a carriage. There were five loaded cars and seven empty ones on the train. The wagon was past my side of the engine when it struck. I have often stuck on that grade. Started up the grade at about six miles an hour. My engine weighs about 100 tons; it is a good one. The horse was about twenty feet from the track when I first saw it and a little ahead of the engine. He seemed to clear the space at one bound. Most of the train was still on the grade when the fireman told me we had caught a carriage. Am now and was then in the employment of the Grand Trunk Railway. Have been six years railroading, four as a fireman and two as a driver. When we stopped we found Mr. Challen's leg was twisted around the left front axle of the wagon inside of the wheel. The wagon had been carried about 6 car lengths. Should judge the horse was going at about 8 or 10 miles an hour. The affair happed very quick. I was at my post, and thought the danger was over almost before I realized there was any danger. I reversed the engine and stopped as soon as my fireman told me. We often get stuck on that grade; usually pass the market at the rate of 6 or 7 miles an hour, Campbell street at 4 or 5, and at the top of the grade much slower. The left hind wheel caught on the dip stall in front of the engine, I could not have stopped in time to avert the disaster. Unloaded ballast from my train at about half past seven. Got my train together about 3 car lengths south of the Kingston road. It would be impossible, starting from where I did, to get up speed to 12 or 15 miles in going up the grade with the train I had. The wheels slipped several times in going up the grade. I could not have done anything to avert the collision. The bell was rung all the way up, and the whistle blown twice, the last time about Campbell street. I always whistle two or three times between the dock and the curve. I have no doubt the horse was running away at that time. When I helped to lift Mr. Challen up he said the miserable horse was uncontrollable and was running away. Mr. Hay. Mr Christie and others were present. When the horse and wagon got out of my sight I thought they had succeeded in getting clear. Did not know the horse was unmanageable till Mr. Challen told me. It was 8.20 p.m. When Mr. Challen was being carried down street about 5 minutes after the accident. Do not think the train was moved after I stopped it until after Mr Challen was carried off.

Dr. Gibson, sworn, said,—Did not see the accident. Was at the Bridge street crossing when the train passed. It was going very fast. It took about 20 seconds to pass where I stood. Others spoke of the speed of the train. Think it went about 15 miles an hour. It seemed to make a good deal of noise.

Mrs. Fred. Palmer, sworn, said,—Was standing at the corner of Hotel and Pinnacle streets when the collision took place—west of the track and north of Hotel street. My brother was with me. I did not see the horse or wagon till just as the collision took place. The boy fell out on the ground and the horse got away; was afraid he would run over us. Did not see Mr. Challen. Ran along by the track after the train. The boy told us Mr. Challen was with him. We were prevented going to where Mr. Challen was lying. The rear end of the train was past Hotel street when it stopped. Thought the train was going pretty fast, about like an ordinary horse trotting. The train was only partly past me when I started to run with it. It was about half past seven. There was quite a loud crash when the collision occurred, and the engine was making a good deal of noise. The whistle for brakes was not long after the crash, The accident occurred about opposite the north side of the eastern part of Hotel street, just over the culvert.

The inquest was adjourned until Monday evening next at 7 30, to take the balance of the evidence.

HORSE RECOVERED.

TRENTON, Sept. 9.—(Special.)—Chief of Police Hinde yesterday found Bellamy's horse, stolen in Cramahe Sunday night, near the town without any harness or buggy. The man passed over the bridge near Gordon's mills on Monday with the butter stolen from Ireland and McWicken's buggy at that time. He is about 25 years of age, is 5 feet 7 inches high, sandy moustache and chin whiskers, dressed in black coat, light pants and vest. This is the same fellow that has been doing a good deal of this work lately. The police here think he has gone in the direction of Foxboro, possibly on his way to Napanee or Kingston.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store. The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

A MOTHER'S PRESENCE OF MIND.

San Jose Herald.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. William Kennedy who lived on Fourth street, missed her four-year-old son Carl, and in a state of great anxiety made search for him. Upon approaching the dwelling of David Williams, she saw people pointing to her little son, who was hanging to a ladder on the windmill tank seventy or eighty feet from the ground. One little hand grasped the ladder and with the other he was reaching out for some pigeons that were sitting almost within his reach. The mother realized the awful peril of her little son, but with a heroism seldom seen she called to her child in a firm voice saying: "Come down Carl, and mama will give you a peach," The little fellow looked cautiously around over his shoulder. and, seeing his mother. started to descend, while the group stood with faces upturned, blanched with terror for fear he would lose his hold and be dashed to pieces; but he came safely down, and as he approached the last rounds of the ladder he said: 'I am coming, mamma,' and the overjoyed mother caught her child in her arms.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important discovery is that which brings that which brings the most good to the largest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will preserve the health and save Life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this get a trial bottle Free, at D. Templeton's Drug store.

"No" she said "there is no deception about me. When my first husband died I didn't take on like a sick eel'. It must be a calamity of some kind before I make any fuss."

A SAD NEGLECT.

Neglecting a constipated condition of the bowels is sure to bring ill health and great suffering. Burdock Blood Bitters regulate the bowels in a natural manner, purifying the blood and promote a healthy action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and Bowels.

Little Jack—"Lets play we're married." Little Nell—"No I wont. It ain't right." Little Jack—"Why ain't it?" Little Nell—"Cause mamma said we mustn't quarrel."

A common cold should not be neglected. Downs' Elixir will cure it.

A boarding house in Saratoga displays a sign: "This house will remain open until Blaine is elected."

Arnica & Oil Liniment is very healing and soothing, and does wonders when applied to old sores.

AN EX-ALDERMAN TRIED IT.

Ex-Alderman Tayler of Toronto, tried Yard's Yellow oil for Rheumatism. It him after all other remedies had failed.

Try Ayer's Pills and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the mischief to body and mind caused by habitual constipation. The regular use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills in mild doses will restore the torpid viscera to healthy action.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa. Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours, J. M. JOHNSON, Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. y 2m1&w

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence, These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions. both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so,

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

It seemed to say triumphantly—

'Ah, that's what you're after. I have you still, then!'

'Have a care,' broke in Brixham, sternly. 'Perhaps you stand on the brink of eternity!'

'I know it, I feel it,' remarked the other with a groan. 'But give me a chance if you are a man. There's a ranche close by take me to it, I can get help and nursing there.'

'I will directly you answer my question In which direction has Stuart Loring gone?'

Grum heitated, then half whispered—

'You won't split upon me to him, if I recover, eh?'

'I promise, if you tell me rightly,'

'Very well, he's gone along the road past the ranche for nearly a day's journey, then—then doubled back to New Orleans.'

'Humph!' said the trapper, dryly. 'Now do you think you can bear to be moved?'

'I'll try,' was the faint response, I'd die here.'

'Very well, we'll do our best, said Brixham, adding to Eustace—'Come and help me, lad.'

As he spoke, our hero stepping forward, stood in the full moonlight.

The eyes of Ezra Grum rested upon him.

A shriek—nay a yell escaped his lips; his hands were convulsed, contracting like claws; he suddenly dragged himself upon his knees.

Alive, alive,' he screamed, 'not even hurt Missed—missed a third time.'

As the words burst from him he abruptly thrust his hand into his vest.

But rapidly he drew it forth again to clutch madly at his throat from which issued a choking, gurgling sound.

The stream that for a brief instant had ceased to flow, at the same instant again sprang forth.

There was one violent, fearful, sickening effort for breath—for life, a stifled cry; and Ezra Grum sank back among the long grass, dead.

Neither our hero or Brixham could feel much sorrow at the event.

It would have been more than human sympathy to experience it for one who had thrice attempted murder.

Nay, four times, for when Brixham out of curiosity to learn why Ezra Grum had thrust his hand into his vest upon seeing Eustace, placed his own there and detected a revolver partly drawn from an inner pocket.

The sudden recurrance of the hemorrhage occasioned by the man's fiery, and vindicative hate, had stayed the sinner's fingers the hand of death had checked another attempt at crime.

'What are you going to do with the body?' asked Eustace, in a low tone we involuntary use while in the presence of the solemn visitor.

'Leave it here,' said the trapper.

'Here,' cried our hero, aghast,

'There's no help for it lad, however it may go against our conscience, 'You see, went on Brixhom, 'I was right about the ranche; he wanted to be taken there, where he said he'd be well nursed. Now, it would be streatching charity a bit too far, to run into danger for such a fellow as this.'

'You expect danger.

'Yes: it's evident the Mexican Ventana is aware of this man's presence—p'raps his also his purpose, and if he hasn't heard the shots which might bring him quickly in search, he will probably be on the lookout for him to-morrow, and will probably find the body, when he may send a messenger to Stuart Loring Now, in either way we must get the start of him, for he will no doubt also hear the news that you are safe and still on his track.'

'What then, do you propose?'

'To set out at once, give the ranche a wide berth, and get far on the road before our escape and this fellow's death is discovered.'

Eustace, however it went against his feelings, saw the advisability of such a movement and he turned to where the horses were tethered, when Brixham said—

'Stay. Let's see what he has in his pockets; we may find some clue.'

But the searcher was disappointed.

Stuart Loring was not the man to allow and Grum was not the one to carry any condemnatory proofs about his person.

So disposing of the stiffening limbs as decently as they could the two mounted their horses and cautiously rode away along the sparse trees that formed the outskirts of the forest.

Before they had gone many yords, the trapper stopping, cut a stout, straight bough of a tree some four feet long.

Our hero could not refrain from inquiring his purpose.

'After all, lad, I can't stand the thought of leaving a fellow creature, bad as is, lying there to make a repast for the ants or a jaguar,' replied Brixham: so if you've anything white about you, I'll just put up a finger post, as it were.

Eustace gave his handkerchief, which the trapper put into a slit he had made in the stick; then emerging from the trees, he stuck it in the ground in such a fashion as to attract the attention of those at the ranche when light came.

'That, lad is certain to bring somebody he said, 'and when they look for a cause, they'll find the body. It won't matter much, as before then we shall get a good start, while I strongly imagine we leave yourmost dangerous enemy behind.'

So the two cautiously rode off, leaving the forest to the dead, with its grey, still face and glazed eyes staring vacantly up at the branches, where the birds began already to twitter, for dawn was near.

They proceeded at a low pace until assured they could no longer be heard if any at the ranche should happen to be about, then striking back into the road they urged their refreshed horses to a greater speed wondering whether they had done right or wrong, and whether the touch of softer feeling for one so undeserving might bring mishap upon them.

Nothing of the kind, however, occurred.

It chanced that Ventana was absent from the ranche, and his old mother occupied within doors, did not observe the signal for two days.

The body was then discovered but quite unrecognisable.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"AN ELECTIVE SENATE."

The Liberal platform is growing firmer and steadier and broader with every year that buds and blooms, and bears its record upon the fresh pages of Canada's history. No fighting against incipient decay there. No childish clinging to obsolete principles that come down to us all rotten, musty, and worm eaten from the age of mailed knights and lumbering stage coaches. No helpless shrinkings of pharisaical patriotism, nor vile outpourings of wreckless, maudlin abuse. No: the hand of time that is withering and crippling the helpless mediæval fossils of Conservatism, is strengthening and vivifying the throbbing principals of modern Liberalism. The last plank that has been laid upon its broad surface is the oaken timber of "An Elective Senate." I say laid advisedly, as it has not yet been opportioned its proper place and firmly nailed to the framework of the party. The Liberals of Canada, and indeed of the entire British Empire, are very properly, "making haste slowly" in this matter. One by one the relics of barberism and antiquity have fallen, but not without a struggle. Around their jagged forms like ivy around a ruined wall, cling and coil the affections and sentiments of a certain class of people. And like ivy they lend a beauty to the unsightly reeking and lifeless mass that is apt to deceive the superficial observer. And so it behooves those who would rid the land of those useless and shapeless monstrosities to first tear from their surfaces the clinging ivies of romance and antiquity trained their by affectionate but mistaken hands, and show them in all their wriggling corruption and inane nonentity to a disgusted world.

Our Senate at its best is but an attempt to produce, upon this side of the Atlantic an imitation of the British House of Lords. Without discussing just now the success or non-success of this effort to apply the English Peerage let us us consider the question, do we want a non-elective upper house in Canada? Such an institution implies the domination of the law, the formation of an aristocracy which in Democratic America will display a vast amount of shoddyism and sham, and an irksome drag-chain upon the will of the people as expressed through their representative house. Our Senators will not possess that added intelligene which some weakly imagines springs from "blue blood" and a long generalogy. They must of necessity be chosen from the rank and file of the people and will thus be stripped of all the prestige, eclat and imagined superiority that clothes a British Peer. Neither will they be the most active and capable of our citizens, for so long as a man is in active health, as to mind and body, he will much prefer a seat in the more influential house of the people, where his power and influence will spread farthest and last longest, as witness the examples of Sir John Macdonald, Sir Hector Langevin and Edward Blake. It is very plain that (always viewing our Senate as 'it might have been' had it been handled honestly), no more will seek refuge in the senate chamber until age has dulled his mind, enfeebled his body, destroyed his usefulness and rendered him querulous, narrow-minded and conservative; and then into the hands of these seventy-six men, whose views are about as much disturbed by facts and logic as the granite hills are by summer zephyrs, and whose minds are yet wrestling with the questions of twenty years ago, is placed nearly as much power as is retained by all the rest of Canada's citizens.

What a ridiculous anomaly! Seventy-six grey-headed 'grannies' making laws for a free Canadian people in this land of ours where one man is as good as another. We want none of such renmants of feudal despotism or European fossilization.

Thus, we see, had the original idea of our Senate been faithfully carried out, it would have produced a body as senselessly despotic as Russia's Czar, as useless as a fifth wheel on a wagon, and as much respected as any other set of 'grannies' in a like position. But what has been the actual outcome of this scheme? A refuge for helpless Tory hacks, whom even straight Tory constituencies refused to return to the lower house a farce on legislation. A ridiculous buffoonery on government. A combination tool by which Sir John Macdonald can originate a wrong, reward a 'useful' follower, smother a bill or hastily pass one. But, Mr. Editor, I have already asked too much of your space for once, but, with your consent, we will continue the consideration of this giant wrong in another issue.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Seephers, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE CANAL DEMONSTRATION.

Though some failure to connect, we did not get the last copy of the T. V. Advocate, and are therefore indebted for a sight of its remarks on the coming demonstration to our city contemporary. We are glad to hear that the draft address is one that we could subscribe to without stretching our conscience. But we fear that that the address will be a very small part of the affair, and it will very much surprise us if an effort is not made to make the fact of Reformers taking part in the demonstration an occasion for representing that they really endorse the whole ministerial policy.

With regard to Reformers of Brighton taking part in the affair, there are reasons why such a thing is likely. It is a fact, patent to all, that an argument used there at the last election was that if Cochrane was elected the western terminus of the canal would be Presque Isle bay, and it did have a very great effect in that village and vicinity. It did not matter particularly to Trenton and Belleville which route was chosen, but to Brighton it was a matter of vital importance.

Reference is made to the invitation given to Conservatives to join in giving a welcome to Mr. Mowat. All true, but our contemporary will surely remember in what spirit that invitation was received by the Tory press. No insulting insinuation was spared, no means left untried, to ridicule the whole affair, and the spirit of rancorous partyism was rampant in the articles that then appeared. Let the Conservatives have their demonstration, for if they do not assert before they will after, that the whole affair showed that the people taking part in it endorsed the policy of Sir John's government. The demonstration should be strictly independent of politics, but that it will be so or that it will be reviewed as such by our conservative friends, is quite another question.

Our assertion that the names of Reformers were put on the Committees without their knowledge or consent still holds good. There may have been exceptions, and we believe there were.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THERE MAY be people foolish enough to believe that the $30,000,000 to the Syndicate was really a loan, as it is so so called, and three are undoubtedly others who, knowing better, try to prove that it is so. As to the prices of grain let the farmers judge from their own experience.

* * *

"ACTIONS speak louder than words," and Christopher W. Bunting's refusal to appear before the Commission to testify as to what he knew about Grit (?) Bribery bore stronger testimony than any words could have done to his knowledge of and complicity in the plot of the "Brawling Brood."

THE Toronto News heads a paragraph "Storm at Chicago," "Fourteen Laboring Men Blown into the Lake," and then proceeds to give an account of the legislative commitee's report on the trades and labor union in that city. Bro. Sheppard had better put the Scott Act in force in the News office.

WHEN Lord Lorne was Governor General he made a trip to British Columbia, and expressed the opinion that the presence of the Chinese was a necessity there. The people of the province express a very decided opinion the other way, and the question is which is most entitled to consideration ?

THE SPONSORS of the N. P. promised the farmers it would make high prices for grain. The Peterborough Examiner suggests that when the farmer "is approached and solicited to subscribe to the Sir John testimonial he can make the liberal offer of contributing the surplus in price which a hundred bushels of wheat will bring in 1884 over the amount it would bring before the N. P. came into force."

WE ARE extremely thankful for well-meant advice, kindly tendered. We would be still more thankful if our statements and arguments are disproved in a dispassionate manner. May we be allowed to say that in our freshness and and youthful inexperience we labor under the impression that people, as a general rule, pay little attention to charges of uttering "silly falsehoods" unless those charges can be and are sustained.

WE ARE told that it is a Grit lie to say the Murray Canal is 8 miles long ; that the engineers who surveyed the route say it is a little over 6 ; and that Mr. Page called it 4½ miles. What kind of a lie is Mr. Page's ? Or did the engineers stretch ? We think our contemporary had better take his tape-line along with him next Tuesday and measure the thing, and he will come to the conclusion that Mr. Page, if not the engineers, is very short-sighted.

* * *

THE Mail, not content with having the falsifier Vicars try to prove an absolute falsehood by retailing as true his story of Fraser and Hardy and the 'little scheme with Balfour,' comes into the arena of falsehood itself with the assertion that Mr. Hardy admitted that 'the government employed detectives who watched Balfour and others during the session to see that they did not go back on their party.' The very reverse was the case. No detective was employed except to arrest the criminals, and no such admission was made before the Commission.

IN THEIR desperate straits to make a a case against the government the Tory manipulators have done their little best to blacken the reputation for veracity of those by whom they were circumvented. Witnesses were brought from a distance of 25 miles, and out of the riding to prove Mr. McKim a man whose word was unworthy of credence, and when this failed they got several of the most bitter partizan Tories of his own township to swear away his character. If a concensus of opinion were taken of Mr. McKim's own neighborhood he would come out well in comparison with his traducers. This is written from a personal knowledge of all the parties.

WEST HASTINGS FAIR.

The Best Exhibition Ever Held by the Society.

LIST OF PRIZE WINNERS.

The West Hastings fair at the crystal palace grounds closed yesterday afternoon and was in every respect the best show ever held in Belleville. The additional entries and the splendid specimens shown in all the classes, furnishing something to interest visitors. It is safe to predict that if the Society can secure such a fair next year the number of visitors will be increased two fold. There are two things which it would be well for the directors to consider in the meantime—the appointment of judges especially on horses and stock who are competent to fulfil their duties impartially and honestly, men who know a good animal when they see it ; and secondly hold out some inducement to merchants and manufacturers to make a display in the building, which would not only ornament the place but would attract visitors.

The afternoon yesterday was a live one in the horse ring, the interest being kept up until five o'clock. The stock exhibited was first class, many horses being superior to the class of animals seen at the Industrial fair. The trotting was of course a drawing feature, Mr. A. Vermilyea showing the best colt.

The following is

POWDER MILL BLOWN UP.

Four Men Killed Outright and Several Injured

A TERRIBLE EXPLOSION

CUMMINSVILLE, Oct. 9.—The Hamilton powder mills were blown up to-day at 12:30. They were situated one mile from here. Four men were killed and two wounded. The names of those killed are Wm. Murray, who leaves a wife and seven small children ; Henry Tibbles, who leaves a wife and two small children ; George Matthews, who leaves a wife and five small children, and Wm. Hetherington, who is a single man. The names of the wounded are Albert Culp, badly burned about the face and legs ; Daniel Dougherty, badly burned and some limbs broken. The cause of explosion is unknown, and the damage cannot now be estimated, though it will be considerable. The sight is a sickening one, and it was with difficulty that some of the bodies were found, and when found were stripped naked, and a long distance off in bushes, with legs and arms broken and burned black, and could scarcely be recognized. Many of the men had miraculous escapes. This is the fourth time the mills have been blown up, but the first time loss of life has resulted. The excitement in town and surrounding country is intense. Spectators were present from long distances in an incredibly short time. Glass windows were broken more than a quarter of a mile distant.

What Toronto's well-known Good Samaritan says: "I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint for over 20 years and I have tried many remedies, but never found an article that has done me as much good as Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure."

Valentine Glitz, a gunmaker of New Haven after threatening to kill his wife, swallowed a quantity of sugar of lead. He then implored his wife to get assistance. She refused, and Glitz will probably die.

Faces as yellow as that of the "Heathen Chinee" in consequence of bile in blood, grow fair and wholesome looking again when Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and great blood purifier is used to relax constipated bowels and expel the bilious poison from the circulation. Rheumatic and blood impurities are also driven out by it, digestion restored, and the system benefitted in every way by its use.

A HEROIC RESCUE.

Last night about quarter past ten o'clock as Mr. James King of Hochelaga, was walking along the wharf at the Longueil ferry his foot slipped on the wet boards and he fell into the river. Mr. George Emery, who was passing at once threw off his coat, plunged into the water, and, at the risk of his life, succeeded in effecting a rescue. Mr. King is all right this morning, and is none the worse for his ducking, and says that his life-long thanks are due to Mr. Emery for saving him. Mr. Emery refused reward and would not give his address, but Mr. King thinks he should publicly thank him, and our readers will very likely think so to. It is a case for the Humane Society medal.

There are many perfumes which, when applied to the handkerchief, have a very agreeable odor for few moments and then die away, leaving only a sickly disagreeable smell, Not so with Murray & Lanman's Florida Water; the longer it is exposed the more delicate and delightful in its rich aroma.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

AMEN TO THAT.

It would be a great blessing to our country it all political bribers and corruptionists, no matter what their party or professions, were immured in prison until they repented of their crooked ways.—Bowmanville Sun.

AROUND ABOUT US.

The Deseronto Tribune is to be published on Saturday in the future.

The Mayor of Trenton has proclaimed Tuesday next a civic holiday.

The regular half yearly meeting of the North Hastings Teachers Institute is in session at Madoc.

The pier in the Cobourg harbor to be used as breakwater has been finished. It was ordered to be built by the government and cost $23,000.

One of the worst outrages which have occurred in Campbellford was committed by four young men just outside the corporation limits on Saturday morning last. Two of the gang of young roughs are securely lodged behind the prison bars. The Herald as usual suppresses the names, but it is said one of the boys is from Belleville.

A 'cycle' of robbery has visited Kingston vicinity lately, Mr. Hackett lost a set of harness, $400 worth of goods were carried out of Foster's woollen mills at Washburn, a Mr. Numdell, near Storrington, is minus his harness, David Rae mourns the departure of a number of sheep pelts, and Mr. McGellivray is short of $35 worth of yarn and wool—all taken on Tuesday night. The thieves made a clean sweep.

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, New York, says: "Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of piles of 9 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, 'besides two Buffalo Physicians,' without relief; but the Oil saved him; he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly." There being imitations on the market of Dr, Thomas' Eclectric Oil, customers will see that they get the genuine.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

Another large audience witnessed the presentation of the 'Lights o' London' at the Opera House last evening. This piece, like most plays that give satisfaction, advertises itself, and gains in popular favor the longer it remains. The incomparable scenery and the satisfactory acting are sufficient to commend it. No further assurance is required that it will have full houses during the entire week, which is something that few plays can achieve. This result is proof of the strong hold which scenic effect has upon the masses.—Cleveland Ohio.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

SPORTING NEWS.

The lacrosse match between the Shamrock and the Torontos is declared off.

William Edwards, the champion walker of Australia, is in New York trying to get up a six days heel-and-toe race.

A bet has been made that George Noremac could not walk 51 miles a day for one hundred successive days.

Jake Gaudaur has arranged a match which will not end in smoke. He has been married, and will hereafter row double as well as single scull races.

Thomas Moffatt has challenged Belcher, of Kingston, to race 220 yards, even offers to give him him five yards on a quarter of a mile, and eight yards start on a half mile.

Worms derange the whole system. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator deranges worms and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be convinced.

PERSONAL.

Mr. G. Tait Blackstock the defeated Tory candidate for Lennox is in the city.

Mr. James Bethune, Q. C., is registered at the Daley.

MERIT PROVEN.

Dollar upon dollar is spent on the faith of recommendation for articles entirely worthless. Not so with McGregor's Speedy Cure. You are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call at Jas. Clarke & Co's cor. Front and Bridge Streets and get a free trial bottle and if not convinced it will cure you of the worst cases of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, &c., no matter of how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50 cent and $1.00 bottles. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any competitor for public favor.

The Knights of Labor yesterday paid Mr. McAdoo $60 for injuries which his boy received at their picnic in Bleecker's grove on the 18th of August, by a platform falling.

At the police court this morning Frederick Duesberry was arrigned on a charge of stealing a watch about a year ago from Alexander Dobbow. The prosecutor swore that he got drunk in Duesberry's house at that time, but that the prisoner was not present. The case was continued until 5 p.m. to-morrow

Those who wish to preserve the beauty of the beautiful autumn leaves, should lay them between the leaves of an old book, and place a heavy weight upon them. The leaves require to be changed every three or four days. When thoroughly pressed, wipe them over with a soft cloth dipped in a mixture consisting of three ounces of spirits of turpentine, two ounces of boiled linseed oil, and half an ounce of white varnish. This is as fine a way to treat them as any method yet discovered.

Hiram Barnhardt was brought to the police station this morning bound hand and foot in charge of a load of Indians. He had assaulted Peter Johnston on the reserve yesterday and his brethren were bound to show fair play, so they arrested poor Lo and brought up to the lock-up. He was fined $5 and costs, in default 30 days in gaol. Wm. Thomson, of Thurlow, fined $3 and costs for assaulting Geo Henry Harrison. Peter Johns, assaulting Peter Bardy, $2 and costs. Moses Maracle, assaulting and beating Charlotte Maracle continued until to morrow.

Mr. Vale, agent for the Ragan Illuminated Tours, was in the city yesterday to make final arrangements for the three entertainments to be given on the 25th and 27th inst., in the opera house. Owing to an unfortunate accident to some of the views of the "Rhine and Switzerland, it has been found necessary to substitute on the evening of the 26th, a tour through "Wales, the Isle of Wight, and the South of England," which will afford both lecturer and optician ample scope for skilful treatment. "Spain and Morocco" will be the subjects for Saturday matinee, and "Rome the Eternal City." will be given with magnificent views on the evening of the 27th.

MEIGHEN — HENDERSON — At St. Thomas' Church on the 8th inst., by the Rev. J.W. Burke, Julia Teresa Henderson, eldest daughter of Geo. E. Henderson, Q. C., County Crown Attorney, and Clerk of the Peace, County of Hastings, to William Arthur Meighen, merchant, of Perth.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain an ennobling grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell

FLUID LIGHTNING.

There are but few that have never suffered an obstinate pain from Toothache, Neuralgia or like acute pains. To them such an instant relief as Fluid Lightning is an untold blessing in time of trouble. No disgusting offensive medicines to be taken for days. One application of Fluid Lightning Cures. Sold at Jas. Clarke & Co's cor. Bridge and Front Streets.

WHAT TO DO.

If troubled with an unhealthy, slow-healing sore use McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. You will find invaluable for healing, cleansing and completely removing your trouble. If the Blood is out of order, take with it a few doses of M G's own Speedy Cure from Jas. Clarke Co's Drug Store cor. Front and Bridge St.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

OUR WINNIPEG LETTER.

Sidney and Thurlow Farmers Doing Well in Greenfell.

From our own Correspondent.

GREENFELL, Oct. 8.—Perhaps were I to send a few items from this land of blizzards and hail storms, you would think better of consigning them to the waste basket when I tell you there is a regular nest of Sidney and Thurlow boys here, who welcome the ONTARIO as a letter from home. I wish to assure our friends in Hastings that we have escaped with our lives from the terrible hail storms we are supposed to have here, and can show samples of wheat, barley, oats and cereals of all kinds that would be very hard to beat even in dear old Sidney and Thurlow. When you step off the train at Greenfell, take a walk east along the C. P. R track for about three and a half miles you would find a rare nest of Birds, (not very black), go directly north half a mile and you will find nearly as many Faulkners, still north two and a half miles and you will find the prairie covered with Turner's, all doing well. Some of them will have nearly one thousand bushels of wheat besides oats, barley, flax, etc.

Sir Hector Langevin passed through this country at the rate of 15 miles per hour looking for grievances, but said he only found two unfortunates. As it is a threadbare song how wretchedly bad many of the settlers have been treated by the Dominion Government, one can judge how much truth there was in Sir Hector's remarks.

Harvesting is about over and the hum of the steam threshers is the sweetest of music to us. Wilmot Turner, who was so popular with the farmers of Sidney and Thurlow, goes out this year with a new steam thresher, straw burning engine, and expects to beat his past record by far.

E. W. Ashley, of Foxboro, spent a few weeks with us not long since, and was well pleased with our locations. Ducks and prairie chickens had to lay low when he appeared.

A. B. Faulkner left on the 29th of Sept. for Belleville to purchase more stock for his farm here.

Wheat is selling at 70c, oats 35c, and flax 90c.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

DEAR SIR.—In the petition to his Honor the Mayor in yesterday's ONTARIO calling a meeting of the citizens for to morrow night, I see my name among the number. How it came there I do not know, as I neither put it there myself or gave my consent to any other person to do so, and I generally wish to be consulted at least when my name is placed on any document, especially one like the one mentioned. By inserting this you will oblige,

Yours Respectfully,
S. W. BRADSHAW.

LIKE LIGHTNING.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store. The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

The most important discovery is that which brings that which brings the most good to the largest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this get a trial bottle Free, at R. Templeton's Drug store.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882.

Yours gratefully,
HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,
J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swaton, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. y 2md&w

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by such ... exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Aware how important was every moment of the time, Eustace and Brixham rode as fast as the strength of the animals they bestrode would allow.

They were more silent than usual.

Our hero's anxiety was more naturally increased from the perils he had run.

Brixham had thoughts of his own to occupy him.

They waited but to breathe their horses about half an hour during noon, then they were again in their saddle.

It was some while after that, that the trapper whose keen eyes were ever employed, descried a tiny blue speck down among the long grasses bordering the forest path they were traversing.

Alighting, he seized it.

'What is this?' he exclaimed holding it forth. 'Such things don't grow generally upon Mexican bushes.'

'That,' cried our hero his face radiant as he eagerly he extended his hand to possess himself of it. 'Thank Heaven we are on the right track. That ribbon belongs to Pauline—I mean Miss Pauline Beauchamp.'

'Humph,' said the trapper dryly, surrendering the article, and ascending to his saddle, pretending not to see how Eustace pressed it, dew-stained as it was, to his lips.

'Perhaps we shall find others,' cried our hero, much elevated much excited, and very buoyant.

His eyes sparkled.

His whole countenance beamed as if that ribbon had been the sun.

'P'raps,' rejoined Brixham, quietly, 'let us push on, lad.'

There was something in the latter's manner that damped Eustace's ardor.

He felt annoyed at the apparent lack of sympathy, but having found himself so often in the wrong, he refrained from making further comment.

That they did find further indications of Stuart Loring's party, the reader knows.

Each added, if possible to Eustace's elation, each was received in the same dry, reticent fashion by the trapper, who kept his eye more on the alert than ever.

'You seem to think nothing of these, Brixham,' remarked Eustace, rather irritably.

'P'raps not, lad; but wait,' was the other's reply, while he urged his horse forward.

'Another,' ejaculated our hero after a space.

'A halt,' said Brixham with a sudden animation, as he almost tumbled from the saddle to the ground.

Kneeling he examined the ground eagerly and carefully.

'Yes, yes,' he proceeded, unusually excited; 'there has been a halt I'm sure of it and what's more, the party have separated here. The marks are slight, but I am certain of it. Some have gone that way, some this.'

'Again a dilemma,' exclaimed our hero, despairingly; 'which went those we seek?'

The trapper arising pointed at once towards the forest.

'That,' he answered.

'Why,' asked Eustace amazed at the ready response.

'Because, lad, I'm sure of it.'

'But,' hesitated our hero, suppose that should be wrong?'

'It might be: but I don't think it is.'

Eustace paused.

Evidently he was unconvinced.

At last he said hurridly—

'Look here, Brixham, I know I promised you not to interfere, to follow you wherever you led, but I'm certain you cannot understand my anxiety, my terror at the possibility of going wrong; let me therefore, ride along this path for a while, and see if I can find any other of these articles which mark the miss Beauchamps' route. If I do not; then we may proceed along this in perfect safety.'

The trapper looked up into the flushed, eager face of the speaker, and smiled quietly.

'Go, lad,' he replied, 'the delay won't be much.'

'Heaven bless you for bearing with me so leniently.'

And like a flash Eustace Belmore started off.

'He'll find what he seeks, or I'm a Dutchman,' said Brixham, as he looked after him.

He was right.

For a little over half an hour Eustace reapppeared, triumphant waving a cambric handkerchief above his head.

'See,' he cried 'we should have been wrong. It is the road we must follow. Here is another clue.'

'A clue lad, which is as useless as all the rest.'

'Useless.'

Useless: for if we follow where they'd lead us, take my word we'd never overtake those whom we seek.'

'Good Heaven, what do you mean?'

'That these articles have been dropped to delude us; its a skilful trap.'

'A trap!' echoed our hero, aghast.

'No less. Use your own reason,' went on Brixham. 'When these things would have been of real service to you—that is; at the outset of the journey, for they'd have shown the right trail we found none of them. They only begin to appear after passing Stretton's ranche. Do you think the young lady being anxious for you to follow, would have waited all that time before giving an indication of the way she had taken? And do you fancy she'd have dropped them so repeatedly?' Why she must have provided herself with a whole bundle of feminine nick nacks.

Eustace Belmore was dumbfounded.

He knew not what to reply.

The trapper went on—

'I suspected the truth when I found the ribbon. I was sure of it when you found the others, I was certain when I found they laid in that direction. Ah, I knew that you would get 'clues' enough.'

'Where does that lead?' asked Eustace dispiritedly.

'To New Orleans.'

'Why, that was the route the wretched man declared that Stuart Loring had taken.'

'Consequently the very one he had not; do you put credence in what he stated? His lips lied, his evil features confessed it. His words told me what route not to take; and these ribbons, laces and gloves confirmed my suspicions. It is a plot, it's an enemy, not a friend, we have to thank for these.'

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

THE MOUNTED TROOPS.

SERMON BY THE REV. T. DEWITT TALMAGE, D.D., PREACHED IN THE BROOKLYN TABERNACLE, ON SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5, 1884.

The subject of the sermon was 'The Mounted Troops,' and the text was taken from Revelation xix, 14:—'And the armies which were in Heaven followed Him upon white horses.' We cannot in this age, said Dr. Talmage, understand the beauty and glory of the ancient horse. This animal comes to us through centuries of oppression and hard treatment, which have taken the gracefulness from his limbs and the flame from his eye and the arch of pomp from his neck. The finest horse that is now to be found prancing in the parks an ancient king would not have been seen riding. Of old the ox and the ass tilled the ground and carried the burdens; but the horse was used for coronations and triumphant processions, kings and chieftains sitting upon him. Job describes a war horse until I can almost hear the champing of his bit and the clatter of his hoofs among the fallen shields, 'Hast thou given the horse strength? Hast thou clothed his neck with thunder? The glory of his nostrils is terrible. He paweth in the valley and rejoiceth in his strength. He goeth forth to meet the armed men. He swalloweth the ground with fierceness and rage. He saith among the trumpets ha! ha, and he smelleth the battle afar off; the thunder of the captains and the shouting.' When my text in figure represents the armies of the glorified as riding upon white horses, it sets forth the strength the fleetness of victory, and the innocence of the redeemed. The horse has always been an emblem of strength. Therefore, when the redeemed are represented as riding on white horse, their strength is set forth. The days of their invalidism and decrepitude are passed, Never shall they be sick again or tired again. Oh, the day when, having put off the last physical impediment, you shall come to the mightiness of heavenly vigor. There will be hardly anything you cannot lift or crush or conquer. The horse is also the emblem of fleetness. The wild horses on the plain, at the appearance of the hunter make the miles slip under them as with a snort they bound away, and the dust rises in whirlwinds from their flying feet, until far away they halt, with their faces to their pursuer, and neigh in gladness at their escape. More swift than they shall be the redeemed in heaven. Oh, the exhilaration of feeling that you can take worlds at a bound, vast distances instantly overcome—no difference between here and there! Heaven is said to be the centre of the universe. If so, how swift must a messenger-spirit fly in order to reach us in any crisis of peril! Light flies 195,000 miles a second and yet there are worlds that have been created for ages whose lights has just reached us. If light, flying 195,000 miles a second, has taken ages to come from worlds this side of heaven, how swift must a messenger-spirit fly from heaven in order to administer unto us? The horse in the text is also a symbol of victory. He was not used on ordinary occasions, but the conquer mounted him and rode on among the acclamations of the rejoicing multitudes. So all the redeemed of heaven are victors. Yea, they are more than conquerers through Him that hath loved them. My text places us on the many avenues of the celestial city. The soldiers of God have come up from earthly battles and are on the parade. We shall not have time to see all the great hosts of the redeemed, but John, in my text, points out a few of the battalions: 'And the armies which are in heaven followed him upon white horses.' The Roman victor, having slain at least five thousand men in battle, rode in the ancient city with a robe gold-embroidered; in one hand a laurel, in the other a ceptre; the captives going before, the army coming after; the whole population in holiday dress cheering all along the line. But in my text, the commander rides with the sword of universal triumph and on his head are many crowns. All the city turn out to meet him. The conquerer of earth and heaven and hell. Strew flowers along the shiny way! Wave all the banners of light. Ring all the bells of heaven! Hosanna! Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!' Now come on the battalions of the saved. Here passes the regiment of the Christian martys. They endured all things for Christ. Thay were hounded, they were sawn asunder, they were hurled out of life. Here comes the 18,009 Scotch Covenanters who perished in one persecution. Escaped from the clutches of Claverhouse and bloody McKenzie and the horrors of the Grass Market they ride in the great batalion of Scotch martyrs. Hugh McKail and James Renwick and John Knox and others whose words are a battle shout for church militant—men of high cheek bones and strong arms and consecrated spirits. Greyfriars churchyard took some of their bodies but heaven took all their souls. They went on weary feet through the glens of Scotland in times of persecution and crawled up the crags on their hands and knees, but now they follow the Christ for whom they fought and bled, on white horses of triumph. Ride on ye conquerors! Victors of Dunottar castle and Bass Rock and Ruther Glen! Ride on! Here comes the regiment of English martyrs. Queen Mary against King Jesus made an uneven fight, the 20,000 chariots of God coming down the steep of heaven will ride over any foe. Queen Mary thought that by sword and pike she had driven Protestants down, but she only drove them up. Here they pass: Bishop Hooper and Rogers, prebendary of St. Pau's, and Archbishop Cranmer, who got his courage back in time to save his soul and Anne Askew, who at 25 years of age, rather than forsake her God submitted first to the rack without a groan, and then went with bones so dislocated she must be carried on a chair to the stake, her last words rising through flames being a prayer for her murderers. O, cavalcade of men and women whom God snatched up from the iron fingers of torture into eternal life! Ride on thou glorious regiment of English martyrs! Look at this advancing host of a hundred thousand, Who are they? Look upon the flag and upon their uniform and tell us. They are the men who fell on St. Bartholomew's day in Paris in Lyons, in Orleans, in Bordeaux, while the King looked out of the window and cried 'Kill! kill!' Their gashed and bespattered bodies were thrown into the Seine, but their souls went up out of a nation's shriek into the light of God; and now they pass along the boulevards of Heaven.

"Soldier of God, well done!
Rest by thy loved one lay
And while eternal ages run,
Rest in thy Master's love."

Ride on ye mounted troops of St. Bartholomew's day! Here comes up another host of the redeemed, the regiment of Christian philanthropists. They went down into the battle fields to take care of the wounded; they plunged into the damp and mouldy prisons and pleaded before God and human governors in behalf of the incarcerated; they preached Christ among the besotted populations of the city; they carried Bibles and bread into the garrets of pain; but in the sweet river of death they washed off the loathsomeness of those to whom they had administered. Now they pass through the streets of Heaven in glorious review. There is John Howard, who circumnavigated the globe in the name of Him who said, 'I was sick and ye visited Me.' What to him were the thanks of the House of Commons or the recognition of all the governments of earth compared with the joy of this day in which he rides on, followed by multitudes of those whom he found in dungeons of darkness and lazarettoes of pain? Here go the Moravian missionaries who were told that they could not go on a Christian errand to a hospital where the plague was raging unless they would consent to go in and never come out yet deliberately making all arrangements and going in to take care of the sick, and then lying down beside the dying, themselves to die. Here goes Eliot, who once toiled for Christ among savages, travelling on foot through the wilds, saying, 'My feet are always wet, but I pull off my boots and wring my stockings, and put them on again and go forward trying to 'endure hardship as a good soldier of Jesus Christ,' defying the savages who bade him stop preaching or die, saying to them, 'I am about the work of the great God. Touch me if you dare!' Here comes a great column of the Christian poor. They always walked on earth. The only ride they ever had was in the hearse that took them to the Potter's field. They went day by day, poorly clad and meanly fed, and insufficiently sheltered. They were jostled out of houses whose rent they could not pay and out of churches where their presence was an offence. Considering the insignificant way many of them went out of the world, the poor doctoring and the coarse shroud and the haste of the obsequies, you might have expected for them a tame reception on the other side; but a shining retinue was waiting beyond the river for their departed spirits; and as they passed a celestial escort confronted them and snow white chargers of heaven were brought in and the conquerers mounted; and here they pass in the throng of the victors—poor house exchanged for palace, rags for imperial attire, weary walking for seats on the white horses from the King's stables. Ride on, ye victors. Another retinue? That of the Christian invalids. These who pass now, languished for many a year on their couches. From the firmness and the strength and the exhiliration with which they ride you would not have supposed that they had been bent double with ailments and had crouched with pains irremediable and writhed in sufferings that were ghastly to behold. But after 20 years of useless prescription and all surgery had failed, in one moment they recovered. I heard Thomas Stockton in the midst of his sermon about the good land stop and cough for two or three minutes, untill it seemed as if he would never get his breath and then go on again but, recovering his strength he put his hand upon his lungs and said: 'Thank God there is no coughing in heaven.' I had a friend who preached the Gospel in the West, He was seized with a disease which must prove fatal unless he submitted to a surgical operation. The prospect was that he would die in the hands of the surgeon but their was a faint hope of recovery and so he felt it his duty to submit. One morning he stood in his pulpit supporting himself by a chair and said to his congregation: 'My dear people, to-morrow morning I start for New York to submit to a surgical operation which will probably take my life, but there is a faint hope that it may restore me; and that faint hope leads me to go, but it is probable I shall never see you again. I shall now proceed to preach to you my farewell sermon.' And then with a face all illuminated with joy and triumph he said: 'You will find my text in chapter 4 of second Timothy, verses 6 and 7. 'I am now ready to be offered up, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought the good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous judge, shall give me in that day.'' The next Thursday morning he was well; he was all well, In tnat land they never say 'I am sick.' Ride on ye great hosts of recovered invalids in the triumphal procession of heaven! Henry VIII brought Anne Boleyn to his palace. The river Thames was the scene of her triumphal entry. Officials dressed in scarlet. Choirs chanting along the banks of the river. Flags adorned with bells that rang as the breeze stirred them. Anne Boleyn in cloth of gold and wearing a circlet of precious stones stepped into the barge amid the sound of trumpets and the shout of a kingdom. Then entering the street on a richly caparisoned palfry that sometimes walked on cloth of gold and velvet, led between houses adorned with scarlet and crimson and defended by guards in coats of beaten gold and along by fountains that were made on that day to pour out Rhenish wine for the people, until she at last, kneeling in Westminster Abbey, took the crown. But alas for the career of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn! The lived in worldliness and their splendid career went out in darkness. Not so with those whom our King shall call to the honors of heaven. Along the river of death their barge shall glide amidst the shadows until it comes to the light of the city; and then on streets of gold and amidst palaces of gold, and greeted by harps of gold, they shall join the armies of the King, following on white horses. It has been to me the most anxious question of this hour? Will you and I join that great procession? Not unless on earth we belonged to the Lord's army and followed after the King. You must know that the cavalry of Heaven that you see passing fought with the cavalry of Hell; and that the arch demon has had his victories, and that those whom he conquered he carries away in chains, to be preserved in darkness until the great day. Which side are you on? Those who do not follow Christ on earth shall not triumph with him in Heaven. If you are on the wrong side you had better cross over. If you belong to the black cavalry instead of the white cavalry you had better head the other way. Plunge the spurs into the flanks and dash up under the standard of the cross? I suppose of course that what the text says about the white horses of heaven is figuratively, and yet I know not but in some sense it may be literal. It had seemed to me inscrutable that horses should be maltreated and whipped and killed by the cruelty of their owners and have no other state of being by way of compensation, my little child of six years of age was over heard telling her brother of four years that there would be a heaven for the birds and another heaven for the horses, I had not the courage to correct her defective theology. If I wake up at last in Heaven and find real white horses for the redeemed to ride upon I shall not be sorry; but for the present I must take my text figuratively and learn from it the fleetness and the victory and the strength of the redeemed. Rejoice O ye righteous in the glorious prospect! When the last war was ended and the returning army passed in review at Washington, among the most impressive sights were the horses on which the generals rode. But those horses had not been in battle. They had been picked up at the close of the war; they had carried no burdens; they had seen no hardships, but came prancing along the line with arched necks and bounding limb and princely trapping and flying feet and beaming eye. As they bounded to the roll of the drum and the trumpet blast, their drivers bowed on either side to the almost interminable huzzah. Oh when Christ, our King, shall return to Heaven with all the armies of the saved nations and kingdoms and ages in the line, may you and I, through the infinite mercy of the King, be among those who shall follow Him in the great cavalry troop of the redeemed! That will be the grand review of Heaven.

HOW OTHERS LOOK AT IT.

The various committees to take the quartette in charge are salted with reformers. There is a vast amount of magnanimity and child-like faith in some Reformers. The vital principles and traditions of the party on the minds of men naturally amiable strongly induces them to accept overtures from the enemy and smoke the pipe of peace. We have no objections to this—it is sweet and pretty. That demonstrations over public works should be non-partizan is obvious; but does anyone, including our high-minded reform delegates, really expect this one to be? Under ordinary circumstances it would be singular if it were, doubly so now with few straws left on the sea of politics for the gasping Conservatives to clutch at. A great many possible things are so improbable they practically amount to impossibilities. If this demonstration is non-political it will be the most remarkable occasion in the history of Tory government.

* * * * * * * *

There is one very gratifying fact, however, in connection with this proposed "lion and lamb" meeting: though the Tory speakers throw aside all restraint and stand the canal on end for all the world to see as an evidence of Tory wisdom and generosity, Reformers may just now grant them entire possession of their expensive little toy and stand back and smile with perfect complacency. Perhaps this confident feeling, together with natural human pity for the vanquished and willingness to grant them some little shred of comfort, is at the bottom of the ready acceptance by Reformers of the invitation to join in. Such are our reasons for attending.—Northumberland Enterprise.

DON'T TASTE NICE.

The Winnipeg Times (Tory) thus grumbles:—

> The fact is, we are beginning to discover that taxes in a northwest city mean money, the same as in other places.

What disloyalty! Man alive! don't you know that the only true and righteous way for a nation or a people to grow rich and increase in wealth is to pay taxes, more taxes, and taxation forever. What is the sense of a good Tory howling at the taste of the party medicine. Over with it! Swallow it down, and don't make such a face about it!

EDITORIAL NOTES.

TORY papers are still whacking away to prove that though Ontario has got the disputed territory she has no claim to the timber, minerals, ect.,—as per Sir John's Yorkville speech. They say Sir John's government bought this land from the Indians. Pray, what right had he to do so? The decision of the Privy Council shows that Ontario's title is derived from the crown, and has been vested in the provincial government and legislature ever since Confederation. If "the Indians never gave any deed to Ontario" it is simply because they had no right to do so in law. Ontario has obtained no new land but has been confirmed in the possession of her own.

WE WONDER that Sir John could have been so "disloyal and unpatriotic" as to acknowledge to a New York reporter that "The manufacture of cotton goods has been slightly overdone," but he is certainly incorrect in adding, "that is the only exception" to the general prosperity. If not why have such things occurred as the suspension of the Dominion Bolt Works, and the discharge of crowds of workmen from different car works in the country? The assertion, or rather implication, that our young men do not leave us in great numbers is not true as a little research and enquiry will soon satisfy anyone. Thousands of our young men have left for the States during the past few years, and the peculiar policy of the governmernt, instead of being a deterrent to this exodus, has, in many instances, been the cause of it. We are sorry that our country is not so prosperous as our jaunty premier makes it out to be in his roseate description, and more than that, it is beyond the power of his present policy to make it so, as experience has demonstrated.

OUR CHICAGO LETTER.

Good Wishes, Visits of Canadians, Odd Advertisements, Swindlers, Clairvoyants, &c.

BELLEVILLE NEWS WELCOMED.

CHICAGO, Saturday eve.,
October 4th.

EDITOR ONTARIO,—Allow me, as an old friend and subscriber, to congratulate you and the editorial chair on your entree. I hope the ONTARIO will not only keep up its reputation but materially add to it under your leadership as the champion of woman's rights. We were so delighted at the long and interesting account of the laying of the corner stone of the new Hospital and Home for the Friendless that appeared in the ONTARIO, It was a capital idea to get the children interested. The Woman's Christian Association is the one thing Belleville should be most proud of to-day. I am not a member now, but the memory of pleasant walks out the Canifton road to administer words of cheer to the unfortunates, such as 'Yes, I'll send you a load of blocks,' or 'I'll leave an order at McGinnis' grocery for you' will not soon be forgotten.

Was delighted to see the sudden boom in the matrimonial market. Now girls you must strike soon, only three months leap year will be gone.

"Away sad doubt and anxious care,
None after this should e'er despair,
For every fellow wants a pair,
An act as Steward for some fair."

You don't know how sorry I am that the metre would not allow me to tack on one or damsel, at the end of those beautiful lines by an old maid.

Mr. Charles Wallis, who has been spending the last nine months in Minneapolis passed through the city this week on his return home.

Dr. McLellan, one of Trenton's soundest Grits arrived here last night per G.T.R., and for a week will enjoy the festivities of the city.

Chicago is one of the leading cities of the world in the newspaper line. I was told over two thousand regular papers and magazines were published here.

It is very amusing to us Canadians to read the advertisements and announcements as appear in the daily papers. Here are a few samples from yesterday's, except the last:—

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

The County Clerk yesterday issued marriage licenses to the following named persons:

No.	Name.	Age.	Residence.
85,838	John M. McFarlane	32	Evanston.
	Sophie Berg	25	Same.
85,839	Patrick Mullany	22	Chicago.
	Kate McGraw	20	Same.

BIRTHS.

DIVORCES.

The following bill for divorce was filed yesterday:
[illegible]—Elizabeth against John, for cruelty.
The following decrees were entered:
Trataux—Mina from Leo, for desertion.
Labonte—Cordelia S. from Michel S., for drunkenness.
Krafta—Katerina from Anton, for felony.

DEATHS.

SPIRITUALISTS, CLAIRVOYANTS, ETC.

AT LAST WE HAVE FOUND THE ONLY RELIable oracle in the city. Would you know the future? We recommend all to consult Mrs. Franks, astrologer, on love, marriage, divorce, lawsuits, removals, and speculations of all kinds; can advise all in trouble of body, mind and estate; causes the single to marry, and the married to be contented; ladies special attention; charms all talismans; brings the separated together, removes evil influence, jealousy; gives to all nervous and depressed a better condition; locates diseases and cures at once; electric, magnetic, and other remedies; is also a palmist; advertises nothing but what she can do, and succeeds where all others fail; by mail $1; lock of hair, date of birth. MRS. FRANKS, 14 Laflin-st.

THE WORLD'S WONDER HAS JUST RETURNED from Egypt. The famous Egyptian fortune-teller can tell your name, age, date of birth; will inform how to get rich; the only one who knows the Egyptian secret; brings the separated together causes single to marry, married to be happy; reveals evil influence, locates disease of all kinds; cures fits, intemperance, and troubles, financial or otherwise, Call and see the terrible Egyptian. 118 W. Randolph.

MME. JOY—THE FAMOUS FORTUNE-TELLER, clairvoyant, magnetic healer; reveals secrets in love, marriage, business, diseases; helps all in trouble, brings the separated together, causes speedy marriages, tells you how to gain riches, etc.; consult Mme. Joy; she will bring you luck; advice to ladies; magnetic and electric treatment. 445 W. Madison-st., cor Throop, third floor; 50 cents and $1.

PERSONAL.

PERSONAL — LIZZIE: HAVE TICKETS FOR Keene Saturday; come early. MARY ULM.

WANTED.

WANTED—FOR A FEW WEEKS, A BIG NIGGER who would as lief fight as eat. Address, E. 66, Daily News.

WANTED—SITUATION AS A COACHMAN BY A young man, (American), salary not so much an object as to get in society. Address with references, 124 Randolph-st., room 44.

If any of your readers would enjoy being swindled, write to any of the spiritualists above. They were thoroughly exposed in the Tribune a week ago.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure, with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns"

THE WAY OF THE WORLD,

That many with the glad consent praise newborn remedies; especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practiced in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitutes lies at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson H Co, props Kingston.

RESPECT AGE,

Age should always command respect, in the case of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry certainly does, for 25 years that has been the standard remedy with the people, for Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Colic and Bowell Complaints.

Allen's Lung Balsam is the standard cure for Coughs and Colds in the states. See adv.

PATIENCE AND PERSISTENCE.

WEDDED AFTER PATIENT WAITING TO THE MAN OF HER CHOICE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—Another of those romantic nuptials took place here late yesterday afternoon, suprising all but the immediate friends of the families. Miss Jessie Victoria Buntin, third daughter of the millionaire paper manufacturer, Mr. Alex. Buntin, voluntarily became engaged four years ago to Dr. A. Lapthorn Smith, a member of a most respectable family which has distinguished itself in the service of the Dominion, from one of the Maritime Provinces, and who commenced practice three or four years since in this city, after holding the position of resident medical superintendent of the general hospital. It appears the young couple were disposed to join hands at a much earlier period, but the parents of the young lady positively refused to even listen to the proposition. If patience be a virtue the devoted pair are entitled to credit, for they have waited long and anxiously for natal day of the fair young bride to come when she could exercise her legal right of deciding for herself. When the mother saw that her daughter was resolved to follow her own heart's desire, she relented, and though her persuasion got the obstinate father to finally but reluctantly gave his consent. The climax was reached by a private wedding this afternoon, at which the family pastor, Rev. Jas. Barclay, M. A. assisted by the Rev. J. Elgar Hill, B.D. the bridegroom's pastor, officiated and made the two yearning hearts as one. The remaining unmarried sister, Miss Caconna Buntin, was the only bridesmaid present, and Mr. Nolan Delisle acted as the husband's best man. The bride who is petite in statnre but exceeding attractive in appearance, was elegantly and tastefully dressed in a grey ottoman silk, with trimmings and every ornament to match was given away by her father.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Seephers, of Harrisburg, Ill,, says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well.'

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by R. Templeton.

LYNCHING A FAMILY.

A HORRIBLE MURDER AVENGED BY MOB LAW IN INDIANA.

TROY, Ind., Oct 10,—The husband and two sons of Mrs. Hendershot, who body was found Wednesday in a cistern and the decapitated head hidden in the bushes, were arrested to-day. Great excitement prevails. This evening the mob took the eldest son out of jail and hung him to a beam in the barn, where the crime was committed He made a confession that his father shot his mother and that he cut her head off with an axe. At 10 o'clock the mob started for Cannelton, three miles above to hang the father and the other son, who are in jail there. The mob is 200 strong.

An American named Peter O'Brien was hurt while unloading the steamer Wilcox at Garden Island on Thursday. The American consul sent him to the Hotel Dieu for treatment.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

A PLUCKY GIRL.

Parents Who Tried to Barter Their Daughter for a Farm.

WEDDING GARMENTS TORN.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Oct 8.—A wealthy middle aged widower named Dominick Mines owns a farm on the border of Wayne and Luzerne counties, Pennsylvania. It is occupied by a farmer named Obert, and Mines boarded there with his family. Obert's daughter Lena is a pretty girl of eighteen years. Both Elbert and his wife are noted for being extremely close fisted. and for an almost insane desire to be rich. A month or so ago Mines offered to make a deed of a farm near the one on which he lived if Obert would give him his daughter in marriage. Although the daughter was ignorant of the fact that the widower Mines desired to marry her, her parents eagerly accepted his offer. They said nothing to the girl about their intentions toward her, and Mines never alluded to the subject in his daily coversation with her. The Oberts at once began to prepare for the wedding, which was set down for the evening of October 1. Week before last Mrs. Obert greatly astonished her daughter by telling her that she intended to give a large party. She gave her no hint, however, as to what the occasion of the party was to be. The people who were invited were not informed of the true character of the gathering. The fact that the Oberts were to give a party created quite a surprise in the neighborhood, as they had never been known before to extend the slightest hospitality to any one. A new dress was ordered for Lena, and it was brought home from Scranton by her father on the afternoon of the day of the party. With it were many things that suggested bridal apparel that the girl laughingly said to her mother that if she wore them people would think she was to be a bride. Her mother there upon told her all, and that the neighbors had been invited to witness her marriage to Dominic Mines. A neighbor's girl who had been engaged to help in the house on that day and evening, says that upon hearing the truth about the party Lena stood for some time staring at her mother, pale and speechless. Then she seized the wedding garments and tearing them into shreds, scattered them about the room. After denouncing both her father and mother for their unnatural conduct she left the house. She walked all the way to Scranton, where she has friends, with whom she is still. The true situation at Obert's was explained to the guests as they arrived at the party, and all of them left the house filled with indignation at the parents of the girl, and with feelings of sympathy and admiration for the daughter who had so bravely refused to barter herself for their gain.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete, Of all dealers 25 cents.

VISIT TO BELLEVILLE

Fifty Thousand Dollars will be Given Away.

THE SPIROMETER GIVEN FREE.

The Above Offer Holds Good for this Visit Only.

TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND SUFFERERS FROM CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, WEAK LUNGS AND CONSUMPTION.

My motive is not one of money only, but for science and the good of suffering humanity.

To convince the public and prove to the sceptical that the Spirometer is the best instrument ever invented for the treatment of diseases of the air passages, and that it is all I have ever claimed for it, anyone suffering from the above named diseases who call at the Dafoe House, Friday or Saturday, October the 17th or 18th, 1884, and consult the surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute, will be given a spirometer free, the medicines alone to be paid for. I do this to show the confidence I have in the treatment, and to convince the medical profession and others who are still sceptical (notwithstanding the thousands of people who have been cured by it) that the Spirometer I have invented and the medicines and treatment prescribed by the surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute are curing and will cure a larger percentage of these diseases than any other treatment in the world.

If impossible to call upon the surgeons during their visit to your city, write for International News and List of Questions.

Murray township fair on the 15th.

Brighton's taxes are 12 mills on the dollar.

Mr. John Douglass a highly esteemed citizen of Warkworth dropped dead suddenly on Thursday morning.

The membership roll of the Lennox fair showed an increase of over one hundred over last year, the total being 402, and the gate receipts of the two days figured up the remarkable sum of $997.95, at a fee of 15c.

The Prince Edward show was held on Wednesday and Thursday. It was a comparative failure, owing to the bad weather and narrow-mindedness of its directors. No exhibitors were allowed from outside the county. The Prince Edward people should follow the example of West Hastings and throw their show open to the surrounding counties. That is the only way to insure success.

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, New York, says: "Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of piles of 8 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, besides two Buffalo Physicians,' without relief; but the Oil saved him: he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly." There being imitations on the market of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, customers will see that they get the genuine.

THE EAST HASTINGS FAIR.

From our own Correspondent.

ROSLIN, Oct. 9.—The East Hastings fair held yesterday was a complete fizzle. There was not a single building on the premises suitable for the display of the exhibits, and the driving track was covered with mud nearly a foot thick; in short the accommodation was of the poorest character. The attendance instead of numbering about five thousand people as was frequently the case at Thrasher's Corners, was less than two thousand, and the great distance to drive from Belleville, (sixteen miles) was a source of annoyance to the patrons from Thurlow and Tyendinaga, and as the directors know they are in the majority, There was scarcely an exhibitor who did not find fault with the arrangements, and I think it may safely be be predicted that the next fair will be held on the old grounds at Thrasher's, where so much money has been expended in improving the premises. In the interests of this fair I hope those concerned will see that the fair is put under the management of a proper board of directors and not left to a few narrow minded men who gloried in the failure of the fair a few years. It will be the duty of the true friends of the East Hastings fair to effect this much desired change.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

MERIT PROVEN.

Dollar upon dollar is spent on the faith of recommendation for articles entirely worthless. Not so with McGregor's Speedy Cure. You are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call at Jas. Clarke & Co's cor. Front and Bridge Streets and get a free trial bottle and if not convinced it will cure you of the worst cases of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, etc., no matter of how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50 cent and $1.00 bottles. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

The Board will meet next Wednesday afternoon.

'Bouncer' Brown was before the Police Magistrate this morning on a charge of stealing a pair of pants from V. Sills, a second-hand dealer, yesterday. Sills testified that as soon as he missed the pants he went in search of them, and found the prisoner selling the pants at a second-hand store for 50c. Brown acknowledged the theft, and Sills took the goods home. At the trial to-day the prisoner said he thought he would 'do better with a jury,' but after hearing the evidence he threw himself on the mercy of the court and got a month.

Many who admire our shady streets lined by the umbrageous maples and other beautiful shade trees are not aware that for these—beautiful to the eye and a protection from the fierce heat of summer—Belleville is almost wholly indebted to the labors of one man. For forty years Thomas Jones has worked away planting trees and infusing his love of the arboreal into others, until now the city, in summer at least, is "a thing of beauty and joy forever." Though he has not shone forth brilliantly in political or social life, or accumulated great wealth, yet the green leaves and spreading branches along our streets on trees planted by his hands—many of them now of great size—will always proclaim him one of Belleville's true benefactors.

Hon. T. V. Powderly, general master workman of the Knights of Labor of America, who has been invited to visit in Ontario by the joint assemblies of Toronto, is now making a tour of the province in accordance with arrangements made by the joint committee. He will speak in the City Hall on next Friday evening. His subject will be "The order, its origin and aims." The committee, in view of the rapid foothold which the order is securing, not only in the United States but also in Canada, have announced that the lecture shall be free to the public, so that all may have an opportunity of hearing its chief officer explain its mission. A large number of invitations have been issued to prominent citizens to be present, There will be a crowded house on the occasion, there is little doubt.

Next week will be one of interest to Oddfellows in Belleville, the occasion being the opening of two new encampments by a commission of grand officers. Mr. Joseph Oliver, Grand Chief Patriarch, of Toronto, W. Davidson, Grand Scribe, of London, and others will arrive here on Wednesday noon, and in the evening will proceed to institute a new uniform degree camp, known as the Quinte, in connection with the Mizpah Lodge, after which the visiting brethern will be entertained at a supper at Hambly's. On Thursday night the commission will open Moira Camp, the members of which, about seventy in number, will be from the Belleville lodge, No. 81. After the grand officers have finished their labors, they will be invited to attend a complimentary dinner at the Anglo-American, as guests of the latter lodge.

MISTAKEN FOR A WILD GOOSE.

A horrible accident is reported from Ile aux Coudres. No particulars have been received of the name of the victim or the date of the unfortunate occurrence; but according to the intelligence to hand, a well-known farmer of the island has lost his life through an extraordinary mistake on the part of a sportsman. It appears that the latter was on the lookout for wild geese on a part of the beach much frequented by that species of game, when he suddenly noticed a grey object in the indistinct light moving near a large boulder. Imagining it to be a goose, he imediately took aim and fired, only to discover on going to the spot where he expected to find the dead bird that he had shot a brother sportsman, who had been crouching behind the stone and who also was looking out for a shot. Great excitement is said to reign among the inhabitants of the island on the subject.

LOCAL.

To morrow evening at West Belleville Methodist Church, Rev. J. J. Rice will preach a sermon on the subject of 'Social Drinking and the Liquor Traffic.'

The Rev. James Curts, pastor of the Tabernacle, will preach by special request, in the Methodist Church, Shannonville, to-morrow evening; the Tabernacle pulpit will be occupied by the Rev. J. C. Ash, of Shannonville.

The Belleville Hallelujah Band will hold services to-morrow, by special desire, in the Melrose Church on the Shannonville circuit. The Melrose church is the finest on the circuit, and it is expected that it will be thronged at all the services.

The Rev. G. Sexton, L.L.D., will deliver a series of free lectures in about two weeks. The lecturer was once an able opponent of Christianity, but is now one of its most eloquent defenders. The date of his visit will be given next week.

The service in the Bridge Street Methodist church, to-morrow will be of special interest. The Rev. J. B. Clarkson will preach in the morning to the children of the church, and in the evening, the Rev. Bigelow, an eloquent and popular minister from Chicago will occupy the pulpit. The choir has prepared some choice music and Mr. Albert Wensley will sing a tenor solo at each service.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and the natives place the most perfect reliance in.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours, J. M. JOHNSON, Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. y 2mdaw

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so,

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'I feel you are again correct,' remarked our hero. 'Again I have acted the ignorant fool I am in this wilderness; can you pardon me ?'

The trapper extended his hand, and pressed it.

'You are a brave, noble young fellow,' he said.

'Thank you, now let us I entreat you,' implored Eustace, ' get on to make up for the time I lost.

The trapper was by no means loth : and rapidly they headed to the forest.

Two hours later they emerged upon the glade mentioned in a previous chapter.

Here there were indications which not only Brixham, but our hero could detect.

The grass was yet scorched where had burned the camp fire.

The ground was still cut by the heavy wheels of the caravan.

'What,' asked Eustace; 'can these signify,'

The trapper's countenance had grown exceeding grave.

Our hero's heart sank as he perceived it.

'You divine some reason,' he cried. 'and a bad one ; they have joined other people.'

Brixham hesitated, then said.

'Lad, will you trust me ? If so, from from this spot we need no longer search for a trail but keep to one road. Yes they must have joined others : the caravan, the fire and the hoof marks show it. And I fancy I guess, Stuart Loring's destination.'

'I trust you implicity,' exclaimed Eustace at once. 'Where has he gone ?'

'To a place which, when his deeds made New York too hot for him, before gave him shelter ; a place where has many friends, where the Misses Beauchamp can have none , but never fear, we'll overtake him before he gets there.'

'Where is this ?' demanded our hero, turning pale.

'Lad bear it bravely, but I must no longer hide it from you ; still, recollect in a day or two, we may overtake them—aye in in less time perhaps than that for the marks here are fresh, and with a caravan they must journey slower.'

'What is their destination ?' demanded Eustace. almost fiercely.

'Utah—the Salt Lake city.'

Utah !, the word burst from the young man's lips like a shriek ; he reeled a under a blow.

'Utah ! Oh, Heaven preserve my darling.'

CHAPTER XLII.

THE CHANCES OF ESCAPE ARE LESSENED.

On Pauline's recovery, it was with the utmost difficulty the Creole could soothe her into any state composure.

Her horror at what had transpired was almost too terrible to witness, Juliette feared for her reason. But for Eustace Belmore, she could have pitied her.

The poor girl appeared in a state of frenzy.

Wringing her hands distractedly she could but reiterate; with piteous entreaty

'Save me, save me ! Oh. Heaven ! how helpless I am. Save me, or let me die,'

'Hush, hush, be composed, dear Pauline you are safe, indeed you are, no one can harm you.'

'Juliette,' asked the wretched girl, abruptly, raising her beautiful face which had been buried in the cushions where she laid, and checking her sobs ;'Juliette,'and, a new alarm in her tones, she caught the other's arm, 'how did I lose consciousness ?'

'How,' and the Creole forced a smile ; 'why, you fainted, Pauline.'

Fainted? No. it was not a faint, I have fainted before ; this was different, I have a dim recollection,' she went on 'of that awful man standing before me, of his exerting over my senses some strange influence that he said words I had no power to to disobey.'

'You are mistaken:as I told you I would be near, I was and heard all. Overcome by the painful interview through which you had born yourself bravely, Pauline, your strength suddenly failed; and you became insensible.'

'Insensible, did he touch me ?' she asked in a tone of horror.

He did not lay a finger on you, You called for help, and they were my arms that received you.'

'Heaven bless you for that, Julie,te !' exclaimed her sister, embracing her and pressing passionate kisses on her cheek, How miserably week should I be in this man's hands without you? But even you might have to yield before him. What am I to do? I am rescued but for a time. Juliette !' she exclaimed excitedly. 'I will escape ; I will try, Better to starve or perish the the prey of wild beasts in the forests, than remain here to wait such a fate as he would destine me to ?'

'Escape, Pauline ? We are too strictly guarded it would be impossible.'

'I, at least, will try,' was the answer : 'Keziah will help us.'

The Creole could hardly restrain a smile of pity.

'We might try,' she remarked, 'but I fear, if detected, it would only make Stuart Loring more to be dreaded. His fury when aroused, is a fiend's not a man's.'

'I don't care, answered Pauline, wrought to a pitch of resistance and determination. 'I will attempt it, and if detected, I can but die. Juliette, will you follow me ?'

'Certainly, you followed me in my trouble, I will you in yours. But seat yourPauline. and rest, we can make no attempts until night. when the caravan halts.'

'True ;yet suppose, before then he should renew his horrible suit ?'

'He will not . it is not likely, He, too, was overcome by the interview, for, Pauline, regard him as you may, he loves you passionately, and you may attribute all his behaviour to his devotion.'

'Better his hate.'

'Not now.' said the Creole, quickly ; 'be cautious, and for your sake, for mine, do not rouse it. He is capable of anything.'

'I believe it, said the other : then, with eager wistfulness she interrogated her companion—'Juliette, do you think Eustace is really dead ?'

The Creole paused.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, "convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasted Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

ALWAYS A RIVER TO CROSS.

There's always a river to cross;
  Always an effort to make,
If there is anything good to win,
  Any rich prize to take.
Yonder's the fruit we crave
  Yonder the charming scene;
But deep and wide, with a troubled tide,
  Is the river that lies between.

For the treasures of precious worth
  We must patiently dig and dive;
For the places we long to fill
  We must push and struggle and strive,
And always and everywhere
  We'll find on our onward course
Thorns for the feet and trials to meet
  And a difficult river to cross.

For rougher the way that we take
  The stouter the heart and the nerve;
The stones in our path we break,
  Nor e'er from our impulse swerve.
For the glory we hope to win
  Our labours we count no loss
'Tis folly to pause and murmur because
  Of the river we have to cross.

So ready to do and to dare
  Should we in our places stand,
Fulfilling the Master's will,
  Fulfilling the soul's demand;
For though as the mountain high
  The billows may war and toss,
They'll not overwhelm if the Lord's at the helm,
  When the difficult river we cross.

AT FOOCHOW.

PICTURESQUE SCENES AND CEREMONIES ON THE RIVER MIN.

There are, says Mr. C. F. Gordon Cummings, on the River Min generally a multitude of singularly picturesque junks lying at anchor just below the great bridge of Ten Thousand Ages (Winshow-kean) which connects the Isle of Nantai with the main land of Foochow; and many delightful hours have I spent rowing among these to select the most striking group, and then sketching peacefully from the house boat which lay securely moored at the point thus chosen. But no brush—certainly not mine—could convey any correct impression of these scenes—these extraordinary combinations of form and color Here we have a whole flotilla moored side by side and we look at the extraordinary high sterns, so fantastic in shape, and covered with brilliant pictures of huge birds and gruesome dragons, or groups of mythological scenes. Emerald green, scarlet, white and gold, sienna and madder and Prussian are so freely used, that even the gorgons and very varied banners can scarcely excel the brilliancy of the vessel. But the overhanging stern and huge unwieldy rudder cast deep shaddows, which are carried down in the reflections, and the grey granite bridge and grey and white clouds softening the blue sky and the distant hills, harmonize the whole. Now we may change our position, so as to watch the great timber junks taking on their cargo. I say 'on' advisedly, for it is all tied on outside and only the the stem and stern of a laden vessle are visible, so great is the bulk of timber fastened to her on either side; of course this becomes exceedingly buoyant, for the cargo is selfsupporting, floating on its own account! The prow of these vessles is shaped and pointed to represent the shape of a gigantic and most gaudy fish, with huge staring eyes and the heavy anchor hung from its mouth. Very quaint, too are the huge sails of brown or yellow matting, supported by cross ribs of bamboo. After a wet night all the sails are run up to dry at early morning, and when half furled, the bamboo ribbing is singularly suggestive of the flying fish, from which, doubtless the idea first taken. When a junk is fully laden and on the eve of sailing, the crew commend themselves to the sea dragon in a frightfully noisy religious service. Offerings of food are thrown into the sea, and one of the crew holds up burning joss paper toowards the sun, while the others produce an ear-splitting din on gongs and cymbals, during the service the whole vessel, but especially the stern is decorated with banners of every shape and every conceivable device. Thus the protection of the sea dragon is invoked, and the timber junks start on their seaward journey.

SAVED BY A LOAD OF HAY.

'I tell you what, boys, I've railroaded it for years and been mixed up in all kinds of disasters, but I hope to croak right here if I want to be the eye witness again of such an awful sight as I saw a day or two ago.'

The speaker was a brakeman on the Erie.

'A day or so ago,' he contiued, 'a tall and handsome woman got into the ladies' car at Dunkirk. With her was a bright and interesting boy, possibly two years of age. The child laughed and crowed and played with the passengers. When the train left Cattaraugus the woman, who seemed nervous, got out of her seat, picked up the baby and started for the rear end of the coach.

'A short distance east of Cattaraugus is a long, deep gulf, over which the railroad has built high trestle. The distance from the top of the trestle to the wagon road below is perhaps one hundred feet. A sharp and short curve leads to the trestle. As the train rushed over the gulf a woman's piercing shriek was heard. I looked and saw an object leap from the platform into the rocky gulf. That object, sir, was the lady passenger, and in her arms closely clasped to her breast was her infant. I pulled the bell cord and the train came to a halt. How it happened I cannot say, but at the time the woman jumped a load of hay, drawn by a pair of oxen, passed under the trestle. Mother and child landed squarely in the centre of the hay, and were thus saved from a horrible death. The farmer was so horrified that he jumped from his wagon and darted up the hill. The woman, who was not hurt in the least, said her name was Mrs. Adam Scell and her home in Michigan. She was on her way to visit friends in the oil country. Here indeed was a miraculous escape.'

Mrs. Scell said that she could not explain her action. When near the car door she was seized with an insane desire to jump from the train.

The farmer, as he drove along, was thinking of his dead wife and daughter. When the visitors came through the clouds as it were, and landed on his hay, he thought that the dear departed had come back to earth to revisit him.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHY DID HE GO?

Since the suddenly announced departure of Sir John A. Macdonald for England, the reasons given and the surmises indulged in to account for his going have been almost innumerable. We give some of them.

The Mail says he goes on public business but it would be premature to state its nature or importance. The Ottawa Citizen alleges that he has gone on private business. The Montreal Gazette states that public business called him away. The sapient Kingston News observes that "many Conservatives have a good idea as to the nature of Sir John's trip." Le Monde says he has gone to put himself under the treatment of Sir Andrew Clarke who pulled him through a similar attack several years ago. This reason is just identical with the one given by Sir John himself. One surmise is that he has gone to lodge a complaint against Lord Claude Hamilton for pitching into the Grand Trunk. Another theory is that "winter is drawing on apace, numbers of persons who were promised constant work under the N. P. are out of employment, the premier is nearly pestered to death by such seeking appointments, and not being in robust health he seeks relief in a sea voyage. Meanwhile the place hunters are told that nothing can be done for them on account of his absence."

Numberless other guesses are made, but fact is that Sir John has gone for his health. Possibly he may endeavor to look into other matters at the same time, but his health is the subject to which he will devote most attention. It would not be surprising if he brought Sir Charles Tupper back with him to fill the post of Minister of Railways, which is apparently being kept open on purpose.

Sir John is as wily as a fox. He knew that a sudden departure without any stated reason would savor so much of mystery as to set pens going and tongues clacking and revive the interest in him personally, which he knows is so powerful a factor towards retaining popularity. The shadow of Mowat's success has obscured and eclipsed him for some time and the air of mystery with which he surrounded his departure has had the effect of drawing the attention of everybody to, and concentrating their interest in, himself. And then the fact of the old man's declining health lends a romantic pathos to the whole. The manner of his departure is, we firmly believe, a piece of characteristic strategy, and, judging from the interest evoked, it has been successful in its apparent object.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IF JAMAICA comes into the Confederation the adoption of the Tilley tariff will be likely to affect adversely her commercial relation with the United States and other countries.

* * *

SIR HECTOR LANGEVIN recently travelled through Manitoba and heard of no complaints. His colleague, Hon. Mr. McLelan, told Premier Norquay "he did not wonder the people complained." How are the ministers going to reconcile these conflicting opinions!

THE COLOSSUS when in opposition declared that $18,000,000 was sufficient to carry on the government, and that $23,000,000 expended by Mackenzie was extravagant. Now our annual expenditure is about $30,000,000, and still it is "going up, UP, UP!" Alas for the rarity of fulfilled Tory pledges!

* * *

THE ATTENDANCE of about twenty persons at the public meeting called by His Worship the Mayor on Saturday evening was a striking exemplification of popular opinion on the demonstration to-morrow. Only twenty! and four or five Reformers among the number. Truly it is getting to be up-hill work to "enthuse" to any extent, isn't it?

MR. THOS. WHITE, of Montreal, member for Cardwell in the Commons, in his addresses to his constituents prior to the last two elections gave as a good reason why he should be sent to Ottawa that the N.P. raised the price of everything the farmer had to sell, and, therefore, was a great boon to him. Now this same gentlemen tells us in his journal that the farmer should sell his wheat at once, because:—

> "Not only is he not justified in expecting a sufficient advance in prices to compensate for the delay in marketing produce, but that he will do well if six months hence he obtains as high a price as is offered to-day."

After the forced admissions of prominent Conservatives on the question of the price of grain it is an interesting conundrum to guess what argument they will now advance to prove that the National Policy has done what they prophesied it would. Who are the "flies on the wheel" now?

THERE are loud complaints about the way the associated press despatches are prepared. American papers complain that a letter written by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, part on the Joy-Blaine controversy, was not sent to the papers which pay for press association despatches, and no reference to it, over the wires controlled by the said association was permitted. Canadian papers feel aggrieved because the messages prepared at headquarters bear the stamp of "cooking," indeed the Globe states that "the associated press dispatches from Toronto are prepared in the Mail building, and that every despatch sent out in reference to the proceedings before the bribery commission is revised either by Mr. Bunting or his chief assistant." This, if true, is decidedly wrong, and if Mr. Dwight is the no-party man he says he is the matter will be enquired into at once. However, after his action in destroying despatches asked for by the Bribery Commission, no surprise need be expressed at any unfair partizan action on his part.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

DEAR SIR.—On the large bills announcing the demonstration at the Murray canal on Tuesday next, I observe that my name appears in the list of members forming the Executive committee. I have not the most remote objection to the demonstration, nor to anyone taking part in it who may desire to do so, but I respectfully decline to be placed—absolutely without knowledge or consent as in this case—in any position indicating my sympathy with or promotion of a demonstration in which I am taking no part.

Yours Respectfully,
JOHN G. FROST.

Belleville, Oct. 11th., 1884.

MR. EDITOR.—Perhaps it will not be considered out of place for me to make a few remarks in reference to the meeting which took place in the Town Hall on Saturday night, called by the proclamation of the Mayor, on the strength of a requisition for the purpose of asking the people of Belleville to unite with those of of Trenton, Brighton and other places in getting up a non-political demonstration, to be held at the Canal on 14th inst. Now, sir, notwithstanding that I declined to act as Chairman of the meeting when nominated and also on the Committee appointed to assist in getting up the deputation, still I would recommend all reformers to go and be present at the demonstration and listen in an intelligent manner to what the ministers of the government and others may have to say in justification of the act of placing this canal as a public and commercial enterprise in the locality where it is. I believe it will be very hard to explain in a satisfactory manner to an intelligent people that this great enterprise was conceived and carried out so far in an unbiassed and non-political manner, for we all know from reports of surveyors and information given through the public press at the time, that another locality was far preferable, namely, that short one across to Weller's Bay, terminating in the vicinity of the docks of the C.O.R.R., where is deep water and a distance of about 2½ miles instead of the present route, a distance of nearly, if not quite, seven miles, with engineering difficulties almost impossible to surmount, and at a cost no one knows the vastness of. And what for? Why was this done? That is the question we want to have answered. The claims of the two harbors have been discussed at great length heretofore in the papers, but I have no hesitation in saying from personal observation, as I visited the localities twice last summer in company with a number of friends, that Weller's Bay harbor is far the more preferable of the two.

We measured 17 ft. of water at the outer end of the docks, and at a distance of over 200 ft. inside of that there were two of the largest size vessels loading iron ore, and a view outward showed as fine an entrance to the harbor as could be desired.

Now, sir, in conclusion let me say that those of us who have been born and lived on the Bay of Quinte all our lives hail with special delight the fact that we have a prospect of having the waters of our beautiful bay connected with those of the great lakes by the Murray Canal, but the means adopted and the motives of those who have been instrumental in consummating this great job must bear the responsibility for the tax on the people for the cost.

By all means let us hear what has to be said.

N. McARTHUR.

Belleville, Oct., 1884.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING.

Edward Sesphers, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or the leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."
Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents a bottle by R. Templeton.

AMELIASBURG FAIR.

Fine Weather and a Creditable Exhibit—Excellent Show of Stock—Thousands of People on the Grounds.

(From our own Correspondent.)

ROBLIN'S MILLS, Oct. 13.—The agricultural fair held here Saturday last, was a complete success, both as regards exhibits and financial receipts at the gates. By careful management, honesty, impartiality and order the directors are to be congratulated upon having established their annual fair in the minds of people at home and abroad as the best municipal fair in the province, and also a show that many neighboring counties would feel only too proud to claim. For the last few years the Society have been compelled to enlarge their exhibition grounds yearly, until now about 10 or 12 acres of land if not more are enclosed, with all the necessary accommodation for horses, cattle and other stock. In fact, the grounds now reach to the lake, where the convenience of a supply of water does not demand from our hands any comment. We are pleased to be able to say that the society this year were in a position to increase the list of prizes, both in number and money. Considering the large expenditure they have been to from year to year this is certainly encouraging. It is to be hoped that not a man in the township will allow another year to pass around without enrolling his name as a member and show those who have never wearied in their labors for a successful fair, that he fully appreciates their endeavors both now and in the past, and desires to join them hand in hand, in building up a provincial show.

HORSES AND CATTLE.

The exhibit under this head far surpassed any previous year, and also the expectations of those more directly interested. We feel safe in saying that not a township in the province, and also few counties, will show, this year, a better class a horses and colts at their fairs than was shown here on Saturday. The judges found not a little trouble in the awarding of prizes, but under the circumstances perhaps could not have done otherwise. The number of Percheron colts were far in advance of last year, and were much admired. The cattle exhibit was much larger than last year and of some extra breeds.

GRAIN, VEGETABLES AND POULTRY.

Under this class some good samples were shown in field stuff, and also some extra fine fowls.

INSIDE THE HALL.

In fine arts, needle work, carpets, can fruit and honey the display was very creditable, and was much admired by all those who saw them. The exhibit was far in advance of last year and a much better class.

DRIVING.

The driving, both with single and carriage horses, was considered good, some very fine drivers being upon the ring Some horse buyers were upon the ground and expressed some very flattering opinions concerning our horses. With all the fast driving not an accident occured, and every reasonable person seemed satisfied with the judging.

AROUND THE GROUNDS.

At an early hour all of the exhibits were upon the grounds ready for the judges at the appointed hour. Considerable trouble had been taken by the directors in securing the services of competent judges and we have yet to hear of any complaint. The beautiful weather brought large crowds upon the grounds, and scarcely a person went home without seeing those they wished or not being able to send word to them, About 5 p.m. the crowd began to to leave, and at 7 p.m. the 'show' was gone.

The prize list will be published to-morrow.

A $1,000 BOND STOLEN.

CLEVER CAPTURE IN COBOURG BY THE WINNIPEG CHIEF OF POLICE.

COBOURG, Oct. 13.—B. Osterhaut, of this place, went to Winnipeg for the purpose of buying land for his brother who intended to go farming in the Brandon district. Osterhaut called at the private banking house of Alloway & Champion and bought some C.P.R. land bonds with which to effect the purchase of the farm. Shortly after he had finished this business and left the office, the clerk in charge missed a bond for $1,000. Chief of Police Murray was notified, and on making enquiries as to Osterhaut learned that he had hailed from the neighborhood of Trenton. Mr. Murray, who was about leaving Winnipeg on other business, forthwith determined to look up Osterhaut. Accordingly, Mr. Murray placed himself in communication with Chief of Police McKinnon, of Belleville, and with him visited Trenton Frankford and other towns in that district. It was found that Osterhaut was in Cobourg, boarding at a private house there. Mr. Murray then telegraphed to Winnipeg for a warrant, which he received and met Chief McKinnon by appointment here. They arrested Osterhaut and found the missing bond in his possession. Osterhaut, who was attending college at Cobourg, and is said to be studying for the ministry, says he must have carried off the bond by mistake.

A baggage master on the Canada Pacific Railway named Morgan has been arrested for robbing the mail bags between North Bay and Sudbury. About a month ago some registered letters were stolen between these two points. Morgan was suspected and evidence enough collected to warrant his arrest. He confessed his guilt, and some of the stolen money has been recovered.

Two freight trains collided on the G.T.R. near Londoneast early on Saturday morning. The trains came together with a terrible crash; the flat cars were splintered and tossed down a twenty-foot embankment at one side; six or eight boxcars were also demolished. The engines reared up on end, and were only kept from falling back by the pressure from behind. The wreck was most complete, twenty-one cars being shattered. Hands on both engines escaped unhurt, but some of the trainmen were not so fortunate.

WADING THROUGH MOLTEN IRON.

TERRIBLE FATE OF THREE MEN AT A NASHVILLE FURNACE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11.—Three men have been killed and one fatally injured at Warren's furnace in Hickman county. The man tapped the furnace before the signal was given, and three men, standing near, were covered by a mass of molten iron. Two were burned to death instantly. The other waded through the melted iron, and lived two hours in great agony. The flesh dropped off all the bodies. The tapper was burned fatally. A mule and cart standing near were consumed.

THE EVERLASTING BOGUS CHEQUE RACKET STILL IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 11.—When the 2.55 train on the Grand Trunk railway arrived here on Thursday, a well-dressed man entered the car, in which his partner was seated beside their intended victim, and presented an account, and insisted on immediate payment. The old-time check scheme worked, and the confidence men got off the train, came to this city, hired a horse and buggy, and drove to the Niagara river, which they crossed in time to elude Chief of Police Cumming, of St. Catharines, and Detective Wynne, of Niagara Falls. The victim, who would not give his name, was swindled out of $50, leaving him without a cent to continue his journey to New York.

A BELLEVILLE BOY OUT WEST.

A St. Louis paper, speaking of their fair, says: The Diamond Emery Wheel and Machine Company of Providence, R. I., and Chicago, Ill., occupy a space 21 feet front by 16 feet in depth. In this space they display twelve grinding machines, seven polishing and buffing lathes and four speed lathes of different capacity and style, all being the product of their factory at Providence. Two grinding machines, two buffing lathes and one speed lathe are in motion and attracts a good deal of attention. The grinding machines with two exceptions are intended for two emery wheels, varying in diameter from 1 inch to 42 inches and in thickness from ½ inch to 12 inches. This company, while exhibiting under the auspices of Hill, Clarke & Co., their Southern agents, are represented at the exposition by Mr. Charle Corby, of their Chicago house, who is in charge of the exhibit.

Mr. Corby's many friends in Belleville will be pleased to learn of his success in the west. He is the general agent for the Chicago branch of this firm, a position which he fills with credit to himself and the city of his birth."

C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, New York, says: "Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of piles of 8 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, 'besides two Buffalo Physicians,' without relief; but the Oil saved him; he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly." There being imitations on the market of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, customers will see that they get the genuine.

PERSONAL.

Mr. F. J. Jewell, of the Colborne Enterprise gave us a call on Saturday. It is perhaps not fair to say what brings Fred. so frequently to the City of the Bay but we have no doubt his motive is a fair one.

Gilbert Laird, St. Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you have been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery."

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

The Winnipeg Bicycle Club races Saturday were very successful. The championship of Manitoba was won by Johnston and the championship of Winnipeg by Suckling.

A five mile race at Boston Friday night between K. A. Skinner on roller skates, and F. D. Stumcke on a bicycle was won by Skinner in 17 mins. 22 secs.

MERIT PROVEN.

Dollar upon dollar is spent on the faith of recommendation for articles entirely worthless. Not so with McGregor's Speedy Cure. You are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call at Jas. Clarke & Co's cor. Front and Bridge Streets and get a free trial bottle and if not convinced it will cure you of the worst cases of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, etc., no matter of how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50 cent and $1.00 bottles. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

TORONTO NEWS.

The establishment of the E. Harris Paint Company, King street east, was broken in to on Friday night by burglars, and the contents of the cash box carried off.

Cases of typhoid fever on Shuter, Parliament and Queen Streets, scarlet fever on Sydenham Street, and a case of diphtheria on Reid Street, were reported at the Medical Health office on Saturday.

B. Osterhaut, the man who is charged with stealing a $1,000 bond from the banking house of Alloway & Champion, Winnipeg, appeared at the police Court Saturday. He was remanded till the 15th inst.

Mr. Joshua Legge, president, and Mr. Henry Wade, Secretary, of the Agricultural and City Association, have just returned from attending the Brantford fair, where they were collecting grain and roots for the Antwerp exhibition.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.

That many with the glad consent praise new born remedies especially if they pay a larger profit no one conversant with the substitution practiced in this respect will deny, and when you are told by interested parties that such and such a preparation is as good or better than the great sure pop corn cure Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Just for a moment consider if your benefit prompts the advice or if the small additional profit secured by the sale of inferior or poisonous substitutes lies at the bottom of the suggestion. We say then, buy only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. We recommend it. Beware of cheap or poisonous substitutes. Sold by druggists. Polson & Co. props. Kingston.

Last night an iron grey colt was stolen from Mr. Knight's stable in West Belleville. There is a dispute about the ownership of the animal, and it is suspected that the other claimant, a relative, took the colt.

Joshua C. Palmer was arrested on Saturday night for being drunk. He was fined $2 and costs or 30 days this morning. Mary Ann McAuley, charged with larceny, was reported to be still ill at the gaol and and unable to appear in court. Her case was continued for a week. Cummings v. Levoy, for rent, settled.

Rev Jas. Curts, of the Tabernacle, preached at Spencer's Church, in Thurlow, yesterday afternoon and at Shannonville in the evening, his place in the Tabernacle being filled at this service by Rev. J. C. Ash. Rev. M. Bigelow, a well known divine of Chicago, occupied the pulpit at the Bridge street Church last evening.

A supper was given at the Anglo American hotel Saturday evening by Mr. Wanington to several of his friends, which was a first-class affair. The menu, provided by the genial host, McMahan, was acknowledged by all to be a spread equal to the best, and those present heartily enjoyed the attentions and courtesy which they received from all hands. Mr. McMahan will soon earn for himself in the Anglo a wide reputation as a caterer.

Established 1875.—The citizens of Belleville know by this time that the only place that they can always depend on having their orders filled is the old City Fish and Game Market, 231 Front Street. MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

The Lights o' London, the greatest spectacular drama ever written, will be produced with all the scenery used on a New York stage by a first-class company at the opera house to-night and Tuesday evening. This is a company worthy of public patronage.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

The Globe speaking of this great Shakesperian play which will be given on Wednesday evening says:—Mr. Stafford's ability was the more clearly made evident in the trial scene. Here the passions of hate and despair required the strongest, clearest delineation, and Mr. Stafford was so completely successful that a spectator while feeling intense repugnance at one moment towards the vengeful money-lender, in the next was moved to pity by his utter misery. Mr. Stafford was frequently applauded, and fairly won every demonstration of approval which marked his progress through his part.

LIFE PRESERVER.

If you are losing your grip on life, try "Wells' Health Renewer." Goes direct to weak spots.

THE HOGGARD ASSAULT CASE.

The Hoggard assault case is set down for hearing at the police court to-morrow, but there is no probability of Mr. Hoggard being able to attend the court. On Saturday his left eye was extracted by Dr. G. S. Ryerson, of Toronto, assisted by Dr. Wilson, his attending physician and it is feared the shock to his nervous system will prevent him leaving his bed for several days. The Chief of Police went down to Kingston yesterday to arrest a man named Payne, who is charged by Mr. Hoggard's late bartender, McCabe, with assaulting him. There will therefore be two indictments against the prisoners.

LITERARY NOTES.

General Beauregard, in his article on the Battle of Bull Run, in the November Century, gives the reasons why the Confederate victory at Bull Run was not followed up by an attack on Washington. He also discusses his personal relations with Mr. Davis, and criticizes, with much plainness of speech, the subsequent conduct of the war on the Confederate side.

A RARE PLANT.

The Wild Strawberry Plant possesses rare virtue as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it is an unfailing remedy in all Bowel complaints.

THE GREAT FIZZLE.

The Public Meeting in the City Hall Saturday Night.

The public meeting in the city hall Saturday night, called for the purpose of considering the advisability of attending the Tory celebration at the Murray Canal, was a great fizzle. The attendance, scarcely a corporal's guard, was so small that the promoters of the affair hesitated for half an hour before asking the Mayor to take the platform, in the hope that others would arrive—but in vain. Long after eight o'clock the only persons present were H. Corby, Ald. Baker, J. Ganjot, Francis McKay, Ald. Macoun, Ald. Alford, Ald. J. W. Johnson, M. C. Roblin, Ald. Clarke, Donald Maclean, W. B. Northrup, T. R. Pearce, John Doyle, Wm. McCoy, and Mark Dixon, besides a few Reformers who attended out of curiosity to see what was done. At half past eight the Mayor looked down over the empty benches and explained the object of the meeting. Mr. Corby tried to get Mr. N. McArthur to act as chairman, but he would not, and Mr. W. B. Northrup likewise declined. It began to look as if the position was to go begging for an occupant, when the Mayor was persuaded to preside. A Committee consisting of Messrs. H. Corby, J. Macoun, R. C. Clute, T. S. Carman, N. McArthur and D. Maclean was on motion of Mr. Northrup, named to take what steps they thought advisable to work up a respectable showing at the "big go" on the gravel road near the Trent road bridge. Mr. McArthur asked to have his name struck off and Mr. T. P. Pearce was added. Messrs. Clute and Carman not being present to decline the honor the motion was carried on the support of five members. Mr. Corby was sure it would be "a lasting disgrace to Belleville if we don't show up better at the demonstration than the citizens have at this meeting, which is a failure. If we can't get any more delegates we had better telegraph them we can't come." Mr. Donald Maclean said there was luck in odd numbers and he wanted Mr. John Doyle's name added to the committee. His request of course was granted. Mr. Northrup moved that the committee engage a band to stir up the boys, but his resolution fell to the ground without a seconder. After a pause of several minutes it was agreed to leave the matter in the hands of the committee, and the Mayor announced that the show was over.

Mr. Corby telegraphed the Trenton committee this morning that they need not expect a large representation from Belleville. A few will go up on the Annie Gilbert.

There are many perfumes which, when applied to the handkerchief, have a very agreeable odor for few moments and then die away, leaving only a sickly disagreeable smell. Not so with Murray & Lanman's Florida Water; the longer it is exposed the more delicate and delightful in its rich aroma.

GOOD NEWS.

The most important bankrupt sale that has ever taken place here will commence at noon on Thursday next, the 16th inst. Mr. J. Morgan, furrier, is the purchaser of Mr. T. Muir's entire stock of furs, hats, caps, buffalo and fancy robes, &c., &c. Mr. Morgan's vast importations at the Ashley Block, will continue to be disposed of as usual. The monster bankrupt sale will take place at Mr. T. Muir's old stand. During the first 10 days all the hats and caps, some thousands of them, will be run off at a sacrifice unheard of in Belleville. All the fine hard and soft felt hats in the store formerly sold at from $1.25 to $3.25 he will let go at your picked choice for $1 each, likewise the immense stock of fashionable cloth, plush and tweed caps, varying from 50c to $1.50, your choice at 20 and 25 cents. It does not take a moments thought to see that those coming in (especially during the first week's rush), before the cream of the stock is sold, will save from 60 to 70 per cent on their purchases. After the country merchants get word of this great sale, some retail buyers, who have been too slow in 'catching the ball at the first hop,' will, most likely, feel their mistake. This great sale will continue till the last vestige of the stock is sold out. The sale each day will be continued up till 8 o'clock in the evening. With country merchants, when possible, 20 minutes private inspection of the stock will be permitted. Heads of families, managers of institutes, &c., will find this the most favorable opportunity for supplying for the winter season that may ever again be offered in this city. advt d1tw1t

DYNAMITE DOINGS.

PART OF THE QUEBEC PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS BLOWN UP.

A heavy explosion took place at the works of the new Parliament building about half past twelve on Saturday. A window and a large part of the building were blown bodily away. Fortunately there were no casualties as most of the workmen were away. One man, Martel, a joiner, was however, badly cut about the neck. The cause of the explosion is so far unaccounted for, but the debris is now being cleared away.

There seems no doubt the explosion was was the work of dynamite, whether on purpose, or by accident, does not as yet appear. The contractors think it was done designedly, and the joiners report having seen a square box placed in the vicinity of where the damage was done, shortly before noon. Many windows were shattered and some blown bodily out. Stones were hurld quite a distance. An investigation into the matter is under way as the contractors are not using dynamite. The work is evidently that of dynamitards.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Farnham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma with the best results. It acts like a charm."

LEARNING TO RIDE THE WHEEL

By Prof. Cycloped.

The remembrance of our first attempt to master the mystery of bicycle riding, our numberless headers and tumbles,' and the time it took by "strength and stupidity" to mount the unruly steed and meander gracefully along the street or sidewalks, leads us to give the tyro some directions to avoid our errors and avert the misfortunes which otherwise may fill his soul with disgust and make him pronounce the bicycle a delusion and a snare. Learn to ride he must, for proficiency in the art—to judge by indications—will soon be the test of his manliness and a passport to the favor of the fair.

First select a gentle decline with a broad even surface. Stand fairly astride the rear wheel, leaning forward and grasping the handles. Place the toe of the left foot on the step; bend the knee as much as possible and lean forward which will enable you to grasp the handles and strike out with the right foot. Give one push with the right foot and raise your body with your weight on your left—be sure it is secure and not likely to slip. Lean forward to throw your weight on the front wheel, guiding it with the hands, and turning it gently toward the side it may lean to, which will bring it up all right without any effort on your part until it stops. Remain on the step as long as the wheel moves. Half an hour will generally suffice for this exercise.

Second, repeat the exercise, and vary it by raising the right leg, while the left remains secure on the step. Try and place the right to the saddle, and sometimes propel the wheel by the right foot on the crank. Practice till it becomes perfectly easy. Do not work yourself tired or nervous.

Having become proficient so far and able to guide the wheel while standing on the step, by a well directed leap from the right toe, with the right thigh well raised, slide gently into the saddle. Do not jump, but reach as far as possible with the right leg, raising yourself as much as you can on the left toe. When the right leg has slipped in the left follows naturally.

Should you fall sideways, you can always extend your leg sideways to catch you, unless in going rapidly, in which case a fall is very rare. The neatest way to fall or dismount is while extending the leg on the side you are falling on you raise the other over the handle and let it come down on the same side as the first. This is graceful and looks difficult, and gets the rider in the habit of raising one or both feet to alight safely in falling to the side or front.

The easiest dismount is to use the pedal when it is down or coming up as a step to alight from. After you an expert rider you need not care in what position the pedal is. In doing this keep well back and do not look at the pedal.

Be careful about the use of the break. A sudden application will be apt to throw you quickly over the handles

When you mount do not too hastily attempt to get your feet on the pedals; keep them raised so they will not strike, and place them on the pedal when it is up and turning forward; press gently on the first one secured and the other will be easily caught by the foot when it ascends.

The wheel will run farther than you think before its momentum is lost, as you give additional impetus in the act of mounting. Take your time, adjust yourself in the seat, and put your feet on the pedals at the proper moment.

Keep the feet straight so that the heels do not strike the spokes. Guide and balance the wheel as you did when learning to stand on the step. Turn always gradually.

It is useless to try to keep the wheel upright by swaying or balancing the body. Press firmly on the descending pedal, just strong enough to keep up the motion.

You will always be less liable to be hurt in falling if you keep as far back as possible, as there will then be less chance of catching your feet in the spokes, and thus less danger to the rider.

LIKE LIGHTNING.

The rapid action of the great pain cure Polson's Nerviline, in relieving the most intense pain, is a matter of wonder to all who have used it. There is nothing surprising in its results, for it is made of the strongest, purest and most efficient remedies known in medicine. Nerviline cures toothache; cramps in five minutes; neuralgia after two applications; rheumatism is at once relieved by its use; and the same may be said of all kinds of pain. Sample bottles, costing only 10 cents at any drug store. The large bottles only 25 cents. Polson's Nerviline sold by druggists and country dealers.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by nourishing exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence, These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions. both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so,

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

She would have liked to answer to the affirmative—to have destroyed all hope in Pauline's mind—but she feared the effect, so forced herself to say—

'No; that is, I would not take a rival's word.'

'Neither w ; I will trust still he may rescue us. ill I hat is that? It is that man.' Ah, w

A step had sounded on the steps without.

'No,' said the Creole, 'it is only Keziah; Stuart Loring will not intrude upon us again to-day.'

The Creole was right.

Night descended, but the American did not appear.

The interview had terminated very differently to what he had expected.

He had not counted upon Juliette as an opponent, for even as she had asserted beforehand, her power of will if roused, was scarcely inferior to his own.

He began to dread her, while his admiration increased.

Her dark, splendid face, so full of fire moved him strangely,

But for Pauline, he could have been her lover.

But as it was, he felt his purpose weakened in her presence.

Thus, he resolved to pause awhile, until his plan he had in view was carried out, when he should find some means of separating the sisters which with only one caravan it was impossible to do.

Then, if Pauline thus remained obdurate he could find the means to force her into the union.

His trouble yet was Eustace Belmore.

He believed he had little to dread: still, he was an irritating thorn in his path and he looked anxiously for Ezra's re-appearance.

His non-arrival astonished him.

He knew the man well, and felt succeed or not succeed in his purpose, he would manage to keep his own neck out of the halter.

Not that Stuart Loring cared whether he did or no, further than the future use he could be to him.

He only desired his coming that first he might learn whether Eustace had ceased exist; secondly who were the friends he had found in the wilderness.

He had waited and expected as the reader is aware in vain.

The man he wanted lay dead under the forest trees.

The man he did not want under the skilguidance of the trapper was following fast on his track.

Whether they would arrive in time to save the sisters—to save Pauline, the succeeding chapters will show.

The unfortunate girl with the prospect of another interview with Stuart Loring before her, was not likely to renounce her resolution to escape.

She began immediately, to set about her preparations, and suggested that Keziah be made one of the cabinet council.

The Creole was in a dilemma.

She knew the attempt decidedly certain of failure, if the negress was made a party in it.

Nevertheless, if by any chance, succeeded, all she had done would be rendered fruitless.

Eustace and Pauline might meet, while she would be left friendless and alone to return to England she had vowed she never would unless as Eustace Belmore's wife.

Nevertheless, secondly, if she permitted it and they were recaptured, as they must be, the American would surely hold her guilty of a breach of faith.

Still, on the other hand, she fancied for Pauline to escape and be recaptured would be rather beneficial to Stuart Loring's cause than otherwise.

Unseen by her half sister, she wrote the latter's intentions on a slip of paper, which she found means to give to Keziah with a sign to deliver it to the American.

The negress returned speedily and placed the answer, perceived only by Juliette, under a cloth lying upon the table.

The Creole possessing herself of it passed into the other room.

It ran—

'Thanks, now I feel that I may trust you you shall find me grateful. Let the beautiful bird try its wings. Means shall be provided that it goes not too far. On no account reveal Keziah's secret, let her be of the council The attempt must not be made until to morrow night.'

Tearing the paper into fragments, the Creole re-entered the room.

She found Pauline already communicating her designs to Keziah, who apparently was listening with absorbed interest.

'Come here, Juliette,' exclaimed her half sister, in an excited whisper, 'Good Keziah agrees with me in everything; she will help us, she is as desirous to escape as we.'

The negress with an evil, amused leer, glanced at the Creole; but the other avoided her gaze.

This was the greatest humiliation to her proud nature, the being in alliance with such a woman, her own servant.

'In everything,' repeated Juliette, quietly 'In our trying to night?'

'No, in that she agrees with you, She declares it will need more preparation, and advises to morrow.'

'It is the best, such undertakings made in haste are generally failures,' remarked the Creole.

'Besides, missy, der is another reason why to morrow would be much de better. I heard Massa Loring say, that he would ask you if you would like a little change; if you would like to ride awhile,'

'Ride! What do say, Juliette?'

'That it is the wisest to wait.'

'Yes, wait, missy, and I'll tell you what Keziah will do.'

'Do.'

'What, good Keziah?' asked Pauline, eagerly, 'but do not speak so loud; that awful man seems to hear everything.

The negress dropping her voice, proceeded—

'You will not ride until de cool, missy, then you shall keep on riding until de caravan come to a halt for de night. When you dismount for de night, I will help de man secure de horses, I often do, while de rest of 'em make de fire. I'll take, however that ours are free; then, when all's asleep, Keziah will creep down and lead em one by one into the forest, you shall follow. Then we can be off.'

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, "convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasted by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box. 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

SUNRISE ON THE BAY OF QUINTE.

BY MRS. E. JOHNSON, PERGUS, ONT.

'Tis dawn, the grey and sober dawn,
The wondrous, mystic, silent night,
With all her dusky loveliness,
And all her dim mysterous shades
That rise in giant shapes or melt
In misty space, has fled. The moon
Whose silvery light so softly kissed
The sleeping earth, has sunk beyond
The western hills. The clouds, some soft
And white like banks of snow, some black
Like ebon mountains, silver fringed,
Now loom in sullen masses, cold
And grey. The bay is wrapped in gloom.
'Twas but an hour ago the Night,
Enchantress, cast her magic spell,
And far across the deep, dark waves
A stream of liquid silver flowed,
And dusky shadows played upon
Their sparkling crest. Where million stars
Shone bright like radiant gems, are clouds
Now mirrored, leaden clouds; or its Own rocky shore, so high and steep,
One hundred feet above the pines
Now low their tasselled heads. The vines
Creep slowly down the rocky steep,
To court the wavelet's fond caress
Amid the wreath of foliage as [illegible]. Yet still the waters chant
Their dirge-like song. The fairy waves
Move slowly up the pebbled shore
To kiss the amorous vines, and then
With weary sighs retire again
Into the mighty deep. But, see!
Far in the east a rosy light,
The harbinger of day, illumes
The sky. 'Tis but a moment 'till
The sun with gorgeous splendor glides
Upon the scene. Great Artist, 'tis
Thy magic brush transforms the earth.
And what a change! What warmth and fire
And light and shade and brilliant dyes
Are now infused in our cold earth,
Magician at thy touch. The sky
Now blushes at her loveliness.
The rosy cloudlet smiles at its
Twin sister cloud that floats upon
The silvery diamond sprinkled waves.
A chill grey mist now wrapped in flame,
Rolls like a cloud half fire, half smoke,
From off the dewy earth to join
Its kindred in the sky. The trees
Are bathed in mellow light; and when
The wind sweeps through the burnished leaves,
The little harps of gold, bemuse
The Master's touch, roll forth
Sweet silvery strains that melt and blend
With warbling notes and rippling trills
Of winged choristers. The rill,
The little crystal brook, that flows
With many a sinuous curve,
Now leaping o'er its pebbly floor,
And slowly winds its playful course
Throughout the deep and wild ravine,
Shoots back the glad refrain.
The rose-flushed sky now floods the earth
With warmer hues of brilliant light
That blend with dusky purple shades
Among the caves and wooded banks
Along the rugged, rocky shore.
The bay is one vast sheet of flame,
Of quivering, ruby flame, now dyed
To deepest purple—velvet soft—
Now flaming with richest crimson, now
A sea of liquid gold it lies,
A dream of loveliness sublime,
A heavenly inspiration.
And see! The rose flushed sky takes fire;
And flames leap madly on from cloud
To cloud in wildest splendor of
A minute conflagration; then
With magic swiftness pales again
To soft warm light. The sun resumes
Her heavenly hues. The trees and fields
Exchange their crimson robes for fresh
Cool green that crystal waters lave.

SATISFIED JEALOUSY.

IF ALL MEN WERE LIKE HER HUSBAND WHAT A HAPPY WORLD THIS WOULD BE.

From the St. Paul Herald.

The worst case of suspicion and jealousy in the Northwest has just been cured, the patient being the wife of a well-known travelling man. She had noticed that her husband never brought his grip home with him, but always left it at the store when he came in from a trip, and in her jealousy she imagined it to be filled with love letters, appointments of meeting with virtuous fair ones, etc., etc. A few days since, while her husband was on a trip through Dakota, she went down to the store and approaching the porter said:

'John, you like to make a dollar honestly when you can, don't you?'

'Oh. yes'm,'

'You know where my husband keeps his grip when he comes in don't you?'

Yes'm. He throws it down in the corner of the office an' leaves it there.'

'Well, look here, John. He will be in on the Northern Pacific train to-morrow morning, and if at the earliest opportunity you slip his grip out of the house and bring it up to me I'll give you a dollar. You can bring it back again in half an hour.'

The porter consented, and two days later presented himself at the drummer's residence with the grip in his hand. He explained that he had not had the opportunity to carry it away, and giving him a seat in the parlor, the woman carried her prize to the bed room and with set teeth and a pale face, opened it. The first thing she encountered was a well worn pocket Bible, thumbed and showing the marks of much handling, then she dug out a soiled shirt, some unchaste socks, comb, hair brush, and then she found an envelope. Then she opened eagerly and read as follows:

FARGO, D. T., Sept. 1. 1884.—Mr. William ——, Dear Sir: Your monthly assessment of fifty cents for the support of the Young Men's Christian Association (Bible fund) is now due, and the earnest interest you have always taken in the work assures me that you will promptly remit the amount. You will be pleased to learn that the good cause progresses rapidly, as you predicted it would in your address delivered here a few weeks since. Yours,

A. W. EDWARDS, Secretary.

This drove much of the hard, stony look from her face, but she continued her search. She fished out some tracts, a bottle of pop, a Francis Murphy temperance pledge a bottle of Dr. Surepop's corn destroyer, a bottle of Prof. Gitthere's bunion pacifier some more impure socks, and beneath all in the bottom of the grip, a letter sealed stamped and ready for the mail addressed to 'Miss Georgie Gray, St. Paul, Minn.'

The superscription was in her husband's well known hand writing, and again the stony look came into her eyes and the patent bosom heaved with emotion. Her teeth gritted together and her breath came as hard as three-year-old New England cider.

'Oh, the wretch!' she cried in her anguish.

'My suspicions are too well founded! Georgie Grey! Oh! If I had the—the—the thing, I'd—I'd—I'd—Oh! That is too much! too much!' and she gave away to a flood of tears.

When she had calmed herself she tore the letter open and read as follows:

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 19.—Miss GRAY: Your note asking me to meet you in Rice park Saturday evening was handed me by a district messenger boy this morning. In reply permit me to say you have mistaken the man. You may not be aware of the that I am a married man, and am blessed with the love and confidence of the best and sweetest little wife in America. Rather than betray that confidence, or dishonor that love, I would suffer ten thousand deaths. In my eyes there is but one woman in the world, and she it is who greets me with a pleasant smile and a wifely kiss every time I come from a trip. I shall not tell her of this, for I do not want her to know that one of her sex could be depraved and lost to all sense of honor as this act has proven you to be.

WILLIAM ——.'

Then she laid down on the bed and sobbed for a while, and then closed the grip, took it to the porter and asked him to return it to the store and say nothing of what had occurred. As he entered the store the drummer stepped from behind a pile of goods and asked:

'Did she go through it, John?'

'Guess so. She took it into another room an' was gone half an hour before she brought it back.'

'How did she act?'

'Well she was smilin' awfully but looked teary like around the eyes. She gimme another dollar an' said this world would be a happy world if all men were like her husband.'

'That's business, John; here's the V I promised you, and now let's go across the street and take something. When you come back dump that stuff and put my things back in the grip, for I go out to morrow morning. I'll never forget you John for putting me onto this,' and they slipped out and disappeared behind the green shade of a convenient saloon.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, languor, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this recent and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak deceptions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

WHY HE DOESN'T LIKE HIM.

Not being able to say a word against the moral character or the ability of the Reform leaders, Messrs. Blake, Mackenzie and Mowat, the Toronto News attacks them in another way. As an offset to the more serious derelictions of Sir John and other Conservative leaders, it says of Mr. Blake, that whether it be owing to studious habits or mental preoccupation, or constitutional reserve and shyness, Mr. Blake is almost repellant where he ought to be most genial and attractive.

Such an opinion simply shows that the writer knows very little about Mr. Blake. Neither he, Mr Mackenzie nor Mr. Mowat have the rollicking daredevil manners of Sir John A. Macdonald, and some of his colleagues, but they have at least as much honesty, and are as leal and true-hearted as any member of the Tory government. We are inclined to think that a smirking, smiling, jolly exterior often covers a treacherous and revengeful heart, as the past record of the most prominent man in the Conservative ranks to-day abundantly testifies.

The Reform leaders may not be drunkards, or libertines, or even clowns or jesters, but they possess the respect of the masses, and of all intelligent men, and the love and esteem of all who are favored with an intimate acquaintances. And no one so favored has felt, or is likely to feel, a loss of self-respect from such intimacy.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE "very latest" in regard to Sir John's visit to England is that he was summoned by the Imperial Cabinet to give them pointers on the Irish question.

LEADING Conservatives in Quebec admit that there is some truth in the report that Sir John's mission to England has reference to a serious difference that has arisen between the Governor General and his Ministers on the Pacific Railway policy. Some of them even go so far as to use threats about the Letellier case being repeated with His Excellency.

THE COUNTRY is puzzled about the Guy Fawkes matinee in Quebec. The organ of the Irish "Nationalists" intimates it is not the work of Rossa, and hints that it knows how and why it was done. Some say it is the act of workmen who had a quarrel with the contractors, some that the latter expect to get enormous extras to cover their loss. Others think that is a political dodge to postpone the meeting of the Legislature. It is to be hoped that the desperadoes, whoever they are, may be speedily caught and have their guilt brought home.

THE LONDON Free Press gets considerably muddled in its efforts to make things tally. Referring to the English wheat crop a few days ago it said:

> "When wheat is sold for four shillings the farmer loses a shilling a bushel. So in this country—a bushel of wheat at an average crop cannot be profitably raised short of a minimum price of $1.

A few days later on, possibly thinking this sort of "political economy" would hardly square with the party teachings on the subject it sapiently remarks:

> "Those who tell him (the farmer) that he is losing money at wheat growing because he can only get 70 cents or 75 cents a bushel, are false guides."

When we survey such a direct contradiction from the same pen in so short a time, we pity the sorrows of Tory scribes and see in them a proof of the old saying, "The way of transgressors is hard."

THE BARLEY MARKET.

OSWEGO, Oct. 14 —A circular issued here by a leading barley firm on Saturday, says:—There has been more activity in the market for the past two days than previously this season. So many houses have started, or are ready to start malting, that it has created quite a demand for barley, and though malsters are buying only for present wants, yet in the aggregate the sales foot up to a respectable amount, somewhere in the vicinity of 80 to 100,000 bushels, comprised of 50,900 No. 2 at 71c, spot. and to arrive, 10,000 No. 2 at 71½c. sample, 5,000 on sample at 72. and 10,000 extra two on the spot to arrive at 75, 10,000 on spot at 75. The market to-day is steady with more firmness manifested on the part of some holders. A load of No. 2 on the spot just sold at 71. Extra 2 is salable at 75, hold 76.

CHARGED WITH POISONING.

A WOMAN ARRESTED FOR ADMINISTERING POISON—TAKING HER HUSBAND'S HORSE.

Some time a couple living near Murvale separated. Before this, the wife went to Kingston and purchased a buggy, which she claimed as her own but did not take it with her when she left. On Saturday the husband missed both the buggy and a horse. and telegraphed to Kingston. A search was made and the horse and the missing property found. They had been left at the Albion Hotel by the wife and a friend The horse and buggy are now in the custod of the police.

Julia Anny Seelye, the woman now referred to above was arrested and is now in police quarters charged with poisoning her husband. Alfred Seelye. a hotel keeper at Murvale, on Oct. 6th. He says that the family and others were drinking light beverages which he refused. He went to bed, and his wife brought him a glass of ginger ale to drink. He refused it, but was induced to take a drink of beer. He was seized later on with vomiting and twitching. He suffered from cramps. He had been poisoned, and as evidence of it, he has left with the chief of police a lager mug which contain traces of paris green. He had been given too heavy a dose and vomited it. Mrs. Seelye is young and her husband is old. There has been a dispute regarding property.

In you should be so unfortunate as to Burn Scald, or Wound yourself in any way, the proper thing to keep clean and heal it is McGregor and Parke's Carbolic Cerate. A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Cure. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 ents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

CANADIAN BRIGANDS

VISIT TWO FARMERS, ROB, AND BIND THEM TO THE BED POSTS.

On Saturday night last at about 12 p.m two men came to Mr. Hill's place, concession 7, township of Morris, and asked for admission, which was refused. The door was broken in with a plank and the men came in and seized him, one presenting a revolver and demanding his money or his life. One man watched him, the other searched the house and stole $20 from a chest in an adjoining room. They then tore up a bag and tied Hill hand and foot to the bed post and left. Soon after they got to Mr. McArthur's, four lots farther on. He got up and let them in, when they seized him, at the same time presenting revolvers at him and asking for money. He told them where to find it. From a drawer they took between $70 and $80. Among the money was a fifty dollar bill. They also tied McArthur to the bed. Afterwards they got some bread and meat and made a hearty meal and departed.

————"Why! Whats the matter?"

Lady—(With face enveloped in roll of hot cloths)—"Oh I'm crazy with that Neuralgia that continually troubles me."

————"Well, how foolish! Why don't you go to Jas. Clarke & Co's Drug Store and get a bottle of Fluid Lightning? It cured me in less than one minute. I always keep a bottle in the house. It costs 25 cents.

BELLEVILLE BURGLARS.

In Gaol at Whitby Charged with Stealing a Gold Watch and Chain.

"Mickie" McFarlane and Frederick Conlin, from Belleville, are in gaol at Whitby on a charge of burglary. They were committed last week with another pal who gave his name as James Galden. McFarlane went under the name of Geo. Wallace and Conlin was known as Fred. Wright until Chief McKinnon, of this city, in response to a summons, went up last week and identified the two Belleville boys. Conlin pleaded guilty to the charge but as the others protested their innocence the police magistrate sent them all up to a higher court. The particulars of the burglary are these :—Sometime during the day on the 27th September last the three prisoners sneaked into the dwelling of a Mr. Gibson, situate just outside the town and stole a gold watch and chain. Their presence was detected before leaving the house, and the alarm was at once given. The neighbors turned out and gave chase, Conlin, seeing that he was about to be taken, turned and fired several shots at his pursuers, and McFarlane drew a revolver as he gave up exhausted, but they were both securely placed in the lock-up.

Conlin was a waif on the streets of Belleville for the last three or four years but McFarlane is a more hardened criminal, having served three terms in the Central Prison.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Fernham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

The opera house was crowded last evening to the doors to witness the production of Sims' famous drama, Lights o'London. The company is a good one, and the hearty reception accorded them last night was not unmerited. The scenic effects were grand, and delighted the audience with every rise of the curtain, thus demonstrating the favor of the public for fine stage equipments. Harold Armytage, (James Neal,) the prodigal son and noble-hearted husband, played his part well, and each appearance on the stage was greeted with rapturous applause. The character of Clifford Armytage was cleverly portrayed by F. C. Huebner, while plenty of humerous acting was imparted by Harry Harwood and Miss Marian Strickland, who kept the audience at times in the best of spirits. Several other characters were well taken, and, withal, last night's performance may be claimed among the best ever given in the opera house. The same piece will be reproduced to-night with all their beautiful scenery, and those who have not seen Lights o'London ought not to miss this opportunity.

To-morrow night the "Merchant of Venice" will be played, for the first time in Belleville in many years, by a company which is highly spoken of by the American press.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. Clarke & Co. cor. Front and Bridge Streets.

To-Day's Probabilities.

Light to moderate north and east winds; fine cool weather, with frosts at night in some localities.

CARRYING WAR

Into the enemy's country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietary goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit.—Exchange.

Frederick Payne, of Kingston, arrested for participating in the assault upon George Hoggard on August 18th., by Chief McKinnon, was allowed to go by the officer, as he soon learned that the Kingston police had picked out the wrong man. He denied that he was implicated in the row, and was not even in the hotel when it occurred. The chief of police returned home last night.

The three Kingstonians in gaol for two months awaiting their trial on a charge of assaulting Geo. Hoggard were brought down from gaol this morning, but the crown stated that they were not ready to go on with the trial. Mr. Hoggard's physician stated by Friday he would probably be strong enough to give evidence either at his own house or at the court, so the prisoners were sent back on the hill until that time.

LEGAL AND LITERARY SOCIETY.

The regular weekly meeting of this society was held last evening. Mr. Adam Scott in the chair. It was decided to alter the present constitution as follows :—That the debates during the coming session be conducted on the parliamentary principle and that the constitution be amended accordingly, and a committee be appointed for that purpose. This change will necessitate a large increase in the membership, and will afford a better opportunity for discussing the leading topics of the day. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution, which will be submitted at the next meeting. The nomination of officers for the ensuing year was as follows.—Mr. J. J. B Flint was re-elected president by acclamation, and W. H. Wallbridge, jr., secretary. The following gentlemen were admitted as members:—Messrs. A. Coleman, Henry J. Stewart, R. Orr, D. Bleecker, S. L. S. Titus, and J. Hamilton. The next meeting will be held at the law office of Messrs. Wallbridge & Marskell on Monday evening 20th inst.

HASTINGS RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the 49th Hastings Rifles was held last night at Major Hambly's, Lt. Col. Brown in the chair. The gathering was only intended as a private mess dinner, the only guests being one or two former members of the "old rifles," but the meeting of old veterans was characterized by a friendly spirit and general cordiality of the all those around the festive board. After the usual regimental routine, a capital spread was provided by Major Hambly and a few hours were pleasantly spent. A resolution was passed congratulating Major Gordon on his recovery from his recent illness and upon his appointment to the Police Magistracy of Trenton. Among those present was Capt. Harrison, who had come from Ottawa to be present with his friends on the occasion of their annual meeting.

O. Bndls, of Manchester, Ontario Co, N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanman's Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water at a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

Foretelling the weather is a useful science but relieving the effects of its sudden changes is a better one. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam cures coughs and colds, incident to its sudden changes.

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

A council of doctors declared Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of 372 Exchange St. Buffalo, incurable. Her liver was badly disordered; she vomited green matter, could retain no food, skin yellow and full of humors. She was rapidly sinking, but Burdock Blood Bitters cured her.

MR. CHALLEN'S DEATH.

Continuation of the Evidence Before Coroner Farley.

CONDENSED EVIDENCE.

The inquest was resumed last evening in the Council Chamber at 7:35.

T. C. CLARKE, sworn—Was standing on the bank steps at the time watching the train; all at once saw the rear end of the delivery wagon hoisted up in front of the engine and disappear. Ran across track behind the train. About ½ a minute from the time the engine was opposite me till I crossed track. Saw men lift Mr. Challen up. Judge the train was going 12 miles an hour. Engine was near the curve when the whistle sounded for brakes, Could just see it when train stopped. Heard Mr. C. say his leg was broken, and ask if the bell was ringing. The rear end of the train was in line with the north end of the bank when it stopped. Train took 19 seconds to go a little more than its own length. Bell was ringing all the time. Think the parties driving had not control of the horse or they would not have crossed as they did. The time was a little after 7:30.

PHILIP HART, sworn—Saw the train pass up on the evening in question. Was at corner of Bridge and Pinnacle St. 24 or 25 minutes after 7. The rate was about as fast as a decent road horse—a mile in 4 or 4½ minutes. Remarked that it was going fast, but the cars did not appear to go as fast as the engine had done. Dr. Gibson said it they killed anybody by running so fast they would have to pay for it. Engine was exhausting steam.

THE DOCTOR'S EVIDENCE.

DR. TRACY, sworn—Saw Mr. Challen about five minutes to 8 on the night of the accident, and attended him till he died. Believe the injury and the shock to his nervous system caused his death. Neither the treatment or loss of blood caused, or hastened, it. He would certainly have died in any case. Leg was crushed from the kneecap up, and an incised wound caused by a piece of the bone projecting outward. His boot heel and sock were worn through by dragging and there was a hole in his ankle. From appearance am sure a wheel of the train had gone over him. He never rallied from the first shock. He recovered consciousness after the amputation and spoke to his wife. Saw the street lamp at the corner lighted at 25 minutes past 7 and again near 8.

THE CONDUCTOR'S TESTIMONY.

E. J. HAYS—Was conductor on train at the time of accident, stood on fifth car from front; 7 front cars were empty, 5 rear ones loaded with cordwood. Train was going as near as I could tell about 3 or 4 miles an hour. When opposite the white house south of the west part of Hotel St. saw the horse apparently running away—saw it quite plain. In an instant the horse cleared the engine on the left and the boy after him. Ran forward to warn the driver but he whistled for brakes and reversed the engine as I reached it. The train was stopped in a few seconds. The horse was on the run when I saw him. Assisted to lift Mr. Challen up, and heard him say, 'Oh, my leg!" and that the horse was uncontrollable. Had the horse been under control where I first saw him he could have been guided up or down Pinnacle St. Steam was shut off and engine reversed 50 yards from the accident. Had no bell cord—not usual to use one when shunting, and the accident could not have been averted anyway. Have 22 years' experience on the road. It would not be possible starting where we did that night, with that train to get up a speed faster than six miles an hour on any part of the grade. The engine was working hard. We could not have stopped in time to avert the accident even if we were only going one mile an hour.

REV. MR. RICHARDSON—See trains on Pinnacle St. frequently. Saw Mr. Challen in Dr. Tracy's surgery. From what I have seen I believe that a train such as the one in question must start up the grade at more than five or six miles an hour in order to cross Hotel St. at three or four. Trains have run slower since the accident.

THE BRAKESMAN'S VERSION.

WM. MCCREARY—sworn—Was brakesman on the train when the accident occurred. Stood near the brake on top of second car from the engine. Saw nothing of the affair till I saw the horse and box appear on the left side of the train. Did not notice whether the wheels slipped or not that night. It was perhaps half a minute before the whistle sounded for brakes. More difficult to apply brakes on flat cars than others. Train stopped as soon as possible. There was another brakesman near the rear of the train. If the driving wheels slipped going up grade the weight of the train would not affect the speed much unless the slipping continued. Have been brakesman four years. Heard Mr. Challen ask to be taken to Dr. Tracy's. Mr. Challen was lying across the seat. Do not see how the engine could have caused his injuries by running over him in that position. Two wheels of the wagon were smashed.

HOW IT APPEARED TO THE BOY.

VICTOR MURRELL, sworn—Had charge of Mr. Ritchie's delivery wagon. Mr. Challen got in at his house. He took the reins when I left a parcel. Stopped last at Dr. Eakins'. Horse was trotting and holding back. Did not see the train till we got past the bank. Was not on the lookout. Mr. Challen was driving. On account of the seat being under the cover he could not see the train as quickly as I could. Had no time to think. Grabbed the lines and tried to stop the horse. Saw there must be a collision and got up intending to jump, but think I was thrown out. Was not hurt in the least. Landed on the culvert north of Hotel street. When I got up the train was nearly stopped and I was beside the last car. Think the horse went faster when we got near the train. Had driven the horse about six months. Did not hear the bell ring. The horse is quiet but afraid of the cars. Has been frightened before. The thing was done so quickly and I was so frightened that I did not think what was best to do. Could not have prevented the accident after I saw the train.

The inquest was adjourned till Thursday 16th inst., at 7:30 p.m. and the jurors agreed to meet on the scene of the accident at 10 a.m. that day.

THE MURCHISON SOCIETY.

Dr. James, Vice President, read a paper before the Murchison Society last night, giving a short historical sketch of the Church of England in Belleville, treating more particularly upon St. Thomas' church and its associations, from the building of the first church to the present time. The paper will be supplemented at a future time. Such records are very interesting and will be valuable in the future. The secretary laid on the table a handsome volume of the United States Geological Survey 1880 81, presented to the society by the director of the survey. This is a very valuable work as it contains a large amount of information of great interest to mining engineers and others, and is illustrated with a number of very fine plates and engravings. It will form an important addition to the library. Additions to the museum: — Swainson's buzzard, buteo swainsoni, Mr. Wm. Severn; rusty blackbird, scolecophagus ferrugineus, Dr. J. T. Bell; crowned warbler, dendrœca coronata Mr. H. Greenleaf; viscid salamander, plethodon glutinosu, Mr. R. Bogle; mushroom coral, fungia sp., Mr. Wm. TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

A numerously attended and representative convention of temperance workers took place in this city on the 13th inst. It comprised the ministers and delegates of the city churches, and also a large number of ministers and delegates from the surrounding county and towns. They unanimously formed themselves into a Branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance.

The following officers were elected :—President, Dr. Coleman; Vice-Presidents, All the clergy of the city and county, ex-officio; the Presidents of all local temperance organizations; Mr. Hugh Walker, Belleville, Mr. Austin, Trenton, and Mr. T. W. Dannet—Sec.-Tres., Rev. E. W. Sibbald; Asst. Secy., F S Wallbridge; Executive Committee, Messrs. W. D. McArthur, Wm. McKeown, Wilson Cummings, J. G. Boyce, W. J. Butler, Wm. Johnson, — Biggs, A. G. Northrop, Wm. Vandusen.

A resolution was passed calling for the organizing of local committees for every ward, township and polling division, and suggesting the formation of temperance societies in connection with churches.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by [illegible] exhausted nature just when she needs [illegible]

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED. The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Poor Pauline's face shone with gratitude.

Taking the negress' hand, so elated was she at the hope of escape from her persecutor, she kissed it.

'Dear, good Keziah, I shall owe you more than life.'

The Creole drew her almost roughly back.

The sight sickened her.

She, Juliette, the innocent sufferer of a cruel wrong, might have an excuse for her behavior.

What had this woman?

None, save gold.

As Pauline had scarcely slept the previous night, because so of her grief, she could hardly do so now for joyous expectancy.

She felt so sure of success because she had prayed for it.

Had she not been so sanguine, the very arrangements for her flight might have created her suspicions,

Instead, her courage and hope grew stronger when the next day passed and night approached, unmolested by Stuart Loring.

He had sent them by Keziah the offer a change in their mode of travelling.

They had accepted it naming after the heat of the day was passed.

About an hour therefore before nightfall, the Creole sent word they would ride.

Hearing from the negress that the horses were ready, they descended.

Pauline was much agitated, but for the hope of escape she must never look upon the American; if did she, she felt she must faint or die.

But he did not approach.

One of the men helped them into their saddles, and without a word they were allowed to ride forward, while the remainder of the party and the caravan brought up in the rear.

They proceeded almost in silence, for Pauline was too nervously excited for conversation, until reaching a suitable spot for their bivouac, Keziah came after them to tell them that Stuart Loring had called a halt for the night.

'Thank Heaven,' ejaculated Pauline. 'Suspense is even worse than failure, and see how well wooded it is, How the trees darken the ground; that will befriend us, Let us at once return to our prison. I trust it will not hold us long.'

As dismounting they passed to the caravan, Stuart Loring stood by.

He did not, however, address them.

Bowing low he stepped aside and let them pass on in silence.

Three hours later the sisters sat in darkness, the younger trembling with excitement, noiselessly the negress entered.

'All is ready, missy,' she said, resting her finger on her lip. 'Hush, no time is to be lost. The horses are waiting.'

Pauline arose with a low cry of delight, 'And our gaolers?' she asked breathlessly.

'They are all asleep 'cept the guard and he paces backward and forward. We must watch, missy, and when he goes back, one of us must slip out, the others must wait wait till he go again.'

'You shall go first; Keziah,' remarked Juliette, I last.'

'Very well, missy; said the negress, nodding.

Approaching the door, they listened.

They heard the tread of the sentinel, then it retreated.

Keziah opened the door, glided noiselessly forth, closed it and was gone.

'What a farce,' reflected the Creole, with a contemptuous curl of the lip.

A space after, Pauline, successfully—strangely successfully—followed the negress.

A moment later the Creole did so,

To the alarm of Pauline, who was watching her from the trees, she stood on the top step and looked around.

The foliage was so dense that it permitted but a dim light to penetrate.

By it she could see the dusky forms of the men, who she knew did not sleep lying about the smouldering fire.

'A contemptible farce', she repeated indignantly, ashamed of participating in it. 'Why does Stuart Loring permit it? Has he,' she added as the idea flashed across her, 'any hidden intent?'

She had heard the sentinel, who had kindly delayed his return, until he believed the last fugitive had departed, coming back.

Swiftly she then joined the others among the trees.

'Whatever made you stay, Juliette?' inquired Pauline.

'Hush! Let us depart as once.'

On such an occasion they needed no help.

Speedily they were in thir saddles and gliding slowly and cautiously away.

For half an hour the fugitives had ridden, when Pauline dropping back to the Creole's side, for previously she had taken the lead, asked whether they had better not consider which direction to take.'

'To me all are the same;' was the rejoinder; I am alike ignorant respecting them.

Just then Keziah rode up.

'Hist, missy, hist!' she exclaimed, raising her finger.

'What is it?' asked Paulice, turning pale.

'Listen.'

The sisters bending their heads obeyed.

'Distinctly on the still night air came the sound of hoofs behind them,

'We are pursued,' cried Pauline. 'Quick quick, let us fly, We may reach some rancho or settlement yet before we are overtaken, Come.

Swiftly she flew past.

Juliette and Keziah followed.

Rapidly they went, but whenever they paused a space to listen, they found the hoofs gaining on them.

They soon saw escape was out of the question, for their horses began strangely to flag.

Only Keziah knew they had been ridden all day, while those which pursued had been the led ones, and fresh.

Yet they went on, though Pauline was nearly falling from her horse through dissapointment and fear.

'It is useless; we cannot outstrip them, Pauline,' exclaimed the Creole.

'Juliette, I will never give in, never though death awaited me in front,' answered the other, resolutely.

Her face was flushed her eyes brilliant.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience, says an eminent Physician, convinces me" that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the wasted by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column

THE WEALTHIEST WOMAN.

MISS MARY GARRETT PROBABLY THE RICHEST UNMARRIED LADY LIVING.

Washington Special.

If any of the estimates, even the lowest, placed upon the value of the estate of the late John W. Garrett, the great railroad president, proves to be correct, his only daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Garratt will be the richest unmarried lady in this country. The estimates run all the way from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, the latter is quite as likely to be correct as the former. With the Garrett's a dollar means at least 100 cents. There has never been anything like 'water' in any of their securities, the aim of their work being to make actual and not apparent value for everything they own.

Miss Garrett received as her share the elegant and costly residence at the corner of Monument and Calander streets, with all the plate, furniture and picture it contains. This property is just now undergoing extensive improvements, and will when completed, be one of the finest structures in the city. The picture gallery alone will be worth a large fortune, and she was also to be the owner of Monte Bello, one of the finest and most extensive of pieces of property owned by Mr. Garratt and of the beautiful Garreit cottage at Deer Park, where her father died. In addition to this property, Miss Garratt will also come in for her third of the personal estate.

Miss Wolff of New York has until now deen considered the wealthiest of unmarried lady in America, but Miss Garrett's fortune will be even greater than hers Miss Wolff is a maiden over fifty years of age who has devoted her years to deeds of charity.

Miss Garrett is only 28 yearsof age but has probably had more experience than any lady of her years in the country. As her father's confidential secretary she had ample opportunity to study his affairs, and during the latter days of his life she transacted much of his business.

It is stated of her that on several occasions she noted the expressions made by great railroad magnates while conversing with her father, and afterwards committed them to paper for future refference. Miss Garrett is an expert stenographer, and her knowledge of this art has proven very useful both to her father and herself.

Mr. R. A. Harrison, Chemist and Druggist Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia Impure Blood, Pimples on the face, Biliousness and Constipation—such cases having come under my personal observation."

ALMOST BURIED ALIVE

HOW A SCEPTICAL CLERGYMAN STOPPED AN UNCONSCIOUS MURDER.

A thrilling sensation has been experienced at Bridgewater. England recently. A man named George Chilcot, laborer, living in close proximity to Wemdom Church, fell into a trance on Friday, the 5th ult. The man has a wife and large family. On the day he fell into the trance they thought he had died very suddenly. They ordered a coffin for him, which was made and the supposed deceased put into it. They next communicated with the vicar of Wembdon, the Rev. A. Newman who expressed a wish to see the supposed corpse on their telling him the facts. After seing the body he said it was not cold enough to satisfy him of actual death having taken place, and he declined to allow it to be buried. The family were intent upon fixing a day for interment but the vicar would not give way. However, the supposed corpse was allowed to remain in the coffin, and was taken into the church where it was visited frequently by the rev. gentlemen and others. The body continued warm, and about eight o'clock on Monday morning, the 9th ult there was some slight movement of the body in the coffin. At last it was deemed prudent to take the man and the coffin away from the church to his house, when he was taken out of the coffin and placed in a bed. He slowly recovered, but was extremely weak. A medical man, Dr. Marsden, was called in. The man after recovering from his eight days' trance did not speak for three days. He is now able to walk about his house, and is 'picking up a little,' but still continues to be very weak.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup or spring diseases, langour, lassitud, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public, and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRI O

THE PLOT AND THE PROMINENT PLAYERS.

The labors of the Bribery Commission ended on Monday. The object of the Commission was to thoroughly investigate the matter, and that the accused parties might have a fair and impartial opportunity to exculpate themselves.

In the case of Wilkinson, no sane man can have the least doubt, after reading the evidence, that he was assuredly guilty of the offence charged against him, and that he is a man who has such low ideas on the subject of politics, and also morality, that even Sir John Macdonald would be expected to hesitate before risking the honor of his party in such hands. Very little apology or defence has been put in for him—indeed, while he persistently kept out of the way, in order that he might not be personally examined, any such apology or defence would have been useless.

Mr. Bunting's share in the transaction has been a discreditable one. His avoidance of the Commission, the position taken by the paper of which he is managing director, throwing dust in the people's eyes, trying to prove black white, and shielding the guilty by a course of mendacity unparalleled in journalism, blackening, misrepresenting and defaming those who saved the country from everlasting shame and disgrace, cover him with obloquy in the eyes of every unprejudiced person.

As to Kirkland, his was more the sin of ignorance in thinking that American practices in such cases obtained here. He was duped by Wilkinson and others into the belief that a few thousand put "where they would do the most good," would change the timber policy of the government in such a way as to ensure him a golden harvest.

A desperate effort was made to whitewash lawyer Meek. Any amount of tall swearing was indulged in to that end. Deadly enemies, politically and otherwise, promulgated falsehoods about McKim, Balfour, and Cascadden. It was discovered that these men, hitherto respected by friend and foe, and entrusted with the suffrages of their constituents, were forgers, murderers, and double-dyed villains. The financial embarrassment of the first named, was construed into the occasion of a warrant being issued for his arrest on a charge of forgery. This warrant was held till it was known he was in Toronto, and then the officers of the law invaded the sanctity of his home and did not scruple to insult the ladies of the family. It will be remembered that he at once returned, faced his accusers and came off triumphantly vindicated.

Still the Mail and other partizan organs persisted all through the course of the investigation in recalling this and other exploded charges, and pretended that they had been proven. A few parties whose personal hatred and party bias never could let them see anything but wrong in the actions or motives of these men were brought to Toronto to blast their reputations and break the force of their testimony by swearing they would not believe them on oath. Men of undoubted integrity, and of the best standing, of long intimate acquaintance, testified that McKim, Balfour and Cascaden enjoyed the confidence of their neighbors and that their word could be relied on, but have thereby earned the abuse and villification of the organ of the gentleman's party.

The whole course of the Mail has been "no case, abuse the opposing counsel!"

We might refer to the peculiar conduct of Conservative politicians in this case. First, they were eager to exculpate themselves, though even then their stories don't agree; second they tried to show that it was a worse crime to detect and entrap the conspirators, than to bribe a whole legislature, and third, their determined attempt to shelter the knaves and thwart the course of justice—but for the present we forbear. We may say, however, that if McKim, Balfour, and the rest had been criminals and had accepted the bribes instead of leading rogues to put their heads into the noose, the Tory leader of the Opposition and his friends would have accepted the situation without any qualms of conscience, the rogues would have been rewarded, their tools shelved, and the result attributed to dissatisfaction with Mowat's government. Truly it may be said of these men, "Seeing, they saw not," (when questioned in court) "and though they had ears they heard not,"—what might compromise them). They perfectly exemplify the doctrine of expediency.

JAMAICA NOT WANTED.

It has become apparent that some at least among the Conservatives are enamoured with the prospect of the annexation of Jamaica. Speaking on this subject the Toronto Telegram says:

> It is suggested that a plan of union with Jamaica may be suddenly sprung upon parliament at its next session, and that Sir John Macdonald may have gone home to ask for imperial co-operation in some form for the admission of Jamaica. Before this country annexes any other country the people should be given an opportunity of saying whether they are willing or unwilling. Confederation of the provinces was sprung upon parliament without being submitted to the people. Some of the provinces were bullied into it and others were bribed. If Sir John thought he could retain power by bringing the Jamaicaites, in the Jamaicaites would be brought. But our people do not want them. This country is quite big enough as it is, and our representatives have all that they can do to take care of it without adding an island in the West Indies to their responsibilities. So far as trade between Canada and Jamaica is concerned arrangements can be made for its extension without the two countries going into partnership. Jamaica's object in seeking admission to the Confederation is purely selfish. Canada cannot afford to provide for all her poor relations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"AN ELECTIVE SENATE."

II.

In my last, a model or theoretical senate was depicted, the Senate as it might and ought to have been. This time it is my desire to discuss it as it is in all its hideousness and deformity; a lazar house for diseased Tories, a morgue for the exposure of men long since dead to the living questions of the day. In Friday's letter your 'typo' made me say several things, the responsibility of which I would not like to bear, as in speaking of the Senate, it reads 'such an institution implies the domination of the law' where it should say 'of the few.' Quite a characteristic difference.

Our Senate is a body of seventy-six men who have, theoretically, been chosen to fairly represent the various provinces in the confederation. How successfully this idea has been carried out, we shall learn from the following figures:—Of these August Senators, 23 represent Ontario; 23, Quebec; 24, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island taken collectively; and 6 Manitoba and British Columbia. Perhaps the best example we can get of an equitable representation is that shown in the House of Commons, which is Ontario 88, Quebec 58, N.S., N.B., and P.E.I. 38, Man. and B.C. 11. A glance at these figures shews the shameless way in which Ontario has been treated. Ontario, the brightest of the seven, the educational, manufacturing and enterprising province, to receive but the same representation as Quebec, and less than the Eastern Provinces. A fair example of Tory justice. If the other provinces received the same attention comparatively as Ontario, they would only be able to boast of the following number of lame excuses for British 'mugwumps.'

Quebec 16, ⅓ of present number: N.S., N.B. and P.E.I., 10, ¼ of present number; Manitoba and B.C., 3, ½ of present number.

Again, no less than three Dominion Senators are members of the Legislative Council of Quebec. Ontario would be very apt to receive consideration and fair treatment at the hands of this body.

It is not our intention to enter into the question of the well known disparity in numbers between the Conservatives and Liberals in the Senate chamber. That fact has well nigh passed into a proverb, and it will be sufficient to say that as a Chinese hospital would naturally be filled with Chinese invalids, so the bunks and shelves of this combination Tory hospital and vault will be filled with Tory cripples, sadly wounded as to reputation and honor and covered with Tory coffins through whose glass face pieces stare the empty sockets and grin the toothless jaws of the mummies of a century ago. 'But there are some Liberals there,' you say. Certainly, just enough salt added to the mass to prevent complete putrefaction. It is very amusing to trace out the reasons for, and methods of, drydocking some of these old hulks. There is scarcely a Tory there now whose 'shelving' has not been attended by more or less political knavery. Space forbids a reference to many of these serio-comedies, but we might refer, in brief, to the trials of Josiah Burr Plumb, one of Canada's impromptu peers. This man was one of those useful nobodies, devoid of conscience or principle, rendered necessary by a rule like Macdonald or Walpoles. Despised by his opponents, pitied by his friends, he was one of the general tools, scavengers and scapegoats of the Tory party. But he was required in the House, so before the election of '82 Sir John sent him up to the good Tory constituency of North Bruce to be returned, when to the infinite surprise of that truly good man and his pliant tool, even a patient Ontario riding 'kicked' and at an influential Tory mass meeting. Sir John was told by resolutions couched in plain, strong Saxon that they would have none of his addle headed echoes in North Bruce. So Plumb, ignominiously kicked out of the Tory nomination in North Bruce, was transpired to North Wellington, another Tory stronghold. After a vigorous protest the Tories nominated him to please their leader whom they slavishly follow, and his opponent, Mr. McMullen, was elected. I know personally of a great many Tories who refused to vote at all for such a numskull and, of no small number who voted straight for Mr. McMullen. So Burr Plumb, being rudely rejected by, and ejected from, two strong Conservative riding, now slunk back to his chief and whined for reward for services rendered. Now what could poor Sir John do? He had tried his best to procure him a seat in the Commons—and failed. Plumb lacked the morceau of brain requisite for a civil service clerkship. So all perplexed John A. could do was to raise him to the Senate where nothing but a subservient obedience to his master was required, and Plumb had a superabundance of that. But time's up. Only a word to Canadians. This Senate of yours is an expensive luxury; a home for the infirm and incurables of Toryism; a cancer eating at your vitals; a ridiculous attempt to ape the English Peerage; a helpless crowbar in the hands of Sir John to overthrow the temple of your liberties. I could speak of numberless slavish votes on the C. P. R. contract, the Scott Act and a hundred and one other questions but you know all about them. Let all true Canadians unite their voices, their influence and their votes, till the swelling, resistless chorus shall echo from heart to heart, from ballot box to ballot box, from province to province, 'The Senate must be ended or mended.'

TEACHERS IN SESSION.

Interesting Meeting of the North Hastings Association.

SCHOOL VENTILATION—TEMPERANCE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MADOC, Oct. 15.—The semi-annual meeting of the North Hastings Teachers' Association was held here last Thursday and Friday in the Model School. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Wm. McIntosh, I. P. S.; Vice-President, Miss McDermid; Secretary, Mr. J. Wallis; Treasurer, Mr. W. Clarke; Executive Committee, Mr. Morton, Mr. Minchin, Miss Britton, Miss Horkins, Mr. Moore; Auditors, Messrs. Adshead, Moore, and Minchin; Com on Library, Librarian, Messrs. Morton, Solmes, and Miss Belliss.

In the afternoon the convention met at 1.30. After roll-call Mr. Adshead introduced the subject, 'Some Expedients for Awakening Thought.' The speaker believed the first necessity in awakening thought was to awaken the interest. He recommended the use of objects by the children, and that the children be taught to examine them, to notice their differences, similarities and beauties for themselves. Mr. Adshead gave some excellent hints for the preparation of simple apparatus for illustration of geographical and other facts. Mr. Adshead's suggestions were warmly commended by Mr. McIntosh, who regretted that children were so often required to keep quiet while doing no work. Mr. Wallis then took up the subject of 'The Teacher's Day's Work,' dwelling on the the necessity of preparing lessons on the part of the teacher. A number of reasons, suggested by various teachers present, were noted on the blackboards, as to why this preparation should be given. After further discussion of the subject Mr. McIntosh then addressed the convention, chiefly on the subject of reading, giving many valuable suggestions. Children should not be allowed to read anything they do not understand, and should know the words at sight. The only thorough test of reading is that in which children are required to read at sight new combinations of previously learned words. As a rule special drills in articulation and pronunciation should be given, and the time assigned to a reading lesson should be required to give the substance of lessons. Teachers would do well to procure supplementary reading suited to the attainments of their pupils.

SCHOOL VENTILATION.

P. H. Bryce, M.A.M.D., Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, spoke for some time on the subject of school ventilation. It was shown that as a general thing, far less than an adequate supply of fresh air was supplied pupils in the public schools, and that the consequences were very serious to health and study. The necessity of supplying moisture to the air in a room was clearly shown. Dr. Bryce attributed the common winter cough so frequently noticed in a school-room, to the irritating influences of the dry air, which abstracts moisture from the throat of those breathing it. The drafts from under doors and from openings in the floor is the cause of the cold feet so often complained of, which in time produce headaches.

Statistics show that 50 per cent. of the sickness in the Hamilton schools was colds or headache, and that during the winter months, when defective ventilation, &c. is most felt, sickness in those schools increased 100 per cent.

He addressed a fairly large audience on 'The influence of our schools on the development of the race,' in the evening. The lecture was very instructive and interesting, Mr. A. F. Wood, M.P.P., occupied the chair.

The convention re-assembled on Friday.

It was decided that the time for holding the next promotion examination be permanently changed to March and October. The Auditors' Report was then read and adopted. The President read a communication from the Secretary of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union on the subject of temperance literature and text books in the public schools. Mr. W. H. Jenkins then dealt with the railways and produces of Ontario, going into most careful detail regarding the railways of this province, and showing a most thorough knowledge of the various main lines, divisions and branches.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

The following resolution moved by Mr. Mortoni seconded by W. Clark, was then brought forward and carried unanimously: 'That this Association being impressed with a sense of the terrible evils of the traffic in alcoholic drinks, and of the importance of giving the children of our country a correct and adequate knowledge of the nature of alcohol and its effects upon the human system, and thus doing something to make the coming generation temperate, desires to express its conviction that regular scientific temperance instructions should be given in the public schools. They would recommend all teachers to secure a copy of Dr. Richardson's admirable treatise on alcohol, and to give from time to time, oral instructions to their pupils on this subject. Mr. Wood, M.P.P. Rev. F. B. Stratton, Mr. Macaulay and Mr. McIntosh supported the motion by appropriate remarks.

The Committee on Library reported 227 books on the catalogue, 28 in the hands of members of the Association, and 199 in the library.

Miss Powers, of Marmora, illustrated the method she employed for teaching first lessons in reading.

Miss McDermid then taught a third book class from the Model School a lesson in Grammatical Analysis. The lesson dealt with enlargements of the subject and was well taught, and many useful hints were given.

Mr. Clark took up the subject of 'number.' Mr. Clark would illustrate the meaning of number always by objects to young pupils.

Mr. McIntosh introduced the subject of writing. He said it had been neglected. He believed, that more attention might be given to subjects that would count at examinations.

The Rev. Mr. Wishart then addressed the teachers for a short time, after which Mr. Morton briefly dealt with the subject, 'Our Library and How to Improve It.' The subject was not discussed on account of the want of time. The convention then adjourned to meet on the 8th and 9th of May, 1885.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell

A sensation is now exciting the residents of Middlemiss, the village which gained such notoriety in connection with the Silcox murder case. The store in which Grant Silcox was murdered, was entered on Friday night, by burglars, who left a key in the lock. The same key, it is stated, was recognised as the one which was stolen on the night of the tragedy last December, and the question now arises, who had possession of the key since the murder?

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanmans Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

MAD MARRIAGES.

Is it not possible to teach young women that an unworthy marriage is something from which a woman can never recover? Can they not be made to understand that secret marriages and elopements so romantic in the eyes of love lorn maidens, are disgraceful? If men forget such an event in a woman's career, women do not. The security of a woman's good name is in the decorum, the publicity of the marriage ceremony. Whether they would have it so or not, the marriage of a woman is the chief incident in her career; it is one of the chief incidents in a man's life. Let every girl suspect and smother likings which cannot be submitted to the knowledge of the family. They pay dearly for their knowledge who forget this precept.—N. Y. Adv.

O. Bastle, of Manchester, Ontario Co. N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

GLADSTONE AND THE IRISH VOTE.

DUBLIN. Oct. 14.—The Mail says that Captain O'Shea visited Gladstone in Scotland and arranged for a fresh treaty between the Parnellites and the government by which the latter agrees to recall Lord Lieutenant Spencer and to allow the crimes act to elapse in return for the support of the Irish party on the franchise bill.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. Clarke & Co. cor. Front and Bridge Streets.

GIVE "TUM TUM" KINGLY POWER.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—It is stated that Queen Victoria has requested Gladstone to submit to the Cabinet the question whether special powers cannot be conferred on the Prince of Wales to enable him to participate in the conference of sovereigns in Europe.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain [illegible]. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete, Of all dealers 25 cents.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

SHANNONVILLE SIFTINGS.

From our own Correspondent.

SHANNONVILLE, Oct. 5.—The episodes of our village life just now are singularly uneventful. The Government dredge is said to be doing good work in our river; it is now at Geddes' point, and is working upward toward the docks.

Barley is moving slowly, prices offered being so low that the farmers prefer holding on for a while. The receipts at this point—generally a good market—do not average 300 bushels a day. Prices range from 50 to 55c.

As the threshing machine moves through the country it is found that our crops, generally are larger than was anticipated. The following are a sample:—Thos. Farnesworth, Tyendinaga; 150 acres, he has just threshed out 1,350 bushels of barley, and other grain amounting in all to 1,900 bushels, besides a good crop of peas not yet threshed. Not many localities will show a better record.

The festival which closed the special revival services at Lonsdale last Wednesday evening was a time of great religious enthusiasm and enjoyment, and notwithstanding the heavy rain that fell during the day was largely attended, while the net proceeds was $50, to apply on the circuit funds.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Farnham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

THE ELOPEMENT CRAZE.

LARUE, O. Oct. 14.—Miss Nora Sage is a handsome young girl of this place. She is 16 years of age. Saturday night she disappeared in company with William T. Craven, a married man of the town. The eloping couple were traced to Lafayette, Ind. where they were arrested at a late hour last night and brought back to the place in charge of a policeman. Nora declares that she loves Craven to distraction and is bound to live with him.

CARRYING WAR

Into the enemy's country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietry goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit,—Exchange.

THE MURRAY CANAL

Thin Attendance at Ceremony of Laying Corner Stone of a Pier.

VISIT OF FIVE MINISTERS.

The Address Presented on Behalf of Northumberland, Prince Edward and Hastings.

HOW THE WORK IS PROGRESSING.

Almost Unanimous Opinion that the Wrong Route has been Chosen.

A BANQUET AT TRENTON.

By Our Own Reporter.

MURRAY CANAL, Oct. 15.—The demonstration here yesterday in honor of laying the corner stone of the Murray Canal bridge was in point of attendance a complete failure, scarcely three hundred people being present. The Cabinet ministers were due to arrive at two p.m., but it was half past three before they put in an appearance. This tedious delay caused a great deal of dissatisfaction, as the weather was cold and disagreeable, especially for the ladies, while no accommodation in the way of seats was made. At least half of those present were Reformers from Trenton and surrounding district, while very few Conservatives, or in fact citizens from Trenton attended the celebration except Mayor Richardson and the town council. The steam yacht Ometa from Belleville arrived in charge of Mr. Harry Corby at two o'clock with the Oddfellows' Band and a good natured crowd on board, followed by the Annie Gilbert in charge of Captain Lake which also carried about fifteen passengers. Those who came up by the yachts spoke very highly of the hospitality which they received at the hands of Messrs. Corby and Lake, and if they did not appreciate the ceremony of laying the corner stone, they certainly did the trip on the bay with such gallant officers in command. The Steamer Quinte brought about a hundred to the canal from bay ports. The ministers who were expected to deliver addresses arrived at Brighton at eight in the morning and were met by Mr. D. R. Murphy of Trenton and a committee of citizens, who escorted them in carriages to the town hall, where an address was read by Mr. T. Webb, Reeve, to which all the ministers replied. The five ministers were: Hon. M. Bowell, Minister of Customs, Hon. A. W. McLelan, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. A. P. Caron, Minister of Militia, Hon. John Costigan, Minister of Inland Revenue, and Hon. John Carling, Post Master General. They were driven to the wharf and taken on board a tug, which steamed away in the direction of Presqu'Ile, a government engineer being on board to point out to the ministers the route of the Murray Canal. After viewing the works at the western end for some time, they had lunch and drove down in carriages to the point where the crowd were waiting to receive them. Prominent among those present were: Mayor Richardson, of Trenton, and the members of the town council, E. Cochrane, M.P., Alex. Robertson, M. P., J. White, M. P., E. G. Sills, M.P. P. Frankford, Monsignor Farrelly, of Belleville, Father Walsh, of Trenton, Rev. D. Bleasdell, of Trenton, W. Anderson, Warden of Prince Edward county, H. Ashley, Reeve of Thurlow, Ald. McInnich, Ald. J. W. Johnson, H. Corby, J. L. Biggar, N. McArthur, A. W. Vermilyea, G. D. Dickson, Q. C., of Belleville, J. J. Farley and W. C. Farley, Thurlow.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE.

The ministers arrived at the Trent road bridge in carriages and were met by a few gentlemen who at once escorted them to the bed of the canal, where the corner stone of the centre pier of the bridge was to be laid, the only thing denoting the presence of the distinguished guests being the deafening whistle of the steam engine which was turned on at full blast for some time. Not a cheer was given. Hon. M. Bowell laid the corner stone, stating: "I declare this corner stone to be laid in a firm and proper manner on a solid foundation and I hope all that has been anticipated by us may be realized by future generations." (Cheers.)

PRESENTING AN ADDRESS.

Mr. E. Cochrane, M. P. for East Northumberland, acted as chairman. He read the following address:

To the Honorable Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs; Honorable A. P. Caron, Minister of Militia and Defence; Honorable John Costigan, Minister of Inland Revenue; Honorable Jno. Carling, Postmaster-General; Honorable J. H. Pope, Minister of Agriculture; and Honorable J. W. McLelan, Minister of the Marine and Fisheries for the Dominion of Canada.

The undersigned inhabitants of the counties of Prince Edward, Northumberland and Hastings respectfully extend to you a most cordial welcome upon this your visit to this great work and the laying of a memorial stone in the magnificent and substantial bridge which is to span the waters of the Murray Canal, and the presence here to-day of this large assemblage must satisfy you of the deep interest taken in its construction, and we beg to assure you, with a sense of deep gratification to ourselves and simple justice to the Government, of which you gentlemen are distinguished members, of our appreciation of and thanks for the unflagging interest which you have taken in forwarding the construction of this great water way, as exemplified by your presence here to-day and the numerous visits of individual Ministers thereto since the turning of the first sod to the present occasion. It is with unfeigned gratification that the early completion of this canal now seems assured, and while connecting the waters of Lake Ontario with the waters of the Bay of Quinte, it will, at the same time add a most important link and lake outlet to the eastern end of the Trent Valley canal. Now we are happy to know that the importance to the carrying trade of the Dominion, of the construction of the Murray canal, the future harbor of refuge of Lake Ontario, cannot be overestimated, as it implies the extension westward through Lake Ontario, of the Upper St. Lawrence river, navigation by way of the land locked waters of the bay of Quinte to Presque Isle harbor, a point nearly equidistant from Kingston and Toronto and above the dangerous coast of Prince Edward peninsula and as the actual distance from Presque Isle to Port Dalousie is less than 120 miles the extent of open lake navigation is thus reduced by nearly one half. Encouraged by the great energy and push of Messrs. Silcox & Mowry, the contractors for this great work, we gladly look forward to its early completion, and earnestly hope no engineering or natural difficulty or impediment exists to in any way retard or defeat the completion of this great work, earnestly desired by and of such great importance to the trade and commerce of the country, and the safety to life and property offered those navigating the waters of Lake Ontario. We wish you gentlemen many years of health and usefulness to your country, and a safe return to Ottawa.

THE HISTORY OF THE WORK.

Hon. M. Bowell then addressed the crowd, giving a lengthy account of the agitation for this work which was begun as early, he said, as 1796. It afforded him a great deal of pleasure he said as one who had taken part in that agitation to be present on this occasion and have the honor of laying the corner stone of a canal which forms an important connecting link to the great commercial highway of the country. In 1796, he said, 64 acres of land were appropriated by the government of the day for the right of way for the Murray Canal, and 32 000 acres in that section were set aside for the purpose of raising money sufficient to build the works. These lands were sold to the settlers for $72,000. Lieutenant Governor Hunter in the year 1800 brought this matter before his government and highly endorsed the work, but about a quarter of a century elapsed before the Commission of Inland Revenue recommended the construction of the canal. A government engineer reported in favor of the present route in 1825 at a cost of £18,615. The same engineer reported that the Weller's Bay route would cost $95,000. In 1833 the cost of the Weller's Bay route he said was estimated at £214 225. About this time and since every politician in this section has agitated the construction of the canal to assist him into parliament. The work was favored in 1840 by Lieutenant Governor Philpot. In 1856 Mr. Lyon estimated the cost of the present route at £126 000. Eight years later Mr. Rhoan, engineer, reported the cost of three routes, the present one at $1,190,000; No. 2 from 12 o'clock point to Stoneburg's cove in Weller's Bay at $860,000; route No. 3 up through Mud Creek, well known to the old settlers in that section, at $940,000. After confederation and during the year 1867 Mr. Page made a full report and stated as regards route No 2: 'As a whole this route appears to be feasible.' In 1871 an engineer reported 'that it was not in the interests of commerce to build a canal here,' but later on a Government engineer reported in favor of the present route and Government awarded the contract. The estimated cost he said would probably be exceeded as was usually the case, and at least $50,000 would have to be appropriated extra for dredging. It had been argued he said, that the present route was two miles longer than the Weller's Bay route, but this difference, he said was entirely made up by the land-locked harbor at Presque Isle, which, when properly dredged would make the safest harbor of refuge on the lakes. In chosing the route, he said, the government were solely guided by the report of the engineer, Mr. Rupert, and not by the wish of any private individual, as all men were apt to further private interests. He claimed the present Dominion Government was a patriotic one willing to make any reasonable improvement in the general interests of the country. He hoped the time was not far distant when the waters of Lake Huron would be connected with the bay of Quinte, that we might see the products of our county going through our inland waters to the seaboard. This would cost from nine to twelve millions of dollars but the work was among possibilities. As an old boy of Quinte bay he was proud to state that he had been instrumental in having this canal built. (Cheers.)

SATISFIED WITH HIS COUNTRY.

Hon. A. P. Caron, of Quebec, was glad to know that he was able to stand on a stone which would be commemorative to all Canada, after so much agitation and discussion. He was also glad to address a gathering of Ontario people composed of both political parties, who, as fair minded men, would always give any Government an honest trial who were constructing great public works. He was familiar with the cry raised against the Grand Trunk Railway when it was built; likewise he found people opposed to the construction of the Canada Pacific Railway but they were both necessary and would build up the country. Speaking of this Dominion he said 'We want to remain Canadians, true to the old flag, and I tell you I can see little difference in regard to our loyal sentiments between the Frenchmen of Quebec and the Canadians of Ontario, we all love our Queen.' (Cheers.) He admitted his opinion was not of much value on such matters, but he thought the Government were wise in choosing the present route.

GETTING POSTED.

Hon. John Costigan in a brief speech returned his sincere thanks for the address which had been presented to himself and his confreres, and said it was a part of the duty of public men to visit public works such as these and make themselves familiar with them, that they may be enabled to defend the policy of the Government in the House of Commons. He thought politicians now a days carried the war to extremes; rather than look first to the best interests of the country. He believed the policy of the Government in choosing this route was a wise one, no matter what doubts he may have had previous, and he believed the people of this section would not be inclined to censure the Government for the heavy taxes they were compelling them to pay, when so much money was being expended in their midst. When public works were being built in his province, New Brunswick, he would like to see the same feeling expressed by the taxpayers of Ontario. The province of Ontario was a glorious and a growing province, and while her inhabitants were fond of this the smaller provinces always wished to share the pride Canadians feel in Ontario.—(Cheers.)

SEVENTY MILES OF CANAL.

Hon. John Costigan was gratified to know that after forty years hard fighting the promoters of the canal had succeeded in getting an appropriation sufficient to complete the work within the next two or three years. He was pleased to see the provinces of the Dominion united on such an occasion as this all wishing success to the canal. While we have only a population of five millions of people, he said, we had a country to be proud of. In a short time they would have a through line from Prince Edward Island to Vancouver Island, including about seventy miles of canals. The Murray canal would form a portion of the great highway and he hoped the time would come when grain from the Northwest would pass through the bay of Quinte from Lake Superior to Montreal, and then across the ocean to the old country. Canadians, he said, were patriotic and progressive and hailed with delight the construction of public works which would open up the country. With a Government that cared for the interests of the people Canada was sure to be as prosperous as any country in the world.

ONTARIO PEOPLE IN THE NORTHWEST.

Hon. A. W. McLelan said he was a humble member of a cabinet having the welfare of Canadians at heart, and which was stretching out its hands to assist the people in every province to make this a prosperous country. He eulogized the stand taken by Hon. M. Bowell in urging the construction of this canal, and was glad to see the work progressing so favorably now. It was possible that some day Lake Huron might be connected with the waters of the Bay of Quinte. Speaking of his recent trip through the Northwest he said he was surprised to see the gathering around him, as he thought all the men of Ontario and the pretty women too (laughter) had gone out there, but he trusted those remaining would find homes here as comfortable and prosperous as those in the Northwest. (Cheers.)

Mr. John White, M.P., delivered one of his characteristic stump speeches, concluding as usual with three cheers for Sir John Macdonald and Lady Macdonald.

Mr. Cochrane followed with a cock-and-bull story about a Tory Government once saving 25cts on the cost of a telegram, which nobody believed, and short speeches by Mr. Alex. Robertson, M.P., of Belleville, and Mr. Robert Clapp, of Picton, brought the program to a close.

WELLER'S BAY ROUTE.

The following petition was circulated in Prince Edward county on Monday and received the signatures of nearly every resident. It will be presented to the government:—

To the Honorable, the Ministers of the Crown for the Dominion of Canada:—

We the undersigned loyal subjects of Her Majesty, humbly and respectfully petition your honorable body:

Whereas in our opinion we believe the Murray Canal can be built across the isthmus into Weller's Bay at no additional cost to the country;

Whereas the fraternity of vessel owners and captains of lake crafts have petitioned in favor of the short route; and

Whereas the Chief Engineer favors the short route as the best:

We therefore humbly pray that tenders be asked for the construction of the canal across the isthmus into Weller's Bay and that the canal be constructed by the short route in the interests of the lake and bay marine and commerce of the Dominion, and your petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

Reformers and Conservatives alike who visited the Murray Canal yesterday (many of them for the first time) were of the one opinion that the canal will never answer the purpose for which it was built. Many prominent Conservatives strongly denounced the government for chosing a route through such a bed of sand, and expending such a large sum of money when half the amount would have built a decidedly better route. An influential Conservative from Belleville made a careful inspection of the canal and the material taken from it, and his opinion is that the canal will never be of any service until a sloping stone wall is built from the bottom on a concrete bottom to keep out the sand. He has had considerable experience on public works of this character and assisted in building the Erie Canal, therefore his opinion as a practical contractor ought to have some weight. Without this sort of bottom he says the canal is sure to fill up with sand.

THE BANQUET.

TRENTON, Oct. 15.—Last night the Ministers were entertained at a banquet by the citizens of Trenton in Purdy's hall, which was a grand success. The Mayor, Mr. James Richardson, presided. Each of the Ministers and other gentlemen made speeches on the occasion. They returned to Ottawa by the midnight train. There were just ninety persons present at the banquet, including several from Belleville.

The campaign in India is warming up. An editor speaks of a rival as "a sap-headed ornithorhinchus!"

USEFUL TO KNOW.

Everyone should know that Hagyard's Yellow Oil will give prompt relief; applied externally will cure any pain; and taken internally cures colds, asthma, croup, sore throat and most inflammatory complaints.

Fort Sumpter has literally fallen. It is now only one storey high, and half a dozen guns not one of which could be used.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton Ia., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years."

Trial Bottles Free at B. Templeton's Drug Store. Large Size $1.00.

The custom of wearing a flower in the hair it is said is to be revived. It will show to better advantage than on the face.

A GOOD TEST.

For over sixteen years G. M. Everest, of Forest, has sold Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and its sales are steadily increasing. It cures coughs, colds and all lung complaints; is pleasant to take and always reliable.

A cynical bachelor claims that if women would only direct their industries into a proper channel there would not be a missing button or a crazy quilt in the world.

A common cold should not be neglected. Downs' Elixir will cure it.

Guests at a dinner in Morocco are obliged to wash their faces and hands seven times during the meal, and while they are eating slaves stand around fumigating them with incense.

Arnica & Oil Liniment is very healing and soothing, and does wonders when applied to old sores.

Mrs Mary Thompson, of Toronto: was afflicted with Tape Worm, 8 feet of which was removed by one bottle of Dr. Low's Worm Syrup.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,
J. M. JOHNSON,
Missionary to Swaton, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by nourishing exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Oh, Heaven, she cried in despair, 'how badly these horses go.'

'Mine I fear is falling lame,' remarked the Creole. I can hardly keep up with you.'

'Oh, try try,' pleaded Pauline. Great Father of Heaven aid me.' she continued with a cry: 'there they are.'

It was true; the pursuers were close behind.

Using the switch she carried, she roused her horse for a final effort.

It darted ahead.

At the same instant, Stuart Loring went like a flash past the Creole

A few minutes later he was by Pauline's side, and his hand upon her bridle,

The miserable girl gave one scream of horror as the horse she rode stumbled at the sudden stopping, and came to his knees.

Before the animal quite touched the ground, the American bending, placed his arm round the girl's waist.

It met with no repulse.

She had fainted, and was passive in his grasp.

Lifting her up he placing her lightly before him, Stuart Loring put spurs to his horse, but instead of returning, he proceeded in an opposite direction.

The Creole had watched the whole affair that he should overtake them was what she expected, but when she beheld the last movement, of the American, her brows contracted until they almost met, and she prepared to follow.

Keziah's hand, however, caught her rein.

'No, missy,, she, said, 'you mustn't go, he doesn't want you to.'

Juliette turned fiercely upon her, with features, convulsed with rage and indignation.

Must not, You dare use that word to me,' cried the Creole kindling with anger, 'Remove your hand, woman,'

The negress hesitated.

Juliette dashed her whip across her dark face.

With sharp cry of pain, the negress relaxed her hold.

The Creole was gone like an arrow.

She seemed to have endowed her horse with her own indomitable strength. for it appeared to fly after the other two.

The negress followed her with her eyes, What an evil glance was on her features.

She shook her clenched fist in the air.

'Her mother had me whipped, and you a slave of my own rank; the daughter of a slave, have struck me. Oh, how delightful it makes revenge, I have had it, I will have more, more. Oh, yes; I am not satisfied yet.'

CHAPTER XLIII.

THE ENCAMPMENT—FEVER AND DELIRIUM

Stuart Loring had gained some distance in advance before the Creole had started.

More than she could hope, with the horse she rode. to overtake him. did he keep his present speed.

Nevertheless, she followed.

Under the forest trees they went, the American never once looking back.

Either he was too occupied to hear the pursuing hoofs, or he believed the pursuer to be other than Juliette.

Where was he going?

What was his intent?

His intent was to separate the half-sisters.

The Creole partly divined this, and resolved to prevent it.

Out of love for Pauline?

No.

Was it from the knowledge that she would thus loose any power she had over the American?

Yes.

Never slackening his pace, the American soon quitted the forest and emerged upon a savannah.

The Creole's horse stumbled beneath her, but she held her own course.

A few moments, and she too, issued from the trees, when a cry burst from her lips.

Spread out before her was a large encampment.

Several caravans were at the side.

Large fires were burning. and the dusky forms of men were lying about, while several had risen, roused by the hoof beats.

The Creole threw up her hands.

Her cheeks turned white.

The Mormons,' she ejaculated. 'Then it is to Utah this man is taking us.

A moment she paused.

A moment she contemplated real flight, but the drooping head of her animal the darkness, around her told her it would be madness.

'I may manage better than that she re-reflected, !How? Does my heart fail me? Shall I submit to be conquered? Why should I dread these people! Who am I? No doubt they are not half what their enemies described them. Besides where else can I go? I may find friends here, when I may not in other countries; at least they may not despise me.'

Gathering up her reins she advanced.

The American had already entered the encampment, and by the fashion several men collected about him, the Creole saw he was known and warmly welcomed.

Surrendering the still unconscious form of Pauline to one one standing by, Stuart Loring was about to dismount when Juliette joined him.

On beholding her his face darkened like a thunder cloud.

She perceived it despite the night and the shadow cast by his hat.

'You here?' he exclaimed, with involuntionary fierceness between his teeth as his eyes glared upon her.

'Here!' she answered with quiet surprise 'Was it not right to follow you? Considering the jaded condition of my horse, Mr. Loring, you might have ridden more slowly.'

Her manner—her words disarmed him. He turned away with a muttered oath. Juliette alighting. approached her sister.

The young girl laid in the arms supporting her. her head fallen back, her face upturned tawards the sky.

As the Creole gazed she gave a sudden scream.

'What is it?' asked the American, sharply.

'Just heaven,' she exclaimed, you have killed her, for I believe she is dead!'

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box. 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column

MONTREAL.

THE WIDE AWAKE SLEEPER.

The Worcester (Eng.) Herald records the following trick:—Some time after dinner a stranger walked into one of the inns; he was genteelly dressed and professed to be tired. Having taken refreshment, he said he would take a nap for an hour. To sleep he went in a very business like style, and a long nap he appeared to enjoy. Before it expired the usual smoke a pipe company began to drop in; and among others two strangers made their appearance. One of the company remarked that it was unpleasant to have a man sleeping in a public room with valuable property about him such as the sleeper, who had a fine looking gold guard chain displayed on his waistcoat, apparently connected with a watch in one of his pockets. To this remark one of the strangers replied—"Pooh! that's no gentleman, I'm sure; he's more likely one uv them ere swell mob as is always a taking of people in. I dare say he has no watch at all; but I'll soon see.' Suiting the action to the word, the stranger softly drew forth out of the sleeper's pocket a piece of wood, round, and about the size of a watch. 'I thought so," said he; that's a pretty watch for you,' holding it up that the company might see it and then he returned it to the owner's pocket.

By and by the sleeper awoke and called briskly for a glass of brandy and water. He assumed quite a patronizing air to the farmers, which soon raised a desire to put him down. Accordingly one of the seniors required to be informed of the time of day.

'Why,' said the gentleman, 'the fact is, I had a drop too much last night, and I forgot to wind up my watch.'

'Just so,' ejaculated the senior, you forgot to wind it up, did you? You'd be he pr[illegible] to do that I dare say, wouldn't you, now?'

'Well, sir, you seem to take more notice of such a trifle than there is any call for; but the truth is I have not a watch key about me, and mine is rather a peculiar watch.'

Here a burst of laughter ensued, and a number of jokes were passed about the peculiar style of watch. At last one of the company roundly told him that he had no watch at all about him; whereupon the individual hastily clasped his hand to his waistcoat pocket having previously declared that unless the watch had been stolen since he had been in the room he had one. Satisfied apparently by the external application to his pocket, he said—"It's all right, my watch is here. I thought you had been playing a trick upon me.'

'I'll bet you £5 as you've no watch,' bawled out one of the tormentors; another offered £10; and one of the strangers said he hadn't £5 but there were two sovereigns which he would like to double by betting in the same way.

The awakened sleeper looked at them with astonishment, and asked if they were serious; they all stuck to it that he had no watch; then he took out his purse and produced five and ten pound notes equivolent to the bets offered against him. The stakes were posted, and then the thoroughly awakened sleeper coolly pulled out the piece of wood, at which a horse laugh was raised against him; but the laughter was soon on the other side, when touching a spring in the bit of wood it flew open and display a handsome gold watch snugly encased within it! The gentleman gave a plausible reason for preferring so odd looking a case for his watch, with which his dupes might either feel satisfied or not. He had received their money to the extent of of £20; and they had bought a knowledge of 'the time of day.'

Of course the very suggestive strangers lost nothing by the business—they, in fact were accomplices of this clever sharper; and it is possible that more than one attempt may be made to repeat the experiment.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

A STRANGE SCENE IN LONDON.

London, Oct. 15.—After the celebration of mass on Monday last in St Peter's church the bishop, clergy and congregation proceeded to the shrine of Edward the Confessor at Westminster Abby, where they prayed for the conversion of England to the ancient faith. The people made the sign of the cross during the prayer. They were not disturbed by the vergers. Visitors at the Abbey were much astonished.

NEVER GIVE UP,

If you are suffering with low and distressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by R. Templeton.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, languor, lassitud, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public, and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRI O

THE PROPOSED CHAIR OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

The proposal to endow a "Sir John A. Macdonald chain of Political Economy" in Queen's College was received by Reformers as a stupendous joke, but Principal Grant has attacked the opponents of the scheme in such unmeasured terms as to make the matter one to be discussed seriously.

It is no unfriendliness to Queen's that has originated the opposition; but we ask on what principle should future students be taught to regard Sir John's public, private or moral character as one worthy of imitation?

Would Dr. Grant commend the Pacific Scandal outrage as an example for budding politicians? Or would he condone the bribery of the red-handed murderer, Riel, to escape while the father of political economy fervently ejaculated, 'I wish to Go! I could catch him!" Is the Gerrymander Act worthy of admiration? Is the raising of immense revenue so that the surplus can be used to bribe and debauch constituencies his ideal of statesmanship?

Then on the ground of morality, how can pure minded and honorable men gloze over Sir John's reputation in this respect so as to see no danger by thus honoring him of instilling into the minds of our youth the idea that a politician may set at defiance all principles of honor and rectitude and exalt expedience above principle, and still be a worthy example to emulate?

Principal Grant's well know pretensions to higher political principles and ideals than form the heritage of ordinary Canadians is not to be reconciled with his advocacy of elevating political life by honoring a debased politician, however brilliant.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

SIR JOHN'S assertion that all Canada is in favor of protection is conclusive proof that catarrh of the stomach is not his only ailment.

SPEAKING of the course of the government in allowing Meek, Wilkinson and the rest to fall into their own trap, the Bobcaygeon Independent says:—"It was the best and wisest course to attain the object in view, which was to convict the criminals."

AT MR. POWDERLY'S lecture in Brantford, Hon. A. S. Hardy presided; and at Toronto Hon. E. Blake was on the platform. This was not done for effect, or to win the votes of the workingmen, for the keynote of their present movement is the chief underlying principle of liberalism.

WE ARE somewhat surprised at the way some of the staunch advocates of protection take comfort out of the Cumminsville catastrophe. It appears that the accident is attributed to the fact that the mills were being run above their capacity, and the moral deduced by protectionists is obvious. Would it not be as well to just reflect for a moment on the fact that men were found willing to risk their lives in the works for the daily pittance of $1.25. Truly this jug-handled protection is a boon to workingmen, isn't it now?

THE PEOPLE of the late "disputed territory" prepared an address to present to Hon. Mr. Mowat at the late demonstration at Toronto, but unfortunately it was delayed in the transmission. It has now come to hand. Here is one paragraph:—

> "We, more than other section of the people of this Province, owe you a lasting debt of gratitude for bringing to so happy a solution a dispute that was fraught with the most serious and injurious consequences to the material development and prosperity of this district. We individually regret that we cannot in person express our deep obligations to you, and our warm admiration of your patriotism as a public man."

O. Bortle, of Manchester, Ontario Co. N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

THE QUEBEC EXPLOSION.

Strange Movements of Suspicious Characters, Supposed to have Committed the Outrage.

PECULIAR CONDUCT OF FOUR MEN.

A woman in Port Levis, named Mrs. Couture when she heard of the explosion of the Quebec Parliament buildings said that she had four very suspicious boarders for a certain time. On the 2nd of October four strangers went there to board, whose manners were most singular. One room was never left alone, even at meal hours; there was always only three boarders at the table. The fourth was on guard until he was replaced by his companions; and this lasted eight days. On Thursday morning when she made up the rooms Mrs. Couture saw a small satchel and carpet bag. She tried to move it a little, but found she was hardly able so stir them, they being so heavy. In the afternoon of the same day they came back and enquired how much they owed. They settled and said they were coming to Quebec to take the night train for Montreal. They soon came back, saying they had missed the train. The next day, the day before the explosion, they started again, saying again that they were going to Montreal. Since then they never came back. They started on Friday about 6 p. m., crossing from Levis to Quebec. Hence they would have arrived at the Parliament buildings about seven o'clock. Mr. Lefain on Friday night, at about nine o'clock, saw four men jumping from a window of the front part of the Parliament buildings, escaping in the darkness. Thus this gave two hours to the dynamiters to operate and place their infernal machine, after which, taking the train at 10 p.m., they would have reached Montreal at six o'clock on Saturday morning.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.

In reference to the four suspected characters, they put up at a Mrs. Nolan's instead of Mrs. Couture's as before stated. The descriptions of the men are as follows:—

No. 1—Stout, fair man, with an imperial moustache. He wore a hard hat and black coat, and was aged about 36.

No. 2.—Was of medium height and well dressed; slightly aquiline nose, and about 40 years.

No. 3.—Was beardless, and about 28 to 30 years of age.

No. 4.—Dark complexioned and aged about 21. He wore a black suit and hat.

The first arrived on Thursday, the 2nd of October; at 7 p.m. The only baggage they had was a carpet bag. The fourth man, or the last one described, arrived and joined the three former on the 8th of Octber at about 7 p.m. He brought with him a black leather bag the one before mentioned as being so heavy The first three strangers seemed to have all their linen on their person, and they were necessitated to remain in their room while the boarding lady washed what linen they had taken off. They paid for each meal as they partook of it, and also for their beds each morning. On Thursday the youngest left, taking with him the heavy valise and did not return. On Saturday afternoon Mr. Dion, guardian of the Quebec Central depot at Levis, stated that he had on Friday heard these men speaking in reference to the intended explosion and he at once communicated with the police of Quebec and Levis.

A C. P. R. baggage man named Morgan, has confessed to robbing the mails by untwisting the cord by which the bags are laced and fastened, thus loosening them enough to let his hand in. This revelation shows the necessity of more secure bags being issued and the old ones called in.

THE TELEPHONE WAR.

TORONTO, Oct. 16.—Writs were issued yesterday by the solicitor for the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, against the Telephone Company of Toronto and the Dominion Telephone Company in actions for injunctions against infringement of the Bell company's patent by selling and using telephones similar to those patented and for damages. It is stated that the Bell company intend to take similar proceedings against all persons and companies selling or using instruments which are infringements of their patent.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Billous Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. Clarke & Co. cor. HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

TWO MEN TERRIBLY BURNED BY MOLTEN METAL.

HAMILTON, Oct. 15.—A distressing accident occurred at Gurney's moulding shop yesterday. Geo. Richmond and Robert O'Neill were engaged carrying an iron ladle containing 200 pounds of molten iron when the bottom of the ladle burnt through and the molten iron ran splashing in all directions. Richmond had his stomach, breast legs, arms and feet badly burned, the iron pouring through the top of his boot burning his feet and legs frightfully; his clothes were literally burnt from his body, and the woollen shirt he wore was burnt to a cinder. O'Neil's right leg and side were very badly burned His burns do not look as bad as Richmond's but they are very deep and probably more serious. A young lad named Collins, who 'skins' for these two moulders was also pretty badly burned. It is not thought that any of the cases will prove fatal.

CARRYING WAR

Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietry goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit.—Exchange.

NOTES FROM THE ANTIPODES.

Canadian Farm Implments; The Prevailing Drouth; Newspapers; Gold Fields, &c.

From our own Correspondent.

On board the S.S. Roma, off Queensland, Aug. 15,

Another trip to the metropolis of Queensland written from Gympie gold field, once more spending a day at Toowoomba, among the mountains, and still further west to Warwick, on the plains, 160 miles west to Brisbane.

These latter places are surrounded with farms and sheep stations, and just now since the breaking up of the drouth, the warm dry earth has shaken off its parched and withered garb, and under the beneficent influences of the welcome rain smiles in all its vast and verdant beauty. Here may be seen the latest inventions and most approved agricultural machinery used to carry on the warfare of the soil. Threshing machines driven by steam, from Hamilton, Ont., steam ploughs, patent harrows &c., &c., go to show that the husbandmen of Queensland are making an effort to keep abreast of the times. The soil is of most remarkable richness here, frequently producing forty and fifty bushels to the acre.

But although these beautiful, rolling plains are at present covered with rank, luxuriant wheat, yet a few miles further to westward, the iron drouth still prevails and holds tens of thousands of square miles of country in its rigorous grasp. Along parts of the coast there has been rain in abundance, but the poor squatters and farmers of the interior must patiently wait, wait, wait. Their sheep and cattle are dying by thousands, yet they can do naught to avert it.

Back again to Maryborough and then aboard the Burwah en route to the far north. The second day out brought us to Rockhampton, population 12,000, situated on the tropic of Capricorb. The Capricornian is the title of a modster weekly newspaper, nearly double the size of the Globe, published here. There are besides two dailies, the Bulletin and Argus. Speaking of newspapers, I believe the Australian weeklies are the largest in the world. The Sydney Mail, Australian, (Melbourne,) Town and Country Journal, (Sydney) each contain about 36 to 40 pages, while the Queenslander, (Brisbane,) Tasmanian Mail, (Hobart,) Auckland News, (N.Z.) average about 24 pages each. The Sydney Morning Herald has the reputation of doing the largest advertising business in the world. It publishes eight pages of closely worded ads. every day, exclusive of reading matter, and I saw lately in one of its contemporaries, that it cleared, above expenses last year £50,000, or about a quarter of a million dollars. Newspaper journalism pays all through the colonies. But I am digressing.

Rockhampton lies in what is called the dry belt. It has suffered considerably of late, having had only about five inches of rain during the last two years. I was considerably surprised therefore on sailing up the beautiful Fitzroy river to find its banks so yellow, when a few hours before I had left those of the Mary so green.

Rockhampton is the second city in Queensland in size and perhaps in importance otherwise. Its buildings show that it has been a place of rapid growth, being nearly all one story, its streets are a chain and a half wide and its site level. It is situated about forty-five miles distance Keppel Bay, on the Fitzroy River, and is approachable by the intercolonial steamers of 1000 tons burthen. At present they are building large wharves at the junction of the bay and river that will accommodate the largest ocean craft. There is a railroad running westward from here to Clermont, Emerald and Pine Hill, 250 miles distant.

GREAT EXCITEMENT

is rife at present there, owing to remarkably rich fields of gold and Mt. Morgan, 26 miles distant. It is said by several experienced miners to be the richest in the world. At present they are working close to the surface, and the ore is turning out twelve oz. to the ton. Three dwt. to the ton will pay all expenses of mining and crushing, so you all see an immense profit remains. The best of it is that there is an entire mountain of it, all equally rich. This is no canard by a fact, and there is a consequent rush there.

The day on which I left Rockhampton was their annual regatta, and of course it was a public holiday. All the banks, stores and places of business were closed. You would think it strange if the post office, banks, &c., would all close in Canada on the occasion of a boat or horse race, yet it is the case here—in this glorious land of freedom and take it easy.

The 'Burwah' only came as far as Rockhampton, so after waiting two days I took passage by the British India Steam Navipation Co.'s R.M.S. Roma, bound for London via. Queensland ports, Batavia, Aden and Suez Canal. She was compelled to anchor in Keppel Bay, and we went to meet her in a steam lighter lashed to a barge of wool for transhipment for London. One barge had on about 160 tons of wool, in 630 bales valued at something over £12,000. I was reminded of the similarity of the Fitzroy River to the great Mississippi, and the barge laden with bales of wool not unlike the cotton barges of the 'Father of Waters' added force to the comparison.

According to the bent of my nomadic nature, I climbed the mountain of fleeces and prostrate on my back admired the glories of the star spangled Australian sky while my mind wandered back to the time when within the hallowed precincts of the

OLD RED SCHOOL HOUSE,

I stood between the geography class and the map on the wall, and pointed out a spot to the north east corner of Australia and informed my pupils that it was Queensland and that Brisbane was its capital. I taught them no more, and the reason was obvious, I knew no more. Yet my classes were well up in geography! They could names all the cities of Siberia, knew the exact location of the Galapagos Islands, and could tell with euclidean exactness the difference in time between Jonesville and Caboolture. Why not know Queensland? Its a riddle. I give it up. Yet the fact remains, and I fear that there is some truth in a remark in a letter from my uncle to me last mail when he said:—'Next to nothing is known of Queensland by nine-tenths of the people of Canada.'

So, Mr. Editor, and indulgent readers, with your kind permission I will deem it a pleasure to give you a few ideas, from time to time, in regard to this—one of the richest countries the world contains.

VISIT TO BELLEVILLE

Fifty Thousand Dollars will be Given Away.

THE SPIROMETER GIVEN FREE.

The Above Offer Holds Good for this Visit Only.

TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND SUFFERERS FROM CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, WEAK LUNGS AND CONSUMPTION.

My motive is not one of money only, but for science and the good of suffering humanity. To convince the public and prove to the sceptical that the Spirometer is the best instrument ever invented for the treatment of diseases of the air passages, and that it is all I have ever claimed for it, anyone suffering from the above named diseases who call at the Dafoe House, Friday or Saturday, October the 17th or 18th, 1884, and consult the surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute, will be given a spirometer free, the medicines alone to be paid for. I do this to show the confidence I have in the treatment, and to convince the medical profession and others who are still sceptical (notwithstanding the thousands of people who have been cured by it) that the Spirometer I have invented and the medicines and treatment prescribed by the surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute are curing and will cure a larger percentage of these diseases than any other treatment in the world.

If impossible to call upon the surgeons during their visit to your city, write for International News and List of Questions.

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanmans Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

BANKRUPT STOCK

—OF—

Costly Furs, Hats and Caps

Are now Thrown on the Market at

MR. T. MUIR'S OLD STAND,

FRONT STREET.

And will Continue until every Vestige of the Stock is Cleared Out.

This is a Real, Bona Fide, Live Bankrupt Sale, the equal of which has never been seen in this City.

For example—All the fine Soft and Hard Felt Hats, sold from $1.50 to $3, buyers can have during the first 10 days at $1.00 each and have their pick selection of all in the store. During the same period all the fine fashionable Cloth and Tweed Caps &c., varying from 50c to $1.50 we will let fly off, your pick of all those for 25c each. Those two classes of goods must be cleared out inside of 10 days.

AN IMPORTANT REMARK.

As soon as Country Merchants arrive all these Hats and Caps will likely be Bought Up at Once when our more slow citizens may miss this chance. If the young men of this city wish to act IN TIME it would be well to secure a half holiday and arrive early in the forenoon before the store is crowded. By doing so they will have an immense advantage by getting the very first pick of the whole stock.

The uniform price of $1.00 on Hats and 25c on Caps will save much time and confusion both to customers and to ourselves, and we feel that such will meet with the approbation of the public.

WEDDING BELLS.

At three this afternoon a quiet wedding took place on Albert Street at the residence of Mr. Donald McKay, the contracting parties being Miss McKay, his daughter, and Mr. Herbert Burrows, of the reportorial staff of the Globe, Toronto. Rev. D. Mitchell tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a few relatives, when the joyful couple received the congratulations of their friends. Miss Sprowl acted as bridesmaids, and Mr. John Wilson, of Napanee, as best man. The bride is a young lady well known in the City of the Bay, and in casting her lot with the bashful journalist her friends here will wish her many years of connubial happiness and prosperity. The presents were numerous and costly.

Mr. Alured Godard, chief operator in the Belleville office of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, was married this morning to Miss Eliza Hoggard, daughter of Mr. Geo. Hoggard, Rev. E. W. Sibbald, officiating. The sermon was performed at the residence of the bride's father, West Belleville, only a few intimate friends being present. The happy couple left on the noon train for Montreal and Quebec, accompanied by the best wishes of a host of friends in Belleville.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

SOUTH HASTINGS TEACHER'S ASSOCIATION.

The regular semi-annual meeting of this association was opened in the Ontario Business College block this morning. Mr. J. Johnston, I.P.S., president, presiding. The delegate to the Ontario Teacher's Association gave a report of the proceedings of the late convention. Mr. O. S. Hicks then took up the subject of 'grammar to fourth classes,' including the proper application of such words as 'shall' and 'will' and 'sit' and 'set,' 'rise' and 'raise' and the different phrases and dependent propositions, language terms and the use of punctuation marks. In the discussion that followed part was taken by Messrs Dafoe, Sticking, Wheeler, Emmerson, McKeown, Johnston and others. The session will not close before to-morrow night.

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.

No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's Nerviline, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all pain. This is the best evidence of its efficacy, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents.

CRIME IN HASTINGS.

Gaoler Appleby has just forwarded to the department at Toronto his yearly statement of the number of prisoners in gaol during the year ending 30th September last, showing that in all 151 males and 27 females were behind the prison bars. Of this number 10 males and 5 females were lunatics, 50 were committed for drunkenness, 32 for larceny and 37 for vagrancy. Eleven of those committed were sent to the Central Prison, three to the Mercer Reformatory, 4 to the Penitentiary and 2 to the Boy's Reformatory. Forty-seven males and 15 females were of temperate habits, and 112 intemperate. The total expenditure, including food, clothing, fuel, salaries and repairs amounted to $2,095, and the daily cost of rations for each prisoner with hospital diet was 8½ cts, without hospital diet 7 cts.

THE TELEPHONE TROUBLE.

The Board of Trade Endorses the Action of the City Council.

NO POLES ON FRONT STREET.

There was a meeting of the Board of Trade last evening in the Council Chamber, the attendance being larger than usual. The president, Mr. Thos. Ritchie, occupied the chair. The object of the meeting was to consider the merits of the two rival telephone companies and whether or not it would be advisable to allow the poles to be erected on Front Street.

THE BELL TELEPHONE.

Mr. Hugh C. Baker, manager for Ontario for the Bell Telephone Company, said it was impossible for them to have a first class service in Belleville and a connection with their trunk line without having poles on the streets as in other cities. He said by Act of Parliament their company had the right to put the poles on the street, the municipal council merely having supervision over the erection of the poles, but out of courtesy to the authorities the Bell Telephone Company always asked their privilege. The Act provided that the poles must be forty feet in height and the wires twenty five feet from the ground, only one line of poles being allowed on a street. He said the reason the company gave notice of their withdrawal from Belleville was because they thought the citizens did not want the service, but now they found out that their service was required, they were anxious to remain. He said Pinnacle Street would not answer nor Coleman Street, on the west side of the river. The city of London refused them their principal street, but the company finding they could not do without that thoroughfare put up their poles and the city Solicitor gave it as his opinion that the council could not legally prevent them. They could not run their wires over buildings, and no person, he said, had as yet invented a practicable system for laying the wires underground. The trunk line runs from Kingston to Windsor in the Dominion, and they were extending their line at the rate of about 500 miles a year. He agreed to give a night and day service here at a cost of $35 a year for offices and $30 for houses with separate lines not over half a mile long $30 for offices and $25 for house with two or three on a line with the privilege of using the trunk line. It would require he thought about fifteen poles on Front street. As regards the Dominion Telephone company, he said, the Bell company had issued writs against the company and every person using their instruments, and until the question of infringement on their rights was settled he did not think the Dominion Company knew what they were prepared to do.

THE DOMINION COMPANY.

Mr. E. R. Johnston, of Montreal, president of the Dominion Telephone Company addressed the Board setting forth the objects of his company. He said they had not the cheek or the audacity to ask the Council for the use of Front street, when the telegraph poles had been removed and the hanging signs of the merchants. He said his company were still prepared to carry out their proposition to the citizens of Belleville. He thought the impression here was that the Bell Company were trying to bulldoze the citizens by giving notice of their withdrawal if they did not get certain concessions, and the hearty manner in which the citizens met the Dominion Company showed him that they were wanted in Belleville. He said his company had courted a suit with the Bell people, but they had never been venturesome enough to even issue a writ. The Dominion Company sold their instruments at $30 each and furnished a night and day service for $15 to each subscriber. He thought they could make money at that—at all events they were willing to risk it. They had a trunk line from St. Johns to Sherbrooke and would extend it into Ontario as soon as possible. He said they would maintain the instruments and give an efficient service as long as the $15 a year was paid—the $30 at the beginning being the only cost the subscriber would be put to.

THE ACTION OF THE BOARD.

Mr. Jeremiah Thompson said if Belleville could get a telephone without using Front Street, he would favor it heartily, especially since the Bell Company had acted as they had in the matter. He therefore moved that in the opinion of the Board, Front Street should not be encumbered with poles by any telephone or telegraph company. Mr. W. Smeaton seconded the resolution.

Mr. Johnston could not give a guarantee that the Dominion trunk line would be completed within any stated period.

Mr. C. P. Hutten said it would be unwise for Belleville to have the Dominion service, for if they had a trunk line now Belleville could not receive any benefit because the Dominion Company had no connection with any other city or town in the province. He moved in amendment that the request of the Bell Company be acceded to. This was seconded by Mr. J. C. Jameson, who at first was in favor of granting either company equal privaleges, but finally favored giving the Bell Company a monopoly of the street. Mr. Hutten was several times asked to amend his motion, giving equal rights to both companies, but he declined.

Mrs. W. F. Jones and Thos. Donnelly were willing that Front street should be used for the erection of the poles.

Mr. U. E. Thompson said the telegraph poles were removed from Front street, because they were an eyesore. If that was the case the telephone poles would be ten times worse, because they would have ten times as many wires running in every direction. When the telegraph poles were removed at the solicitation of a deputation of the council, there was a verbal agreement at that time that the council would not allow any company to erect poles on Front street.

After a good deal of discussion the original motion opposing the erection of poles on Front street by any company was carried, ten members supporting the amendment and eleven the original motion, but it was noticed that the majority of those supporting the Bell Company were already subscribers to their system.

Mr. Baker declined to state at present whether the Bell Company would withdraw their instruments from Belleville now or not. The Board of Directors, he said, would consider that at their next meeting.

ODDFELLOWSHIP IN BELLEVILLE.

A New Uniform Degree Camp Instituted by the Grand Officers.

Last night the Belleville Uniform Degree Camp No. 9, I.O.O.F., was instituted under favorable auspices in the rooms of Mizpah Lodge by the Grand Chief Patriarch, Mr. Joseph Oliver, assisted by Dr Rae, grand representative, Mr. M. D. Dawson, grand scribe, and patriarchs, W. C. Morrison and John Quill, of Toronto uniform degree camp. Twenty-one of the charter members received the authority of the grand encampment of Ontario to carry on a camp in accordance with the laws of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. The officers installed were: Comrade, H. Corby, Commander; Com. Jas. Edgar, Vice Commander; Com. J. H. Mills, Officer of the Guard; Com. Geo. Sutherland, Scribe; Com. Geo. R. Brown, Treasurer. With a membership of twenty-seven uniformed patriarchs, among whom are some of the oldest members of the order in the city, the new camp will it is hoped be a success and a credit to the city. After the labor of the lodge room had been completed, the new camp entertained the grand officers and a few of their friends, in all about thirty, at a sumptuous supper at Hambly's, which was in every respect a spread worthy of the occasion. The supper was prepared with a good deal of taste and was a most recherche affair. Mr. F. M. Clarke presided while the Chief Patriarch occupied the seat of honor. The usual toasts were proposed and responded to in a happy style, and a couple of hours pleasantly spent. The grand officers spoke flatteringly of their visit to Belleville and of the rapid growth of Oddfellowship here.

Patriarch Jason H. Post, a former resident of this city, but now living at Port Arthur, has had the gratification of being a charter member of Belleville Lodge No 81 and Quinte Encampment No. 19 and now of the new Uniform Degree Camp, and is an enthusiastic as ever in the praise of the grand principles of the order.

The officers of the Grand Lodge were driven out to the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, where they were cordially received by the Principal, Mr. A. Mathison, and escorted through the building.

At three o'clock this afternoon they were engaged in the Belleville lodge No. 81 instituting a new Degree Camp in connection with that lodge. As the number of candidates is large the officers will be kept pretty busy until late to-night when the Commission will be entertained at a complimentary banquet at the Anglo-American hotel.

SISTER JULIAN FALCONIERE,

Miss Mary Ann Butler takes the Black Veil at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Oct. 16—In the House of Providence yesterday, about fifty persons assembled to witness the taking of the "black veil" by Misses Agnes Meagher, of Montreal; Bridget McDonald, of Springfield Mass.; and Mary Ann Butler, of Belleville. His Lordship Bishop Cleary officiated. At the alter rail kneeled the candidates dressed in black but wearing white veils. His Lordship addressed the candidates in regard to the duties of the life to which they were to about wholly devote themselves. They would have to relinquish the world and consecrate themselves to God, to obey their superiors, and be unremitting in their labor of love. His Lordship said their cross might be sometimes hard to bear, but they would be sustained through the grace of God, and in the end enjoy the inheritance of the saints in glory. At the conclusion of his Lordship's exposition the candidates were given the black veil, the bishop consecrating each to the service of the Lord. Their white veils were removed and replaced by the black ones. The new nuns will bear the following names in religion: Sister Mary Loretta, (Miss Meagher); Sister Scholasticia, (Miss McDonald); Sister Julian Falconiere, (Miss Butler).

Messrs. Brignall & Thompson's reputation has become a 'household word.' They are bound to lead the van in the mercantile line in this city if vim, push and enterprise can do it. Recently they have had prepared for distribution 5,000 copies of a descriptive circular and catalogue of 11 sheets, printed on fine tinted paper, the circulation of which throughout the city and country they well know will prove no detriment to their business. They know that money spent in advertising is a paying investment, as the experience of the Prince of Merchants, the late A. T. Stewart, abundantly proved.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Hollaway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Dead!' ejaculated Stuart Loring, 'impossible.'

'Mr. Loring you have been pitiless; you have overtried her,' she said bitterly fiercely. 'Give her to me and fetch water.

With a manner that was not to be resisted she drew her half sister to her and kneeling, supported her on her knees.

The American was overwhelmed with consternation.

She had succeeded in deceiving him.

Rushing to one of the fires, he seized a flaming pine branch, and returning holding it high, threw its lurid flickering light upon Pauline.

She did indeed look as if life had passed away.

Her complexion was colorless.

No breath came from between the parted lips.

The ivory lids lay heavy and contracted over the eyes.

In the meantime one of the men had brought water which the Creole began to apply, as the men and women of the camp, aroused and collected about them.

Perceiving this, Juliette, addressing Loring said—

'Is it wise to have all these people here when she recovers, if she ever does? Have you really a wish to upset her reason?'

'You know I have not.' he answered angrily, stung by her tone stung by having to yield to her, stung by the power she seemed to exert over him. 'Where would be my advantage in that? But you are right; I will send them to their tents.

'Better let this poor child be taken to one. The night air is chill responded the Creole calmly. On awaking, what will think to behold a scene like this?'

'That she is among friends and free,' he returned, with a scornful smile.

'To be killed by disappointment.'

'True, it shall be as you propose,' replied the American.

By a few words dispersing the crowd, he moved apart with the chief to arrange about the tent, and to acquaint him with something of how matters stood.

Directly Juliette found herself alone she bent over her sister,

She had felt consciousness was returning, hence she had divined the artifice of sending away all witnesses.

'Pauline, she whispered, earnestly, as you love Heaven, open your eyes. Show me you can hear what I say. You are safe nothing can harm you, but I have much to tell.

A sigh escaped the girl's lips.

Pauline's white lids rose.

A startled cry hovered on her lips.

The Creole's hand stifled it.

'Listen, and do not waste time in words. Feign severe illness—feign that your brain has been affected by your trouble. It will terrify him. He will consent to my remaining with you—at least for a time—as your fittest nurse. Do you understand. they are returning.'

'Yes, yes, Juliette, but oh does it need much exertion for me to feign? I am ill—ill unto death and I rejoice. Heaven has heard my prayer, she moaned, and has thus released me!'

She made an effort to cast herself on the other's bosom.

The effort was beyond her strength.

Again she fainted.

Juliette was not sorry for at that moment Stuart Loring came up,

A commodious tent had been hastily arranged and now he had come to take them to it.

The Creole changed her tactics.

She thanked him almost gratefully, surrendered Pauline to his charge, and accompanied them,

The tent was spacious and rather removed from the rest.

The three entered.

Stuart Loring made no objection.

He began to think it was well Juliette had come.

He even rejoiced at it when, a few minutes later having placed his victim on the couch, he saw her small white hands move restlessly, and wild disconnected sentences to come from her pale lips.

For a while the Creole imagined that Pauline was merely and cleverly playing the part she had advised.

But soon she found it was not so—that the delirium was real,

'See how flushed is her delicate cheek. She is in a fever,' said the American, placing his large soft hand on the heated brow 'There is a doctor in the camp; I will send for him at once.'

Quitting the tent, speedily returned with a long, lank haired bilious looking individual with a high cheek bone, and a nasal pronounciation,

Examining his patient, he declared it fever occasioned by overtaxed physical powers and cerebral excitation.

Prescribing cooling drinks, careful watching, and perfect rest, he retired, declaring that the matter was nothing serious.

'That is to be proved, said Juliette, quietly. 'He does not know the delicacy of her constitution, nor what she has gone through. He may save the body, will he the mind?'

'I trust both.' exclaimed Stuart Loring, gazing at the delirious girl.

Suddenly his passion bursting forth, he would have flung himself by the couch and with words of love, have clasped her in his arms.

Sternly, imperiously, the Creole interposed.

'Mr. Loring, she said haughtily, 'I promised to aid you in winning my sister, I did not promise you her life. Go.'

Rising, silently, he obeyed.

Before lifting the portion of the canvas was that formed the door, he said—

'Keziah will arrive shortly with the caravan. Shall I send her to you?'

'Decidedly not,' ejaculated the Creole, quickly. 'My humiliation has been painful enough without the cruel addition of that woman's presence. Mr. Loring, all compact is over between us if the negress again appears before me. I have long wished to tell you and now I do.

'It shall be as you desire. You have proved true to me, I will to you,' he answered. Good night.'

'Good night,' she replied.

And he passed out.

But it was not the final 'Good night.

Again and again he appeared to obtain news regarding Pauline.

A CARD.

DURING the past three years I have had many urging me to give lessons in the German language and in other branches, but have thus far hesitated to consent. I have now concluded to occupy my SPARE hours teaching the GERMAN LANGUAGE, ORNAMENTAL AND PLAIN PENMANSHIP, AND DRAWING. I do this believing that I may do some good by using the talent God has given me, and also to help me financially to carry on the mission work.

Pronunciation in German made a speciality. Terms reasonable.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's, own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasteby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column

SOMEBODY.

Somebody's coming into the world,
Somebody's leaving it, somebody weeps;
Somebody's barque on Life's stream is whirled
Somebody gaily glides over the deeps.
Somebody somewhere is laughing to-night,
Somebody's singing while somebody sighs—
Somebody, somewhere, is quaffing the bright
Fruit of the grape—while somebody dies.

Somebody's heart is bursting with joy.
Somebody's starving, somewhere, alone,
Somebody's praying for somebody's boy—
Somebody's suffers and maketh no moan.
Somebody's hand is lifted on high—
Somebody's heart is riven in twain;
Somebody, somewhere, hears somebody cry—
And the river flows smoothly again.

Somebody's dirge is sung by the waves,
Somebody nevermore sorrow will know;
Somebody Dame Fortune fickleness braves—
Somebody's soul's as pure as the snow;
Somebody's heart's as black as the night,
Somebody's eyes are closed—'neath the sod
Somebody's soul was too weak for the fight,
And so it soared upward—to God!

MUNCHAUSEN ON A "BIKE"

Correspondence of "The Wheel"

Your Maryland correspondent seems to have had some strange experience on the road. While I never rode up a telegraph pole on a bike, still in the light of modern science it may be possible to do so; and in fact, the strange adventure which befell a friend and myself last week, removes from my mind all doubt of your correspondent's veracity. We had been touring for a couple of days without anything hapening worthy of note, On the morning of the third day, we overtook a native who warned us to beware of a terrible hill about a mile ahead. We were told that the hill was so steep that they had to fasten the gravel down with railroad spikes to keep it in its place. We laughed the native to scorn but alas! had we heeded his admonition, my friend Quintz would not be bald headed, and my truthful word would not be scouted. We reached the hill in due time and although it did look rather steep we resolved to coast it. Away we went Quintz leading and I following at a safe distance. Our speed increased as we proceeded, and soon we were whirling along at a rate that was simple terrific. Faster and faster! The telegraph poles along the road seemed like the teeth on a fine comb, and still our speed increased. We tried putting on the brakes, but had to let them off, as the friction made the spoons red hot, and melted the tires. To jump off was certain death, and our only salvation was too stick on and go it blind. I had gradually been drawing nearer to Quintz, and now I noticed with horror that the wind, generated by the swift motion of my wheel was rapidly blowing the hair from his dead leaving him bald as a new born babe. But new a new danger threatened us, and all seemed lost; away down the road, broad side on, stood a large cow directly in our path. The road was too narrow to turn out, and death cold, grinning, restless death stared us in the face. For a moment by heart ceased to beat, and then happily, philosophy came to our rescue. We had both read that a bullet fired from a gun would go through a window without shattering the glass and that a candle could be fired through a door. As we were both going faster than a bullet, why should we not go through the cow? True a cow is larger than a pane of glass, and a bicycle is larger than a rifle ball; but philosophy is philosophy just the same; and with this comforting fact in our minds we flew on. The cow looked up when we were about a quarter of a mile away and attempted to get out of the road. It was too late. Before she could take a single step we were upon her. There was a dull zipp, as a buzz saw makes when it strikes a piece of rotton wood, and the dismembered halves of the unfortunate bovine fell by the roadside. Our speed had not been checked. Indeed, the obstruction of the cow had if anything served to increase it; for, on arriving at the foot of the hill we saw rising before us another steep hill fully a mile in length. Up this we flew by the wind, and is was only by dint of hard back pedaling that we succeeded in stopping when we reached the top. We dismounted and examined our wheels. No break, bend or strain was visible, but the decimally trued, case hardened balls were entirely worn out. Nothing but steel dust remained in the bearing boxes. This shows how fast we went. Now if any of my readers doubt my words, I will gladly show them the identical suit I wore that day, the toothbrush I carried, and point the direction in which we went. This will or ought to satisfy the most skeptical.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitud, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete, Of all dealers 25 cents.

THE DAILY ONATRI O

THE LAND FOR THE PEOPLE.

In Great Britain the land question flicting opinions on the subject, the is, perhaps, one of the most perplexing of the age. The concustoms of ages, the real and imaginary rights of the rich owner and the poverty stricken occupant, make the subject one on which it is hard to arrive at a right decision.

The landed proprietor always assumes that the land is unreservedly his own and that when it suits his purpose he can drive the occupants off to starve or succeed in living elsewhere, and the idea of the tenant—the inferior part of humanity whose forefathers did not receive large estates for real or imagined services, or by the favor of foolish monarchs, or their courtezan favorites—having any claim, legal or moral, to hold the land, is one he cannot understand; it is to him simply preposterous.

Many of the finest glens in Scotland have been depopulated of their hardy Celts, whose forefathers fought by the side of their chief and were by him treated as brothers, but, alas, they are now forbidden to live in the distrct of their birth, and large areas are given over to be used as sheep walks or deer parks, to increase the gain or administer to the pleasure of the self-assumed lord of it all.

In the great battles, from Fontenoy to Tel-el-Kebir, which have made the flag of England, the synonym of hope and comfort to the down trodden and distressed of other lands, the hardy Highlander of the straths and glens of rugged Scotia fiercely fought and bravely fell fighting under that banner. But now in many places the race is expaterated, or driven out of his ancestral shraling that his landlord may have room for his flocks of sheep or herds of wild deer.

It is no wonder that in England, Ireland and Scotland, thoughful, earnest men are studying the great problem of how to rectify the wrongs of the poor, and he who can devise the plan by which justice can be granted to all, and no real rights infringed will earn the gratitude of all the right-minded friends of liberty and fair play.

Let Canadians take care that they do not allow a similar state of things obtain here. The acquisition of large tracts of land by individuals or corporations in the Northwest may not appear of great moment now, but, if allowed, the time will assuredly come, when the mass of the people will curse the folly of our rulers for the blind infatuation with which they perpetrated here the effete and oppressive system so unjust and injurious in its effects in the old land. An ounce of preventive in this case is worth very many pounds of cure.

SMALLER STILL AND BEAUTIFULLY LESS.

The following from the Toronto News, a firm believer in the merits of a high tariff—at least until recently—we commend to the attention of those who still swear by the Colossus.—

The boasted surplus of Sir Tilley has shrunk to very small dimensions during the fiscal year '83-84. The consolidated revenue was only $32,902,215 as against $36,893,658 for the previous year, while the expenditure increased from $28,730,157 to $31,185,342. The surplus is consequently $1,716,873. In place of the eight millions and upwards over, which the Tories crowed so loudly last year. The decrease of four millions in the revenue, coupled with a very rapid increase in expenditure, is a serious matter. It shows that despite the pressure of taxation upon the country under the N. P. the Tories by their reckless extravagance have contrived to equalize the expenditure with the income, and leaves little room for doubt that an era of deficits is about to set in. The N.P. apparently touched high water mark in the year 1882-3 as a means of swelling the revenue, and the government, instead of regarding the phenominally large receipts of that year as altogether exceptional, took it as a permanent standard, and increased their outlay accordingly.

The prospect is by no means a satisfactory one. The expenditure is sure to go on increasing, especially if the government extends its responsibilties by the annexation of the West Indies. The opening up of the Northwest is certain to entail expenses which cannot at present be adequately forseen. Instead of the economy and prudence which would dictate husbanding the extra income of prosperous years to meet the shortcomings of periods of depression, we have the reckless extravagance which thinks only of the present and leaves the morrow to take care of itself.

The contrast between the manner in which our financial affairs and those of the United States are managed is little to our credit. During the single month of September their national debt was reduced by twelve million dollars. While we have been adding to our burdens at a fearful rate, the Americans are fast reducing theirs.

Mrs Mary Thompson, of Toronto, was afflicted with Tape Worm, 8 feet of which was removed by one bottle of Dr. Low's Worm Syrup.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is little doubt that the reported agreement between the Parnellites and Gladstone is probably without the slightest foundation. No doubt it would greatly strengthen the Government to have the Irish vote, but the compact is hardly one that people would expect the "grand old man" to enter into.

* * *

Germany has lately appeared anxious to annex and colonize a district in Africa. The attempt is not likely to be a success. In the first place, the Germans do not like Africa as a place to settle in. In the second, when they leave the fatherland they do so to escape the rigorous military exactions imposed on them, and, therefore, prefer to live under more liberal auspices.

* * *

The state elections in Ohio and West Virginia have neither raised the hopes nor depressed the spirits of either political party. The Republicans have a large majority in Ohio, but the Democrats have all along claimed that anything less than a majority of 20,000 against them in that state would prognosticate their ultimate triumph. Much interest will now be centred in the November elections.

For insensate foolishness and bombproof audacious cheek the Mail still retains the confectionery. In a late issue it says:

The dynamite explosion occurred in Quebec four days ago, yet up to the present no Tory has risen to declare that the outrage was perpetrated by Mr. Mercier or his friends of the Opposition. Quebec Ministerials differ from the Ministerialists of Ontario.

On what evidence such an insinuation is based is inscrutable to anyone not versed in the peculiar ethics that govern the Tory organ-in-chief. It will not be forgotten that when dynamite was found under the government buildings in Toronto, the Mail ridiculed the whole affair and hinted that the Ministers either placed it there or connived at its being done. No one blamed the Opposition for it.

No doubt it would have better suited those who now villify the government for employing the means they did, if they had warned the innocent Meek and the other "curled darlings" of the danger they were in, or, at most, if they had simply stated before the House that attempts were being made to bribe members. But, fortunately, there was a precedent, which warned them against such a step. When, in 1873, the fate of the Macdonald administration was trembling in the balance, one of their agents approached the late Mr. Cunningham, M.P. for Marquette, with the offer of a bribe to vote for Sir John Macdonald. Mr. Cunningham informed his leaders of the matter and asked advice. He was told to state the circumstance from his place in the House and let parliament deal with it. He did so, and was proclaimed a liar by every Tory organ in the country. His statement, unsupported by direct evidence, although believed by all, lacked collateral proof and the men who attempted to bribe a member of parliament escaped punishment. And so it would have been in the case of the bribers of 1884, if the same course had been followed.

On board the S.S. Roma, off Queensland, Aug. 15,

To return again. We steamed alongside the Roma, anchored awaiting us, about ten p.m. and by daylight our wool was aboard and we were steaming to the north. During the entire voyage of five days the ocean was as calm, nearly as the

WATERS OF QUINTE

and I did not suffer in the least any of the usual horrors of mal-de-mer. This period of the year gives remarkably propitious weather to the coast of Queensland and that I was a participation in the pleasures arising therefrom will ever be to me a cause of gratitude. North of Heppel Bay the coast becomes very picturesque being indented with numerous bays with beautiful beaches of yellow sand, the whole forming an ampira theatre surrounded with verdure covered hills. At times the coast was very broken and mountains with their frowning peaks looked down upon us in stern and rugged grandeur, like the lava walls that skirt the channels of the islands of Hawaii. If you look at a map of Queensland you will see that the coast dotted with islands. At times as we sailed among these these they reminded me of our own noble St. Lawrence below Kingston, but in general they were more rocky and bare. Some of these are quite small with not a blade of grass or tree to be seen only a pyramid of rock thrusting its head above the waves. Frequently a colony of seals may be spied basking in the sun or crawling slowly over the rocks. After a seventeen hour run we anchored off Mackay, the pop. 8,500.

CHIEF SUGAR GROWING DISTRICT

in Australia. As we stopped just for a short time and in the middle of the night I saw nothing of it. There is at present a serious depression in the sugar industry caused by trouble in the colored labor market, over production, the beet root competition and other causes. I will have more to say anon. Eleven hours more and we cast anchor in Edgecombe Bay off Bowen. Here are extensive works erected for promoting the frozen meat trade with the mother country. The company which was only started about a year ago, has suffered a very serious series of reverses, and in consequence only one cargo has as yet been shipped. The establishment is however capable of killing 1,000 bullocks per week. and expects to be soon doing at this rate. We took on huge casks of tallow, bags of hoofs, sheep and silver ore in bags. Bowen is at present working hard to get a railway to Charters Towers, about 100 miles, to the northwest.

Leaving Bowen at noon next morning we were anchored in Cleveland Bay about seven miles off Townsville. Townsville is the metropolis of the north, being the outlet for the rich gold and silver mines of Charters Towers and Ravenswood, besides numerous stations. Its estimated population is about 8,000. It is the seat of the Bishops of the Church of England and Roman Catholic bodies. As we expected to lie all day in the anchorage taking on cargo—silver ore and wool—several of the passengers embraced the opportunity of visiting the town. We were first transferred to a steam launch and thence to a row boat to enable us to cross the bay.

Townsville owes nearly all its growth to the last five years. Let me endeavor to portray its appearance, Cleveland Bay is horse shoe shaped, being about seven miles long and three broad. On its western extremity, neatly built on its shell strewn, crescent shore, stands this young city of great possibilities. The houses are all, with not an exception, roofed with galvanized corrugated iron. Immediately at the back of the town, towers to an immense height, a mountain of granite, not unlike the Rock of Gibraltar. From the top of this I obtained an excellent view of town and harbor which resembled somewhat Honolulu, only that it lacked the abundance of trees that so enhances the beauty of the latter. These Australians are not in the least æsthetic, nor yet do they even display good taste in the adornment of their gardens and houses.

The further north we go the more we see of our quondam friend from the 'flowery kingdom.' They flourish here too. The firms of 'Sin On Wah & Co.,' 'Hook Ing Chong & Co.' and 'Sun Bow Yik,' being especially noticeable.

I think I have not mentioned it before, but a stranger is struck with the great number of auctioneers to be found in all colonial towns in Australia. They are generally the leading men of the place, holding the highest offices at the bestowal of the municipality, and generally being men of affluence and influence. 'Auction Marts' are to be seen every short distance throughout the town, where are bought and sold everything from a 'needle to an anchor,' or from an old pair of spurs to a sugar plantation worth a million of money. On one street in Lownsville an auctioneer was selling shirt-buttons, and just around the corner another was selling a horse and cart that went for £30. At the present time auctioneers, from the great Australian Bight to the Gulf of Carpentaria, are doing an immense trade in selling

ALLOTMENTS OF LAND.

About the suburbs of all the cities and towns and in new places with scarce 'a local habitation and a name' are being surveyed out into town lots, and every wielder of the hammer declares in flaming advertisement that his property is really the most valuable in the country, and that in a few short weeks or months his investment will double in value.

On the day of these sales free lunches are provided and intending purchasers carried gratis to and from the property to be sold. Thousands of pounds change hands on these occasions, and many a fortune has been made by speculators, and many more are only waiting to be made (in the buyers mind). A fellow passenger by coach told me the other day, that he had that morning been offered £600 for a lot that but a few months before had cost him £10. Speculation in land is very brisk now, and the auctioneers are reaping a rich harvest.

'Tis Saturday night, near the hour for retiring. This has been written on board the 'Roma,' during a part of one afternoon and evening. We are just leaving Townsville on our lea and hope to reach Cooktown on Monday morning. I will stop off there, but this letter will continue on its course for nearly two months before it reaches London, Eng. There it will be transhipped to one of the Atlantic lines, and if all goes well should appear in print about the 20th Oct.

Among our passengers are four young Englishmen taking a tour around the world. They have just returned from New Zealand and Fiji, and are now going to Japan, via Batavia, Singapore, Hong Kong and Shanghai. From there they will cross to San Francisco, taking the American highway home again. Another is a young man who has been in military service in the British army away from home for six years, but to-day got the unwelcome news that he must join the English forces in Egypt. Another is a lady going to her home on a station 100 miles south of Burketown on the Gulf of Carpentaria. In a conversation with her she told me that four years ago her father, mother and brothers and sisters, eleven in number, journeyed overland on horseback from Victoria to where she was now going. The distance was little short of 2,500 miles, much of it through a country where the white man's foot had never trod, and frequently they suffered extremely for want of water. The journey occupied 18 months. A year and a half on horseback, traversing a continent unexplored and wild—I consider a no mean feat for a slender female of nineteen! She has just been on a visit to friends at Rockhampton, and no returns to a voluntary exile for perhaps a score of years before she sees more than one occasional white person again. She will leave this steamer at Thursday Island, off cape York, from whence a small steamer will take her to Normantom and another to Burketown, where her father will meet her to convey her to their home in the depths of the Australian bush. A host of thoughts and observations are begging to be recorded, but if this is to be continued the postage will be frightful, so I will let this be the end of another chapter of the peregrinations and perambulations of a peripatetic B. A.

THE OHIO ELECTION.

Later Returns Reduce the Republican Majority.

New York, Oct. 16.—The New York Post's Columbus despatch says that from 88 counties only the estimated majorities were obtainable at noon. Both sides, admit that the Republican majority for Robinson will range between 10,500 and 11,500. The democrats have elected 11 Congressmen.

UNOFFICIAL RETURNS.

Columbus, Oct. 16.—Unofficial returns from all the counties in the State show a Republican plurality of 13,115.

REDUCING THE MAJORITY.

Official returns are coming in slowly at both state headquarters, and the final estimates are made with difficulty. On the figures received subject to revision, the Democrats concede on the State ticket 10,637 majority while the Republicans estimate the majority at 10,792.

THE LATEST FIGURES.

Columbus, O., Oct.16.—Official returns, received at Republican headquartes tonight from Ashtabula and Wood counties, those being the last to report, completes the list of revised figures which gives Robinson a plurality of 11,421. Congress will stand: 11 Democrats, 10 Republicans.

CARRYING WAR.

Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the propriety goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit.—Exchange.

THE LAW SET AT DEFIANCE BY WHISKEY PEDDLERS.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—Michipicoten is reported to be in possession of a gang of roughs and whiskey sellers. The respectable citizens of the place have received notice to quit the town. On Friday night last the Canadian Pacific Railway office was riddled with bullets by a band of masked men. John Mackenzie, an employee was shot through the hand. Captain Burden was fired at in bed a few nights ago, the ball passing within a few inches of his head.

An express train on the Canada Southern ran into a gravel train, at Tilbury Centre on Wednesday night. The express driver was killed, and several passengers and a baggage man badly hurt.

MORGAN'S GREAT

BANKRUPT STOCK

—OF—

Costly Furs, Hats and Caps

Are now Thrown on the Market at

MR. T. MUIR'S OLD STAND,

FRONT STREET.

And will Continue until every Vestige of the Stock is Cleared Out.

This is a Real, Bona Fide, Live Bankrupt Sale, the equal of which has never been seen in this City.

For example—All the fine Soft and Hard Felt Hats, sold from $1.50 to $3 buyers can have during the first 10 days at $1.00 each and have their pick selection of all in the store. During the same period all the fine fashionable Cloth and Tweed Caps &c., varying from 50c to $1.50 we will let fly off, your pick of all those for 25c each. These two classes of goods must be cleared out inside of 10 days.

AN IMPORTANT REMARK.

As soon as Country Merchants arrive all these Hats and Caps will likely be Bought Up at Once when our more slow citizens may miss this chance. If the young men of this city wish to act IN TIME it would be well to secure a half holiday and arrive early in the forenoon before the store is crowded. By doing so they will have an immense advantage by getting the very first pick of the whole stock.

The uniform price of $1.00 on Hats and 25c on Caps will save much time and confusion both to customers and to ourselves, and we feel that such will meet with the approbation of the public.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Arrival of Hon. T. V. Powderley, Grand Master, in the City.

Hon. T. V. Powowderley, Grand Master of the Knights of Labor. and ex mayor of Scranton, Penn. arrived in the city on the noon train, and is the guest of Mr. Robert Stevenson. He was met at the depot by a committee consisting of H. Grace, master workman, and R. Sevenson, J. Wilson, G. Frost, and J. S. Howell. Mr Powderley's career has been an eventful one, and he is a striking example of what may be accomplished by integrity, sobriety, and fixity of purpose. Not many years ago for being engaged in a labor agitation in Scranton, Pa., he was boycotted by employers there and compelled to seek employment in other places. This his ability soon enabled him to do, but on his identity being discovered he was given his walking ticket. After still another experience of the same kind he returned to Stranton and engaged in the organization of labor, one of the results of his efforts being the Order of Knights of Labor. Since then he has twice been elected Mayor of Scranton, and it is said among his warmest supporters were many of those who in former years joined hands to drive him out of the city. Mr. Powderley will occupy the platform at the City Hall this evening, when he delivers a lecture on labor topics. He is an able organizer, and being possessed of a rare range of knowledge on matters referring to labor, will be well worth listening to, as in addition to his other qualifications he possesses considerable oratorical ability.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. BANQUET AT THE ANGLO.

About 10:30, the business of the lodge room being finished, those present adjourned to the Anglo-American Hotel, where the visiting brethren were entertained at a complimentary banquet by the officers and members of the new camp. There were about sixty present, including invited guests. The Oddfellow's orchestra was on hand, and during the evening supplied a choice program of music. The dinner was equal to any public spread every made in the city, and was gotten up in grand style by the new proprietor, Mr. McMahon, having eclipsed all previous efforts in the line to cater to the gathering present. There were two long tables extending the full length of the dining room, with shorter ones across either end. Mr. E. G. Ponton was chairman. On his right were seated Messrs. Oliver, Rae and Davis, of Toronto, and on his left Messrs. Dawson and Moore. After the elaborate bill of fare had been discussed to the entire satisfaction of all, the chairman called on the members to charge their glasses (with cold water) and drink the health of the Queen, which was followed by the band. The toast of the 'grand officers' was enthusiastically received with for they are jolly good fellows.' Mr. Oliver acknowledged with thanks the kind manner in which his name had been received by the gathering, in fact he said his entire visit to Belleville was of the most cordial and hearty character, which he could not soon forget. He hoped since the Moira Camp was opened it would prosper, as he had no doubt it would from the large number of propositions received. In referring to this branch the first encampment was inaugurated in Hamilton in 1869 with eight or nine representatives while now they had 205 representatives and 56 camps with a total membership of 2,500 members. (Cheers.) The encampments in Montreal and Ottawa were prosperous and he was sure the order in Belleville would continue to grow and have an influence for good. Mr. Rae said the inauguration of two camps with such a large and influential membership was without precedent and the hearty manner in which the grand officers were received by all would long be remembered by these as one of the most pleasant events in their memory of Oddfellowship. Mr. Dawson said he never knew an encampment in the province to be opened with such a long list of applicants for membership. He hoped both lodges and both encampments would work harmoniously together for the best interests of the order.

OTHER TOASTS.

Mr. A. McFee, grand marshall of the grand lodge of Oddfellows responded on behalf of this executive body in an appropriate manner, eulogizing very highly the other grand officers, especially grand master Morden, of Napanee. Mr. Oliver in proposing the health of Moira Camp, said one with such a membership was bound to succeed. He said he was opposed at first to granting a charter for a second camp in Bellevillle, but he frankly admitted his mistake now and in a neat speech wished Moira Camp and the members every success. (Cheers.) Messrs. Pascoe and Ponton acknowledged the compliment on behalf of the camp after which Mr. Middleton contributed a song, 'The Uniting Brethren," was responded to by Messrs. Moore, Davis and White, of Watertown, N. Y. Mr. Pringle responded for the 'Quinte Encampment' and Messrs. Duncan and Hamilton for the ladies, after which 'our host' was drunk with three hearty cheers, and the gathering dispersed shortly after one o'clock.

The grand officers left this morning for Peterboro' where they will be engaged in their official capacity this evening.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

The Challen Accident Still Before the Jury.

Coroner Farley last night examined six witnesses at the adjourned inquest held to inquire into the cause of the death of the late Arthur W. Challen who a few weeks was thrown from the Grand Junction track by a freight train, and died two days later from the injuries received.

James Cook, fireman of the train, sworn, said: I have been fireman three years; was putting in coal at the time of the accident; first saw the waggon on the left side of the engine; did not hear the collision; as soon as I saw the waggon I called to my mate who whistled for brakes and reversed the engine; got up the grade first time that night; was not going faster than usual that night; do not think the train was stopped as soon as it could have been; engineer could not see the waggon from his position until it was on the engine; cannot tell how much steam we had on; I think a person walking smartly could have jumped on the engine passing up Pinnacle street at the time of the accident; I swear the train was going at a rate from four to five milles an hour.

E. Critison, foreman of the gravel men sworn, said: I was in the van when the accident occurred; there were four cars of wood behind the van; I saw the broken buggy wheel on the side of the track when I concluded there had been an accident; I at once ran up to the engine and found a rig with a man it; the train had been stopped by this time; heard the whistle for break about the same time that I saw the wheel; deceased told us then that the horse ran away and he could not hold it; the boy Murrell also said the horse runaway and that both of them could not hold it; the deceased made this statement after he had been lifted up; there were ten men working under me; can't say how many hours they worked that day; the train was not running more than seven miles an hour; a boy jumped off a flat car going up the street; think the train was going about three miles an hour at Hotel Street, the train was nearly struck.

James H. Roblin, cigar manufacturer, deposed that he stood near the Montreal Bank when the accident occurred, the train was running three or four miles an hour. He said when he saw the horse first it was coming down Hotel Street at a high rate of speed and began jumping when the head light of the engine shone on the street. The engineer of the train, Geo. Frederick, he said was his brother-in law.

Robert Elliott, standing at the post office corner, made the remark at the time that the train was going twenty eight or thirty miles an hour. He did not see any boy jump off the train.

S. G. Retallack did not see the train, but from the noise it made, he thought it was going about ten miles an hour.

Stanley C. Warner, who stood in front of Vermilyea's corset factory when the train crossed Hotel Street, thought the train was going fully ten miles an hour.

The inquest adjourned at eleven o'clock until this evening.

HONORED ABROAD.

Sir John Macdonald, the tattoed Canadian politician who is quoted by the Tribune as the friend and admirer of James G. Blaine, bears the reputation of being the 'boss' corruptionist of Canada. He is the hero of 'send me ten thousand more.' When openly charged in the House at Ottawa a few years ago, with the most outrageous corruption, he tragically held up his hands to heaven and called his Maker to witness that they were clean. Afterwards, when a commission of inquiry proved that he had been guilty of bribery and other forms of political rascality, he came down to his knees and admitted the truth of the charges. Is it a wonder that this Canadian corruptionist admires James G. Blaine? WARREN LELAND, whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in affecting cures and renewing strength by reaching exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence, These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

To rid herself of him. Juliette at last said—

'Better.' when he no longer disturbed her.

The Creole was left alone, as she desired.

Buried in thought; she sat by her half-sister's couch watching her as she tossed and moaned.

She heard the caravan arrive, the brief bustle that ensued, then the camp relapsed in silence, only broken by the occasional tread of the sentinel.

'Prisoners yet,' she reflected. 'Ah,me, she added, I wonder what the future has in store for me.'

She started.

As if in reply to her interrogation, Pauline's soft musical voice uttered the name of Eustace.

It was the igniting spark to a sweet train of thought, and the girl smiling,babbled on.

In fancy, she was again in London at Lady Dudley's and in the society of her lover, talking of their approaching marriage.

The Creole listened, each syllable lacerating her heart, until it was a relief to bear the merry laugh, the fond words change to cries of horror—to sentences of hate and loathing,as once more the American held possession of her fevered brain.

It was a terrible night to both.

Did the Creole pity?

At times. yes.

But invariably, when that was so. Pauline by some strange chance, seemed to reveal it to Eustace, and turn the listener's heart to gall.

As she watched,looking at her,she speculated whether her half-sister would really; as the doctor said, recover, or whether she would die.

And something whispered her—

'Better the latter. For her sake and mine,better the latter. If she live, she must wed Stuart Loring,. She must never again see Eustace Belmore.

When the morning came, Juliette as inexperienced as she was, saw she was much worse.

On the doctor's arrival, he confirmed this.

She was much worse.

Shaking his head, looking very grave, he ordered no one to enter the tent save the Creole, as should his patient receive any shock on her first recovering consciousness it might be her death.

So Juliette was left her sole nurse.

CHAPTER XLIV.

BRIXHAM PROCEEDS ALONE—HE WITNESSES A STRANGE SCENE.

The horror with which Eustace Belmore heard Brixham's intelligence respecting the destination of Stuart Loring,which was not much allayed by the other's assurance that they should overtake them before they should get there, as they journeyed far fleeter than those they pursued. who were encumbered by a caravan.

Strange, but the greatest consolation to the young man was the fact that Pauline had Juliette with her.

He had read and admired her strength of character, and saw saw in it a support a shield a comforter to his beloved,

During the journey, though Eustace was loath to lose time, Brixham made a detour in order to call at a ranche, the owner of which he knew, and from whom he procured two fleet horses and two ladies' saddles.

'If we succeed in running off with the Miss Beauchamps,' he sagely remarked, 'we may not succeed in getting the horses, Besides which we can change about in riding them ourselves, and that will enable us to shorten our own rest.

This Eustace found by proof true.

The horses often relieved of their riders weight. suffered less fatigue, and they got over the ground half as fast again.

The scorched grass always indicating where the caravan had halted, showed them they were on the right trail; while the fact that the traces were fresher each time, they occurred gave our hero heart, who felt they were considerably gaining on the American,s party.

It was towards the close of the day, that the trapper, had been examing the tracks more than usual attention. abruptly checked his horse,and remarked in his dry decisive voice—

'Lad, we must stop here.'

'Wherefore.' asked Eustace.

'Because. we are now at their very heels.'

'Are we,' and Eustace's face was radiant.

'That we are, Therefore we must now put on our caution caps.'

'How do you mean?'

'Why, that we are two. lad and have to circumvent a dozen at least. That dozen may be Yankees, but they can fight even as Englishmen.'

'I do not doubt that,' said Eustace; though their's is a bad cause.

'Oh, Yes. 'God and my right is a good motto, lad. But some how I fancy we have grown so sinful, that might before right carries the day.'

'You are cynical.' smiled Eustace.

'I'm a man of the world, and that dosen't make a fellow kinder in his judgment.

'But what are we to do?' asked Eustace seeing the other dismounting'

'Reconnoitre. I see by the tracks that we are on the heels of the caravan party. Night is coming on, therefore, they'll soon call a halt, We—that is I—must find out where they are.

'And I,' asked our hero,

'Must just remain where you are,lad,and wait till I come back.

'Stop here,' cried Eustace, by no means delighted at the suggestion. 'Why?

Just because I'm used to this sort of thing and you are not. Just because you are known and I am not. Were you to accompany me. a glimpse of your face might spoil everything.'

Our here's heart sank, but he felt the truth of the remark,

'What do you intend then to do, Brixham, he asked.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

RUINOUS POLITICAL EVILS.

Sermon Preached by Dr. Talmage last Sunday Morning, Oct. 12.

Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come. And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more; the merchandise of gold and silver, and precious stones and of pearls and linen, and purple and silk, and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and all manner vessels of ivory and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brass and iron, an marble, and cinnamon and odors and ointments, and frankincense and wine, and oils, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses and chariots, and slaves, and souls of men. Rev. xviii, 10 to 13.

In cis-Atlantic shores, is a group of Americans now landing on their way to find the tomb of a dead empire holding in its arms a dead city, mother and child of the same name—Babylon. They will find here and there a mound inviting their spade and pick, while groups of natives, unwashed, look on. Our friends will turn some yellow bricks, most of them stamped with the name Nebuchadnazzar and will go down into the sepulchre of a monarchly buried more than two thousand years ago. It is all that is left of Babylon? Once five times larger than London and twelve times as large as New York. With walls 373 feet high and 283 feet thick. Twenty-five burnished gates on each side, with streets running clear through to the corresponding gates on the other side. Six hundred and twenty-five squares. Holding more than the combined wealth, luxury, splendor and sin of New York, London and Paris. Inside the walls an artificial hill, 400 feet high and terraced on all sides, built to please Amyitis, the King's wife, lest she become home homesick for the mountain region of her girlhood. Waters spouted up from the Euphrates to irrigate that altitude into flowers and fruits and arborescence unimaginable. A great river running through this city from north to south with bridges over it, tunnels under it, gondolas on it. A city of bazaars, and market places which had no parallel for the aromatics and unguents, for high mettled horses, their grooms beside them, for the pine wood an African evergreen, for upholstered equipage, for Egyptian linen and all costly textile fabrics for rare purples extracted from the shell-fish on the Mediterranean coast and scarlet taken from brilliant insects in Spain and ivories from the most successful elephant hunts of India and lapis lazuli and diamonds whose flash was a repartee to the sun, commerce, and from all lands, pictures from all galleries, and statues from all studios. Architecture pillared and architraved and balustrade and turretted and domed. Fortresses within fortresses. Embattlements. Great capital of the ages! But one night, while the honest people of the city were asleep, but the saloons of Saturnalia were in full blaze and at the King's castle they were filling the tankards for the tenth time and around the State dining table there reeled and guff-awed and hiccoughed the rulers of the land. General Cyrus set his army to work with spades and turned the river Morning saw the conquerers inside the outside trenches, and Babylon is fallen, never to rise, and hence the threat of the text: 'Alas, alas, that great city, Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour has thy judgment come.' What can a nation die? Yes; there has been mortality among monarchies and republics, Like individuals they are born, have a middle life and a decease, a cradle and grave. Sometimes they are assassinated, and sometimes they suicide. Call the roll and let some one answer for them. Egyptian civilization stand up! Dead, answer the ruins of Carnac and Luxor. Dead, respond in chorous the 70 pyramids on the east side the Nile. Assyrian empire, stand up! Dead, answer the charred ruins of Nineveh, After six hundred years of opportunity, dead. Israelitish kingdom, stand up! After 250 years of miraculous vicissitude and divine intervention, and heroic achievement and appalling depravity, dead.

Roman Empire, stand up and answer to the roll call! Once bounded on the north by the British channel and on the south by the Sahara desert of Africa, on the east by the Euphrates and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean. Home of three civilizations. Owning all of the them discovered world that was worth owning. Her war-eagle blinded by flying too near the sun came reeling down through the heavens, and the owl of desolation and darkness made its nest in the forsaken lyric. Mexican empire is dead! French empire dead! You see it is no unusual thing for a government to perish.

As the nation is about to exercise the right of suffrage, I propose for two or three Sabbath mornings to speak of the evils that threaten the destruction of our American institutions and howeach and all of you may do something to avert such catastrophe, and I propose as God may help me, to plough up the whole field. Among the mightiest of the national perils is the fact that political bribery has ceased to be called a vice, and is by many looked upon as a commendable virtue. The five hundred thousand dollars this autumn sent by one party into Ohio and as much by the other party if they can raise it—what for? Everybody knows that most of it is to buy votes. Hundreds of people will have put before them so much for the Republican vote and so much for the Democratic vote and the will decided the action. Next Tuesday, this, the pivotal state will speak. I can tell you which party will carry the day. The party that spends the most money. My sympathies are for Ohio from Lake Erie to Kentucky's border, its 39,964 square miles swept away by the scourge from State street and gold from Third street are now in the hotels of Cincinnati and Cleveland and Columbus and in all the political headquarters of the State, dealing out the infamous inducements. In addition to the bribery of voters in that State the success of this election will be used as a bribe to the whole nation, inducing the men who sit on the fence to get off and go with the triumphant party for some one of the hundred thousand offices at disposal.

In other days bribery existed, but was a sin that held down its head in shame, Utmost secrecy was enjoined, as when, many years ago, the legislature and other officials of Wisconsin were bought up by a railroad company. The governor received $50,000 for his signature. His private secretary received $5,000 Thirteen members of the Senate received $175,000 among them in bonds. Sixty members of the other House received from five to ten thousand dollars each. The Lieut. Governor received $1,000, the clerks of the House from five to ten thousand dollars each, The bank comptroller received $10,000. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars were distributed among the lobbyists. So you see that the railroad company was very liberal. But nothing except the severest scrutiny and exploration of a legislative committee exposed it.

If this diabolism go on, Bartholdi's statue of liberty on Bedloe's Island with uplifted torch to light nations into our harbor had better be changed so that the torch shall be dropped as a system of national incendiarism. If there be no power to stop this purchase and sale of suffrages our government will perish; not by foreign hand but by its own perfidy.

Another thing that threatens the destruction of American institutions is the solidifying of the sections against each other—a solid North against a solid South. Unless this is broken up after awhile we shall have a solid West against a solid East, solid Middle States against solid Northern States. It is 19 years since the war ended and yet every presidential election somehow revives the old antagonism. When Garfield died and all the states of the Union gathered around his casket in sympathy and in tears I did hope that sectionalism was done. But no! You might as well have a solid head against a solid foot, solid eyes against solid ears and a solid nose against a solid cheek. Yes, we are one family and you might as well have brothers solid against their sisters and the bread-tray solid against the cradle and the dining-room solid against the parlor. That which is the interest of Georgia in the interest of Massachusetts and that which is best for New York is best for South Carolina. Another thing threatening the destruction of our American institutions is the low state of public morals. What killed Babylon? What killed Phœnicia? What killed Rome? What killed all the nationalities now lying stark and ghastly in the graveyards of the past? Fraud and drunkenness and lechery, which slew other nations, will slay ours except God prevent it. To prove that there is a low state of morals I call you to consider the character of candidates often put up for office. We have now in nomination for president and vice-president eight men and two women. Both the women are good, But among the eight men for these two offices there are three candidates, at least, no more fit for either of these important offices than a wolf is fit to be professor of pastoral theology over a flock of sheep or a blind mole to lecture a class of eagles on the science of optics or the vulture to chaperon the dove. The mention of some of their names demands in the room carbolic acid and fumigation. Yet Christian men will vote for them because they carry the party standards. American politics has sunk until there is no lower depth it can fathom.

The heaven descended Democratic party eclipsed everything by the Tweed rascality until the heaven descended Republican party outwitted pandemonium by the Star Route infamy. Then there are thousands of men who scoff at the marriage relation and say there is no so thing as chastity, and walking in polite parlors are men not good enough for scavengers in Sodom. When I visited San Francisco, that beautiful city, the Queen of the Pacific, the mayor of the city and the health officer called on me and wanted to show me the Chinese quarters, so that, getting back to the Atlantic coast, I might tell what awful people the Chinese were. But the last night I was in that beautiful city, standing before many thousand in their great opera house, I said:—'Will you let me frankly express my full opinion?' and they cried, 'Yes!' Then I said: 'The great curse of San Francisco is not the Chinese quarters, but the great curse of your city is the millionaire libertines;' and some of them sat before me at that time, Felix and Drusilla. So it is in all our cities. There are whole blocks of houses in some of our American cities known to the policy of those cities as infamous, and which, by paying the officers of the law a certain amount of hush money, get as much protection from the city government as do public libraries and asylums of mercy. These great ulcers on the body politic bleed and gangrene away the life of the nation, and the civil authority looks on their way and expects Christian philanthropists to look the other way. But I will not look the other way—you can't cure such wounds by silken bandages. We must put in deep the lancet of moral surgery and burn with caustic of holy wrath, and by immediate and all decisive amputation cut off there scabrous and putrefied abominations.

Is it not time to speak by tongue, by pen, by ballot box, by the roll of prison door, by hangman's halter, by prayer, by sinaitic detonation? I have read that the son of Crœsus was dumb and had never spoken a word, but when his father was about to be put to death he broke the shackles of silence and cried out: 'Kill not my father, King Crœsus.' So at the spectacle of the cheatery and the wantonness and the manifold crime that are attempting the parricide, yea the matricide, of our institutions, it is time even for the lips that have been for a long year dumb on these subjects to utter in canerous tones fiery protest

There are other evils threatening the life of the nation, and I will in other Sabbath morning discourses, if God continue my life and health, discuss them, as also the modes in which they are to be baulked. I am going to put before you this whole subject so that you will all know how to vote and pray. This nation is not going to perish. When Alexander heard of the wealth of the Indies he divided all of Macedon amongst his soldiers. They asked him what he had kept for himself. He replied; 'Hope.' And that treasure I keep bright and shining whatever else I surrender. Hope thou in God and He will set back these oceanic tides of devastation. Do you realize that the prize now being contested for is the American continent. Never since the day when, according to John Milton, Satan was
'Hurl'd headlong, flaming, from the sky,
With hideous ruin and combustion, down,' has he been so busy as he is now in trying to take possession of this continent! But he shall not have it.

What a prize it is! A jewel carved in relief, the cameo of this planet. The Atlantic Ocean parting us from over-crowded Europe on one side and the Pacific dividing us from superstitious Asia on the other side, and the Arctic Ocean a gymnasium in which our navigators and explorers developed their courage. A continent 10,500 miles long. An area 17,000,000 square miles, four times as large as all of Europe and all but one-seventh capable of rich cultivation. About 100,000,000 inhabitants; all flora and fauna; all fruitage and all grains: all precious wood and all metals. Who shall have it Christ or Satan?—the commerce of our rivers, the shores of our inland seas, the silver of our Nevadas, the gold of our Colorados, and the wheat of our prairies, the rice of our Savannahs, telescope of our observatories, the brain of our universities, the two ocean beaches,—one from Baffin's Bay to Tera del Fuego, and the other from Behring's Straits to Cape Horn—the temporal spiritual and everlasting destiny of a population which cannot be prophesied save by Him with whom a thousand years as one day. Who shall have this prize of the hemispheres? You and I will help answer the question by conscientious votes, by earnest prayer, by upright life, by inducting our families into the duties of good citizenship, by supporting beneficent institutions, by maintenance of churches, by putting all our energies of mind and soul on the right side of every religious, social and national movement. A little further on and it will make no difference to us personally what becomes of this country so far as our earthly comfort is concerned. The largest of us will require no more of this land than the space seven feet by three, and that will be room enough and to spare. But we cannot now be indifferent to the happiness and welfare of the generations that shall come after, and when we rise at the trumpet call of the last day it will be well if we find that our sepulcher, like that which Joseph of Arimathia provided for Christ, it is in the midst of a garden. By that time this continent, from sea to sea and from arctic to antarctic, will be all paradise or all dry Tortugas. Eternal God! to Thee with inexpressible longing we commit the destiny of this people!

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer, The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

THE DAILY ONATRIO

THE CANAL AND MR. RITCHIE'S OFFER.

In Thursday's issue of our contemporary it wakes up to the fact that over a week before we had published a letter from a "Citizen," asking if the report were true that Mr. Ritchie, President of the C. O. R., had offered to build the canal by the Weller's Bay route for the amount of contract money still unexpended. That question we answered in the affirmative.

Our generous and fair-minded friend at this late hour more than mildly insinuates that we told a falsehood in the matter. Well, we don't expect to improve either his morals or his manners so long as he accepts the Mail for his mentor. Of course, it would be an absurdity to suppose that Mr. Ritchie had made a written offer to the department of Railways and Canals. That department is not open to receive such an offer. He has, however, we are credibly informed, stated to the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell that he would build the canal for the amount intimated, and would deposit $1,000,000 as a guarantee with the government. He is yet not only willing but anxious to do this, and if an opportunity is given him he will make the offer in writing in the proper manner.

As to the silly nonsense written by our contempory about the length of the canal it is utterly beneath notice. We acknowledge we may have erred slightly, though unintentionally, in our estimate of the distance, but it is the height of absurdity to suppose that any person at all acquainted with the locality and the reports of the engineers would believe the assertion that it is only 4½ miles. When the dredging to be done in connecting the navigable part of Presque Isle Bay with the canal proper —making, in fact, a continuation of the canal—is taken into account, it will be found that we are not far astray. Perhaps our contemporary, by looking over his fyles will see a reference to a sum of $200,000 said to be be required to do the said dredging.

However, after all, the length of the canal and the tortuous path from it to the lake, and the consequent unnecessary delay and difficulty to vessels making use of it, are only a part of the affair, Even if the work is stopped where it is now, and an opportunity given Mr. Ritchie to make good his offer the country would be a gainer financially. Certainly it might not be so well for Brighton, and we would be sorry to see that village injured, but it is neither just nor wise to grant a small favor to any one place to the detriment of far greater interests. Moreover, Brighton never will reap the golden harvests from the canal that are anticipated by the rose-colored dreams of some of her citizens.

There is no use denying or quibbling about the matter. As was stated at the demonstration by one of the Ministers a further grant of $50,000 will be necessary to do needed dredging in Preq 'Isle harbor. Besides that there is not the slightest doubt in the minds of practical men—not Reformers, either—that before the canal is capable of being used it must have a sloping, solid stone wall on either side to prevent the sand through which it is cut from filling in.

We are satisfied, although sorry, that the government has made a mighty costly mistake in this matter, We believe they now know it, but prefer spending an enormous amount on the route to acknowledging their error. We do not ask anyone to accept our judgment in this, but we think a careful examination of the work done, the nature of the land through which the excavations are made, and the distance vessels will have to be towed, will induce any candid person to acknowledge that we have only expressed the truth in what we have said. As to our contemporary, we fear that no amount of testimony, even that of his own eyes, would convince him of his errors. Some natures are cast in a groove so narrow that even when they are decidedly wrong they haven't room to turn round to right themselves. We charitably suppose it is more their misfortune than their fault.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IT MAY be presumptious in us to suggest anything to the able local exponent of the ideas and sentiments peculiar to snobocracy, but in great fear and trembling we venture to hint that it might be a slight improvement in his style if he would graciously condescend to vary the monotony and avoid the tautology involved in so frequently using the words 'lie' and 'lying.' As he may not have a dictionary handy we would ask him next time he feels bilious to vary the performance by giving the over-worked 'lie' and 'lying' a rest and using one or more of the following as substitutes: 'falsehood,' 'untruth,' 'untrue,' 'violates the truth,' 'preverts' the truth,' prevaricates,' 'prevarications,' 'mendacious,' 'mendacity,' &c. By such a course he will, perhaps, throw off some of the bile, become better natured and give the impression to those unacquainted with him that he has been somewhere and knows something. This advice is free; we make no charge for it.

EXTRACTS FROM MR. BETHUNE'S SPEECH.

"Now we know that neither on the grounds of positive law nor on any ground of morals has it ever been considered objectionable in the administration of human affairs for the purpose of exposing villainy or rascality to do things which perhaps in the ordinary affairs of life one might hesitate to do."

* * * * * *

What is the Attorney-General to do? What is his duty? His duty is, if possible, to expose and punish the offence in order, if possible, to prevent its recurrence—to prevent for all time to come any similar attempt being made to corrupt and bribe the proper representatives of the people in this Province, How does he proceed to do it? Simply by waiting until the persons who had already committed the offence, by their own conduct had demonstrated in such a way as to be impossible to gainsay the fact of their guilt. That is everything the Attorney-General has done.

* * * * * *

I say that, starting with the idea that it was the purpose of the persons who had discused this matter with the conspitators to expose and punish them, there is absolutely nothing wrong—there is indeed something in the highest degree commendable in their conduct, because it requires a good deal of moral courage for a person situated as a member of the House, like Mr. Balfour for instance is situated, to stand up for what he thought was right, in spite of what his common sense must have told him would be the obloquy which would be poured on him for months by the partisan newspapers of the country.

* * * * * *

What would be said if the Attorney-General wrote a private note, as has been sugested, to one of these people that he thought they were guilty of forming a conspiracy, and telling them that they should not go on with it? "Remember, Mr. Bunting, and Mr. Wilkinson, I have information now that you have formed this conspiracy, but do, like dear good fellows put an end to it and don't trouble me to prosecute you. I have the information, and if you go one step further I will bring you to justice."

* * * * * *

Supposing the matter went to trial, and there was no evidence of the money having been paid, counsel might try to convince, and might succeed in convincing, a jury that the whole thing was a joke, that they had been having a glass of liquor together and like Mr. Meek about the solicitorship of the company, they were only joking! Now is the Attorney General blameable, because, being a cautious man, having had large experience in the administration of the law, he says, We have reason to believe that these people are guilty, and I am not going to venture on a public prosecutian which shall fail for want of proper evidence? I know that they do not intend to stop in their nefarious designs. Let them go on, appear to take the money, and hand it to the Speaker of the House. I submit that there can be nothing illegal or even blameworthy in what they did. It seems to me that so far from that if they had taken another course; if they had dillydallied with the matter; if they had been afraid to take the responsibility of exposing and punishing the offence it would have been said and said justly that they were poltroons and cowards afraid to do their duty—a duty which was perhaps as unpleasant to any of these men as any act of their lives, but a duty which they did perform, and one which I think Your Lordships will say they ought to have performed.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

A COWARDLY BACK DOWN.

The brag and bluster about Bunting's innocence and therefore of the Mail, the organ of the Tory party, and therefore, to a certain extent of the leaders of the party, resolved itself into a cowardly back-down when the moment came to give it effect by Mr. Bunting's sworn statement.—Peterboro Examiner.

THE CAUSE OF LABOR.

Elcquent Address Last Night by Grand Master Powderley.

SOME OF THE AIMS OF A GREAT ORDER

The city hall was packed last evening by an intelligent audience to hear Hon. Thos. V. Powderly, Grand Master of the Knights of Labor, and ex-mayor of Scranton, Pa., discuss the labor question. The chair was occupied by Mayor Dunnet and the following gentlemen were asked to take seats on the platform: E. G. Sills, M.P.P., Alex. Robertson, M. P., Hon. M. Bowell, John White, M.P. Dr. Faulkner, Warden, Col. Brown, ex-M.P., H. Ashley, Ald. Macoun and Hanley.

Mr. Powderley said the labor question was one of the greatest importance, alike to the workers and those who mingle with them. The labor question knew no distinction of states or countries; the labor brotherhood had no bounds, and the organization under whose auspices the lecture was given knew no nationality and no religion. It was the impression of a good many people that poverty was essential to salvation, but the lecturer did not think so. Though it was in 1869 that the first assembly of Knights of Labor was formed, it was not untill 1878 that the declaration of the principles of the Order was given to the world. Since that time it has been placed in the hands of every worker in America. (Cheers.) The old trade organizations were well enough in their way, but they lacked the full and proper development of the grand spirit of brotherhood. When those who lived by mutual labor, endeavored to combine with those who did not, the latter class would have nothing to do with them. They were only common laborers. In the Knights of Labor there were no common laborers; they were all laborers in common. (Cheers.) To every man or woman who earned an honest living their rank weres open, but there was no place for he liquor seller, who produced only heartaches and wretchedness. The order had no welcome for the man whose brain was not his own. From 10 to 18 hours a day wage-earner strove now. The Knight of Labor said 8 hours of labor would be enough for the community, To that period the Order hoped to reduce the hours of work. Benjamin Franklin had said that by working four hours a day men could produce all that was necessary for man's support. If that was true in Franklin's time it was true to-day. It was said that the worker had no right to ask for shorter hour, he was not educated. He might be it his hours of labor were less, and the lecturer knew nobody who would enjoy the rest more.

TWO KINDS OF DRUNKARDS.

It was said that he would spend the time in riot, in debauchery, in drunkennes. That was what touched the lecturer sorely. Three glasses of beer would set a man drunk. He knew it, for there had never come before him a man charged with drunkenness who did not say: 'Well, I I had just three glasses of beer.' (Laughter.) That cost 15 cents. The workingman took his beer on the way home. If he got drunk he staggered along the streets and the finger of scorn was pointed at him. The capitalist took his friends to the house. They drank—not beer—but wine and brandy, and it cost not 15 cents but $15 and the worker paid for it. The capitalist's friends went home in a closed carriage. The working man was called intemperate and extravagant; the capitalist was hospitable and generous. But they all got drunk (cheers and laughter); one hid his head on Sunday because he had not clothes fit to wear to church; the other went to the sanctuary and prayed that God would rescue the drunken, improvident workingman. The lecturer knew it was wrong that a wage worker should get drunk, but, for the one who would do so there were ninety-nine who would not and in the name of these ninety-nine he protested against the refusal of short hours on such a pretext, (Applause.) Give them the eight hours and if some would get drunk let the drunkards go where the belong. They wanted the time to bring up the race that was to take their places when they were gone, and this could be done better by having the fathers at home longer and by giving the mothers more time under their own roofs, where their child would be subject to the best influences. If short hours were the rule all men who could work would work. Not only would every man be a worker, he would be a consumer something he could not be while he walked the streets idleness, If four men worked two hours less the fifth man now [standing by could also work. The workingman should insist on having the lands of their state set aside for their benefit and not gobbled up by monopolies.

THE WRONG KIND OF PROTECTION.

The worker assisted others to be protected but nobody assisted him to protect himself. There was a tariff on goods but none on him. (Laughter and cheers.) In competition with him were human beings brought in by the shipload, heads and heels together with their minds clouded, knowing and caring nothing for their rights and privileges, and with no desire to benefit the community. Mr. Powderly believed in protection but it must be protection all around, or stop here and now, Sweep away every particle of tarriff or give the worker the same protection that was extended to others. So long as the wage earners looked to the man who hired him for protection so long would they chase a will o' the wisp. It was human naiure to seize as much as possible, and if they were in power they would do the same. It only takes the turn of the wheel. What they wanted was to see that while they were running the wheel it revolved to their tune instead of to that of the man who stood idly by. The lecturer told of a visit to Connellsville, a place in his own State. He went down into the mine where the men crouched like slaves, as black as the coal they dug out of the earth. He all about him danger signs, and instructions at certain points to hold his lamp close to the ground. He was told that if he so much as exposed his lamp to the air about him he and all in the mine would be blown into eternity. The next morning there went to work in that mine a number of men who knew not even the tongue of the country in which they were. They worked for 25 cents, for 50 cents, for 75 cents a day, in places of men who had been earning a dollar and a half. In one week 19 souls had gone before their Creator to plead for vengeance on the men who sent them to their sudden death. It was not the workingman who did that. (Applause.) These poor beings were brought to this country in thousands under contracts running from 2 to 10 years. They did not enrich the State, they did not benefit those with whom they came in contact, and they did the worst of all things—they degraded labor. In this country as in the States that had a trouble with the Chinese. The community wanted men to whom all could extend the hand, but when the hand is not accepted it was their duty to close it to such as the Chinese and to condemn those who degrade the State by bringing them here. (Cheers.)

THE RICH AND THE POOR.

Two classes of people would remain in the world when the generation of to-day has felt it—the rich and the poor. The poor man's child the lecturer had seen in the coal breakers in dust so thick that he could not be seen four feet away inhaling the coal dust with every breath of his young lungs. Let him go down into the mines, and when he was 21 years old his mind was as black as the coal he left. He was no more fit for the duties of citizenship than he was when he entered the coal-breaker. No flattering picture was drawn of the rich man's child, the vacuous youth with the eyeglass and cigarette, a puppy's head on his cane and another on his shoulders. If the child could not be taken away from the coal breaker and put to school, then there was little hope for the Republic. The lecturer eulogized the work of the Knights through America and the old country and closed amid great applause.

Mr. Harford Ashley moved a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer for the masterly manner in which he had set forth the policy of the Knights of Labor, which was seconded and carried unanimously. A vote of thanks to the Mayor brought the meeting to the close.

TEACHERS IN SESSION.

Semi-Annual Meeting of the South Hastings Teachers' Institute.

Elementary Arithmetic by W. J. Osborne of Ameliasburg, was the first subject taken up yesterday at the South Hastings Teachers' Institute. He said that that there are three important factors in this subject, viz: Accuracy, neatness and despatch, and that the great difficulty in teaching this is to get the pupils to grasp the true relations of numbers and that too great care cannot be taken in the start to proceed slowly and have the child thoroughly understand every step taken. An animated discussion followed in which part was taken by Messrs Osborne, Ferrier, Dafoe, Burke and others.

Mr. J. W. Johnston, one of the Principals of Ontario Business College, gave a kindly invitation to the teachers to visit the different departments of the college and inspect the working of the same.

A communication from the council of Albert College extending an invitation to the teachers to visit that Institution, was read and accepted.

Mr. J. W. Burke followed with 'Hindrances to Teaching.' He classed them under four heads, faults in our educational system, faults in the teacher as an individual, faults of pupils and faults of parents. Legislative action alone can remedy the first. the others are mostly in the province of the energetic conscientious teacher. There great drawback was the frequent change of teachers, and the number who are every year leaving the profession. Very few ever enter it as a life work, and consequently do not take that interest in it they should. He advised the teachers to read more and take a greater interest in the welfare of the pupils. Canadian History by Dr. Wright, Head Master of the Belleville High School, was the next subject. He advised teachers to proceed in this subject as in science from the known to the unknown. Begin with the township, its geographical boundaries, the right of franchise, the township council, their duties, and when the child thoroughly understood this, proceed to the county and county council, from this to the Local Legislature, and finally to the Dominion Government, He advised teachers to provide themselves with Jeffer's larger Canadian History, and Withrow's Canadian History, and to put in the hands of the child Jeffer's smaller Canadian History.

The next subject was Newspapers in in Schools, by S. A. Gardner. which was followed by a short discussion, after which the Rev. Mr. Clarkson, delivered a short congratulatory address.

The President of the Association said that the importance of the subject of Language Lessons, and the difficulty some teachers met in teaching it well had induced him to secure the services of Prof. Coleman of the Deaf and Dumb Institute. His address was practical and instructive and elicited considerable discussion,

CARRYING WAR
Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the propriety goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit,—Exchange.

VISIT TO ALBERT COLLEGE.

The somewhat monotonous routine of the usual South Hastings Teachers Institute was varied yesterday afternoon by a pleasant visit to Albert College. Arriving at 2:30 p.m. the teachers were courteously shown through the museum, art room, class rooms and other appartments of interest by the members of the council. After viewing the college to their satisfaction all assembled in the chapel, where an enjoyable hour was spent in music and addresses. Mr. Johnson, P.S.I., in the chair. A vote of thanks to the college council was enthusiastically passed, and then all dispersed, feeling that Hastings and Belleville had in Albert College an institution of which they might well feel proud.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. THE CHALLEN INQUEST

The Coroner's inquest held to inquire into the cause of the death of the late A. W. Challen, was resumed in the council chamber last night, when four witnesses from Foxboro were called, who testified that the train was not running at a high rate of speed. These witnesses were men engaged on the gravel train. Mr. A. N. Reid, in his evidence, said he thought the train passed Bridge Street running about 15 or 20 miles and hour. The inquest adjourned after 11 o'clock, until Monday night, the 17th inst. There are about nine more witnesses to be examined.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever. but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

BOARD OF WORKS.

At a meeting of the Fire Committee last night the following accounts were passed:—B. V. Foster, $17; Geo. Roblin, $37.50; Bellevile Fire Company, $29.25; Downey & Preston, $59.13; J. H. Gardner, $22.50; Thos. Harris, for building a fire stand, $15; Wm. Sutherland, $89.90. A letter was read from Mrs. Lister, threatening to close up the fire stand at the corner of the lower bridge unless the city paid her a rental of $12.50 a year. The committee took no action.

HOGGARD ASSAULT CASE.

Several Eyewitnesses Identify Four of the Prisoners.

THE FIFTH ONE ARRESTED.

Police Magistrate Flint yesterday afternoon heard the preliminary evidence in the Hoggard assault case. The prisoners, Huddleston, Mills, Henderson, and McKee, were arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

THE EVIDENCE.

The first witness called was William Severn. He remembered the day of the assault, 18th of last August. The first he knew of the assault was when he stood in front of the hotel. He heard glass falling, and ran in the hotel, where he saw two men have hold of Hoggard at the foot of the stairs, and two hold of McVann, the bartender. One of the men tusselling with Hoggard was striking him in the face with something. He heard him say, 'boys, you had better let me go, you have given me a bad cut,' at the same time leaning over of his hands on the stairs. The witness told Hoggard to stand his ground and they could clean them out. Severn struck a man who was in the act of kicking the bartender, when he got knocked down, and was afterwards kicked several times. He got up and leaning on the bar saw a man take a decanter from behind the bar and throw it at him, but he warded it off with his arm. The witness then 'made for' his man, who turned and ran away. Hoggard he said was badly cut and was bleeding profusely. He identified McKee, Henderson and Huddleston. McKee, he said, was the man who struck him with a bottle. Henderson and Huddleston were the men clinched with Hoggard. He was cut before the witness arrived. Mr. Severn swore positively that Huddleston was one of the men, and he was quite sure Henderson was the other who was clinched with Hoggard. McKee ran out of the front door with another man. He saw Huddleston going out of the back door, also with a second party.

In cross-examination by Mr. Burdett, counsel for the prisoners, Severn said Hoggard was holding Henderson down, but as soon as he came in Hoggard tried to get away, but Huddleston would not allow him. He did not see the fifth man who he though must have been the one knocked him down.

John D. McKay, a boarder at the Anglo American on the day of the assault. He said there were five men in all, singing and dancing in front of the bar, and he saw one of them strike Hoggard over the head with a bottle; holding one of the pieces of the bottle in his hand he jabbed Hoggard in the eye. Another one struck the bartender with a bottle, He recognized the four prisoners, but could not tell which one it was struck Hoggard. To Mr. Burdett he said Huddleston was the man under Hoggard. The bartender did not have any person down on the floor. It was Henderson who struck Severn with a bottle. Huddleston was not the man who struck Hoggard with the bottle. The witness said he got excited when he saw the blood. The row began very suddenly.

RECOGNIZING THE PRISONERS.

Samuel Farley heard Severn tell Hoggard to stand his ground and they would clean them out. He saw three bottles thrown in the direction of Hoggard, one of which struck him on the head. He identified Mills as the man who attempted to stamp on Severn's head with his boot. Huddleston and Henderson be saw strike at Hoggard. He said Henderson was the man who threw the bottles or pieces of glass towards Hoggard. He notified the police. Three of the prisoners were met by the police near McIninch's lane. Huddleston was arrested on the spot. Mills said, 'I am one, catch me if you can,' and he started to run off. Henderson said 'I'm another,' and he ran away. The constables gave chase and arrested them.

Mrs. Hoggard, wife of the injured man, looked down the stairway and saw her husband walking towards the kitchen with his hand on his forehead. When she descended the steps she saw a man throw a bottle at Severn. She could not identify any of the prisoners. From the effect of his injuries she said Mr. Hoggard had been laid up ever since and had lost one of his eyes.

The court adjourned at 6 10 until this morning.

MR. HOGGARD'S EVIDENCE.

At ten o'clock this morning the Police Magistrate took Mr. Hoggard's evidence at his house, he being unable to attend the court. The four prisoners were present in charge of Chief of Police. Mr. Hoggard sat on a sofa in the dining room bolstered up with pillows. His wife was beside him and at intervals applied cold damp cloths to his head. He looked pale and at times appeared to be dazed, but his manner of speech was the same as ever. His illness has reduced him so in flesh that he does not weigh within a hundred pounds what he did at the time of the assault. After being sworn Mr. Hoggard said: It was about five o'clock on August 18th, civic holiday, that I was assaulted by five men. I served a drink for them, which was paid for; the smallest fellow asked for a cigar, but would not pay for it; I took his hat and told them they might as well pay then; I then got struck in the mouth; we clinched and I think a rough and tumble fight followed; this took place near the stairs; two or three had hold of me; I tried to defend myself but could not do much; got struck with some sharp instrument, I think a bottle, when I was in a stooping posture; did not see the blow coming or the man who inflicted it, I at once cried out murder, for I thought they had finished me; I identify Henderson as the man who struck me first in the mouth just before we clinched; I thought my head had been pounded with a stone until the doctor took out some glass; the cut inflicted on my head was through my left eye and across the nose; the eye has been removed; I asked the boy for the pay for the cigars before I came around from behind the bar; did not say anything to Henderson before he struck me.

Q.—Can you identify any of the other men. A—Oh, I don't know that I can do the boys any good or any harm, only I am sure Henderson struck me first in the mouth. Boys I don't want to lie but I thought you would have tried them for murder before this. I was sure I would never have lived. I thought the men came in to kill me, that some one had sent them to do it.

To Mr. Burdett—I thought one of them tried to bite me. I don't know whether I had a man down or not, for I could not look around without getting a blow from some direction; it was like a strange dog in the market; it was the little fellow who started the row about the cigars; I recollect Huddlestons being there at the time; I am sure the cigars were not paid far; the little fellow, who called for the cigars, is not here.

When asked what was the result of his injuries, he said: I have been under the doctor's care ever since and came near dying once or twice and lost my eye. 'Perhaps the boys would like to see it,' he said and lifting up the cloths turned around so that they could look him straight in the face. 'That don't look very well boys,' he said, 'for a holiday. I am sure I would have died before this if I had not been nursed so well and attended to so carefully by the doctor.

WHAT THE BARTENDER SAW.

The party then left and resumed the investigation at the police court room when the bartender, McVenn, gave the following testimony: It was quiet in the bar before the five men arrived, they had a cigar, but instead of paying for it began making fun of Hoggard, who went from behind the bar and took a straw hat from the little fellow in a joking manner and threw it behind the bar; the boy reached for a bottle, but I shoved him back; I got a crack on the back of the head then with a bottle; Henderson struck Hoggard in the mouth; three men attacked Hoggard and two of them pitched on to me;—I saw Henderson strike Hoggard in the face with the same bottle he broke over my head; Hoggard was trying to protect his face with his arms in a stooping posture, but Henderson kept striking him from under his arms Hoggard once cried out murder and said to the boys, 'you have fixed me'; Henderson kicked me and Huddleston threw the bottom of a bottle at me as I was trying to get up stairs; I saw a man strike Severn on the shoulder with a bottle, afterwards he was knocked down; I can't swear that I saw McKee or Mills there.

Constable Cook gave evidence in regard to arresting Mills.

ANOTHER ARREST MADE.

In response to a telegram from the Kingston police, Chief McKinnon left at noon for Kingston to bring up the little fellow spoken of who called for the cigars, but didn't pay for them. The authorities are now certain they have the right man.

The case was continued until 9 a. m. Monday.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by uch ng exhausted nature just when she needs ch succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Hollaway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from [illegible] have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Go on lad. Men of my sort are met often enough on the prairies, not to be curiosities. If possible I shall join Stuart Loring's party untill find out where the Miss Beauchamps and whether they are kept prisoners. I shall then seek and opportunity to communicate with them, and let them know you are close by. If I can't do that, our pursuit is useless. I repeat we aren't paladins, lad, who could dash in on army and carry off the prize from under its very nose. We must use strategem and caution. Even falsehood and cunning are excusable when you've to do with such villians as John Gibbon, alias Stuart Loring.

The arrangement seemed rather hard to our hero.

He would have given worlds to have gone with the trapper; but feeling the safety of Pauline might depend upon his quelling this desire, he yielded with as much grace as he could.

Dismounting therefore, as his companion had already done and seeing to his horse he threw himself on the grass to partake of their slight supper,

On concluding his Brixham wrapped himself in his serape and laid down to take a brief rest, not knowing when he should have the opportunity again

Sleep to Eustace Belmore was out of the question.

So he sat and thought of Pauline.

It was night when the trapper awoke.

'Now lad, I'm ready,' he said, rising. First, though, I've been thinking, of something.

'Thinking? I fancied you were sleeping,' said Eustace.

'Yes; and thinking too.'

'Well?'

'That if you had the means about you, you may write a few words to the ladies to prove I really come from you. and am no imposter should I see them.'

Our hero was delighted at the thought of even this brief correspondence with his beloved.

Luckily, he had note-book and pencil. Tearing a leaf from the former he wrote—

'Dearest—my own love, do not despair. I am near. and speedily you shall be rescued out of the villian's hands into which you and Juliette heve fallen. Caution, however, is imperitive our numbers are so small. Put implicit confidence in the bearer of this. Not only do our hopes rest entirely in him, but twice he has saved my life. He is a true, a noble friend. Oh. my darling, be brave, and do not despair. Soon we shall meet.

'Yours until death
'E'

Folding the paper he gave it to the trapper. who having placed it securely in an inner pocket. sprang upon Prairie Belle, to set forth.

'Now, my beauty, we've got our work before us.' he said. patting her glossy mane 'Farewell, lad, for a time.'

'Pray don't make it a long time,' rejoined Eustace. with a faint wistful smile, or suspense will be more than I can bear, and I shall come after you.'

'And,' laughed the trapper,' loss the trail and find yourself after a day's march nowhere. No, no. lad, practice a little patience. Don't go doing mad things and imperilling the safety of these poor ladies You know me well enough so be sure I'll not let the grass grow under my feet.'

'I do, indeed,' answered Eustace, frankly grasping the trapper's hand. I could never could have done any good without you, Brixham.

Laughing, the latter waved his cap cheerfully. as he rode off through the dark visitas of the forest.

He found it no difficulty to keep to the track made by the caravan, as he pretty well knew the course it was taking.

Morning was breaking when he came in sight of the encampment.

Uttering an exclamation of surprise, the trapper checked Prairie Belle.

He saw at once that Stuart Loring had joined a party of 'Saints,' friends no doubt which might render his, the trapper's task scarcely so easy.

Still. I don't know,' he added. Half a dozen may prove better guards than a hundred. while I may more easily avoid the notice of John Gibbon.'

Fear of recognition was the trapper's only dilemma.'

Pulling his coat well around his chin his fur cap over his eyes. he had little dread of detection, considering the time which had elapsed, and the heavy beard and moustache he had grown since his nephew and he had looked upon each other.

Completing his slight disguise, with a word to Prairie Belle, he advanced towards the camp.

Notwithstanding the earliness of the hour, for dawn had not yet broken, the people were astir and busied in their separate avocations.

He had however, passed the boundary before he met anyone, when a man approaching him from the caravans accosted him.

'Hullo, who are you, friend?' he demanded. I don't know your face.

'I reckon it would be rather peculiar, of yer did, stranger,' remarked the trapper, speaking dryly in a low, nasal drawl, and in every way altering his manner, 'seeing that I have jest arrived.'

'Where do you hail from ?'

'Everywhere, ef you're cur'ous, stranger, an' I calculate that's a clear, an' straightfor'ard answer. Now, question fer question. Where are you from, and where air you goin'? Whose fixings air all these yar things, an' do yer want another hand? I've a good 'oss, am slick, rather, with the rifle, an' am on my way fer Saint Francisco Say the word,' stranger an' I'm on. Ef it's no, I can jest skedaddle an' find a place elsewhere. I reckon Hiram Grigg ain't a coon to go begging.'

He ended with a bovine, conceited cachination that would have almost disguised him from Ned himself.

It served to throw the man off his guard.

'He imagined the trapper one of these prairie wanderers, gaining their livlihood by their rifles whom they had frequently met on their march.

'We are a party bound West. he said. We started six weeks back fram Missouri. If you like to travel with us, you can, friend. If our pace is too slow for you, you can pursue your way alone. Good morning.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

AN INDICATION OF THE TIMES.

THE SORROWS OF THREE ENGLISH EMIGRANTS,

'I say, meister, can thee tell oi whar I moit get a job o' work?' was the question put by a middle aged English laborer the other day to one of our emigration agents. The agent looked at the man a few moments and then answered the man's question by another. 'Leave us see, you were here before were you not?' The Briton replied that he had been in the city about three months ago, and since then had been in Buffalo, N.Y., looking for work, but had been unsuccessful, and so had returned to Canada. He then, in answer to questions, stated that some emigration agents in Lancashire, England, had represented the glories of America in such fine language that he, with a number of his neighbors, had been induced to leave their homes, expecting to secure remunerative employment immediately on landing, but, instead of that, nothing but disappointment had met him at every turn. How his neighbors had succeeded he could not say. All he had to eat during two days was a couple of pieces of bread he had 'washed down' with water. The agent gave him some seasonable advice, and the man went away. He returned in a short time with two young men, who, he said, were in an equally bad plight with himself. From the last two it was ascertained that one of them had been working at or near Gravenhurst during the summer, but getting out of a job he had remained in the place until his funds were exhausted and a bill for board incurred. Being informed that there was little or no chance for obtaining employment in sufficient quantity to ensure support for the winter, the men determined on leaving his clothing (about $40 worth) in security for the payment of his board bill, and came to this city. He had searched for work, but had failed, and now he was in a state bordering on desperation. Without food, without money, without work, without friends and very nigh without hope, it is no wonder that the blackest side of the picture should present itself to the man's mind. The third said that he had been employed near Brantford, but had lost his job some time ago and had been unable to obtain one since. The elderly man was severe in his condemnation of the men who had cajoled him and his young friends to this country on false pretences, and stated it to be his intention to work and save until he secured the price of a return passage to England ($15), and then to write a letter attacking the immigration agents, exposing their tricks and falsehoods. The men subsequently visited the markets in search of employment, but whether they succeeded or not has not been developed. The story told by the men is certainly a most discouraging one, and it may be that the benefits to be secured by a visit to this country were exaggerated by the immigration agents.—Hamilton Times.

A SON OF GEORGE IV.

One of the oldest cranks that infest London is a little old gentleman who must be hard upon eighty years of age bearing a striking resemblance to the pictures of George IV. It is generally believed that he is actually an illegitimate son, either of that monarch or of his successor, William IV. The old fellow is wonderfully well preserved, and winter and summer alike takes his airing in St. James' park with the utmost regularity. He is affable with strangers after having explained to them that he could be King of England to-morrow but prefers to enjoy the pleasures of private life, and therefore in 1837 waived his right to the throne in favor of his niece, the present Queen. He calls himself the Duke of Gloucester, and says he will probably ascend the thrown on the death of the Queen, as he has some doubts of the Prince of Wales fitness to rule over the destinies of a great country. The old fellow still adheres to the knee-breeches buckled shoes, nankin vest and brass buttoned blue coat of half a century ago, and it is most amusing to hear him talk with the utmost seriousness, evidently believing every word he says to be true. On the queen's birthday the old gentleman regularly journeys down to Windsor Castle, where his harmless eccentricities are well known. Of course he is not admitted to the castle, but a worthy gentleman who sympathizes with the crack-brained old boy, always entertains him to an excellent dinner at the best hotel in the town, and over a bottle of choice port the old gentleman tells the story of how George IV privately married his mother, which may be true. but who his mother was the old gentleman can never be pursuaded to divulge.

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.

No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's Nerviline, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all pain. This is the best evidence of its efficacy, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents,

'My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions, and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor is all gone from her face. I wish every anxious mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in such a case.'

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for some time. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents,

THE JAMAICA QUESTION.

The question of political and commercial union between Canada and Jamaica receives, perhaps, more attention than any other subject just now, outside of the Canada Temperance Act.

Taking into consideration the differences of race and character of the two countries, the isolation of Jamaica from the Dominion, and the unfitness of the mass of the people of the island for self-government, it does seem strange that a scheme for the political union of the two countries should receive any encouragement from a Canadian standpoint.

The distance separating the two countries is about 2,500 miles, but even this does not represent the distance that separates the two peoples socially and politically. The vast majority of the islanders are negroes, not cultivated or educated, but degraded and sunk in crass ignorance. But even if this were not so; if the people of Jamaica were as intelligent and as well-informed as Canadians, it would not be wise to go away to tropics in search of new territory to develop when we have in Canada millions of acres awaiting development. Why should our energies and means be expended in developing a country so distant and so strange to us, when right at home we have an ample field for the employment of our people and their capital and resources for generations!

It is clear that those who are manœuvering to bring about this union do not want the people of the Dominion to have much of a say in the matter, and this is more evident from there apparent intention of bringing pressure from the Imperial Government to bear upon us. Grip illustrates the idea in a cartoon in which Canada is represented with seven comely white children, but reaching out her hands for a great hulking, black boy whom John Bull is gladly turning over to her as he cannot do any thing with him.

We fail to see any sufficient reason for the annexation of Jamaica, politically. If there are such we hope they may be presented for consideration. To a commercial treaty or union there may be no strong grounds for opposition. In the meantime even our respect for John Bull should not tempt us to take another "white elephant" on our hands when we are already burdened with too many specimens of the costly breed.

THE MAIL FINDS A MARE'S NEST.

It is really too much for ordinary patience to see the systematic misrepresentation pursued by the Mail. During the progress of the labors of the bribery commission it constantly perverted in its editorial columns, the testimony of the witnesses. And truly, nobody expected it to do otherwise. It now pitches into Mr. Hart, M.P.P. for Prince Edward county, because the latter agreed to support Mr. Mowat in his nomination of Speaker, and on questions which it should be declared implied want of confidence.

Mr. Striker, the regular reform nominee who was beaten by a few votes is said to have proposed trying to upset Mr. Hart's election. The latter has been a life-long Reformer, and ran as an Independent supporter of the Mowat government, and the only question of difference was a personal one. There was, therefore, nothing censurable in Mr. Mowat's asking Mr. Striker to retrain from entering an appeal.

This being so, it is manifestly—well, characteristic of the Mail, to assert that Mr. Hart was nominated and elected by the Conservatives. He was elected simply to oppose Mr. Striker and the Mail is not ignorant of the fact. The charge of corruption which the organ fulminates against Mr. Mowat on these grounds rests on a very flimsy foundation, indeed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ENGLAND'S export trade during the past fiscal year have fallen off only one per cent, while those of the United States have decreased $80,000,000, and her imports $55,000,000. Of course as England has almost practical free trade, while our American cousins enjoy the benefits of a high protective tariff, the inference is obvious.

* * *

THOSE WHO defend the policy of bringing pauper immigrants into this country try to make a case by asserting that a great many of our best citizens are the children of people who came out here with nothing but strong arms and willing hearts. All very good, but the class of people usually objected to are those who, whatever may be their strength of arm, are perfectly willing to eat and live at the expense of the country.

* * *

THE WINNIPEG Sun institutes a comparison between the course of the Manitoba government as regards provincial rights, and that of the Ontario Cabinet, to the disadvantage of the former. It shows that, by a want of firmness in insisting on the right to build railroads within their own territory, Manitoba occupies a humiliating position. "Had Ontario," the Sun says, "adopted a similar course she would have lost the Mercer estate, a large proportion of her territory, and control of rivers and streams which are not navigable."

* * *

IT MAY SEEM contrary to Christianity and the ethics of modern philanthropy to oppose a barrier to Chinese immigration or to expel those who are here. If they came to be citizens, to observe our laws, and to conform to the usages of of our land it would be. They come simply as leeches, and the country can not afford the drain. It may be a present saving to contractors to employ Chinese labor to the exclusion of more expensive white labor, but the latter would spend the money here and it would continue in circulation among us, while the earnings of the Chinaman, except the smallest moiety for a bare subsistence, are taken away when he departs, and the country is just so much the poorer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE CHURCH AND THE STAGE.

Our natures, one and all, have their dramatic sides. We like and look for the dramatic in our conversation, in our every day life, in our platform addresses and in our sermons. Whether it be the cold but splendid dignity of a Roman Catholic Benediction, or the wild, hurly-burly grotesqueness of an army street parade, it is the dramatic element that attracts the masses. Now that we have this taste for the dramatic implanted in us by our creator it is for us to use it and use it aright. Without entering into the history of the rise of the drama, the antiquity of which proves that our taste is not acquired but intuitional, we will plunge immediately into the discussion of the greatest feeder of that desire of our humanity—the stage. Well nigh as old as language itself, as wide spread as civilization, as universal as all other forms of amusement combined, the theatrical and operatic stage has a strong, powerful, influential grip on the sympathies of mankind. And perhaps no other organization of to-day has encountered a similar amount of straight shoulder blows, withering anathemas, lecherous scandals and scorching abuse. The church militant (if we may apply that distinguishing term to the more evangelical churches) has drawn its sacred robes closely about it, lest they should be contaminated by mere contact with this so-called giant evil, and thundered out its anathemas at the whole dramatic paraphernalia from the leading role to the gallery g'ods.';

That the stage has its defects, and grave ones too, no one will deny, but it is a debatable question whether, taking it for granted that our dramatic desire must be satiated, the church might not be more influential as a sympathetic corrector rather than as a harsh, extreme flagellator. Theatrical companies are organized to make money. Their sole source of revenue is crowded houses. Accordingly they naturally put upon the stage that which will 'draw.' Now if the Christian people withdraw disdainfully from the theatre and endeavor to drown their cravings after the dramatic in sociables, rude and unartistic tableaux, and street shows, they of necessity leave a large share of the patronage of the stage in the hands of the vicious and the bad. As a logical sequence, the exhibitions on the stage degenerate to pander to the tastes of audience. Theatrical managers would far rather produce the higher and the nobler and the purer of the drama, but in harsh plain Saxon 'it don't pay.' Minstrel troops and Devil's Auctions' play to bumper houses, while the better organizations are disbanding every day for the lack of money to cover expenses. The reason for this is plain. The ruffian and licentious element patronize the low theatre and avoid the pure, and as the patronage lies very largely in their hands, their depraved tastes decide what class of drama shall live. Now, while I could not wish in any sense to appear to dictate to the fathers of the church, I would humbly suggest to them that, having discovered that a 'severe letting alone' policy debases without weakening the theatre, they try the experiment of supporting the higher drama and thus rendering it possible for such performances to exist. Sensible, Christian influences in the opera house would be felt in many ways, swearing would suffer ostracism, the faintest remnant of the rude and vulgar would be banished, drivelling drunkenness would no longer masquerade as side-splitting wit. In the name of a sinking drama, dragging down with it millions of votaries, let us have this influence.

The above remarks apply to the church as a body and not to individual members. The church, officiary and membership, must openly and squarely contenance the pure in the drama or else retain its present rigid attitude. Mere sporadic attendance or the slinking in of single members hurts rather than helps the stage. When a man voluntarily unites with any corporate body or society, he is in honor bound to observe its rules. As well might a Mason expose the secrets of his order, or a soldier turn traitor to his country as a Methodist, with the sacred wine of the communion still wet upon his lips, could hurridly skulk into the more secluded seats of the theatrical auditorium. Such actions draw down condemnation upon the theatre and contempt upon the perpetrators.

This letter has dealt more fully with the relations between the church and the stage than at first intended, but we trust that our friends 'within the pale' will receive these remarks in the same kind spirit with which they are made and draw from them, not injured dignity, but beneficial reflection.

Every public work in the West India Island is in its nature thoroughly local and could never become a work for the common benefit of the whole Dominion. —London Advertiser.

DON'T WORK AS IT SHOULD.

The benefit of the Chinese wall of the National Policy to the workman or the consumer are not very evident in the manufacture of powder. Most of the men in the Cumminsville mill were paid $1.25 a day, and sporting powder is sold at from 40 to 60 cents a pound. A gentleman who is duck shooting at Rondeau writes that he buys good sporting powder in Detroit at 14 cents and pays 5 cents a pound duty.—Hamilton Times.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. IN MEMORIAM.

Sermon by Rev. J. J. Baker in Memory of the Late A. W. Challen,

A HIGH PURPOSE IN LIFE.

Last evening a large congregation assembled in the little brick church on the corner of Coleman and Moira streets, to take part in a special service in memory of the late A. W. Challen, who was killed on the Grand Junction recently. The pulpit and choir gallery were draped in mourning and the singing was of a special character. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. Baker, pastor. His text was:

"I went out full and the Lord hath brought me home again empty."—RUTH 1, XXI.

After referring to the life of the Israelites the rev. gentleman said God did not send grief for grief's sake, but by means of sorrow He reached an end by which affliction worked our for their glory. Very sad occurrences frequently happen but persons are unnaturally dealt with in order to bring about God's purpose—but that purpose will be accomplished in spite of opposition. God has accomplished great things through very imperfect means. They often went forth to carry out some selfish object but God in His wisdom enabled them to accomplish far more than they had dreamed of. They ought to be glad that such was the case, that they had a faith which enabled them to realize in calamities like the present that they were not under fate. The whole world was bound by golden chains about the feet of God. Recognizing that truth they would after see a wise and gracious purpose in many things which without that knowledge would seem to be the work of a hard and cruel fate. They might not all be permitted to see the wisdom in the

SUFFERINGS AND DISAPPOINTMENTS

that had come to them yet they could after look back to points where God had hedged up their way and though at the time they murmured they could now see that God had led them better than they knew. We are not to expect, he said, to be able to see fully the wisdom of God's leading now. How can our sister, whose heart is bowed under a heavy weight of grief, see the meaning of her afflictions? How can we know all that God would accomplish through the loss we have sustained? But the time will come when what now seems dark will be bright. Abraham went out at God's bidding not knowing whither he went. God gave him a great promise but he saw only Isaac towards its fulfilment. The writer to the Hebrews declares that the list of heroes whom he sought all died in the faith not having secured the promise. If they had judged the Lord by feeble sense they would not have proved faithful. Let us bow before God and let him choose our path for us. Let us keep our faith firm in him even though trials come upon us in life. What time we are afraid let us trust. If there are mysteries here there are mysteries in everything. The soul that is buffeted and beaten by the storms of Providence and cannot look up and say Father, is in a sorry plight. Let us go where there is light. Whom the Lord loves he chastens. He has a wise and gracious purpose in sorrow. Let this sustain the widow in her grief and help us in our loss. Here in God there is hope for every soul; here is peace for every troubled one; here is joy in sorrow, health in sickness, light in darkness, life in death.

HIGH PURPOSES IN LIFE.

Bro. Challen was born at Trotten, Sussex, England in 1852. He emigrated to Canada in the spring of 1860 and settled with the family on the homestead near Boston, where his remaining boyhood days were spent. At the age of twelve, while alone before his Maker, perusing a little pocket testament the light of God came into his soul. His life evidenced that from this time he was a new creature. He always referred to it as his turning point. In the year 1868 he entered college at Woodstock where he spent about two years. He then located for a time in Dunville and became the moving spirit in the organization and building up of the Baptist church in that place. The power of his presence for good was afterwards felt by the brethren in St. Thomas, as well as by those in Woodstock. In 1879 he came to Belleville where he at once heartily identified himself with the little church in all its interests. We owe much of what we are to him. As we could not estimate his worth we do not know our loss. Mr. Challen was a young man of far more than average ability and attainments but if all these were thoroughly consecrated to the Master. He had the same power of adapting himself to almost any kind of work, and the will to take hold anywhere. The various departments of our work speak of his untiring energy and zeal. His faith in God was strong and unwavering. He had no doubts about God's work. Accustomed, as he often said, to look on the brighter side and hope in God, that hope was not disappointed. He believed fully that the means which God had appointed were the ones through which His work was to be accomplished. He had no sympathy with to fill the Lord's treasury. He never murmured at to his own lot. Though called to pass through trying circumstances in part years he looked ever to the judge of all whom he was sure would do right. Even in his last hours he said: 'It is all right, God knows best, and I know no reason why I should not be here as well as any one.' His charity was of that sort which accounts not itself, suffers long and is kind. His domestic life was a scene of uninterrupted joy. No outside clouds were permitted to cast their shadows here. As a husband none could be more tender and true. Whoever was permitted to have him as a friend, know the meaning of the word. Those who associated with him in church life believed him in every sense a man of God.

Is judgment was marvelously ripe for one so young, and in it his brethren soon learned to have confidence. He cared not only for those who were at home, but his heart beat in full sympathy with the Lord's work everywhere. None of the interests of the denomination were forgotten by him. He knew what he believed and was able to give a reason for the hope in him. He was in an honest manly way a Baptist, yet no one was more ready than he to recognize the spirit of Christ in another, whatever might be his creed. Firm in his convictions of truth, he was void of all narrowness; strong himself he was always charitable to the weak. The purpose of his life was high. He tried to live to God's glory in all things. With him but a life. While he emphasized the value of principle in living his own life was a grand example of the power of what we know is all important. No work was proposed in the church without his looking to the remoter consequences and asking whether such would ultimately bring honor to Christ. His principles clashed with his financial interests, but he stood by them. In the early years of his employment as clerk he had an offer of a lucrative position in a wholesale grocery in Hamilton, but declined because he could not be in the employ of a firm which sold intoxicating liquor. When he located in Belleville he did so against brighter business prospects in another city, his reason being that he thought the Lord needed him here. Would to God we had more such young men! Into the sunshine of his home, the brightness of his business prospects, his usefulness in the church of God, and his influence wherever felt, his death comes like the grim messenger of a cruel fate. But we thank God for a faith which enables us to say with him, 'It is all right.' We cannot understand it now, but in submission we say 'even so Father.'

RELIGION WAS NO MERE SENTIMENT

A RAILWAY DISASTER.

BATAVIA, O., Oct.18.—The middle span of a bridge across East Fork River, on the Cincinnati Eastern Narrow Gauge Railway gave way last evening as the Manchester express was passing over. The bridge is fifty feet above the water. The engine baggage-car, and first coach was hurled to the water, while the rear car remained on the bridge. There were 45 persons on the train. Many made miraculous escapes several leaping to the stream below. Engineer and fireman killed and 2 fatally injured. The engineer and fireman were killed instantly; they leave families. There were 25 passengers in the rear coach. Had this followed the first section the loss of life would have been appalling.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Farnham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: Geo. [illegible] used it on his son and it cured hem of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

CARRYING WAR.

Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietary goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit,—Exchange.

THE GREAT SALE

OPENS ON

THIS DAY, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16.

MORGAN'S GREAT

BANKRUPT STOCK

—OF—

Costly Furs, Hats and Caps

Are now Thrown on the Market at

MR. T. MUIR'S OLD STAND,

FRONT STREET.

And will Continue until every Vestige of the Stock is Cleared Out.

This is a Real, Bona Fide, Live Bankrupt Sale, the equal of which has never been seen in this City.

For example—All the fine Soft and Hard Felt Hats, sold from $1.50 to $3, buyers can have during the first 10 days at $1.00 each and have their pick selection of all in the store. During the same period all the fine fashionable Cloth and Tweed Caps &c., varying from 50c to $1 50 we will let fly off, your pick of all those for 25c each. These two classes of goods must be cleared out inside of 10 days.

AN IMPORTANT REMARK.

As soon as Country Merchants arrive all these Hats and Caps will likely be Bought Up at Once when our more slow citizens may miss this chance. If the young men of this city wish to act IN TIME it would be well to secure a half holiday and arrive early in the forenoon before the store is crowded. By doing so they will have an immense advantage by getting the very first pick of the whole stock.

The uniform price of $1.00 on Hats and 25c on Caps will save much time and confusion both to customers and to ourselves, and we feel that such will meet with the approbation of the public.

JOE MORGAN.

P.S.—An immense assortment of Children's Hats at 25c each. J.M

MAKING HIS MARK.

Successful Career of a Well Known Sidney Boy.

Mr. A. L. E. Crouter, a Sidney boy, whose friends reside in this vicinity, may be added to the list of successful Canadians in the United States. He left home several years ago, and soon after became a teacher of deaf-mutes in a western institution devoted to the education of that class. Subsequently he accepted a similar position in the Pennsylvania institution located at Philadelphia, where he has been remarkably successful, as the following reference to a recent action of the Board of Directors of that Institution will show. It is from the Philadelphia Press of the 10th inst.—"At the close of the last school session Mr. Joshua Foster, who has been connected with the Institution forty-five years, owing to failing health, tendered his resignation as principal and nominated as his successor Professor A. L. E. Crouter, the assistant principal. At a meeting of the Directors on Wednesday evening last, his resignation was accepted and Professor Crouter was appointed to fill the vacancy to the satisfaction of all connected with the Institution. Mr. Crouter is a man of large experience. He has been connected with the Institution, as teacher, a number of years, during which time his classes were remarkable for their rapid advancement in their studies. Few persons possess his keen insight and tact in reaching the deaf-mute mind, and in giving information to persons deprived of one of the most important senses. He is energetic and thoroughly alive to the work, and will, no doubt, soon make his earnestness and zeal felt throughout the Institution. This is already manifest in the greater activity in every department of the Institution."

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

NORTH HASTINGS ITEMS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

BANCROFT, Oct. 17.—Agricultural exhibitions and cattle fairs have been the order of the day, in this section of the country for the last few weeks. Maynooth, the one nearest the north pole, was held on the 4th, L'Amable on the 7th and 8th, and Wollaston and Limerick with Tudor and many others, have all had their display. The quality of grain etc., shown as far as I can learn was satisfactory, but the quantity of exhibits have not come up to former years in many instances. At the fairs, quite a number of cattle have changed hands, and your southern dollars are very acceptable among the northern farmers.

Many hunting parties from Belleville and elsewhere are wandering the woods and lakes for sport or in search of "health unbought". Venison is plentiful in camp and no doubt you will have ocular knowledge of the fact by the early arrival of many of the antlered quarry.

FALL ASSIZES.

The Bench, Grand Jurors and His Lordship's Address.

The fall assizes opened at the court house shortly after one o'clock this afternoon, Justice Galt presiding.

His Lordship in addressing the Grand Jury said there were only three prisoners in gaol awaiting trial. There were two charges against them. Burglary was, he said, a most serious offence against society and consisted in breaking open a dwelling house between nine o'clock in the evening and six in the morning for the purpose of committing a felony. There might be other business before them, he said, before they were discharged, but at present he was not aware of any further criminal business.

The following is the list of grand jurors: Leonard Rupert, David Henry, Eugene Empey, Dennis Holt, Dennis McCaulay, John D. Ham, James Hamilton, Benjamin Henry, Thomas Chard, Martin Moran, John N. Lee, David Herrill, Wellington Harrison, Albert Chard, John Gawsell, Peter Milligan, Sobrikey Smith, Stephen Seni, Joseph McCormick, Robert Jones, Wanham Fuller, Stephen Dadgley, Adam Leslie and W. J. Hudson. Mr. Albert Chard was chosen foreman.

The court adjourned until 9:30 to-morrow morning.

THE DOCKET.

Causes to be tried with a jury: Molson's Bank v. Coons & Turley, Molson's Bank v. Coons & Abbott, Royal Insurance Co. v. John Beyers, George Greive v. Molson's Bank, W. B. Weller, et al v. J.E. Proctor, Jos. Green v. W. H. Ponton, George Pound v. The Central Ontario, John Hutchinson v. Allan Gilmour, Charles Smith v. Charles Parkins, M. Church v. John B. Morden, Walter Shanley v. TWO MEN SHOT.

Well-Known Characters Wounded in a Row near Albert College.

M. McCUE AND J. MALEE THE VICTIMS

A duel was fought with pistols early last evening in an old frame house on the western bank of the river back of Albert College, which resulted in two of the combatants being seriously and probably fatally wounded. The parties engaged in the row were Michael McCue, better known as "blackstrap" McCue, Jack Malee and Wm. Maguire. They had been living in this house a few days with a prostitute named Bella Wrightman, from Trenton, who was only discharged from gaol on Wednesday last after serving several months. She was met at a convenient place by Maguire and conveyed to this hiding place, where they were joined by the two other pals and the party held high carnival up to Sunday. Plenty of whiskey was used to keep up the spirits of the quartette, and all day and half the night the fun was fast and furious. But a shadow fell over the dream of "Blackstrap" and his well-tried friend John Malee, when Maguire notified them that their presence was no longer required. Of course they resisted such a policy of pay-or-get-out, and a free fight ensued, in which the four worthies took part. McCue and Malee each received a flesh wound from a pistol shot fired by Maguire. Malee was shot in the mouth, and a ball grazed McCue's ear. Dr. Willson was summoned and dressed their wounds. No arrests have been made as yet.

There are all sorts of rumors afloat regarding the assault, but from one who was there a reporter of the ONTARIO learned that the fight took place between three and four o'clock in the afternoon a short distance below Canifton, where McCue and Malee met Maguire. The two first named have had a grudge against Maguire for some time, and meeting him in a favorable place alone they attempted to give him a thrashing. Maguire attacked Malee first and was using him roughly, when McCue seeing that his partner was likely to come off second best in the fight ran to his assistance. A man named McCarty wanted to see fair play and fired off a revolver in the air to frighten McCue away, but he was determined to have a piece of the fight and rushed in. Just what took place is not very clear. But it is alleged Maguire knocked them both out and shot Malee through the chin. McCue was not shot. Malee, it is said, was badly bruised about the the face, but not dangerously, and his clothes were saturated with blood. He was taken to the river after which he was removed to his home. The last that was seen of the girl was on the Madoc road this morning with a man named Way.

Those who are acquainted with the parties state that McCue and Malee did not get enough, as they are known to be hard cases. Maguire, they say, was merely defending himself.

THE HOP MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—There is very little doing here as yet, shippers seeming to give the interior the preference when it comes to filling what orders they secure. The prices there show a little advance, however, and that in turn imparts more in strength here. Sales were reported of choice goods at 22½ in the interior. That price was bid here for choice goods, and probably 23 could be obtained.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

DAIRY MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The Commercial Bulletin of Saturday says: Receipts to-day 10,873. It was a very dull market to day and on the whole, rather easy. Strictly fancy quality of fall dates continued in moderate supply, and on a direct demand could not be reached except at full former outside figures; yet the same class of goods, it directly offered, would have to be shaded in order to secure attention from buying customers. In other words to reach pet factories 12½ would have to be bid, but a holding refusing that and afterwards trying to sell, would not do better than 12½. On other grades there is not much of a report to be made. Some shippers were looking for cheap lots; and a little call came from home sources, but the position was irregular and the actual operating basis merely a matter of shrewdness in negotiating.

HOGGARD ASSAULT CASE.

The Fifth Prisoner, Albert Weekly, Connected with the Case.

In the Hoggard assault case continued from Saturday at the police court this morning, McVenn indentified the fifth prisoner arrested, Albert Weekly, as the man who bought the cigars on the day of the assault in the Anglo American Hotel, and the one who first reached over the bar for a bottle. He could not say that anything further was done by him.

Jacob S. Crothers testified that he saw three men running through his yard. They all jumped in a punt, but as it upset, they made for the bank and ran up McIninch's lane. He could not identify any of them. He saw the constable arrest Huddlestone. He noticed then that their clothes were wet, and the witness saw blood on his hand. Hugh Walker stated that he saw some men running down Front Street. McKee and Henderson were leading. He also thought Mills was there. John Grotto merely saw Huddlestone drinking at the Anglo American bar on the day of the assault. Sergeant McCrudden saw Mills Henderson and Huddlestone in McIninch's lane. Their clothes were wet. He arrested Huddlestone and had him identified at the hotel. Robert Gibson, hotel keeper identified Huddlestone and Mills as two of a party of five or six men who were in his house shortly before five o'clock on the day of the assault, Mills was singing a party song, and the witness told him to stop, when he retorted 'that perhaps a Fenian song would suit me better.' Mills used some impertinent language, but after a time they went out through the billiard parlor. Dennis Keegan saw Henderson, Huddlestone and Mills in the billiard parlor He was playing pool with Huddlestone and Mills, when they got into a dispute and Huddlestone struck him with a ball.

Dr. Willson deposed that when he arrived he found an extensive wound on the left side of Hoggard's head, with the eye nearly extripated. There were other wounds about the head. There was considerable difficulty in preventing inflamation of the brain. The left eye had to be removed and the right one was constitutionally injured. He considered Mr. Hoggard out of danger now. Chief McKinnon said he arrested Henderson on George street, where he had been pursued by a crowd of citizens from Front street. The counsel argued the case at five o'clock this afternoon.

ARREST OF BANDSMAN WEEKLY.

Chief McKinnon returned Saturday night from Kingston with the fifth prisoner, Bandsman Wheeley or Weekly, of 'B' Battery, who was identified by Mr. Hoggard, and his late bartender, McVenn, as the man who called for the cigars and refused to pay, which was the cause of the row. The Chief of Police states that the Kingston officers had considerable trouble in getting the fifth man, through the conduct of two officials at the Battery, who will be taught a lesson probably they will not soon forget. Acting on a telegraphic despatch from here a Kingston constable went to 'B' Battery and demanded Weekly but he was told by a Sergeant that no such a man was connected with the place. A second Sergeant also made the same pretence at ignorance, and a telegram was sent to Belleville accordingly. Chief McKinnon again wired them to go to the Sergeant Major at the Battery, which they did and the prisoner was at once handed over. The conduct of the other two Sergeants, who denied that such a man was connected with the Battery, was reported to the Sergeant Major, and it is said they are to court-martialed.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness — a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

By no means to Brixham's dissatisfaction the speaker passed on, and he proceeded slowly in an opposite direction, keeping his keen eyes on the alert beneath his fur cap.

He knew, from Eustace's description and a photograph he had been shown of Pauline, that he should recognize the sisters directly he saw them.

Consequently, he felt he had made no mistake, in deciding, as he cautiously examined the persons moving about the camp, that those he had sought were not likely among them,

'It isn't likely they would be, he reflected, they are prisoners, that's certain; therefore, they must be in the tents or in the caravan.

To ascertain this he turned his steps in their direction.

'They are not in the latter,' he muttered, 'for there's not a soul near them. So now for the tents.'

He had long examined these, when he exclaimed, bringing his hand down on his knee—

'There they are. That's the one, I'd take my oath, for that tall lank chap, lounging backward and forward is guarding it. They are prisoners.'

He paused, and then proceeded——

'Humph! What could make their gaolers place them so near the trees and away from the rest? It could not have been better for us, so their reason isn't of much consequence. Now, I shall get a word with them.'

He was half concealed by a caravan pondering over the next step to be taken, when starting violently, his honest face suddenly went white, then red, his eye dilated with fury, his strong hands clenched so tightly that the veins stood out like iron cords.

'It is he,' ejaculated Brixham, hoarsely. 'Heaven's curse upon him! That I dared ride ride him down, or leap at his throat and dash his villianous life out at a blow. But I mustn't. No I mustn't for the lad's sake. No John Gibbon, your time hasn't come yet; but for all that we may soon be quits.'

The object, which had elicited this speech was of course Stuart Loring.

He had issued from a tent far down the row and approaching the one before the one which the man acted as sentinel; now raised the canvas and entered.

'That confirms it.' muttered the trapper sotto voice. 'That's their tent. Now my work's pretty clear.'

Putting the caravans between him and the camp, he tethered Prairie Belle in a spot where she would be secure near the forest which he entered.

Passing beneath the trees, he approached the sisters' tent.

When near enough to be able to watch who went in or out of it, wrapping his serape round him, he extended himself on the ground and feigned sleep. Everything he saw confirmed his supposition that he had hit upon the right place to find those he was in search of.

He wondered, however that they did not appear.

Why, they remained within the tent all the day.

Were they, two helpless women, kept such close prisoners as that?

This puzzled Brixham, and hoping to glean information, though he dared not ask for it, he strolled to the other side of the encampment, and entered into conversation with some of the people engaged there.

As it had been previously observed, such men as the trapper were not unfrequently met with in the prairies, consequently the Mormons did not hesitate to talk, putting questions to him respecting the route they were taking.

Brixham gave all the information he could, which was much, and in turn questioned respecting the encampment, arranging his remarks, so as if possible to lead to a mention of the half sisters.

But either through chance or intention, no clue was given.

As evening fell, therefore he slowly worked his way again around his tent, and once more laid himself on the grass.

To his delight the night descended unusually dark.

The moon would have been his enemy

As the hours stole by, the noises in the camp became hushed.

The few lights which appeared vanished save in the tent he was watching, where he could perceive dim rays through the canvas.

Had the time to act arrived?

Should he risk it?

At least, he might get nearer.

He was gathring himself together for that purpose, when he heard someone approaching.

Dropping back in his former position, he assumed sleep.

The next instant he felt himself being violently struck by somebody's foot.

'What in the fiend's name fellow do you do here.' cried an angry voice.

It was the American's.

After one great effort for self control. Brixham mimicking the tones of inebriety answered.

'I shay now what d'you meansh be kicking a feller out of bed like that? I—I reckon stranger, I'll not shtand it.'

He made as though to rise, but with a tipsy oath dropped prone upon the earth.

'Drunken hog!' muttered the other in disgust. 'Rise and get back to the camp.'

'I reckon I'm hanged if I du!' was the rejoiner. I cal'clate I'm well enough whar I am. Who the 'tarnal are you?'

Stuart Loring paused in doubt, then bent over the the trapper.

Brixham breathed heavily, as if already relapsing into a drunken sleep.

'Bah,' muttered the American, deceived, 'the drunken brute! There is no fear of him.

Saying which he went on his way.

'No fear of me, isn't there, John Gibbon,' said the trapper fiercely, through his teeth, as cautiously raising his head, he watched the other until darkness hid him. 'We'll just see about that.'

He waited for a short space, to be sure the American was far enough off then on his hands and knees crawled back to the tent.

To gain an entrance be the legitimate way would be impossible, as a sentinel was constantly posted in view of it.

Stuart Loring had taken every precaution to prevent the poor girls' escape.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, "convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

A TRAGEDY IN PAST PARTICIPLES

We find this amusing style of versification again going the rounds, and so reprint what many of our readers will fancy they recognize as familiar.

Sally Saltre she was a teacher and taught,
And her friend Charley Church was a preacher who praught,
Though his friends all called him a screecher who scraught.

His heart, when he saw her, kept sinking and sunk,
And his eye, meeting hers, kept winking and wunk;
While she, in turn, kept thinking and thunk.

And he hastened to woo her, and sweetly he wooed,
For his love grew until to a mountain it grewed;
And what he was longing to do then he dooed.

In secret he wanted to speak, and he spoke,
To seek with his lips what his heart long had soke,
So he managed to let the truth leak and it loke.

He asked her to ride to church, and they rode;
Though so sweetly did they glide that they both thought they glode,
And they came to the place to be tied and were toed.

"And homeward," he said, "let us drive" and they drove;
And as soon as they wished to arrive they arrove,
For whatever he couldn't contrive she controve.

The kiss he was dying to steal then he stole;
At the feet where he wanted to kneel there he knole,
And he said; "I feel better than ever I fole,"

So to each other kept clinging and clung,
While Time on his swift circuit was swinging and swung,
And this was the thing he was bringing and brung.

The man Sally wanted to catch and had caught—
That she wanted from others to snatch and had snaught—
Was the one she now liked to scratch and had scraught.

And Charley's warm love began freezing and froze,
While he took to teasing and cruelly teze
The girl he had wished to be squeezing and squoze.

"Wretch!" he cried, when she threatened to leave him and left,
"How could you deceive me as you have deceft?"
And she answered: "I promised to cleave and I've cleft!"

A WARM PLACE.

Chicago Herald.

An old fireman who had just oiled his hair and got himself fixed up "so he looked young again,' as he expressed it, was riding down town on the front platform of a Madison street car yesterday afternoon. As he crossed the bridge and looked up and down Market and Franklin streets he said:

"These here streets dont look much now the way they did thirteen years ago tomorrow when I was cavorting around in them. That was the day of the big fire. I was a driving then, and I had been over on the West Side working during the fore part of the night, but the first thing we know'd the fire had got away from us. There wan't nothing to do over there for the fire had burst out and jumped the river, so the cap'n says: We'll catch that d—fire if it's in the hosses to do it.' They hadn't any more'n got the suction unhitched when I grabbed the lines and gave the team the lash. I was afraid to try Adam street bridge, so I came down to Madison and the way we came a pilin over that carry all was a caution. Just as we were crossing, the gas works on Adam street went up with a puff and when I struck Market street something suffocating and hot hit me that made my hair and beard curl and set the horses to jumping. It was the gas all a fire in the street, kind of circling around in currents, and when we got through one of them it would make us hotter. I ain't never had no hair on the back of my head since and my horses looked as they'd been shaved. I began to look around for a place to stop, but I kept seeing fire ahead of me all the time, and I kept right on. The cap'n was behind and when I eased up to cross the car tracks at Clark street he says: 'Don't you stop till the fire does. I'm rare done already.' You bet I whooped her up from that point. Windows were cracking all around us and the flames were leaping over our heads. When we struck Michigan avenue I got under the protection of a big building; and stopped near a plug. The cap'n got a wrench to turn the lever, but the heat had swelled the thing so it wouldn't work. Just then some of the lead on the telegraph wires began to melt and drop down. The cap'n held out his hand and caught one or two dropped them quick and took to his heels yelling: 'Come on, boys, this fire department wan't organized to fight hell fire. 'Tain't no use trying.' We left the old engine right there and waded out into the lake to our necks and waited for the excitement to die out. Chicago is a very lively town, but I dont never expect to see any more times as those were—not in this world anyway."

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.
No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's Nerviline, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all pain. This is the best evidence of its efficacy, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents.

"My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions, and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor is all gone from her face. I wish every anxious mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in such a case."

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there is nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanman's Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

We not only have a living faith in Mrs Pinkham, but we are assured that her remedies are at once most agreeable and efficacious.

USEFUL TO KNOW
Everyone should know that Hagyard's Yellow Oil will give prompt relief; applied externally will cure any pain; and taken internally cures colds, asthma, croup, sore throat and most inflammatory complaints.

"Yes, sir," said Mrs Partington, speaking of one who drank himself to death. "Yes, sir, dissolution has brought many a man to the grave."

A GREAT DISCOVERY.
Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton Ia., says; "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years."

Wife—'John, our coachman must go!" "But why my dear? Our only daughter is married." "Yes, but John, I'm not so very old myself, you know."

A GOOD TEST.
For over sixteen years G. M. Everest of Forest, has sold Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and its sales are steadily increasing. It cures coughs, colds and all lung complaints; is pleasant to take and always reliable.

Small girl—"Aren't you awfully glad to be on land sometimes?" Uncle—'Why what do you mean? I flatter myself I am on land most of the time. Small girl—"You are? Way, papa says that whenever he sees you you are half seas over."

Arnica & Oil Liniment is very healing and soothing, and does wonders when applied to old sores.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE
to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRIO

COST OF ARISTOCRACY.

Henry Labouchere, editor of the London Truth, has been enquiring into the cost of the English aristocracy, and publishes some startling figures to show the people what they pay for the house of Lords. According to these figures, that body exclusive of titled minors, comprises 507 members. The total rental received from their lands, which comprise 14,251,132 acres, is £11,872,330. Besides this, they receive a total of £639,845 from the national treasury as pensions, and pay for the numerous sinecures they hold. Mr. Labouchre estimates that since 1850, the twenty-eight dukes and their families have received from the taxpayers £9,760,000; 33 marquises and their families have obtained £7,303,950 and public plunder amounting to £48,181,202, has fallen to the share of 200 earls and their houses. At present 36 peers have salaries under the Gladstone administration, and the number of those who have been high-salaried officials as members of previous government is 190. Of the Privy Councillors 86 are peers. These figures illustrate the use which the lords have made of their legislative power in obtaining the most lucrative positions under government, and shows how absurd is the notion that an aristocracy is actuated by a high sense of honor or a chivalric devotion to principle or the public good. They are, as a class, as greedy and corrupt as any political heeler in Canadian or American politics, and with infinitely less excuse as they nearly all possess immense wealth from the rent of their vast estates.

SIGNS OF LIBERAL PROGRESS.

It is evident to every careful reader of the newspapers that among the inhabitants of Quebec and Eastern Ontario a strong Liberal re-action has set in. This will affect both provincial and Dominion politics. It is significant that not only the Reform press, but also the Mail and other conservative papers have commented on this very evident "sign of the times." The Montreal Times speaks in the following terms:

"Montreal and Quebec are centres from which should radiate those influences that are calculated to secure a better condition of things and it is to be hoped that the work which has begun will not cease until the entire Province of Quebec has been redeemed from the political thralldom into which the English speaking Conservatives have betrayed it. We notice with satisfaction that in the county of Westmoreland, New Brunswick, which was wrenched from the late Sir Albert Smith, under false pretences, they have commenced to organize in earnest. At a special convention recently held we learn that every parish in the county was represented by men who are not office-seekers or axe-grinders or mere party hangers-on. but men who have grown old in the service of the Liberal party as staunch supporters of sound Liberal principles, and among them was a good sprinkling of young Liberals just coming to take the places of those whom age and infirmity are compelling to retire from active service. This looks well and there can be no doubt that the work which has been commenced will not cease until the banner of Liberalism shall again be that of victory, not ohly for party, but for principle and the general well being."

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

A HARD TASK.

The Mail is hard at work endeavoring to bolster up the N. P. by the brazen assertion that the country is actually prosperous. —Toronto News.

NOT THE RIGHT KIND.

The immigrants who are brought to Canada by assisted passages and such devices are not the kind we want. There is not work enough going to keep the mechanics ahd factory hands already in Canada constantly employed.—Hamilton Times.

BOLD BURGLARS AT LINDSAY.

GOODS VALUED AT $3,000 TAKEN FROM A JEWELLRY STORE.

LINDSAY, Oct. 20—On Sunday morning about 2 o'clock burglars entered the jewellery store of G. W. Beall, carrying off the contents of one large safe. The door of T. D. Moore's law office immediately over the store was forced in with tools which had been stolen from the carriage works of L. O'Connor. The ceiling below was cut through. By means of a rope the robbers lowered themselves to the floor below. The value of the watches, jewellery, &c. taken will probably reach $3,000. Before this it was found that a horse and rig owned by Dr. Kemp had been stolen from his stables and driven off during the afternoon. The horse was found grazing on a road leading to the Q. & O. station at Pontypool. The rig was also found concealed in a clump of tamrack near by. No clue has been had to the perpetrators.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. So it is with the telephone service. We can have the benefit of it without the nuisance of poles and wires disfiguring Front Street.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

TRAINS OFF THE TRACK, TELESCOPED, DITCHED AND BURNED.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 18.—A passenger train, which left Albany at 8.40 last night, ran off the track at Kinderhook. The accident was caused by train wreckers who placed rails and sleepers on the track and wedged them. The locomotive turned completely over, the express car jumped over the obstruction, and the baggage and smoking cars piled on top of the sleeper, which remained on the track. Engineer Davie was found under the wreck terribly scalded and died at 3 a. m. Fireman Stickney's recovery is doubtful. The conductor, baggagemaster and brakeman were injured.

EXETER, Pa., Oct. 18.—An engine on the Reading Railway telescoped the rear of a mixed train this afternoon. Wm. M. Kitchner, superintendent of the signal towers, was killed and several passengers injured.

TUTELO, Miss., Oct. 18.—A terrible wreck occurred on the Mobile & Ohio Railway last night. Every coach of a passenger train was thrown from the track and badly damaged. The rails were taken up by some unknown persons, All the passengers on the train were more or less injured, but not fatally. Mrs. Warner, of Fort Henry, N. Y., was seriously injured.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Oct. 18.—The Chicago express on the Louisville & New Albany Railway struck a defective rail early this morning near here. The entire train was ditched except the sleeper. The engineer, fireman and baggageman were seriously injured, and the passengers were bruised. The train immediately took fire and was totally consumed. The passengers in the sleeper only saved what they had on. Damage, $30,000.

The Village of Frankford Almost Totally Destroyed.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $50,000

Fourteen Buildings and McCambridge's Hotel Reduced to Ashes.

NARROW ESCAPE OF OSTERHOUT.

From our own Correspondent.

FRANKFORD, Oct 21.—One of the most disastrous fires that has ever occurred in Hastings County swept over this village last night destroying nearly all the places of business, the principal hotels and damaging several private residences. This is the second disastrous fire that has occurred during the brief history of the village. this time almost completely ruining the place. Without an engine or fire protection of any kind, the people were powerless to stay the progress of the angry flames and this morning the place presents a blackened and cheerless aspect, Many of the residents have lost everything, while others were driven from their homes with scarcely enough clothing to cover their nakedness. Such a complete devastation can scarcely be conceived by any other than an eyewitness. Two streets for a considerable distance were entirely destroyed, being the principal business portion of the village. The fire began about twelve o'clock and at six this morning a dense cloud of smoke was still overhanging the place, but the fire has been checked and no further loss is anticipated. The total damage is estimated at $50,000 which is partly covered by insurance.

WHERE THE FIRE ORIGINATED.

The fire broke out in Foster's bakery on Mill street, and spread both north and west with wonderful rapidity. A young man named Osterhout, sleeping up stairs was the first one awakened and the fire had then made such progress that he had a narrow escape for his life. As soon as awakened he ran to the stair door but he was met with such a dense cloud of smoke and fire that he found this mode of exit entirely cut off. Closing the door at once, to check the draft, he seized his clothing in his arms and jumped through the second storey window to the street below, without much injury. He made no delay in giving the alarm and as the fierce, crackling flames spread over the village, the residents turned out en masse to fight the devouring element, while farmers living several miles away were attracted to the scene of the conflagration by the bright light which shone brilliantly for a long distance away.

FIGHTING THE FIRE.

The villagers organized themselves into a fire brigade and with the best means at their command began the work of extinguishing the fire, but it was a hard task. The flames had gained such headway by this time that it was impossible to approach the building in which it originated. A line of men with pails was run from the river, and with others on the buildings contiguous an attempt was made to confine the fire to the block of frame stores then at the mercy of the flames, but the heat and smoke drove them in many cases off the roof and the men turned their attention to saving the contents. Such a night of excitement will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the fire.

THE VICTIMS.

The fire spread in a westerly direction from Foster's Bakery, destroying Byron Ostrom's drug store and Dr. Rockwell's office, the Orange Hall up stairs, the post office, Mr. Chapman post master, the office of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, Mrs. Patterson's millinery store, Chown's stove and tinware, Walter Van Norman's harness shop up stairs, and the North American Hotel, brick, built two years ago by Mr. Patrick McCambridge, but he saved a portion of the contents. He had an insurance of $3,000 on the hotel. North from the store where the fire began, E. Scarlett's drug store and Dr. Stevenson's office were reduced to ashes, but by hard work the building on the corner occupied as a dry goods store by Mr. Grass was saved in a damaged condition. Thence extending north up Trent Street the fire destroyed a vacant store owned by J. W. Turley, a dwelling occupied by Mrs. Bell, a widow, an unoccupied house of Turley's, Mrs. Gambett's dress making shop, but her dwelling adjoining was saved after receiving a bad scorching, John Chase's residence was slightly damaged. As far as I can learn this morning all those who suffered by the fire have some insurance, enough probably to start them again in business.

How the fire occurred is a mystery. When Osterhout retired at 10:30 he says there was no fire in the bakery, but in less than two hours the whole place was in flames. It is probable, however, that a spark from the oven was the cause of the fire.

THE CAMPBELL FAILURE.

The Campbell & Son failure still furnishes plenty of room for gossip. The assignment has involved a host of small dealers whose ruin in many cases is irretrievable. Clougher a King street bookseller, is now endeavoring to effect a compromise at 20c on the dollar. He states that he was offered $2,000 to get out of the way; but why he does not say. Taylor, the manager of the collapsed firm, has left the city, and his whereabouts is a mystery. Menzies, of Peterboro' is bitten to the tune of $5,000.

CARRYING WAR Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietry goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit,—Exchange.

A NOTORIOUS SCOUNDREL.

HIS DARING ESCAPE FROM THE CUSTODY OF OFFICERS.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 20.—Jim Courtright, the notorious detective and murderer, escaped from his captors last evening. The officers against the sheriff's protest, took Courtright to a restaurant for meals. His friends had hung two large pistols under the table where the prisoner sat. One of of the guards was inveigled outside, whereupon Courtright seized the weapons, covered the remaining guards, and backing to the door mounted a horse and fled in the presence of a large crowd. The prisoner's friends hampered the officers in pursuit. The escape created tremendous excitement. Jim McIntyre, accused with Courtright was arrested yesterday at Wichita Falls and brought to the city last night. There was a large crowd at the depot. The men were not wanted for killing Mexicans at Silver city but for killing two Americans named Groestedt, near Albuquerque, whom they are charged with having first arrested as officers of law and then deliberately murdered them. Courtright's friends deny the charge.

A MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

A TORONTO YOUTH FOUND DEAD IN QUEEN'S PARK.

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—Wilford Henrick, started on a rabit shooting expedition at daylight, this morning. he left the house before 5 o'clock, carrying with him a double-barrelled shot-gun, which it is supposed he loaded before starting. No one saw him off, and there was no reason to apprehend danger, At half-past 6 a boy going through Queen's Park stumbled across the prostrate form of the young man, who lay dead from the effects of a gunshot behind the ear. The double-barrelled gun lay beside him. A search revealed the fact that he had been robbed of a watch and other valuables. His family especially his widowed mother, are terribly shocked by the occurrence, which is enveloped in mystery. Wilfred who was just 18 years old, recently completed a course at the UpperCanada College. A coroner's jury brought inthe following verdict: "That Wilfred Kenrick was found dead in Queen's Park in the City of Toronto on the morning of the 20 inst. The jury would ask that the police be instructed further to endeavor to clear up the mystery of the death, and follow up the evidence taken this night.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

ORILLIA, Oct. 20.—Albert Davey, a Carpenter was arrested on Saturday on suspicion of foul play. His wife deserted him sometime ago, and went with her children to Campbellford. Soon after this four men entered her house and outraged her. They were arrested, but the woman accepted $100 not to appear and left the town. Her husband, two hours after her departure, came and took the children to Orillia, where he gave vent to various hints of being free from wifely restraint. His daughter repeated his remarks to her uncle upon whose instigation the warrant was issued.

SATURDAY'S GREAT SALE.—It was profitable to those who were at it and a cause of regret to any who may have missed it. They have lost a chance that may not turn up in ten years of one's life time. The thousands rushing in from country and city was so great and continuous that it is a mystery how a single Joe. Morgan hat remains. The idea of four monster lots of fine soft and hard felt hats to be given at nearly one-third of the market value spread through the country and city like lightning, and on Saturday morning the roads were black with people speeding along to Joe. Morgan's great sale. The scene during Saturday was the most determined and uproarious business connection that has happened in this city. The big flag was seen flying from an early hour in the morning. The flow of that great tide of people swelled it at eleven o'clock, but to estimate the results of the entire days trade is impossible, yet when we know that three or four monster lots of fine felt hats from $2 to $3, were to be sacrificed at $1 and 75 cents each, with "your choicest pick of them" as the order of the day, and that eight salesmen were selling and papering as rapidly as they could from 9 a.m. up to 10 p.m., some idea of the amount of business done on that day can be formed. Several times the doors had to be closed to allow a little respite both to salesmen and buyers inside. The pleasing manners of Mr. Morgan throughout has given a most favorable aspect to this great enterprise. To-day again the battle is being resumed, and will continue from day to day till the whole stock is cleared out.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

NATIONAL PILLS are a mild purgative acting upon the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels, removing all obstructions.

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

A council of doctors declared Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of 372 Exchange St, Buffalo, incurable. Her liver was badly disordered; she vomited green mucous; could retain no food, skin yellow and full of humors. She was rapidly sinking, but Burdock Blood Bitters cured her.

AFTER EIGHT YEARS.

A Yeoman Arrested for an Offence Committed in 1876.

Constable Steel, of Shannonville, this morning lodged in the police cells, John Smith, of Tyendinaga, who was charged in the warrant, issued by A. L. Roberts, J.P., in July last, with obtaining $600 in this city under false pretences from John Outwaters. It is stated that the accused gave Outwater a mortgage on his brother's farm, John Smith, in 1874 for $600 and up to last spring paid the interest on the mortgage, so that James Smith was ignorant of the existence of such a document. Last spring John Smith refused to pay any further interest, and Outwater, who lives in Napanee, sued him for the amount due afterwards swearing out a warrant for his arrest. A the police court this morning the case was continued until to-morrow.

FALL ASSIZES.

The first case taken up at the assizes this morning before Justice Galt was the Molson's bank v. Henry Coons and W. J. Turley. The suit was brought against Coons to recover $11,229.66 overdrawn bank account, but Coons not defending the case, judgment was signed against him. The Bank also are endeavoring to recover $10,000 from defendant Turley, as surety for Coons, who was a grain buyer in Trenton in 1882 but who failed some time after obtaining a line of credit from the bank. The defence pleaded that Turley was not in a fit state to transact business when he became surety for Coons, and therefore should not be held responsible. The case is still going on. Hilton and McCarthy, Q.C., for pliffs.; Clute and Bethune, Q. C. for defts.

THE HOGGARD ASSAULT CASE.

The counsel in the Hoggard assault case presented their arguments at the police court yesterday afternoon at some length. Mr. Burdett for the prisoners pointed out that there was no evidence against some of the prisoners and the statements of all the witnesses as against three of the prisoners was very contradictory. The magistrate in giving his decision discharged Weekly, but the other four he sent up for trial at the present assizes. Bail was refused for Huddlestone, Mills and Henderson, but McKee was allowed out on his own recognizances. Bandsman Weekly returned to Kingston on the 12 o'clock train last night, not being required by the other prisoners as a witness.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

Native kid is the name of the leather in a fine stylish boot for ladies at Haines & Lockett's. Price only $1.75.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"Only a Farmer's Daughter," was played before an appreciative audience at the Opera House last night in a manner worthy of the frequent applause which was tendered the members on the stage.

"CHEEK."

Roland Reed will appear in the Opera House on Friday evening in Marsden's "Cheek," a decidedly new and taking play. A New York paper speaks of Reed's performance:—He has elaborated this creation to a point which makes it practically a new thing. When he is on the stage there is no dull moment in the piece. His amazing and natural impudence convulses the house. The supporting company have been well selected as to personnel, and there is in particular one lady who plays a designing adventuress so well that it is life like in its fidelity, and almost ranks as a well studied portraiture with that of the star.

THE ZUFELT GANG.

Frall, Zufelt, and the woman Harrigan went before the grand jury yesterday afternoon on three indictments for burglary. A large batch of witnesses were examined when a true bill was brought in against the whole three prisoners on the charge of burglarizing Mr. H. B. Rathbun's residence in Deseronto, and Mr. Hiram Holden's in Shannonville. A true bill was also presented as against John Henry Zufelt for committing a burglary at Wm. Clare's dwelling in Shannonville. The prisoners were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. They stated as they had no counsel or witnesses summoned they were not ready to go on with their trial, but His Lordship told them they would have to be ready by Thursday when the trial will take place.

Mr. B. A. Harrison, Chemist and Druggist Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia Impure Blood, Pimples on the face, Biliousness and Constipation—such cases having come under my personal observation."

To-Day's Probabilities.

NO POLES ON FRONT STREET.

The City Council Wisely Adhere to their Former Decision.

Aldermen Hanley, Biggar, Maceun, Diamond, Davis, L. Johnson, Pope, Tickell, Vandusen, Pringle, Cooper, Champion, J. W. Johnson, McIlreich, Alford, Petre, LaRoche and Clarke attended the meeting of the city council last night. Mayor Dunnet in the chair.

A letter was read from the Secular Society stating that if the city hall was granted for a lecturer they would drop the suit against the city for alleged breach of contract in re the Chainey lecture.

The Rathbun Company presented an account for $1038 for boom material furnished for the harbor.

The Hook & Ladder Company asked the council to purchase a ladder 45 feet long for use in case of fires.

The Executive Committee recommended that $1000 be paid to the Woman's Christian Association, when $2,225 has been expended on the hospital, $1000 being passed for poor and sanitary purposes.

The council, on motion of Ald. Diamond, refused to grant the prayer of the petition of the Bell Telephone Company for the use of Front street for their poles. An amendment of Ald. Hanley's seconded by Ald. Alford, that the petition be granted, was opposed. Ald. Diamond forcibly opposed the petition. He said the Bell Telephone Company tried to bull-doze them and 'Simple Shallow' though the city press attempted to ridicule the members of the council. He thought the writer of that nonsense ought not to occupy the position he does on the Board of Trade. The name of the author could not possibly be mistaken. There were only four telephones on Front street, and it was a mystery to him why they wanted all the poles there. The statement made by the Bell Company that they could use Front street without the consent of the council, was false. No telephone company could put up poles on any street without the consent of the council, and he read the law bearing on the subject. Ald. Vandusen thought if the telephone could be kept here without using Front street he would not favor the petition. If the citizens were likely to lose business by the move he would go in for having the poles on Front street. Ald. J. W. Johnson was opposed to the monopoly, and was sure the Bell Company would not leave the city, if they did not get Front street. Alds. Tickell and Pope were of the same opinion.

Ald. J. W. Johnson moved that the non-resident lands of this city should be sold for taxes. There was, he said, about $20,000 due from this source, and when the low rate of 5 mills was struck, it was agreed that the revenue should go to the sinking fund, therefore he hoped the wish of the council then would be carried out soon. The resolution was carried without discussion, when the council adjourned.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

LEGAL AND LITERARY SOCIETY.

A meeting of this society was held last evening and was largely attended. The minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted. The society then resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the report of the special committee appointed to draft a constitution on the "Parliamentary principle," which was adopted. The following gentlemen were admitted as members, Alex. Robertson, M. P., and Mr. Stevenson. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. J. B. Flint; 1st Vice President, W. N. Ponton; 2nd Vice President, Adam Scott; Secretary, W. H. Wallbridge; Treasurer, F. S. Wallbridge; Executive Committee, S. Young, S. O'Brien, R. Fenwick, Mr. Stevenson, W. H. Campbell; Premier, Adam Scott; Leader of the Opposition, S. J. Young. On motion the meeting night of the society was changed from Monday evening to Thursday evening of each week, and in accordance therewith the next meeting will be held on Thursday, the 30th inst., at 8 o'clock at the law office of Messrs. Wallbridge & Marskell.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

London Truth says:—Major Knox Holmes, aged 77, rode last week, mounted on a tricycle, a ten-hours' match against G. Lacy Hillier, ex champion bicyclist, "weight for age," Hillier allowing the Major one mile start for each year of the difference between their ages. As the ex-champion is only 28, he had to concede his opponent 49 miles, which as it turned out, he was totally unable to do, although he bestrode a two wheel instead of a three wheel steed. Major Holmes did not stop until he had covered seventy-four miles, and then only for five minutes; while Miller at 56 miles, for which he beat the previous best time, took nearly half an hour's rest. Neither stopped again until the task was completed, the score at the conclusion of the ten hours being Knox Holmes 115 miles, 260 yards; Hillier 146 miles, 250 yards. Whether the winner is wise at his age to undertake such arduous feats is open to question, but that a man at 77 is able to ride a bicycle at the rate of 11 miles an hour for 10 consecutive hours is a comforting reflection for those who hope to attain that age.

MADOC NEWS.

From our own Correspondent.

MADOC, Oct. 21.—Mr. James McGregor Reeve of Wollaston, was in the village last week.

Mr. D. K. Stewart was in the village on Saturday.

Revival Services are being held in the Methodist church.

Mr. Sydmer Ross has built a fine stone fence in front of his new house.

Mr. C. J. Pusey, a former resident of Madoc, was in town last week for a few days.

John Robertson is moving his stock into the store lately occupied by J. A. Rollins.

M. C. G. Wilson has assumed the duties of married life and resides in part of D. C. Clarke's house.

There was quite a crowd in town on Saturday, and the merchants and clerks were kept busy.

Several boys went from here yesterday afternoon on a hand car to Bridgewater to hear the Halleluiah Band sing.

A load of huntsmen, from the front, went through here last week on their way to the north to slay (?) the deer.

James Redmond, a shoemaker, who worked for Wm. Moore, passed away to his long home on Sunday morning. Aged 78.

Mr. Welsh is running a stage between here and Ivanhoe for the accommodation of those who may wish to travel by the C.P.Ry.

Great preparations are being made by the R.C. people for a grand bazaar, which they intend holding during the Xmas holidays.

The Methodist church at Hazzard's Corners is undergoing repairs in the way of painting, trimming spire, &c., to the extent of about $200.

Stirling Lodge I.O.O.F. visited Madoc Lodge in a body last night. After the business of the lodge room was over they were entertained by the latter to a sumptuous repast at Moon's hotel.

Mr. D. A. Caldwell is about beginning business on his own hook in the building lately occupied by Jas. Whytock as a butcher shop. It is hopeful that Ab. will succeed in his new venture better than he did with confectionery.

The Scott Act is the principal subject for conversation around here now, and the general opinion is that if the Act is submitted to the people—and there is no doubt but what it will be—it will pass. There is to be a meeting held in the Presbyterian church in this village on the 28th inst, for the purpose of talking the matter over and getting in proper shape for working, and then I suppose immediately after this the ball will be started rolling, and it is to be hoped that it won't stop until it rolls over all the liquor shops and hotels, completely blotting out that greatest curse of the human race—The Liquor Traffic.

FATAL RESULT OF FOLLY.

THREE CHILDREN FATALLY INJURED BY AN EXPLOSION OF GUNPOWDER.

QUEBEC, Oct. 21.—A horrible story is told as having occurred at St. Joachim, about 28 miles from Quebec. It appears that the seminary farmer of that place had left his four children in the house while he went to do some work. During his absence his eldest son, aged 11, placed a powder flask upon the stove, and finding that it did not explode soon enough put some into the stove, the result being that the stove was knocked into a thousand pieces and the house set on fire. The report of the explosion attracted the neighbors who found the four children lying unconscious on the floor and their clothing all ablaze. They were finally rescued and the fire put out. Three of the children are in a dying condition, but the fourth it is thought will recover.

THE TELEPHONE WAR.

OTTAWA, Oct 21.—The case of the Bell Telephone Company against the petition of the Dominion and other companies praying the Government to declare the Bell telephone patent void on account of non-appliance with the requirements of the patent, was heard by the Commissioner of Patents yesterday. The Bell Company were represented by prominent solicitors and leading officials. The case was postponed for further hearing until the 10th prox.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove those annoying nfirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially elpaffecting cures and renewing strength by uch ug exhausted nature just when she needs h succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence, These Pills horoughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate, They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Little, however, did he imagine that even now a friend was near them that would sacrifice his own life, if need be to wrest them from his power.

Reaching the tent, Brixham placed his ear to to the canvas and listened.

There was not a sound.

Were they asleep?

How could he assure himself he had made no mistake?

At all risks he must make certain of that so rising to his knees he drew from his pocket a sharp bladed clasped knife.

Opening it he inserted the keen point into the canvas and cut a slit large enough to enable him to see the interior.

Placing his eye to the aperature he looked in.

The first glance showed he found those whom he sought.

The sisters were there.

On the couch Pauline reclined, white, wan but conscious.

The dilirium was over.

Her large violet eyes wandered restlessly round the tent, while low sighs escaped from her lips.

In a low chair by her side sat Juliette.

She slept.

For two nights she had not closed her eyes.

Exhausted nature had at last demanded rest.

How was the trapper to communicate to them?

How without his unexpected presence creating terror?

Were they to shreik it might destroy everything.

He feared most for the fair one, Pauline. She looked so delicate and ill.

Yet not onry must e letter the get to them but also have an interview.

The 'how' was yet occupying him when he was startled by a voice soft and musical falling upon his ear.

It came from the occupant of the tent.

It was the youngest sister speaking.

A change had came over her.

Her eyes were wide and fixed.

An expression of pain rested on her featurer.

She seemed to converse with someone. Yet she appeared unconscious.

Brixham applying his ear listened.

There was silence then low and clear the girl said—

'I feel your presence. what do you want with me?'

The trapper started.

Something like awe fell upon him.

Could she have divined his being there?

He was pondering whether to reply, when another voice broke the stillness.

'Look in my direction,' it almost whispered.

This time outside the tent.

Turning his head, crawling a few feet round Brixham strained his eyes to pierce the darkness.

Yes, there was a person standing looking toward the tent.

The man he hated, John Gibbon.

His powerful form was drawn its full height. his arms were extended.

Whatever could he be about.

Hark,! again he spoke.

'Will you obey me?' he asked in the same tone.

Brixham crawling back to the aperture looked in.

Pauline, her eyes directed towards the American.

'I must,' she murmured. I feel I am helpless. Your will governs mine. (Heaven help me.'

'To-morrow you will come to me?'

'You command I must obey,' she answered.

'Good, prove it. Rise, dress, and join me. I would speak to you.'

A moment Pauline seemed to hesitate, to resist, then to the amaze, almost alarm of the trapper. she arose and approached the door of the tent walking like a sonambulist.

Just as she reached it, Juliette woke up.

'Pauline,' she exclimed, starting up in astonishment, 'where are you going?'

Running forward, she clasped her sister in her arms.

With a violent shiver, Pauline recovered consciousness.

Pressing her hands to her temples, she looked around.

'What is it?' she murmured.

'You have been dreaming,' answered the Creole.

'Dreaming! Have I? I—I thought somebody called me,' murmured the girl, vaguely. 'Please let me lie down again, I feel so weary.'

'Again balked, and by her. that magnicent tigress,' ejaculated Stuart Loring, through his clenched teeth. 'Next time she shall be my ally, or I will no longer permit her to remain an obstacle in my path.'

The trapper was as one paralyzed.

What did it all mean?

What new bewilderment, what new vilany was this?

When he again looked towards the American, he had gone, but the night was not yet over.

CHAPTER XLV.

THE LETTER DELIVERED—STUART LORING BRINGS THE CREOLE TO THE WAY OF THINKING

Brixham was in a dilemma.

What he had witnessed had so puzzled and surprised him that he was a mind to seek Prairie Belle, saddle her, and make tracks back to our hero, but on second thoughts he resolved at any risk first to procure a few words with the sisters and deliver the letter.

But how was this to be done?

Looking back into the tent, he saw Pauline, having thrown herself, dressed as she was, upon the couch had fallen into a light doze, while the Creole, her elbow on her knee, her chin in her palm, was buried in thought.

If, from what Eustace had said, he could communicate with her, all would be right.

He determined to make the attempt.

Placing his lips to the opening, he was in the very act of speaking, when another voice arrested him.

It was that of the sentinel desiring to speak to the Creole.

Looking through the aperture, he saw her rise approach the canvas opening cast one backward glance at the slumbering girl, then pass out.

MONTREAL, P.Q.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York. Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.'s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

A FAMOUS GAME OF POKER.

From a story by Joel Chandler Harris 'Uncle Remus,' in the November Century, we quote the following character sketch. The time of the story is before the war:—

'In his own estimation Major Compton was one of the most accomplished of men. He had summered at the Virginia springs; he had been to Philadelphia, to Washington, to Richmond, to Lynchburg, and to Charleston, and had accumulated a great deal of experience, which he found useful. Hillsborough was hid in the woods of middle Georgia, and its general aspect of innocence impressed him. He looked on the young men who had shown their readiness to treat his peach brandy as overgrown country boys who needed to be introduced to some of the arts and sciences he had at his command. Thereupon the Major pitched his tents, figuratively speaking, and became, for the time being, a part and parcel of the innocence that characterized Millsborough. A wiser man would doubtless have made the same mistake.

'The little village possessed advantages that seemed to be providentially arranged to fit the various enterprises that Major Compton had in view. There was the auction block in front of the stuccoed court house, if he desired to dispose of a few of his negroes; there was a quarter track, laid out to his hand and in excellent order if he chose to enjoy the pleasures of horse racing; there were secluded pine thickets within easy reach, if he desired to indulge in the exciting pastime of cock fighting; and various lonely and unoccupied rooms in the second story of the tavern, if he cared to challenge the chances of dice or cards.

'Major Compton tried them all with varying luck, until he began his famous game of poker with Judge Alfred Wellington, a stately gentleman with a flowing white beard and mild blue eyes that gave him the appearance of a benevolent patriarch. The history of the game in which Major Compton and Judge Alfred Wellington took part is something more than a tradition in Hillsborough, for there are still living three or four men who sat around the table and watched his progress. It is said that at various stages of the game Major Compton would destroy the cards with which they were playing, and send for a new pack, but the result was always the same. The mild blue eyes of Judge Wellington, with few exceptions, continued to overlook 'hands' that were invincible—a habit they had acquired during a long and arduous course of training from Saratoga to New Orleans. Major Compton lost his money, his horses, his wagons, and all his negroes but one, his body-servant. When his misfortune had reached this limit the Major adjourned the game. The sun was shining brightly, and all nature was cheerful. It is said that the Major also visited the court-house and executed the papers that gave his body-servant his freedom. This being done, Major Compton sauntered into a convenient pine thicket and blew out his brains.'

MASQUERADED AS A GIRL.

A SUPPOSED YOUNG LADY WITH A BASS VOICE AND A DOWNY LIP.

John Spry, of the Gardner & Spry lumber company, is a wealthy citizen of Monroe street, Chicago. His family consisted of four girls and three boys up to a few weeks ago, but now he has four boys and three girls. The second daughter, Harriet Spry was a favorite among her school girl companions until a short time since when approaching the age of seventeen, it was discovered that she was unconsciously masquerading as a girl when she was in reality a boy. The intelligence shocked her friends and astonished the neighborhood. She was brought up as a girl and considered herself as such, but of late years she developed a muscular frame and became fond of athletic sports. Suspicion was created by her awkward movements and the manly down on her lip. Her voice deepened into a bass.

Miss Harriet got the cold shoulder from the girls. The matter was brought before the teachers and she was sent home. After a consultation with her mother Dr. Moses Gunn was called in. Miss Harriet has had her hair cropped, bought a razor, put on a suit of her brother's clothes, has come out as Harry Spry and entered upon a new career as a young man. In a few days he was sent to Boston, where he is now pursuing his studies in a school for boys. The physicians declare it a most remarkable case.

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.

No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's Nerviline, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all pain. This is the best evidence of its efficacy, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle, Large bottles 25 cents.

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands We believe that there nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanmans Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

USEFUL TO KNOW

Everyone should know that Hagyard's Yellow Oil will give prompt relief; applied externally will cure any pain; and taken internally cures colds, asthma, croup, sore throat and most inflammatory complaints.

"Yes, sir," said Mrs. Partington, speaking of one who drank himself to death. "Yes, sir, dissolution has brought many a man to the grave."

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton Io., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years."

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRI O

"THE LAST TORY ARGUMENT.

"In order that their theories might seemingly be proved, the Grits would rather the country should go to ruin than that the policy of their opponents should prove successful and benefit the people."

The above is the stock Tory argument of the days and on the face of it is most intensely absurd.

When depression and hard times existed in 1878, the Tories did not think what bad effect it might have to state that our industries were languishing and that things looked exceedingly blue. Not they! They exaggerated all the evils and concealed all the successes that attended business. No question of patriotism prevented their calling attention to failures or slackness of business. It was their one object and aim in life to make things appear as dark as possible, if by that means they secured the reins of government to their party.

At that time Reformers, not carried away by the specious promises of universal prosperity by universal taxation, especially on the necessaries of life, tried to show that the proposed panacea was worse than useless, as a means of permanent benefit, that the artificial stimulus infused into certain branches of industry by an abnormal tariff would only benefit the few at the expense of the many and that when a reaction set in, as it assuredly would, things would be in a worse fix than ever.

In the regular recurrence of easier times—all over the world—our country as well as others, experienced its effects and the protectionists shouted themselves hoarse over the benefits derived from the high tariff. Reformers showed conclusively that in very few instances was the increased trade due to jughandled protection, but in spite of it, and from outside causes, and warned the people that an era of depression would assuredly set in when the inflation caused by the so called protective policy of the government would result in deeper disaster, and more certain ruin. And in spite of Tory misrepresentations it has unfortunately so happened. In view of the failures of business firms, the shutting up of car-works and factories on all sides it seems absurd to say that Canada is in a prosperous condition.

Our revenue has fallen off greatly, and our expenditure has increased. We are taxed, indirectly it may be said, but it really comes directly out of our pockets, to an enormous extent to develop manufactures that cannot stand on their own feet even when the people are lavishly bled for their support.

Reformers, or Grits if you will, are just as anxious for the welfare of the country as Conservatives. We all want to make our bread and butter, and it would be foolish to imperil our means of securing a livelihood for the sake of a party cry. But because the Reform press and the Reform party have all along shown the utterly worthlessness of the N. P. as a factor in producing prosperity, and because they now do not lie and cry "Peace! Peace!" when there is no peace, their loyalty is impugned and they are slanderously accused of preferring the ruin of the country to the success of the policy of their opponents.

The N.P. has failed to accomplish the benefits its advocates claimed it would accomplish. It is to-day almost, if not quite, a dead issue, and the party that supports it would be just as dead tomorrow if the people had a chance to pronounce judgment.

If it is wrong to take lessons from the past experience of other nations; to look beneath the surface to discover the hidden cause; to weigh, ponder, and reflect, and then to form an opinion, Reformers are astray. If it is an improper thing to warn the people of the consequences of a certain course of action, and, to speak honestly and truthfully of reverses and failures, as well as the brighter side of events, then Reformers are guilty.

But the childish simplicity of the extract quoted at the begining of this article is transcendant, and the idea of influencing one thinking mind with such rubbish is absolutely unparalleled in its absurdity.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

THE ONLY CURE.

It is clear that hanging is the only cure for train wrecking, which is at present a crime as safe as it is infamous. How to catch the wreckers is the problem.—Montreal Witness.

IT WOULD NOT TROUBLE THE TORIES.

A good many Grits, who have studiously read Gritprint for years are now marvelling that Sir John Macdonald when he went to England the other day, did not carry off the entire Dominion of Canada in his pocket and sell it to somebody. They can hardly make themselves believe that the country is still here.—Hamilton Spectator.

A good many Grits are assured that if Sir John did such a trick the Spectator, Messrs Kilvert and Robertson, Senator Turner and other influential Tories would declare the Premier had done just right. Their endorsation of the sale would be given promptly, without any delay to inquire about the price received.—Hamilton Times.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. Clarke & Co. cor. Front and Bridge Streets.

WHEAT and corn have dropped three cents since the Ohio election. The successes of the Republicans seems to have cast the shadow of Blaine's anticipated victory over the financial prospects of the farmers of Ohio to the tune of over $70,000,000. Thus does protection protect.

THE TOTAL REVENUE of Canada for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1884, was $32,902,215. For the preceding year it was $34,794,648, thus showing a diminution in 1883-4 from 1882-3 of $1,892,433. The expenditure last year was $31,185,842—more than $7,500,000 over the expenditure of Mr. Mackenzie's Administration.

MOST OF the comments on the proposed annexation of Jamaica have been from a Canadian standpoint. But it appears that in this case 'Barkis' is not exactly "willin." The Kingston (Jamaica) Gleaner speaks of our "poor" wages, high taxation, railroad grabs and swindles, is averse to feeding "Canadian suckers," and winds up with the declaration that "our people will decline with thanks any closer alliance, at least until our Canadian brothers reduce their indebtedness and show some enterprise."

THE BRIBERY COMMISSION refused to take the evidence of Mr. Lees, M. P. P. for South Lanark. The reason why Mr. Lees was not heard was because his evidence did not bear on the case, but charged Mr. Caldwell with trying to purchase his vote with a timber limit, (a statement Mr. Caldwell denies) and as the latter was not on trial before the commission no end could have been served by hearing a charge against him. Mr. Lee can if he wishes, prefer a charge against Mr. Caldwell to be investigated by a committee of the House.

PRICE OF WHEAT IN MANITOBA.

Winnipeg Sun.

The Toronto World thinks that it was a fortunate thing for Canada that the N.P. turned up just before Manitoba and the Northwest began to be a great country. Wheat is cheap, we are told, the world over, but just at present it is some fifteen cents cheaper in Minnesota than in Manitoba. Surely it is about time that the protectionist organs in the east stopped repeating this foolish yarn. If they will read their Minnesota and Dakota exchanges they will find that wheat is selling in the northern portion of these States from fifty to sixty cents per bushel. Then if they will turn to the price list furnished by Messrs. Ogilivie & Co. to the Sun, they will observe that similiar prices are prevailing here. Here is the list:

	Cents.
Winnipeg	73
Morden	60
High Bluff	58
Gretna	60
Portage la Prairie	60

The seventy-three cents which is nominally offered at Winnipeg is for a grade which is very seldom reached, and the quotation is more ornamental than useful. The prices at Morden, Gretna, Emerson and Dominion City, places not from the boundary, furnish a fair basis of comparison.

HORRIBLY MANGLED.

A HALIFAX LABORER CUT TO PIECES ON THE RAILWAY TRACK.

HALIFAX, Oct. 22.—On Monday William Sweeney was seen about Bedford station in a somewhat intoxicated condition, but was supposed to have left for home. Nothing was seen of him till early next morning his lifeless remains were found scattered all over the railway yard. The head a ghastly, battered object, was picked up about fifty yards from the trunk and limbs; and parts of the body were thrown promiscuously in every direction, while the tracks were covered with blood and human gore. He must have fallen on the track almost in front of the station and been struck by the night freight, which first ran over him and afterwards in shunting, probably, further mangled his remains. The deceased leaves a wife and several children.

O. Bortle, of Manchester, Ontario Co. N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

A RHODE ISLAND MYSTERY.

A Missing Young Man—A Skeleton Found in the Woods.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA'S RAM.

A short time ago two boys of Park hill R. I., reported having found the skeleton of a man in the woods, but a diligent search failed to discover it. A week later George Derby, of No. 318 Hancock street Brooklyn, reported that while gunning in in Lott's woods he had stumbled across the crumbled remains of a man. Dogs or hogs had torn the clothing into shreds and devoured the flesh Pieces of bone were scattered about and showed signs of having been gnawed. The ribs were intact, and looked as though the man had lain upon his back. The head was gone, Only pieces of the skull were to be seen.

MISSING HENRY WORTHINGTON.

Ever since the two boys made known their discovery, John Worthington, a druggist of Fulton street, Brooklyn, has been a daily visitor to the wood mentioned assisting the villagers in their search for the skeleton, believing that he might find the body of his son Henry who disappeared over two years ago. It was on the morning of April 24, 1882, that young Worthington left his home, and he has since never been heard of or seen. Two years prior to that time the young man had run away, but he wrote to his parents on reaching Boston and returned home after a few weeks. His father thinks he was murdered by Rossa's emissaries.

HIS REASONS.

"Because of letters I have received. I am from Quebec and used to receive letters pertaining to a legacy from the Canadian Government. On the back of the envelopes was the British seal bearing the words, 'service of Her British Majesty.' About this time O'Donovan Rossa's ram was at Fort Hamilton, and my boy was much interested in it, and went to see it whenever opportunity afforded. Somebody has seen the British seal on my letters. Somebody has noted this and the frequent visits of my son to O'Donovan Rossa's ram. Somebody has taken it into his or her stupid head or heads that we were emissaries of the British Government, and that Henry was visiting the ram for treacherous purposes. And that somebody has murdered my boy."

WRONG HEADED SALVATIONISTS.

A by law prohibiting the noisy parades of the Salvation Army was lately passed in Syracuse, N.Y. Of course it didn't stop the marching or the noise either, worth a cent. Several of the leaders are now languishing in the prison, and the army has advertised for "1,000 volunteers, women preferred, in Syracuse, to go to jail for Jesus." This indicates that they intend to continue the battle with the Syracuse authorities. General Mulholland of the opposing army scores a victory each day. On Saturday last he fined his prisoners $50 each, and in default of payment sent them to the Bastile. There are now about thirty Salvation prisoners in that institution. The army announces another parade this evening. It is difficult for outsiders to see what good can result to Christianity by the course of the army in this particular.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple withthe work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. IMPROVEMENT IN TELEPHONES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The test of a new telephone has just been made here with extraordinary results. The invention was patented on June 17th, 1884, and is controlled by the Empire Telegraph and Telephone Company. It promises to revolutionize the telephone service and is especially addapted for priaate lines. The system is simple, complete and costs but one fourth that of the Bell and others. Phospher bronze wire is used and a wooden diaphragm covers a series of painted wooden sheets held in place by a nickle disc. There is no electricity and there can be no disturbances by atmorpheric influences. Every sound is distinctly audible twenty feet from the instrument, no receiver has to be placed to the ear. every word comes out with marvelous clearness. A room full of people can hear distinctly words of a song or the ordinary tones of of a person a mile off. Yet conversation can be carried on over the wire in whispers between persons at each end.

CARRYING WAR

Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietary goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit.—Exchange.

WHO THE THIEF WAS.

The Mystery of the Kingston Larcenies at Last Cleared up.

A great many larcenies have been committed in Kingston and vicinity during the past two months. Mr. T. C. Wilson was one of the principal sufferers and tried unsuccessfully to detect the guilty parties. He has had stolen from him eleven loads of hay, three sets of harness, and about 150 bushels of oats. The thief sold his goods to people in Williamsville and in other parts of the country. Mr. Wilson had been suspicious of him for some time, but got no direct proof until last Sunday, when he discovered a lad with a bag of his oats. When asked where he got them he said that he purchased them from his servant, one Loovey. Loovey is now safe in Uncle Sam's dominions. Two of his accomplices are in Kingston yet, and a third is putting in a term in the Central Prison.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Fernham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

THE DISTILLERS IN COUNCIL.

THE SCOTT ACT DISCUSSED—TO BE FOUGHT AT OTTAWA.

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—The following distillers of Ontario held a meeting yesterday at the Rossin. F. H. Walker of Hiram Walker & Sons, Walkerville, E. Seagram Waterloo; H. Corby, Belleville; A Whitney of the Wiser distillery, Prescott. The meeting, the World states, thought too much money had been spent to no purpose in fighting the Scott Act in the counties; it was thought that the only thing left was to fight it in parliament. Whether they can induce the brewers to join them is not yet settled—the brewers are half inclined to throw the distillers overboard if they thought parliament would remove beer and light wines from the scope of the act. At all events, the fight at Ottawa will be a bitter one, as it is determined to kill the Scott act some way. The Mail newspaper has joined in the work.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

DEAR SIR:—I notice in your issue of last evening a comparison between the prices of coal in Toronto and in Belleville. You are in error when you say that Belleville purchasers pay $6.50 per ton. Coal has not been higher than $6.25 here this season, and when you take into consideration that the Belleville dealers have to pay a tax to the city in the shape of harbor and market dues of 20 cents per ton, the difference is not so great. If you will kindly make comparisons from time to time through the season I think your readers will find that Belleville coal dealers are not so unreasonable as your remarks of last night would lead them to believe.

Yours Truly,
DEALER.

Mr. B. A. Harrison, Chemist and Druggist Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia Impure Blood, Pimples on the face, Biliousness and Constipation—such cases having come under my personal observation."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

Roland Reed in Marsden's favorite comedy-drama "Cheek," draws crowded houses everywhere. In Boston a few months ago a local paper adds another to the many encomiums which he has received: His interpretation of the part has lost nothing in merit since his last appearance here, while in many minor points his acting has noticeably improved. The part is one peculiarly his own, and one for which he is peculiarly adapted. He was warmly welcomed and constant laughter and applause followed him through the evening whenever he was upon the stage. All his songs and medleys were rapturously encored, his song "I'm a Perfect New York Dude," especially arousing the greatest enthusiasm. The supporting company was better than the average. The characters in the play were all well presented. The piece is well set, the view of Madison Square, New York, under the electric light being particularly effective and realistic.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

THE GRAND JURY.

Huddlestone, Henderson, Mills and McKee, of Kinston, went before the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon charged with assaulting George Hoggard on 18th August last, his bartender, McVenn, and William Severn. After hearing the evidence the Grand Jury brought in true bills in each indictment. The prisoners were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. Their trial will take place on Friday.

Another true bill was returned against the Zufelt gang on the VanAllen indictment for burglary, larceny and receiving. The prisoners, however, will likely be tried on but two offences.

The jurymen this afternoon paid a visit to the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, where they were received and shown through the building by the principal, Mr. Mathison.

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. Garrett, of the Okas, will leave in the morning for Winnipeg, where he will reside in future.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

Ald. Diamond thought the streets were now in as good repair as they had been for years, but the appropriation was nearly exhausted. He stated that when the $10,000 was spent, he would decline to grant anything further. The balance of the appropriation he thought ought to be used up in repairs and emergencies. The Aldermen therefore who expected to get new work done on streets this fall were too late and not too previous.

The report was referred to the Executive Committee.

THE LIMESTONE CITY.

Thos. Glassford was fined yesterday for infraction of the market by-law.

A little fellow named McCormack, who has proved himself incorrigible, has been sent to the reformatory for five years.

A saloon keeper, who is much opposed to the Scott Act, says that the government should pass a law to the effect that all professed temperance men, on whose premises liquor was found, should be heavily fined.

NEVER GIVE UP.

If you are suffering with low and distressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by B. Templeton.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25 cents and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

SHANNONVILLE SIFTINGS.

The Barley Market—Personals, Thanksgiving Service, Funeral.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SHANNONVILLE, Oct. 22.—The schooner Jessie McDonald has cleared from Lazier's dock with 2,500 bushels of barley, the balance of her cargo was taken at Belleville and Deseronto. The present low price for grain offers no inducement for the farmers to leave their fall ploughing and other work to market their grain, when it can be done more profitably after the season closes up. The price was slightly advanced of late—from 55 to 60 and 61 is now offered.

Special revival services continue with unabated interest and power every night at Melrose. Large congregations are in attendance.

The season having closed at Massassaga I see Miss Kate Williams again in our midst. I hope that some good fellow may make her stay among us permanent.

The water continues very low in our river, greatly to the loss of the milling interests of the place. It only needs a good water supply to do a first-class business.

Mr. Lake is busy getting material together to build his weigh scales for his coal yard, and will enter at once on the vigorous prosecution of the business, to the greater convenience of the village and vicinity.

Mrs. Codd, daughter of Mr. James Geddis, is here on a visit to her parents and friends from Saginaw, Michigan; on her return, in about a week hence, she will be accompanied by Miss Jane Vivian, who intends spending the winter with her sister in Michigan.

Harvest Thanksgiving services were held in Trinity Church here on Sabbath. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the offerings were liberal. The morning service, in the absence of the minister, was ably conducted by Mr. Kemp, Station Agent.

The remains of the youngest son of Mr. Philip Davis, of the 2nd line, were conveyed to the grave on Sabbath last. A suitable sermon was preached by the Rev. J. C. Ash to a large congregation, and the deepest sympathy was manifested towards the bereft family.

LADIES IN AMERICA

long before they reach middle age frequently find themselves suffering from some of the complaints and weaknesses peculiar to their sex. For all such Kidney Wort is a great boon. It is nature's great assistant in establishing health. Sold by all druggists.

CHARGED WITH CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

A KINGSTON DROVER ARRESTED—HE SAYS ITS A CASE OF BLACKMAILING.

Kingston Whig.

Edward Arnold, who has hitherto borne a good reputation, was arrested yesterday, charged with a criminal assault on a young woman named Margaret Ann Powley, of not prepossessing appearance, who resides at Westbrook. The case was called at the court this morning, but adjourned until Friday, owing to the absence of the county attorney.

So far as we can learn, Arnold who is a cattle buyer called at Powley's and going to the back of the farm to view some heifers, encountered the girl and took improper liberties with her. This is the girl's story; but Arnold alleges that he is the victim of blackmail. He met the girl but did nothing improper, and to prove this statement, he says the girl rode from the back of the farm to the house with him. The assault was said to have occurred on Sept. 19. Arnold was asked to settle the case by paying $50 and refused; hence he says, the action. There are many interested in the case.

FATAL CACCHINATION.

A Newburg N.Y., despatch says: "The best thing I ever heard in my life!" exclaimed William Rufus Brown, and he threw himself back in his chair and absolutely shrieked with laughter. Brown had just listened to a funny story. His daughter formed part of a chorus for some of his friends surrounded him. They had to hold their sides. The tears rolled down their cheeks. Suddenly a crimson stream burst from between Brown's parted lips. He dropped from his seat as if struck by lightning. In the midst of his merriment he had burst a bloodvessel, and despite every effort to save him he died in a few minutes.

"My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions, and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor is all gone from her face. I wish every anxious mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in such a case."

SIDNEY COUNCIL.

TOWN HALL, SIDNEY,
6th Oct., 1884.

Council met agreeable to adjournment. Present—The Reeve, S.T. Wilmot; Deputy Reeve, H. G. Bleecker; Councillors, Henry Fenn and John A. Holgate. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. The Reeve read a communication from the Murray Council regarding the boundary line between Sidney and Murray. The Reeve was instructed to correspond with the Reeve of Deseronto in reference to the above. Mr. Bleecker presented the petition of Robert Green and others asking the council not to close the old road across the west part 15 in the 7th con. The above laid over, the whole council to examine the new road free of cost. The Road Surveyor presented his report of road between 18 and 19 in the 1st con. Report received. In the meantime the council to examine the road free of cost. $25 was granted on sidewalk from the D. & D. Institute to corporation of Belleville, $15 was granted on the petition of R. S. Young and others for sidewalk from corporation to driving park. The vacancies in the Board of Health were filled as follows:—Edwin Read on Board, and B. Mallory as Sanitary Inspector. The Collector presented his bonds which were accepted by the council. Mr. Holgate introduced a by-law to open a road between the 1st and 2nd concession, across lots 13, 14, 15, 16 and part 18, to Sidney Crossing Station, read a third time and numbered 272, road to be opened for public use by the 1st of June next. Council adjourned until the 1st Monday in December, to meet at 9 o'clock a.m. sharp.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send self-addressed envelope to Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City.

CREMATED ALIVE.

TUNNELTON, W. Va., Oct. 21.—While three men were pushing a car of coal along a tramway over the Thomas coke ovens last night, a boy called their attention to a crack in the top of the oven. While examining it, the top caved in, precipitating the men into the mass of white-hot coke. When the oven was emptied an hour later not a trace of the men was found.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

Read the following extract from he lette of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs ch succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so,

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'What's up now?' thought Brixham.

Swiftly they crawled further round the tent.

Through the dark night he could just discern the Creole's commanding figure moving away.

In a moment a man joined her.

It was Stuart Loring and together they moved from the spot.

The trapper was bewildered.

She was not a prisoner or, at least so close a one.

He recollected what Eustace said about Juliette's firmness, her self-possession, and muttered.

'Perhaps she's playing her game as we are ours. She's a young lady, who doesn't seem as if she would tamely put up with restraint. If I could only get at her. But I must deliver the letter to the other one, and at once.'

Returning he noted the position of Pauline's couch; the head of it nearly touched the side of the tent.

Moving round he made another slit with his knife.

Through it he whispered eagerly—

'Hist miss, hist. Can you hear me. Don't be frightened, and for the love of Heaven make no cry.

Pauline's eyes opened.

She fancied she heard a voice but was not sure.

Perhaps she was dreaming.

Languidly she raised her head, looked around, then was about to sink back again on the pillow.

But the trapper once more spoke.

'Hist, hist! Miss Pauline, I'm a friend I come from a friend. Read this.'

The girl gave a frightened cry.

Rising quickly on her elbow she looked around.

What was it?

Who had spoken?

There was no one to be seen.

Was her brain again wandering?

Ah, what was that slip of paper

How did it get there?

It moved.

Why, someone was holding it from the outside.

Pauline, weak from illness and incessant mental excitement, recoiled in terror.

'For Heaven's sake don't be frightened, miss, and don't cry out; I'm a friend,' said the trapper, anxiously.

'A friend, a friend!' exclaimed Pauline, clasping her hands. 'Oh, have you come at last? How long have I waited?'

The prospect of rescue rushed with delirium joy across her.

Trembling with hope, with excitement, she seized the paper.

'That's right miss; read it. Control yourself and then listen to me; there's no time to be lost,' whispered Brixham. 'But as you value your safety and mine; make no sound.'

Only vaguely the girl heard the words.

Eagerly she had opened the letter.

No sooner did her eye behold the writing than with a low cry of joy, pressed it passionately to her lips she ejaculated.—

'Eustace!—its from Eustace. Oh, my love, my love.'

'That's just who it is, miss. Be quiet, don't speak; read it and let me know if you are ready to trust me.'

For a moment Pauline was too agitated to comply.

The letters danced before her eyes filled with happy tears.

A laugh was on her lips but it was so hysterical as to be nearer a cry.

She had been on the brink of despair, and this sudden hope of liberty overcame her.

Brixham watching her through the aperture feared she would faint.

Then did any other than the Creole enter, and find the paper, their chance was gone.

Speaking in a tone advisably of command he bade her be composed and read, if she had any compassion for Mr. Belmore.

'Compassion,' murmured the young girl, with a reproachful glance at the voice. 'Ah, you do not know.'

But by an effort she complied.

'Ah, she murmured trembing with pleasure he is near, he has come to rescue us, Oh we shall soon meet again thank Heaven, for it smiles on me at last.'

Raising her head suddenly she exclaimed—

'Who are you who bring this? But why need I ask, you have twice saved Mr. Belmore's life. Henceforth you are my friend I trust you. How could I do otherwise?—you have saved Eustace. Oh, that could see you, that I might tell the gratitude I feel.'

'There is no necessity for that, miss, your sweet voice expresses it enough. I am working for Mr. Belmore, working to save you from a villian and will, by Heaven!' (this was said very emphatically); 'only I must see you—you and your sister. How can be managed?'

'How, oh, how indeed, ? We are watched day and night,' in so low a whisper, now fearing that the sentinel might hear her, that her perfumed breath fanned the trapper's ear. Also I've been ill, and am so foolish so week. Oh why does not Juliette return? She on the contrary is so clever and strong. Were she here, I do not doubt but she would soon devise a means: still, how shall we escape?'

'See here, miss, I've planned already, its the time we've got to arrange, and it won't do to talk over it in this fashion, when at any moment we may be dropped upon, and heard. Indeed as it is I have stayed, too long, and musn't stay a moment further. Remember I'm near, and a movement of this slit I've made will recall me.'

Pauline would have detained him.

It was such joy to converse with one who had so recently been with Eustace.

She was eager to ask a hundred questions about him.

Perhaps divining this, the trapper retired, or rather became mute, for retreat he did not.

He kept in his place, anxious for Juliette to return, while Pauline devoured the the scrap of paper, with kisses and moistened it with tears of joy.

Yes; she could not but feel freedom was at last at hand.

And it was Eustace, her beloved, who would save her, as she knew all along he would.

While this scene was taking place let us join the Creole and Stuart Loring, and learn what the latter had to communicate at such an hour.

(To be continued.)

DR. SCOTT'S PREPARED SPICE

For Horses, Cattle, Sheep & Swine.

It has no equal in curing Horses of the several ailments to which they are subject. For COUGHS, COLDS, ROUGHNESS of the HAIR, BOTTS SCURVY, &c., it is invaluable, and administered in smaller doses, acts as a Tonic, resulting in a healthy condition and fine appearance of the animal. Is also equally beneficial to CATTLE, SHEEP and SWINE. For sale everywhere.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.'s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience, says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column

AN UNBIDDEN GUEST.

A careless, absent minded man who travels is apt to blunder into adventures, some of which may be unpleasant, while others are amusing.

Several years ago, a young American of this class, an art student in Germany, while wandering on the banks of the Moselle, blundered into the most amusing of mistakes.

He wandered into the grounds about the Castle of Winneberg, the family seat of Prince Metternich. Seeing tables and benches under the trees, he thought he was in a cafe, and taking a seat, rapped loudly on the table with his stick.

A fair haired young girl, who was walking at the end of an avenue, approached, and he ordered her to bring refreshments.

She looked at him with surprise, and disappeared.

In a few minutes a servant, dressed in livery, approached with a tray. The student, thinking it a stylish and therefore expensive place, said that he had only ordered a lunch.

'I have obeyed the order of the Princess, answered the servant turning to the abashed student, who, by inquiring, learned that he was the unbidden guest of the Princess Matternich.

He was American enough to finish the luncheon, and then gave the footman a guilder, to show that the guest, though self invited, was no tramp.

On departing he begged the servant to carry the respects of an American sovereign to the lady, with the assurance that he would often think of her courtesy in his Western home.

INGERSOLL ANSWERED.

The assertion of Col. Robert Ingersoll that Christianity is dying, is answered as follows by Rev. Dr. Kittredge, of Chicago:—

In the year 1000 there were fifty millions of Christians in the world, including communicants of the Greek and Roman Catholic churches, all believed in the fundamental truth of a crucified risen Saviour. In the year 1500 the fifty million had increased to 100 million. In 1700 to 155 million. In 1800 to 200 millions, and in that year began the great awakening of the church to the conversion of the whole world. And in these eight years the 200 millions have grown to 415 millions. Does this look like a dying Christianity?

In the year 1800 there were in this country of actual communicants in evangelical churches 364,872. In 1850, half a century later, there were 3,520,988. Twenty years later, in 1870, there were 6,673,896, and ten years later, in 1880, there were 10,065,962. And to figures grand like these the infidel flings back the unmanly, insulting answer, 'They are all insincere and do not believe what they profess. I am sincere, but they are all hypocrites.' Well, there is one test of any one's sincerity, that is his pocket book. Insincerity does not open the purse strings and pour out the wealth for a cause in which it has no faith. Let us give you the sums contributed by Christians of this country for the two objects of home and foreign missions. From 1830 to 1839 the contributions were $5,228,000; from 1840 to 1849, $8,141,000; from 1850 to 1859, $17,507,000; from 1860 to 1869, $34,089,000, and from 1870 to 1879, $56,183,000—all these immense sums given freely to the spread of Christianity by those who, at heart, do not believe in it!

THE BRAHMIN'S MISTAKE.

St. James Gazette.

Some shocking tragedies have occurred in the Sibsagor district of India. A travelling honarie jeweler arrived late one evening at the home of a Brahmin with whom he had a slight acquaintance, and displayed his wares. The Brahmin, after making some purchase, offered to put him up for the night. The offer was gladly accepted, and it was arranged that the jeweler should sleep on the floor in the room occupied by the Brahmin's son, the Brahmin and his wife occupying the other room. While preparing to turn in the honarie heard the sharpening of a dao and fragments of a conversation carried on between the Brahmin and his wife.

Suspecting foul play, he induced the son to change places with him, and as soon as the former was asleep, placed a dummy composed of a bundle of clothes on the bed crept quietly out and ascended a tree at the back of the house. In about half an hour he heard the dao doing its work, then exclamations of disappointment at finding no plunder, shortly afterward followed by a cry of anguish at the discovery of the mistake the murderer had made. From his place of concealment the jeweler saw the murderer come under the tree with a hoe. Here he dug a grave, in which he buried the body of his son. At early dawn the jeweler descended from his hiding place and gave information at the nearest thanna. The police found the body under the tree and arrested the Brahmin, whose trial comes off at the next assizes.

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there is nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanman's Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have discarded the use of all others.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public, and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRI O

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

Speaking on the anti-Chinese agitation in the western part of the Dominion, the Montreal Herald comes out in a flat-footed editorial in favor of allowing our almond-eyed friends of the Flowery Kingdom to swarm in upon us to any extent imaginable. Without imputing any improper motive to the Herald, we will simply say it is the mouthpiece of the C. P. R. It says:—

> It is well understood that the Chinese are frugal, industrious, patient work-people. They are clever in many occupations, setting an example in intelligent industry to many of those who are demanding their suppression. To drive such a people out of a country which professes to treat all comers alike, and which has had no religious or national test in its dealings with its people; to subject these Chinese to persecutions, especially at a time when we are about to establish trade relations with their mother country, is neither wise statesmanship nor common justice or decency.

Allowing that the Chinese are frugal, industrious and patient, we must not lose sight of the fact that they do not come to our country to become citizens. They come here to scrape up money enough to live comfortably at home. They do not even regard our laws as binding on them, but are under the direction of a syndicate who stipulate for a portion of their earnings for bringing them here. They live on food that for quality and quantity would be utterly inadequate for a Caucasian. They are simply leeches who bring nothing into the country and carry away all they can scrape together.

The few solitary Chinamen who have found their way eastward and live by running laundries are not to be confounded with the lawless riff-raff who are imported to supply cheap labor to corporations of monopolists like the C. P. R. company. We have vices enough in all conscience to contend with and do not want the introduction of the opium hell among us. The description of the "Chinese quarter" of San Francisco and other western cities, with its disease and filth ought to cause people to look at this question carefully.

It sounds very pretty to talk about treating all-comers alike. But these Chinese come here with very different intentions from those that actuate the immigrants from any other country and should therefore not be treated in the same way. If a Chinaman enters Canada with the intention of becoming a citizen, respecting our laws, and conforming as far as he can to our usages let us give him a welcome. But when he comes to deprive our workingmen of a chance to procure a living, when he comes to introduce vice, disease and crime, when he comes to leave nothing behind but filth, benefit nobody but rich contractors and carry off with him all he can scrape of "Melican dollee," then we should be cautious about admitting him. It is no persecution to say to him, "John, this country is open to you if you come on the same terms as others, otherwise we don't want you."

The country belongs to Canadians and to those who wish to become Canadians, but it does not belong to contractors to be given up to be overrun by swarms of rat-eating, disease-breeding Chinamen, each one of whom when he departs, leaves the country poorer by several hundred dollars and gives place for another celestial to repeat the operation.

THE HUDSON BAY ROUTE.

For centuries the ships of the Hudson Bay Company have made a yearly visit to the company's stations on the shores of Hudson Bay. They have usually entered that great inland sea in August and left in October. The difficulties encountered at any other period of the year are scarcely surpassed by those of Arctic navigation. With data for over two hundred years in the possession of the Company it was rather a strange proceeding for the Dominion Government to spend two hundred thousand dollars on an expedition to find out the practicability, or otherwise, of navigating Hudson Bay and Strait for a sufficiently long period in the year to make the establishment of a line of steamers on that route a feasible project.

Of course, the information gathered is simply a confirmation of information long possessed by the British Admiralty. The "Neptune" encountered very rough weather on reaching the Straits on the 5th of August. Blinding snow storms and immense ice-fields were only a part of the difficulties to be encountered. In September the water was more open as the winter's ice had by that time mostly passed through the Straits.

Stations for observation have been placed at convenient places to collect data regarding the opening and closing of the bay and strait with ice, etc. The "Neptune" has returned with a big hole pounded in her side and twenty feet torn off her keel.

The Hudson Bay Company's supply ships are as strongly built as whalers, and yet even they were not unfrequently lost when running up the straits through being crushed in the ice. The expense of equipping a fleet of such vessels would be too great to justify the Dominion in undertaking the task—unless the development of the Dominion be more rapid than at present.

Had the $200,000 been spent in improving the approaches to the Gulf of St. Lawrence it would have been better appreciated. The strong currents and the lights not being numerous enough often lead to disaster, even to sailors well acquainted with the gulf. After our present outlet is put in good trim it will be the proper thing to establish a semi-arctic doorway of entrance and exit, if found practicable.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. Clarke & Co. cor. Front and Bridge Streets.

The Hamilton workingmen will be interested to learn that the Chinese commissioners doesn't think so much of them and their recent anti-Chinese demonstration as it does of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. It is known from the report of the Commission, which is now in the hands of the printers, that it will recommend that no prohibitory measure be passed until the C. P. R. is completed, and not then unless better reasons why it should be introduced are advanced than those a present offered. No other conclusion however, could ever have been expected as long as the railway company runs this country.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

A Terrible Accident on the Grand Trunk Railway.

A BROCKVILLE DRIVER KILLED.

Special to the Ontario.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—A terrible accident happened on the Grand Trunk last night at Point St. Charles, a few miles west of this city, by which one man was killed and two probably fatally injured. A freight train was left standing on a siding with the engine over the switch, and the fast train, No. 6, which left here about eleven o'clock, dashed into the train. The driver of the freight engine, Alexander Stewart, was killed, and his fireman mortally wounded. Only one passenger on the express was hurt. Both engines and several cars were smashed into splinters. The loss to the company will be heavy. On account of the collision the passenger train was cancelled. The remains of the dead driver were taken home this morning.

RELEASE OF THE CLAIMANT.

THE HISTORY OF A MOST REMARKABLE CASE.

The release of the claimant to the Tichborne estate from Dartmoor prison adds another act to what was the most singular and celebrated trial of either ancient or modern times. Apart from the fact that the claimant, a convict no longer, showed almost unequalled talent in the conduct of his two trials, the great hold he has on the lower classes of the English people makes the whole affair an epoch in the history of the English nation. Even at this late date, when he has been released after a long term of imprisonment his name awakens the old time enthusiasm of admirers and advocates. Not only was he believed in by the poorer people of England, but such men as Onslow, Whally, and Kenealy, all of whom are since dead, were among his firm supporters and financial backers. The commencement of the case dates from 1866, when the claimant Thomas Castro, landed in England, and laid claim to the Tichborne estates,

HE ASSERTED HIS IDENTITY.

with Roger Charles Doughty Tichborne, heir to the lands and titles of the old Catholic family of Dorsetshire and Hampshire. The real Sir Roger had been of rather an erratic disposition. Educated partly in Stonyhurst, and afterwards under the Jesuites in France, he entered the army in '49 and in '52 being refused the hand of his cousin Kate, he went to sea, and was supposed to have been lost in in the East Indiaman Bella. His mother, after the death of her second son Alfred, advertised in the Australian papers for tidings of Roger her eldest son. This was in 1866. The advertisement was replied to by Thomas Castro a butcher in Wagga-Wagga, who claimed to be

The case dragged on for four years, during which Lady Tichborne died. The trial commenced on May 12th, 1868 in the Court of Common Pleas. It continued for 103 days, ending in the non suiting of the claimant. He was then indicted for perjury and sent to prison for 14 years.

CARRYING WAR.

Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietry goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit.—Exchange.

"My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions, and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor is all gone from her face. I wish every anxious mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in such a case."

INFANT INDUSTRIES.

HOW THEY THROVE IN AMERICA BEFORE THE DAYS OF PROTECTION.

Chicago Times.

Bancroft tells us that 'as early as 1648 Governor Winthrop and others established an iron furnace at Lynn, Massachusetts, and as early as 1654 fire engines, dies for silver pieces, scythes, pots, mortars, stoves and skillets were manufactured. In 1652 iron works were established at Taunton, which continued to turn out anchors for two hundred years of high tariff and low, and no tariff at. In 1638 the manufacture of woollens was begun at Rowley, Massachussetts.' Says Palfrey: 'In the year 1699 the manufacture of woollens had become so successful that the woollen manufacturers of England, who claimed a monopoly of American markets, induced Parliament to forbid the colonists carrying such manufactures from one province to another, and also forbade them to improve the breed of their sheep. Hat making has also become so successful in consequence of the cheap supply of furs that the London company of hatters remonstrated, and their craft was protected by an act forbidding hats to be transported from one province to another. In spite of these measures Boston hatters made hats equal to the English, and the London felt-makers in 1731 begged that the colonists should not be allowed to wear any hats but those from British shops.' And so one branch after another of manufacture were successfully established in the colonies. not only without help from any traffic or other legislation, but in spite of hostile legislation by the British Parliament.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

The New York Mirror says of "Check" which is to occupy the boards at the theatre to-morrow night:—While there is considerable in the plot which is not new, yet the story is told in such a bright manner, and the flashes of wit are so frequent, that one becomes interested and an entertainment of a most enjoyable nature is witnessed. The characters are all well drawn, and that of Dick Smythe is the most prominent, yet, unlike many plays lately written, all the good points do not fall to the lot of this one part, but the other people have almost equal opportunities—all of which are taken advantage of by the excellent company engaged. Mr. Reed, as Dick Smythe, made an unmistakable hit, and proved himself to be a comedian of great ability. His make up was most artistic and his singing was the amusing business introduced, was received with enthusiastic applause. The star received calls before the curtain nightly, and can feel proud of his success.

THE RAGAN LECTURE.

On Saturday afternoon the opera house will no doubt be crowded, and on Saturday evening the citizens of Belleville will have a rare opportunity of witnessing many revelations of beauty and grandeur, and listening to many touches of humor, pathos and eloquence from "Wales and the South of England." Mr. Ragan's last entertainments here were much appreciated and evoked real enthusiasm, the present course is said to exceed even those in fascinations for eye and ear. The descriptions of Taffyland and the Isle of Wight are said to be inimitable. Conway Castle, the pass of Llanbeius, the Summit of Snowdon, Dolgelly, Ross, Tintern Abbey—the most beautiful ruin in Europe, Salisbury Cathedral and Plain, Stonhenge, Osborn House, The Home of Tennyson, The Needles, Newport, Portsmouth, Brighton and Canterbury, are in turn visited, and will become pleasures of memory to those who see and hear.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

N.H. Van Sicklen of the Chicago bicycle Club has ridden over 3,500 miles on his wheel during the summer.

The Canadian Wheelmen rolls with all the glory of a new suit, and promises to call again. The get up of the Wheelman, mechanical and literary, is a credit to the company and the country.

The utility of the bicycle is proved by the Vermont farmer, who takes his son's machine, suspends the wheels a few feet from the floor, removes the tire, substitutes an endless rope, which he places on the driving wheels of agricultural machines, then makes his son mount and furnish motive power for shelling corn, cutting hay, turning grindstones, etc.

In you should be so unfortunate as to Burn Scald, or Wound yourself in any way, the proper thing to keep clean and heal it is McGregor and Parke's Carbolic Cerate. Insist on having and be sure McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. Price, 25 cents. Jas. Clark & Co's Drug Store cor. Front and Bridge Sts. has the genuine.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter composed wholly of vegetable substances, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chills, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

The motto of the proprietors of Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters is "the greatest good to the greatest number," and so sell a large bottle of a valuable remedy for the small price of 25cents, and warrant every bottle to give satisfaction or money refunded.

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

A council of doctors declared Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of 373 Exchange St. Buffalo, incurable. Her liver was badly disordered; she vomited green mucous could retain no food, skin yellow and full of humors. She was rapidly inking, but Burdock Blood Bitters cured her.

William Gilbert and his wife, who have been married for nearly seventeen years, but who through domestic differences, have been separated for some months, met in the city buildings this morning. The Police Magistrate, Rev. J. W. Burke, and the City Solicitor talked the matter over, giving them some good advice, and in ten minutes a reconciliation had been effected and the two went forth once more husband and wife, with a firm determination to forget the past and live happily in the future, that their family of small children might be cared for and protected during the bleak winter months.

Last evening Miss Mary Shearing, daughter of Mr. A. Shearing, West Belleville, was united in marriage to Mr. R. G. Douglas, of Turtle Mountain, Man., in the presence of a few guests. They have left for a five months' wedding tour for England and the continent. Mr. Roland Brown, barrister of Picton, was married yesterday afternoon to Miss Lydia Caroline, daughter of Mr. F. H. Rous. Her sister, Miss Maggie Rous, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. A. D. Bertwell, merchant of Picton, assisted the groom. The presents which the happy bride received were unusually numerous and costly. The newly married couple left on the evening train for Buffalo. They have the best wishes of many in Belleville, and the ONTARIO is among that number, for their future happiness and prosperity.

POLITICAL FIENDISHNESS.

DIABOLICAL ATTEMPT TO WRECK THE LOGAN TRAIN.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 22.—There was an imposing demonstration in honor of General Logan to-day. He was met at Galesburg by a reception committee of various organizations and escorted to the city. At a point a mile west of Knoxville an attempt was made to wreck the train conveying the party. The train was running at the rate of 40 miles an hour and upon rounding a curve the engineer noticed an obstruction on the track. He put on the brakes immediately but did not succeed in bringing the train to a standstill until the engine had run over two of the four ties which had been laid across the rails. The train reached the city safely. Logan was escorted to his hotel. In the evening Logan addressed a large crwd speaking briefly on the tariff question.

Strong winds from northwest and north, increasing to gales in some places; fair, decidedly colder weather, with local showers of of snow or sleet cold to-morrow.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Farnham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

A GOOD RECORD.

Among the many thousand bottles of Hagyard's Yellow Oil sold annually in Canada not one has ever failed to give satisfaction. It cures rheumatism, colds and all painful complaints and injuries.

FALL ASSIZES.

In the case of the Molson's Bank v. W. S. Turley, the jury answered several questions by His Lordship in favor of the plaintiff, but on several points of law the counsel will argue the case at Toronto the next term.

The prisoners Prall, Zitelt and Harrigan were on trial to-day for burglarizing H. B. Rathbun's house at Deseronto, Hiram Holden's and James Clare's, at Shannonville, and Thos. VanAllen's, in this city. Geo. E. Henderson, Q. C., conducted the case for the Crown, and F. S. Wallbridge defended the prisoners. The evidence for the prosecution was the same as that taken at the preliminary trial before Police Magistrate Flint a few days ago.

HE TRIED TO KISS HER.

WHY AN AFFECTIONATE SWAIN WAS HUSTLED INTO GAOL.

A Newark, N.J., despatch says:—For attempting to kiss a pretty girl August Deeck, a fine looking young German cabinet maker, is in the Second Precinct police station cell awaiting bail. Several months ago he came to this city from Germany, procured employment in Wrightman's shop, and went to board with Mrs. Faust, of No. 147 High Street. He soon fell in love with Bertha Faust, the daughter of his landlady, and he hung about her like a dove. She has sparkling black eyes, raven black hair, which she bangs; a pink and white complexion, a plump form, and is only seventeen years old. August is only twenty-two years of age, has a pink and white complexion, also light hair, blue eyes and an athletic fiuhre.

Two weeks ago, when he attempted to kiss her, while promenading on High street one evening, she gave him the mitten, but he would not have it, and he annoyed her so that she and her mother had him arrested last night for assault, his actual offence being the attempt to kiss her.

To-day the pretty Bertha and the disconsolate August were brought face to face in Police Justice Lomax's court.

August was informed that unless he procured $300 bail he must remain under arrest. In his cell he said to the reporter that in Germany the girls tink nottings of kissing,' and couldn't see why they are so much afraid of a kiss here. 'I guess she kiss some odder mont, he added, und only vant me to take her mit theatres und such dings.

A LONG PENDING SUIT.

THE CASE OF DUNN V. THE QUEEN DECIDED FOR THE PLAINTIFF.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—Judgment was given in the Exchequer Court to day in the case of Dunn v. The Queen, awarding the petitioner the full amount claimed, about $25,000. The claim originated about the year 1844, before the boundary line between Canada and New Brunswick had been definitely fixed. Tibbets cut timber on the territory then in dispute, and was obliged to pay dues both to Canada and New Brunswick. The territory was finally shown to belong to Canada, and instead of endeavoring to collect from New Brunswick the dues improperly exacted by that Province Tibbets and his associates, after Confederation, made a claim against the Dominion Government, contending that the amount due them was a debt incurred by New Brunswick before 1867, and that under the Confederation Act all such liabilities of the Provinces were assumed by the Dominion, which thus became bound to recover the sum due from New Brunswick, and to credit the same to Old Canada, now Ontario and Quebec. The Dominion Government have declined to recognize or pay such a claim, the case was taken before the Exchequer Court with the result already stated. Mr. Dunn, in whose name the petition was brought, is Tibbets' assignee. Messrs. McIntyre & Lewis appeared for the claimant. It is probable that the Dominion Government will appeal to the Supreme Court.

A DESTRUCTIVE TORRENT.

A DAM GIVING WAY AND WATER POURING THROUGH THE CENTRE OF THE CITY.

An Ansonia, Conn., despatch says: The dam of the Ansonia Land and Water Company, at Mill Pond, gave way last night, while workmen were establishing a coffer dam for repairs. The dam is situated in a high part of the city, behind the factories. The water swept with great force down across Main Street until it joined the Naugatuck River, taking in many dwelling houses and stores on the way. Not much damage was done, as the current was not strong enough to carry away the more solid parts of the houses. People in basements lost all of their goods. One or two distressing accidents occurred. A mother and two children became instantly surrounded by water, and men yelled at her to leave them and strike out for herself. They started to go to her assistance, when the place where one child was standing was swept away, and the child carried shrieking amid the debris down to the river and lost.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

GOVERNMENT REGULATING TRADE.

Montreal Witness.

That system of political economy which demands that the Government shall regulate the trade of a country is not an easy one to work. Take the case of sugar in Europe. First, the Germans must produce and refine their own sugar; the Government therefore lays a protective duty upon imported sugar, high enough to make sugar so costly that it can be made from beets and refined, with profit to the grower and refiner. Then too many beets are grown and too much sugar refined, so that the Government must see to it that an outside market is found for it. The sugar is to dear to sell elsewhere, so there is nothing for it but to make it cheap, and this the Government does by paying the refiners enough in the shape of bounties on exports to enable them to sell below cost to other people. The beet growers and refiners are happy though other people think the taxes are rather heavy, and emigrate to where a paternal home Government cannot tax them and will see to it that they get cheaper sugar than they do at home. Soon the quantity of sugar prodreed and refined is so great that the government has not revenue enough to pay the bounties necessary to make it pay to grow beets and refine sugar. It must do something, however. Political economy, as understood by protectionists, demands it. The Government, therefore, sees nothing for it but to purpose a law compelling a reduction of the cultivation of beets for sugar—a beautiful system. How wise are the Governments and how prosperous are the peoples who adopt it!

A SANDWICH ISLAND SUICIDE.

RELATED IN A PECULIARLY PICTURESQUE PARAGRAPH.

From the Hawaiian Gazette.

A sacrilegious son of Belial, who suffered from bronchitis, having exhausted his finances, in order to make good the deficit, resolved to ally himself to a comely, lenient and docile young lady of Malay or Caucasian race. He accordingly purchased a calliope and coral necklace of a chameleon hue, and securing a suite of rooms at a principal hotel engaged the head waiter as his coadjutor. He then despatched a letter of the most unexceptionable caligraphy extant, inviting the young lady to a matinee. She revolted at the idea, refused to consider herself sacrificable to his desires, and sent a note of refusal, on receiving which he procured a carbine and bowie knife, and said he would not forge fetters hymenial with the queen, went to an isolated spot, severed his jugular vein and discarged the contents of his carbine into his abdomen. The debris was removed by the coroner.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of apppetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

A POOR SEASON FOR EARTHQUAKES.

Dullness and depression not only exists in commercial circles, but even scientists are complaining of a dearth in their trade of earthquakes. In a report to the British Association Professor Milne, of Japan, the well known sesmolgist, plaintively stated that "the last season was a comparatively poor one, there being only fifty-seven earthquake shocks between May, 1881, and May, 1882, as compared with eighty which were felt during the corresponding period of the previous year." What is going to become of us, if this state of affairs continues?

LADIES IN AMERICA

long before they reach middle age frequently find themselves suffering from some of the complaints and weaknesses peculiar to their sex. For all such Kidney Wort is a great boon. It induces a healthy action of the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system, and strengthens and gives new life to all the important organs of the body. It is nature's great assistant in establishing health. Sold by all druggists.

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.

No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's Nerviline, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles, just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all pain. This is the best evidence of its efficacy, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

Fortelling the weather is a useful science but relieving the effects of its sudden changes is a better one. Hagyards Pectoral Balsam cures coughs and colds, incident to its sudden changes.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner.

KING'S EVIL.

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by reaching exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED. The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Silence reigned between them after the first salutation.

Before, however they had got beyond the boundary of the encampment, Juliette stopped.

She resolved to proceed no further.

Since their attempted escape, she was 'I think I have gone far enough Mr. Loring' she remarked. 'You wished to speak to me. On what subject? I pray you to be explicit, as my sister's health still necessitates I should not leave her for long.'

'True;' responded her companion instantly halting. Few words will suffice. Need I say those few words refer to her? Miss Beauchamp. I've waited long enough. I can wait no more. This must end.

She regarded him in real surprise.

'What must end?' she enquired, 'I do not comprehend.'

'This driving me from her presence, this putting off. I repeat your sister, Pauline; must at once become my wife.

'Your determination is sudden. 'Why? Because it is necessary, I can support no further delay.'

'You forget her delicate health. Mr. Loring. Even to hint at the union will undo all the doctor has done.'

'No, her very weakness lays in my power.' he replied, apparently of her own free will she shall rise up from her couch, put on her bridal attire, and before Heaven and man take me as her husband.

'You speak enigmas.'

'Which you, you have felt and seen my power should easily read. Did you not see her rise and come to me? It was I who commanded her to do so.'

'You?' ejaculated the Creole in astonishment.

'I, and it was you who stopped her. You fancied she was walking in her sleep, and your interference thwarted me. Now you are aware of the contrary and you must not come between us.

Juliette was silent.

What what she heard was terrible.

It turned her cheek pale.

Such a power was terrible.

Could a man really posses it.

Struck by an idea, she asked abruptly—

'If this is so, why have you not done this before?'

'Because her physical and mental powers were stronger. I might have failed. As I have said, it is her present weakness that befriends me.'

Again the Creole paused.

What could she gain by refusing.

None.

It would only drive him to expedients she could not resist.

Wiser for her to yield.

Besides if he could wed Pauline, seemingly by her own consent, would not all the Creole's trouble, anxiety; and suspense be over?'

If her sister moved and acted only by another's will, how was she to know that? Would she not be credited by all did she declare that it had been her belief that resignation had urged Paulne to the step or fear of a worse fate; or for woman's heart is fickle, that the American's passionate love had touched her heart and he had not woed in vain?

'You say you would marry her at once,' she said abruptly. 'How—where is the means for the ceremony?'

He looked at her.

They stood close together.

Her eyes met his unflinchingly.

'These people,' and he moved his hand toward the camp, but his tones were uncertain, 'have their forms even as the church.'

'No doubt, but their forms are not our forms, therefore in our eyes are not legal,' she answered quietly.

'Why not?'

'That is a question too deep, too intricate to be argued at such a moment,' she rejoined calmly. 'Sufficient that the law, the band which holds society together by a consciousness of safety, and self-benefit refuses to recognise these people.'

She paused, then added in tones so intense so decided that they they thrilled through him——

'Mr. Loring I know it is in your power to separate me by force from my sister, when she would be helpless in your hands but before you can do so, I would kill her or you. You are a clever man a keen observer, one who can read character. If you have read mine you are assured I am not saying what I do not mean.'

He made no immediate answer.

He, no less felt the truth of her words.

She might try to fulfil them though she might not succeed.

Finally, scarcely unable to control his fury, he exclaimed—

'What would you have, you take an oath to aid me yet thwart my every effort.'

'You wrong me. If you can do as you state, marry her; but the ceremony shall be legally performed.'

'How legally, in your idea? Where shall I procure a clergyman?'

'That rests with you and not me; only there shall be no wedding until you do,' was the firm rejoiner.

'I tell he cried, stamping his foot, I have reasons for wishing the marriage to take place tomorrow.'

'Simply impossible, if there is no one to perform it.'

Shall I tell you why I desire it?'

'As you please.'

'Because I believe,' and taking her wrist he bent his face nearer to to hers, 'that at this moment Eustace Belmore is on our track and at any moment he may arrive, and I would avoid—do you mark me?—I would avoid bloodshed, and remove all traces of her becoming his,'

A momentary shudder ran through the Creole's frame.

In a second, however she had regained her composure.

'Mr. Loring, she said with quiet firmness, If you harm a hair of Eustace Belmore's head I will kill you.'

'What?' he cried starting back.

'I will kill you,' she repeated, a little disdainfully; 'Nay you need have no fear of me unless you do that. I love him more than life, and will avenge any injury done him.'

'You love him,' be laughed mockingly. 'you hesitate to remove the obstacle which must ever stand between you two—your sister.'

IMPORTANT TO EVERY LADY IN THE WORLD

A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever

After 25 years of unceasing experiment of time, labor, and expense, I have finally discovered a preparation for the removing of all premature and useless hair from the faces and arms of ladies. It is safe, effectual, harmless and painless, leaving no disfigurement or traces of the application.

If properly applied the roots will be completely destroyed. No future growth need be apprehended. Sold in boxes at $2 each or 3 boxes for $5.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, with full directions enclosed, to any address in Canada or United States.

DR. SCOTT'S

PREPARED SPICE

For Horses, Cattle, Sheep & Swine.

It has no equal in curing Horses of the several ailments to which they are subject. For COUGHS, COLDS, ROUGHNESS of the HAIR, BOTTS SCURVY, &c., it is invaluable, and administered in smaller doses, acts as a Tonic, resulting in a healthy condition and fine appearance of the animal. Is also equally beneficial to CATTLE, SHEEP and SWINE. For sale everywhere.

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.

E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

The bumble bee has laid away its bumble in his nest;
The wasp has put his tail to sleep; the hornet's gone to rest;
The ice-cream sign, turned inside out, now tells of oysters fried;
The bathing suit no longer decorates the ocean side;
The watermelon hibernates—its colics and its aches
Have given place to pain begetting currant jelly cakes!
Between the gleaming sheets the festive small boy stores away
The chestnut burrs that with his brother's night shirt love to play,
And where the fried potatoes sang a matin with cracked wheat
The voices of big hominy and sausage gentle bleat.
These truthful signs presage the chilly coming of the snows,
And tells us we had better change our gauzy underclothes
For thicker ones!

MARRYING IN MANITOBA.

That there is many a slip 'twixt cup and lip was fully exemplified last Monday, and a farmer named Thompson, who lives near Long Lake, will, no doubt, admit the truth of it. He was about to marry a young girl of 18 years, named Lee, and the match was looked favorably upon by the father, as Thompson was said to be well supplied with this world's goods. There was an obstacle in the way, and that was that the girl loved another—a man named Russell. However, things seemed to go on smoothly enough, and the expectant bridegroom with his intended was in town on Thursday last purchasing a supply of necessaries for their wedding which was to have taken place on Monday. Mr. Thompson came to Minnedosa again on Saturday last to purchase more goods, also receiving a wedding present for the bride from Mr. J. D. Giles. It was late in the evening when he left for home, and when he got there the bird had flown. She had left her father's house some time during the afternoon, and started across the prairie on foot to find her affinity. She lost her way but was found by a farmer who knew her, and got her into his buggy and drove her about twelve miles to the place where the object of her affections was supposed to be. On their arrival she was much surprised to find that he was in Minnedosa, so she continued her way to the house of a friend named Alexander Abel, where she remained over Sunday. On Monday morning the young man Russell heard of the escapade, and was preparing to go to Abel's when he heard the voice of his future father in-law, and fearing arrest, got out through the back door of the hotel and made a bee line across the prairie where his heart's ideal was awaiting him. The father had come to town to have the parties arrested, and while standing on Main street bridge talking to Chief Cameron about the matter, the Rev. Mr. Wellwood passed them on his way to marry the pair. Having heard the true state of affairs from the party that came to procure the license and the minister. Mr. Cameron was in no hurry to mar the happiness of two fond hearts. He started the old gentleman off to the house where the wedding was to take place saying, there was no time to lose, and telling him they would get there as quickly by a short cut afoot, as he (the father) would with his pony. The chief went with Mr. Lee a short distance, and then turned to take the short cut through the woods, but the buggy was hardly out of hearing when he walked quickly back to town feeling that he had performed his duty faithfully, if not to the father, at least to the young couple. On the arrival of the minister at Able's and seing the girl he refused to marry them, as she appeared to be under age. They were not to be baulked, however, and soon procured the services of another minister, who securely tied the knot which made them one flesh. They then came to Minnedosa, where with a party of friends they spent an enjoyable evening tripping it until nearly dawn.

THE POWER OF CONSCIENCE.

Thomas Wynne, a notorious robber, one evening broke into the house of a retired linen-draper, and having murdered the husband and wife, carried away property to the amount of £2,500, and to prevent detection sailed, with his wife and four children, to Virginia. The two old people not appearing in the neighborhood the next day as usual, and the doors remaining locked, the neighbors were alarmed, sent for a constable, and bursting open the doors, found them weltering in blood, and the house pillaged. A poor man who begged his bread was taken up on suspicion, and, nothing more than circumstantial evidence appeared against him, he was tried, condemned, executed before the door of the house, and his body hung in chains at Holloway. Meanwhile Wynne, the murderer, was in a foreign land, where he prospered and increased in riches. After residing twenty years in Virginia, he resolved to visit England before his death, and then return to deposit his bones in a foreign grave. During his stay in London he went one day into a goldsmith's shop in Cheapside to purchase some plate that he intended to take home with him. While the plate was being weighed an uproar took place in the street, occasioned by a gentleman's running off from certain bailiffs, who were conducting him to prison for debt. Upon this Wynne also ran into the street, and hearing somebody behind him crying out, 'Stop him—stop him!' his conscience instantly awoke—he stopped and exclaimed, 'I am the man.' 'You the man,' cried the people, 'what man?' 'The man,' replied Wynne, 'that committed a murder in Honey-lane twenty years ago, for which a man was hanged wrongfully. Upon this confession he was instantly carried before a magistrate, committed to Newgate, tried and condemned, and executed before the house where he had perpetrated the horrible deed!

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRI O

THE MEMBER FOR PRINCE EDWARD.

For over a week past the Mail and other Conservative journals have been making a tremendous ado about Mr. Jas. Hart's election nearly two years ago and his support of the Mowat administration. They reiterated the statement that Mr. Hart was elected as an opponent of the government. He certainly received a good deal of support from the Conservatives who preferred to vote for him as the rival candidate to Mr. Striker, the regular Reform nominee. Mr. Hart did not run as a Conservative, and was not elected as a Conservative, but as an independent Reformers and the opponent of Mr. Striker. This the Mail knows; and as we have before remarked the discovery of Mr. Mowat's culpability is simply the finding of a big mare's nest.

The Globe gives the following resume of the case:

(1.) It is to be observed that Conservative emissaries, who had been at work with money in other constituencies, had visited Prince Edward also, and were believed to have dispensed money there as elsewhere for illegal purposes. Corrupt acts render an election void, and also subject the parties to punishment by the courts as criminal offenders. Petitions against a return may be successful, for corrupt acts of agents, for which the candidate is legally, though not morally, responsible, as also for irregularities which have nothing to do with corruption. It is one thing also for a petitioner to make charges, and even to have grounds for making them, and it is another thing to be able to establish the charges by legal evidence; and even an unsuccessful petition involves a respondent in anxiety and expense, the latter of which is not always recoverable from the unsuccessful petitioner. When it was ascertained that Mr. Hart, like Mr. Striker, intended to support the Government, in accordance with his past record, there was no political object in proceeding with Mr. Striker's petition, and the Globe, of the 18th April, 1883, contained the statement already quoted.

(2.) It has never been thought the duty of any party to encourage proceedings for unseating a supporter; though, certainly, expectation even in that line ought not to be thought surprising since the celebrated charges of Mr. Meredith before the Royal Commission, to the effect that Mr. Mowat had entered into a "conspiracy" to turn himself out of office!

(3.) The action of the Government in the Prince Edward matter was not a secret, and was publicly stated by ourselves at the time. It s the Globe's article of a year and a half ago that the Opposition journals are now quoting for their facts.

(4.) The intended petition was against a lifelong Reformer who owed his election to having received certain votes of Reformers in the just lief on their part that he would support the Government and who while accepting Conservative votes, had given no pledge to join the Tory ranks in case of his being elected.

(5.) If some of the Conservative emissaries in the county, or any others, had been guilty of corrupt acts, withholding of the petition did not prevent their being prosecuted as guilty of criminal offences. It merely relieved Mr. Hart from the chance of being unseated on account of such acts, and from the anxiety and expense attendant upon such a petition.

(6.) The Opposition scheme was to bribe an old Reformer with a seat in the Legislature; and they now cry out because, while the Reformer was elected with their assistance, promising them nothing, he remained a Reformer, and supported as a member of the Assembly, the Government which he had always previous supported as an elector.

GENERAL BUTLER'S POLITICAL RECORD.

General Benjamin Franklin Butler bears a very unenviable and unsavory reputation. Of all political gymnastics, his patent back-action somersaults take the cake. Originally, a republican, he drifted into the ranks of the democrats, and aspired to the party nomination as candidate for the presidency. Another having been chosen, Ben retired in the sulks, only to emerge as the people's candidate, the nominee of the greenbackers, the labor party and other nondescripts. He poses as the friend of the workingmen and while tickling the ears of the horny-fisted sons of toil with his sophistries he is "living in clover," being, as is commonly believed, supplied with campaign ammunition by the Republicans, who use him to detach a portion of Cleveland's natural following. At one time, not long ago, Ben was a white-headed boy among the Democrats, and a scoundrel and unhung villain to judge by Republican utterances. The following is how he is now portrayed by the Oswego Palladium (Democrat):—

In his day Butler has played more than one base part. He has voted away millions of acres of land to railroad companies, while pretending to oppose the spoliation of the public domain. He has sat in congress as the attorney of Jay Gould, betraying the interest of the government to the Union Pacific railroad corporation while furiously denouncing the encroachments of monopoly. He has hired spies to dog the footsteps of men whom he hated, and suborned perjurers to bear false witness against them. But in nothing has he been more treacherous than in his present character character as stool pigeon to Blaine, while setting himself up as the champion of workingmen. When innocent representatives of the Butler movement went to New York to secure his aid in Maryland they were somewhat surprised to find their hero in the hands of the republican national committee. They were soon made to understand that Butler could not be employed in such a state as Maryland when he could be put to so much more valuable use as a stool-pigeon in New York to decoy democratic votes from Cleveland. The disgust of Butler's Maryland supporters on making this discovery may be imagined. They have returned home with the resolve to nominate no electoral ticket in that state. There are workingmen who still believe that Butler is sincerely defending their interests, when he is laboring with malignant industry to divide their forces.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

Native kid is the name of the leather in a fine stylish boot for ladies at Haines & Lockett's. Price only $1.75.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Mail tells us that Conservatives do not support or nominate independents. Well, experience has taught us that where there is no hope of their getting a party man in they will rally round anybody who will oppose the nominee of the Reform party. They have often done it, and are quite likely to do it again.

* * *

LORD SALISBURY praises Canadians for being so loyal as to offer men and money to aid the Cape Colonists against the Boers. As no Canadian knows of any such offer having been made, it is a matter of conjecture where the noble lord got his information, but is an apt illustration of the old saw about going away to get home news.

* * *

AN UNSOLVABLE ENIGMA to the workingman is why he must pay taxes on the house and lot he has earned by constant toil, while every clergyman, whether high or low salaried, lives in a comfortable parsonage unembarrassed by the unwelcome visit of the tax collector. It is one of those things that "no fellah can understand."

* * *

THE LAST American steamship line has passed into the hands of free trade Britain. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company have given it into the hands of the International Navigation Company. Thus the Stars and Stripes are daily becoming less and less on the seas, and the trade of the world is returning to be controlled by the Union Jack.

* * *

THE Mail is booming Sir John's reception. On Wednesday evening a meeting of "representative Conservatives" was held in the St. Lawrence Hall to perfect the organization for the reception and banquet to Sir John on his return. A Conservative convention is to be held in the city at the same time so that a large attendance will, perforce, be on hand. A reporter of the News tried to gain admittance but failed as he had no "ticket."

* * *

THE Mail attempts to make it appear that Mr. Mowat, or some one in his behalf, was instrumental in inducing Mr. Hart, M.P.P., for Prince Edward, to pledge himself to support the Government. Neither Mr. Mowat nor any other Reformer made any overture toward Mr. Hart. At the time the document we published last week was signed, Mr. Mowat had no knowledge whatever, direct or indirect, that Mr. Hart had made or would make either a verbal or written declaration of allegiance to the government. This can be proven. Reformers have nothing to fear from the fullest publicity being given to every circumstance in connection with the matter. We shall refer to it more at length in future.—Picton Times.

MURDEROUS MARSHALL.

OUTRAGEOUS CONDUCT OF A TENNESSEAN SCOUNDREL ON A TRAIN.

CAIRO, Ill, Oct. 23.—On a Paducah and Memphis train on Sunday night, Herman Marshall, of Dyerburg, Tenn. who was drunk went up and down the aisles with a knife threatening everybody and indulging in frightful obscenity. Finally Boon Hutsfettes, of Maysville, Ky., struck him, whereupon Marshall cut and slashed Hutsfettie's face, head, and shoulders in a sickening manner. The latter ran to the platform, and Marshall followed, plunged a knife in his bowels, and threw him from the train as it was passing over a bridge. The train stopped, and Hutsfettie was taken up barely alive. Marshall continued his promenade through the cars, daring any one to touch him. He was not arrested.

O. Bortle, of Manchester, Ontario Co. N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

AN ANOMALOUS CASE.

A curious case has arisen under the Scott Act. A petition having the requisite number of signatures was presented to the Government for the submission of the Act in an Ontario county, and subsequently a second petition was forwarded, stating that a number of signers wanted to withdraw their names. As this would have involved the rejection of the original petition; the Government, in order to establish the law in such a peculiar case, has decided to submit the question to the Supreme Court for its decision.

THE JAMAICA SCHEME.

Documents Bearing on the Proposed Annexation Sent For.

SIR JOHN BOUND TO DO IT.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—Evidence has come to hand that the object of Sir John's hurried departure for England is to procure the immediate entrance of Jamaica into the Confederation. An urgent request was received by one of the departments from Sir Charles Tupper, to forward him at once copies of the report of the McDougall Commission to the West Indies, the British North America Act and the Franchise Bill, introduced by Sir John two sessions ago, and again last year, and which he still proposes to make law. It also appears that Sir John, when approached by Mr. Soloman with the proposed annexation of Jamaica, at once fell in with the project, and sent immediate instructions to Sir Charles Tupper to ascertain if the British Government would sanction the union. Glad to be rid of such a source of trouble, Sir Charles was told that the project would be approved of, and the scheme aided in every way. He at once cabled to Sir John to come to London and lay his proposition and plans before the Government. As Parliament here is to meet in January, there was no time to lose, hence Sir John's hurried flight to catch the first steamer to cross the Atlantic. If a satisfactory basis is agreed upon Jamaica will enter the union immediately, should the required legislation be passed. This is Sir John's purpose.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

A Reference to Affairs in Egypt, the Soudan, and Transvaal.

FRANCHISE AND REDISTRIBUTION.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Parliament reassembled to-day. The following is the Queen's Speech:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

I have brought you together to enable you further to consider the great subject of the representation of the people. I continue to maintain relations of amity with the foreign Powers. Information from the Soudan includes painful uncertainties, but the energy, courage, and resource conspicuously displayed by General Gordon in the successful defence of Khartoum deserve my warmest recognition. The advance of my troops to Dongola has for its object the rescue and security of that gallant officer and those who have so faithfully co-operated with him. I am using my best endeavors in Egypt to promote the further improvement of affairs in that country. I have given my support to the Egyptian Government in the difficult financial position in which it was left, though the failure of the recent conference. I regret the occurrences in the Transvaal and am considering with the Cape Government means to secure observance of the convention.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons—Operations in the Soudan render it necessary to ask of you further pecuniary provisions.

My Lords and Gentlemen—A bill for the extension of the Parliamentary Franchise will be at once introduced. May the blessing of God attend your labors.

CARRYING WAR
Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietry goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit,—Exchange.

BURGLARS AT PETERBORO'.

SEVERAL PLACES BURGLARIZED—THE GOODS RECOVERED.

It seems that Peterboro' is not yet free from the burglariously inclined. On Tuesday night the butcher shop of Mr. H. Winch was visited by the nocturnal prowlers, but happily they were foiled in their design. They entered by a back door, which is usually kept bolted. The only booty offered for the burglars were two cents, which they, it seems, did not think worth while disturbing.

On Wednesday night the burglars were more successful. The back door of the hardware store of Mr. R. B. McKee was forced open and goods to the value of six hundred dollars were stolen. The audacity of the burglars is marvellous. They actually lit a lamp to discover the sought for goods when there was no blinds on the plate glass doors. Four of the best rifles were taken, with every razor in stock and fifteen revolvers. Half a dozen of very expensive silver knives and other cutlery were carried off, the whole being wrapped up in a couple of rubber coats.

THE STOLEN ARTICLES RECOVERED.

Yesterday morning at about twenty minutes after six when Mr. Ambrose Jones, caretaker of Romaine's brickyard, was taking his usual morning survey over the premises he spied a plank turned up in a rather suspicious manner. He went to it turned it down and was astonished to find almost sufficient stock to start a hardware store. The articles were all fished out and carried to the police office where they were soon claimed, taken to the store and placed in their original positions on the shelves.

WELCOME AND FAREWELL!

The magnificent views which will be thrown on the immense canvass in the opera house on Saturday and Monday next, should alone—even without Mr. Ragan's masterly descriptive powers—attract large and representative audiences, the more especially as it is probably the last opportunity which Bellevillians will have for some years of witnessing the treasures of the old world delineated so accurately and beautifully, and commented on so eloquently and gracefully, as they cannot fail to be, if Mr. Ragan be true to his reputation and his past. His lectures are concentrated education in its true sense.

THE SUNDAY FISHING SCANDAL.

T. S. Carman and E. F. Potts, of Belleville, were before the police magistrate of Napanee for fishing and shooting in Hay Bay on Sunday. The case was dismissed as it was proven under oath that the gentlemen had never visited the grounds on the Sabbath. The case of Henry Corby and J. C. Lake were adjourned for further hearing.—Kingston Whig.

Neither Mr. Carman nor Mr. Potts have been in Hay Bay for ten years. Mr. Corby also was not ther on the occasion referred nor any other Sunday. TWO MEN DROWNED.

Sad Fate of Ex-Commodore James Clarke

AND FREDERICK DUESBURY, SAILOR,

While Fishing on the Yacht Iolanthe in Hay Bay.

CLARK'S BODY FOUND

James Clarke, druggist, ex-Commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, was drowned off the yacht Iolanthe in Hay bay some time during last night, with Frederick Duesberry sailor. When the news reached the city at noon to-day, a universal feeling of sorrow was expressed by all on the street at the untimely death of one who was so popular and so widely known in Belleville, and in a short time the sad intelligence spread over the city like wild fire. Large crowds of citizens congregated on the corner of Bridge and Front streets all the afternoon discussing the accident which called away such a good citizen.

HIS BODY FOUND.

The particulars of the accident to hand at the time of writing do not state how the accident occurred, but the people living on the shore found the "dingy," a small skiff belonging to the yacht, capsized with the dead body of Mr. Clarke tangled in the ropes. The body of Duesberry had not been found, therefore, it was concluded he had met a watery grave. No one knew how the accident occurred. Cries for help were heard about three o'clock this morning, but no one responded, and the cause of the lamentable accident will, in all probability, remain a mystery forever. The Iolanthe left Belleville last Saturday for Hay Bay with Messrs. Jas. Clarke and F. S. Campbell on board, besides Duesberry, the sailor, for a few days' hunting and fishing. Mr. Campbell left the yacht Tuesday night, having to go to Toronto, while the other two remained on board to spend the week. This was the last he heard of them until to day

Special to the Ontario.

NAPANEE, Oct. 24.—A sad drowning accident occurred early this morning at Hay Bay by which two well-known citizens of Belleville lost their lives. It seems that Messrs. Jas. Clarke and Duesbury came to Hay Bay on Tuesday in the yacht Iolanthe, on a duck hunting expedition. They anchored the yacht near Carrol's Island. About eight o'clock this morning while two residents of the section were shooting ducks they discovered a capsized boat and the body of a man floating near by entangled in the decoys which the unfortunate men had been using. They brought the body ashore, and shortly afterwards it was identified as that of Mr. Clarke by Mr. R. S. Bell, of the Intelligencer, who had been fishing in the neighborhood. It is supposed that they went out early in the morning to set the decoys, and in the darkness they in some manner upset. A farmer, who resides near by heard shouting in the direction of where they were found, but such noises being of common occurrence during the hunting season, he did not suspect any person was in danger. Mr. Bell came to Napanee and notified coroner Huffman, but it was not deemed necessary to hold an inquest. The body of Duesbury has not yet been found.

Several friends of the deceased have gone to the scene of the accident to continue the search.

James Clarke was about 35 years of age and son of Mr. Francis Clarke. He was the head of the firm of Clarke & Co., druggists, where he carried on a successful business for several years. He was a brother of Mr. J. D. Clarke, of Wallbridge & Clarke, and was for several years Commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, an office he held with credit alike to the club and himself. He was unmarried.

The steam yacht Annie Gilbert left shortly after one o'clock this afternoon to bring the body home.

SCHLEY'S ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

HIS REPORT TO THE GOVERNMENT OF THE FINDING OF GREELY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Commodore Schley, of the Greely relief expedition, has submitted his report to the Secretary of the Navy in which he gives details of his voyage and the difficulties surmounted during the search for the missing exploring party. He located the Greely camp at Cape Sabine. When the steam cutter reached the vicinity of the camp, Sergeant Long was discovered reclining on the rocks. Long was carried up the side of the steamer and placed in the saloon. Lieut. Schley, with the officers and crew of the Bear, went ashore, and reached Greely's camp about 6 p.m. Greely, Sergeant Ellison, Sergeant Brainerd, Hospital Steward Belderbick, Sergeant Fredericks, and Private Connell, were found alive in this wretched tent. Only Long was able to walk, the rest were carried out upon stretchers. The work of exhuming the bodies of the dead was promptly performed. A great deal of space is devoted to impressions of the scene inside of Greely's tent, when the commander was discovered reclining in a sleeping bag reading aloud passages from the book of common prayer to his helpless and almost perished fellow-explorers, who were lying all around him. After detailing the manner in which the bodies were prepared for transportation, the report says:—In preparing the bodies of the dead for transportation, it was found that some of them—Lt. Kislington, Sergts. Jewell and Ralston, Privates Whistler, Henry and Ellis—had been cut, and the fleshy parts removed to a greater or less extent. All the other bodies were intact. The report concludes by complimenting the crews of the Bear and Thetis; especially commending Lieutenant Emroy. It pays a tribute to the service rendered the expedition by the sailors of the Dundee whaling fleet, and says that had the American expedition failed they would have undoubtedly rescued Greely.

SEVEN YEARS.

The Sentence of the Zufelt Gang, Convicted of Burglary.

At the fall assizes yesterday, before Justice Galt, the three members of the Zufelt gang were arraigned on a charge of burglary at Mr. H. B. Rathbun's house in July last, when about $800 worth of silver plate was stolen. The prisoners pleaded not guilty and were ably defended by F. S. Wallbridge. The evidence was of a circumstantial nature and pointed quite clearly to the guilt of the prisoners. Several witnesses swore they saw Frall and Zufelt in Deseronto on the night of the burglary and on the morning after, and Chief McKinnon, who received well-deserved praise from the learned judge, put witnesses in the box to prove that the pieces of silver he found with the men were parts of a tea set stolen from Mr. Rathbun. The defence made no pretensions to show where they got the silver, but a few witnesses were called to testify to their previous good character. The jury, after deliberating for half an hour, brought in a verdict against Frall and Zufelt for burglary, and against the woman, Mary Ann Harrigan, for receiving goods knowing them to be stolen.

Frall and Harrigan was then removed from the court, when the crown proceeded with the second charge against William Henry Zufelt, that of committing a burglary at William Clare's in Shannonville on the morning of the 13th of May. Clare swore that he saw the prisoner in his bedroom on the morning in question, and afterwards his pants were found in the yard with the money in the pockets missing. As he was pursuing Zufelt a shot was fired through the window, the ball smashing the lamp in his hand. The defense attempted to establish an alibi and put several witnesses in the box to prove that Zufelt was home on the night of the 13th of May, but as the burglary was committed on the morning of the 13th the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Geo. E. Henderson, Q. C. for the Crown, stated that there were three more indictments against the prisoner—two for breaking into Hiram Holden's house in Shannonville and one for committing a burglary at Thos. Vanallen's in this city—but His Lordship stated that the cases tried were sufficient, and he asked them to be acquitted, on those not tried. He then sentenced Frall and Zufelt to seven years in the penitentiary, and Harrigan to six months in the reformatory.

The prisoner Zufelt will not doubt be recognized by the Warden of the Penitentiary as an old convict. He was sentenced in 1861 at Brockville to two years in the penitentiary for burglary under the name of John Smith. At the assizes here in 1863 he pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking into A. Wilson's store in Canifton, in company with George Frost and got two years. Under the name of William B. Brown he was convicted of burglary at Brantford in 1869, and was sent down to Kingston for five years. In January, 1874, he was found guilty of stealing $845 in the Township of Gelnsbury, North York, and was sentenced to 5½ years. For good conduct Frall frequently had his sentence shortened by several months, and in this case he was liberated before the term of his sentence had expired. The next that was heard of him was in St. Lawrence county, New York state, where he was arrested for burglary in 1879, giving his name as William Scott. He was convicted and sent to the state prison for a term of five years. It will therefore be seen that society generally is safer with such a character behind the bars than in front of them, and the people of this county will feel grateful to Chief McKinnon for securing his conviction and confinement in prison probably for the rest of his days. His Lordship in addressing the jury, and afterwards privately, complimented the Chief of Police for the able and clever manner in which he brought the charge home to the prisoners.

Frall and Zufelt were taken to Kingston on the noon train to day in charge of Deputy Sheriff Hope.

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanman's Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

A NARROW ESCAPE

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonising cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

HOGGARD ASSAULT CASE.

Huddleston, Bowering, McKee and Mills on Trial.

The Hoggard assault case was taken up at the assizes this morning. Geo. E. Henderson, Q. C., conducted the case for the Crown, Geo. D. Dickson, Q. C. watched the case for Mr. Hoggard, and the prisoners were defended by S. B. Burdett. The four prisoners, Huddleston, Bowering alias Henderson, Mills and McKee were seated in the dock. Mr. Hoggard arrived at the Court room in a hack, looking much better than at the preliminary trial, his eyesight being almost fully restored. He was the first witness called and identified the four prisoners as those at his hotel on the day of the assault, 18th of last August, Civic Holiday. Mills and Huddlestone, he swore, were two of the three men who attacked him. He stated he had been confined to his bed ever since the assault until last Saturday, and lost his left eye. His evidence was about the same as taken at the preliminary trial. Mrs. Hoggard, in the witness box, showed parts of two broken bottles which she picked up on the bar-room floor immediately after the assault.

For the defence Mr. Burdett called several witnesses who left the hotel just before the row began, and everything was quiet then. Capt. A. Farley, of "B" Battery, testified that he knew Bowering alias Henderson and Huddlestone for three years and gave them a good certificate of character. McKee was discharged, and the case went to the jury after 3 o'clock.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompanying "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS' THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'You are mistaken. I don't hesitate. Hence I say your marriage must be legal What service would it be without? Mr. Belmore would recognise no other He would move Heaven and earth to wed her, to remove her from your power.

'You are right,' he said, 'this might be so.'

He paced backward and forward in deep thought.

'It shall be as you propose,' he remarked, at last, 'for there is sense in it. I will postpone our union until to-morrow evening. It shall be a royal wedding he laughed, at midnight.'

'What will the delay provide,' she asked

'A clergyman.' he replied. 'Twenty miles from here is an English settlement—a little colony of industrious Christians. They first built huts to cover them, then a church to save them. Where there's a church there's a clergyman. I will seek him, bring him here and the union will take place.'

'If you can do that,' said the Creole, 'I will no longer stand in your way. When do you go?'

'At once.

'And when return?'

'To morrow as early as I am able. I will acquaint you the instant I arrive in the camp.

'Very well, I will now say good night; I have already been too long absent.

He did not detain her.

'Shall I escort you back,' he asked.

'There is no occasion,' thanks. I prefer going by myself.'

'As you please. Good night.'

Returning the salutation, she passed on. She was anxious to be alone.

Her brain and heart was beating wildly. Why?

The probably of Eustace Belmore being near.

No, she could no further thwart Stuart Loring.

It was her interest as his now that that an impassable barrier should be placed between our hero and Pauline,

But she, the Creole must on no account be suspected as the conniving party.

So she pondered, ignorant of the fate the American had in store for her did they once reach Utah.

In the meantime her late companion hastened to where the horses were secured.

He really meant to start, and immediately.

Grum's non arrival, was causing him considerable uneasiness.

He began to fear that the tables had really been turned against the assassin, or he had been detected.

In which case Eustace Belmore might still be following him, and might at any moment appear.

Considering the ignorance of our hero respecting the country he would have to traverse, the precautions that Stuart Loring had taken, and the direction he had selected, he did not beleive it probable that Eustace would succeed.

Besides, he knew the latter must be backed by a strong force to do any good, surrounded as the American was by his friends,

Nevertheless, there was the doubt.

Hence his haste to unite himself to Pauline by a tie that could not be severed.

Hence his final yielding to Juliette's demand for a legal marriage.

'It is but a few hours' delay. To morrow by the law she shall be mine. It is better so. Else they might bring the authorities of both America and England to bear on me, and my brethren of Utah would scarcely like that.'

Thinking thus, his horse being saddled, he rode from the camp, on his way to Roehampton, the little settlement of English colonists.

At the same moment, her mind still absorbed by the thoughts of Eustace, the Creole lifting the loose canvas entered the tent to find Stuart Loring was right, that Eustace was not only on their track but close at hand.

CHAPTER XLVI.

BRIGHAM SUSPECTS—THE CREOLE IS RESOLVED.

On perceiving Juliette enter the tent, Pauline starting up ran towards her.

'News, news,' she cried in an excited whisper, 'can you guess its nature?'

The Creole looked with astonishment into the delicate countenance sparkling with animation, so different to its expression, when she left only a few moments ago.

Then she glanced around the tent to find the cause—in vain.

'You looked surprised,' smiled Pauline.

'I am so; what has produced this change in you,'

Then she added abruptly—

'Can it be that——'

'That our friends have at last arrived—that our liberty is at hand,' 'Yes yes,—oh listen Juliette; say, does it not seem too good to be true? Eustace is close by, prepared to save us—to take us away.

Eustace Belmore close by.

The Creole recoiled a step—a death like pallor spread over her features.

To conceal it from her her companion, she averted her face, turned in the direction of the trapper who was watching the scene.

The expression startled him.

It was of acute suffering, blended with no delight.

What could be the reason? Did she not rejoice at the prospect of freedom?

'How silent you are, Juliette,' remarked Pauline, encircling the other with her arm 'are you not glad?'

'Not glad?' answered the Creole with a forced smile; so glad and amazed that you have almost taken my breath away, and made me feel faint. But it passed; tell dear all about it, pity my suspense. How have you learned what you state? Have you seen him? What is that you are holding?'

Her interrogotions were spoken rapidly, as she ended she extended her band.

'A note from Mr. Belmore,' was the rejoiner.

'From Mr. Belmore?' exclaimed Juliette,

Eagerly she seized the paper which Pauline surrendered.

'Read,' she said, 'you will see what I state is true.'

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.

E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.!

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasteby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and t all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward he goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in nother column

THEARCH-FIEND OF THE NATIONS.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon Preached last Sunday Morning, October 19, 1884.

"Awake ye drunkards, and weep; and howl, all ye drinkers of wine."—JOEL 1; 5.

Noah did the best and worst thing for the world. He built an ark against the deluge of water. but introduced a deluge against which the human race has ever since been trying to build an ark—the deluge of drunkennes. In the opening chapter of the bible we hear his staggering steps. Shem and Japhet tried to cover up the disgrace, but there he is drunk on wine at a time in the history of the world when to say the least, there was no lack of water.

INEBRIATION

having entered the world has not retreated. Abigail, the fair and heroic wife who saved the flocks of Nabal, her husband, from confiscation by invaders goes home at night, and finds him so intoxicated she could not tell him the story of his narrow escape. Uriah came to see David, and David got him drunk, and paved the way for the despolition of a household. Even the church bishops, needed to be charged to be sober and not give to too much wine; and so familiar were people of Bible times with the staggering and falling motion of the inebriate, that Isaiah, when he came to describe the final dislocation of worlds says: 'The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard.' Ever since apples and grapes and wheat grew, the world has been tempted to unnealthful stimulants. But the intoxicants of olden time were an innocent beverage, a harmless oranglade, a quiet syrup, a peaceful soda water, as compared with the liquors of modern inebriation, into which a madness and a fury, and a gloom, and a fire, and a suicide, and a retribution have mixed and mingled. Fermentation was always known but it was not until a thousand years after Christ that distillation was invented. While we must confess that some of the ancient arts have been lost, the Christian era is superior to all others in the bad eminence of whiskey and rum and gin. The modern drunk is a hundred fold worse than the ancient drunk. Noah in his intoxication became imbecile, but the victims of modern alcoholism have to struggle with whole menageries of wild beasts and jungles of hissing serpents and perditions of blaspheming demons. An

ARCH FIEND ARRIVED

in our world, and he built an invisible cauldron of temptation. He built that cauldron strong and stout for all ages and all nations. First, he squeezed into the cauldron the juices of the forbidden fruit of Paradise. Then he gathered for it a distillation from the harvest fields and the orchards of the hemispheres. Then he poured into this cauldron capsicum, and copperas, and logwood, and deadly nightshode. and assault and battery, and vitriol, and opium, and rum, and murder, and sulphuric acid, and theft, and potash, and cochineal, and red carrots, and poverty, and death and hops. But it was a dry compound, and it must be moistened, and it must be liquefied, and so the arch fiend poured into that cauldron the tears of centuries of orphanage and widowhood, and he poured in the blood of twenty thousand assassinations. And then the arch fiend took a shovel that he had brought up from the furnaces beneath, and he put that shovel into this great cauldron and began to heave, and rock, and boil, and splutter, and hiss and smoke, and the nations gathered around it with cups. and tankards, demijohns, and kegs, and there was enough for all. and the archfiend cried: 'Aha! champion fiend am I. Who has done more for coffins, and graveyards, and prisons, and insane asylums, and the populating of the lost world? And when this cauldron is emptied I'll fill it again, and I'll stir it again, and it will smoke again, and that smoke will join another smoke—the smoke of a torment that ascendeth forever and ever. Drunkenness is the greatest evil of this nation, and it takes no logical process to prove that a drunken nation cannot long be a free nation. I call your attention to the fact that drunkenness is not subsiding, certainly that it is not at a standstill, but that it is on

AN ONWARD MARCH,

and is a double quick. Beginning near by I have seen more drunken people in Brooklyn and in New York in the last six weeks than in any two years of my life, and so have you, if you have been passing up and down these streets much. There is more rum swallowed in this country and of a worse kind than was ever swallowed since the first distillery began its work of death. Where there was one drunken home there are ten drunken homes. Where there was one drunkard's grave there are twenty drunkards graves. According to United States Government figures, in 1840 there were 23,000,000 gallons of beer sold. Last year there were 551,000,000 gallons. According to the government figures, in the year 1840 there were 5,000,000 gallons of wine sold. Last year there were 25,000,000 gallons of wine. It is on the increase. Talk about crooked whiskey—by which men mean whiskey that does not pay the tax to government—I tell you all strong drink is crooked. Crooked otard, crooked cognac, crooked schnapps, crooked beer, crooked wine, crooked whiskey, because it makes a man's path crooked. and his life crooked, and his death crooked, and his eternity crooked. If I could gather all the armies of the dead drunkards and have them come to ressurrection. and then add to that host all the five and ten abreast, and then if I could have you mount a horse and ride along that line for review, you would ride that horse until he dropped from exhaustion, and you would mount another horse and ride until he fell from exhaustion, and you would take another and another, and you would ride along hour after hour, and day after day. Great host, in regiments, in brigades. Great armies of them. And then if you had voice enough stentorian to make them all hear, and you could give the command, 'Forward, March!' their first tramp would make the earth tremble, I do not care which way you look in the community to-day, the evil is increasing. I call your attention to the fact that there are thousands of people born with a thirst for strong drink—a fact too often ignored. Along some ancestral lines there runs the river of temptation. There are children whose swaddling clothes are torn off the shroud of death.

ARMIES OF LIVING DRUNKARDS,

THE DRUNKARD'S WILL.

Many a father has made a will of this sort:—'In the name of God, amen. I bequeath to my children my houses and lands and estates, share and share they alike. Hereto I affix my hand and seal in the presence of witnesses." And yet, perhaps that very man has made another will that the people have never read, and that has not been proved in the courts. That will put in writing would read something like this:—'In the name of disease and appetite and death, amen. I bequeath to my children my evil habits, my tankards shall be theirs, my wine cup shall be theirs, my destroyed reputation shall be theirs. Share and share alike shall they the infamy, Hereto I affix my hand and seal in the presence of all the applauding harpies of hell.' I have in my possession a circular of a brewers' association—a circular sent to all candidates for office; it has been sent or will be sent—a form to be filled by saying whether the candidate is a friend of the liquor traffic or its enemy; and if he is an enemy of the business then the man is doomed; or if he declines to fill up the circular and send it back, his silence is taken as an negative answer. It seems to me it is about time for the 17,000,000 professors of religion in America to TAKE SIDES.

It is going to be an out and out battle between drunkenness and sobriety, between heaven and hell, between God and the devil. Take sides before there is any further national decadence; take sides before your son are sacrificed and the new homes of your daughter goes down under the alcoholism of an embruted husband. Take sides while your voice, your pen, your prayer, your vote may have any influence in arresting the despoliation of this nation. It the 17,000,000 professors of religion should take sides on this subject, it would not be very long before the destiny of this nation would be decided in the right direction. Certainly, sermons setting forth the perils that threaten the destruction of our American institutions would be a very poorly planned course of sermons if they did not speak of drunkenness. Is it a State evil? or is it

A NATIONAL EVIL?

To prove that this is a national evil I call up three states in opposite directions—Maine, Iowa, and Georgia. Let them testify in regard to this. State of Maine says: 'It is so great an evil up here we have anathematized it as a State.' State of Iowa says: 'It is so great an evil out here we have probibited it by constitutional amendment.' State of Georgia says: 'It is so great an evil down here that ninety counties of this State have made the sale of intoxicating drink a criminality.' Oh, how many are waiting to see if something cannot be done! Thousands of drunkards waiting who cannot go ten minutes in any direction without having the temptation glaring before their eyes or appealing to their nostrils, they fighting against it with enfeebled will and diseased appetite, conquering, then surrendering, conquering again and surrendering again, and crying: 'How long, O Lord, how long before these infamous solicitations shall be gone?' And how many mothers there are waiting to see if this national curse cannot lift! Oh, that had the honest breath who comes home with breath vitiated or disguised? What a change! How quickly those habits of early coming home have been exchanged for the rattling of the night key in the door long after the last watchman has gone by and tried to see that everything was closed up for the night! Oh, what a change for that young man who we had hoped would do something in merchandise, or in artisanship, or in a profession that would do honor to the family name long after mother's wrinkled hands are folded from the last toil! All that exchanged for startled look when the door bell rings, lest some thing has happened. And the wish that the scarlet fever twenty years ago had been fatal, for then he would have gone directly to the bosom of his Saviour. But alas! poor old soul, she has lived to experience what Soloman said: 'A foolish son is a heaviness to his mother.' Oh, what a funeral it will be when that boy is brought home dead! And how mother will sit there and say: 'It is my boy that I used to fondle and that I walked the floor with in the night when he was sick? Is this the boy that I held to the baptismal font for baptism? Is this the boy for whom I toiled until the blood burst from the tips of my fingers that he might have a good start and a good home? Lord, why hast thou let me live to see this? Can it be that these swollen hands are the ones that used to wander over my face while rocking him to sleep? Can it be that this is the swollen brow that I once so rapturously kissed? Poor boy! how tired he does look. I wonder who struck him that blow across the temples! I wonder if he muttered a dying prayer! Wake up, my son; don't you hear me? wake up! Oh, he can't hear me! Dead, dead, dead! Oh, Absalom, my son, my son, would God that I had died for thee, oh, Absalom, my son, my son!'

IS THAT THE BOY

What a hell on earth a woman lives in who has a drunken husband! O Death, how lovely thou art to her, and how soft and warm thy skeleton hand! The sepulchre at midnight in winter is a king's drawing room compared with that womans home. It is not so much the blow on the head that hurts as the blow on the heart. The rum fiend came to the door of that beautiful home and opened the door and stood there and said: 'I curse this dwelling with an unrelenting curse. I curse that father into a maniac, I curse that mother into a pauper. I curse those sons into vagabonds. I curse those daughters into profligacy. Cursed be bread tray and cradle. Cursed be couch and chair and family Bible with record of marriages and births and deaths. Curse upon curse upon curse.' Oh, how many wives are there waiting to see if something cannot be done to shake these frosts of the orange blossoms! Yea the God who works through human instrumentalities, waiting to see if this nation is going to overthrow this evil; and if it refuses to do so God will wipe out the nation as He did Phœnicia, as He did Rome, as He did Thebes, as He did Babylon. Ay, He is waiting to see what the church of God will do. If the church does not do its work then he will wipe it out as he did the church of Ephesus, church of Thyatira, church of Sardis. The Protestant and Roman Catholic churches today stand side by side with an impotent look, gazing on this evil which costs this country more than a billion dollars a year to take care of the 800,000 paupers, and the 315,000 criminals, and the 30,000 idiots, and to bury the 75,000 drunkards. Put on your spectacles and take a candle and examine the platforms of the two leading political parties of this country, and see what they are doing for the arrest of this evil, and for the overthrow of this abomination. Resolutions — oh yes, resolutions about Mormonism! It is safe to attack that organized nastiness 2000 miles away. But not one resolution against drunkenness, which would turn this entire nation into one bestial Salt Lake City. Resolutions against political corruption, but not one word about drunkenness, which would rot this nation from scalp to heel. Resolutions about protection against competition with foreign industries but not one word about protection of family and church and nation against the scalding, blasting, all consuming, damning tariff of strong drink put upon every financial, spiritual, moral, national interest. The Democratic party—in power for the most of the time for forty years—what did that national party do for the extirpation of this evil? Nothing, absolutely nothing, appallingly nothing. The Republican party has been in power for about a quarter of a century—what has it done as a national party to extirpate this evil? nothing, absolutely nothing, appallingly nothing. I look in another direction.

GOD IS WAITING,

THE CHURCH

of God is the grandest and most glorious institution on earth. What has it in solid phalanx accomplished for the overthrow of drunkenness? Have its forces ever been marshalled? No, not in this direction. Not long ago a great ecclesiastical court assembled in New York, and resolutions arraigning strong drink were offered, and clergymen with strong drink on their tables and strong drink in their cellars defeated the resolutions by threatening speeches. They could not bear to give up their own lusts. I tell this audience what many of you have never thought of, that to day—not in the millennium, but to day—the church holds the balance of power in America; and if Christian people—the men and the women who profess to love the Lord Jesus Christ and to love purity and to be sworn enemies of all uncleanness and debauchery and sin—if all such would march side by side and shoulder to shoulder, this evil would soon be overthrown. Think of 300,000 churches and Sunday schools in Christendom marching shoulder to shoulder! How very short a time it would take them to put down this evil, if all the churches of God—trans-Atlantic and cis-Atlantic—were armed on this subject! I shall not let this opportunity pass without charging you, the voters of America, on the first Tuesday in November, to go from your knees to the ballot-box, and then from the ballot-box to your knees. Ask God what to do, and He will make it plain. Do not ask your political party. Vote with reference to the day when you must give an account.

YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA

pass over into the army of teetotalism. Tens of thousands of young men have been dragged out of respectability, and out of purity, and out of good character, and into darkness by this infernal stuff called strong drink. Do not touch it! Do not touch it!

In front of the door of this church, summer before last, this scene occurred: Sabbath morning a young man was entering here for divine worship. A friend passing along the street said: 'Joe, come along with me; I'm going down to Coney Island and we'll have a gay Sunday.' 'No,' replied Joe; 'I've started to go here to church, and I am going to attend service here.' 'Oh, Joe,' his friend said, 'you can go to church any time! The day is bright and we'll go to Coney Island, and we'll have a splendid time.' The temptation was too great, and the twain went to the beach, spent the day in drunkenness and riot. The evening train started up from Brighton. The young men were on it. Joe in his intoxication, when the train was in full speed tried to pass around from one seat to another and fell and was crushed. Under the lantern, as Joe lay bleeding his life away on the grass, he said to his comrade, John, that was a bad business, you taking me away from church; it was a bad business. You ought not to have done that. I want you to tell the boys to morrow when you see them that rum and Sabbath breaking did this for me. And John, while you are telling them, I will be in hell. and it will be your fault.' Is it not time for me to pull out from the great organ of God's Word, with many banks of keys, the tremulo stop? 'Look not upon the wine when it is red. when it moveth itself aright in the cup, for at last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.' Ay, is it not time for me to pull out the trumpet stop of the text? 'Awake, ye drunkards and weep; and howl all ye drinkers of wine.'

THE DAILY ONATRIO

HOW IT HAS PANNED OUT.

When the Tory party were trying to "work the racket" to get back into office, their astute leader conceived the plan of making use of the financial depression every where prevalent to accomplish the desired end. When business is at a standstill, and prospects are gloomy people are very apt to blame somebody else for their misfortunes, and to grasp at almost any prospect of bettering themselves. So in this case the promise that by taxing everything the depression would be removed had a sufficient influence on the public mind to enable the Tories to attain their object—the treasury benches.

The contention of the Reformers that it was impossible to legislate away hard times was scoffed at. They were called incapable—"flies on the wheel."

What has been the outcome of the six years of trial? During the first year the depression actually increased, but for several years after business revived in all countries, manufacturers plunged into business and "tall chimneys," sometimes in reality, but oftener in imagination, sprang up all around. But Sir John is no fool if he does gull other people. He knew the signs of the times too well to risk his hold on office by neglecting a dissolution of parliament until the proper time for so doing. He discerned danger ahead, and he must be confirmed in the possession of the reins of power for another five years, before the true state of affairs became patent to everybody. And in less than six months after the last election hundreds of hide-bound Tory partizans were praising the foresight and "cuteness" of the old man, because, "If he'd left it till now we have been beaten sure's the mischief!"

Well, how are things now? Business failures are more numerous now than before the N. P. was introduced or in any corresponding time in our history. Is labor well paid and plenty of it? Ask the operatives in the factories, which after securing a home market for their products by a protective tariff, shut up their works and bank their fires, when the prices go down, and let the laboring man shift for himself.

It was asserted in 1878 that Canada was a "slaughter market" for foreign goods. How is it now? In the nine leading articles of manufacture the imports of 1883 exceeded those of the last revenue tariff year by almost half a million dollars.

Then the price of grain was to be increased. Has such been the case? Not to an excruciating extent. Grain is now lower in price than for many long years and the prospect of a rise is extremely misty. The foreign demand is very light and likely to continue so. And then insult is added to injury by the statement that we ought to be thankful that a protective tariff keeps out American grain or the price would be still lower—a piece of most unmitigated bosh.

The Tories asserted—and swore sometimes—that this sovereign panacea, this delectable, every-ready, sovereign remedy would knock the stuffing everlastingly out of "Hard Times" in one round, but the old gent is no more affected by their cabalistic air-beating than if the N.P. had never existed.

The Tories are now arraigned in the public press with deliberately deceiving the people. The logic of events has swept away their "refuge of lies." If it is possible by Act of Parliament to legislate prosperity, in the name of poverty stricken thousands, who are either absolutely thrown out of work or are barely subsisting on a miserable pittance for short hours and interrupted time, and who are ill prepared to stand the rigors of the coming winter, we ask them at once to re-open the closed factories, give the workman full time and good wages, bring up the price of grain, and restore the "fine times" they boasted of but did not produce.

What the N. P. has done has been to take millions unnecessarily from the people to be squandered recklessly at the rate of $7,000,000 annually more than what they had called an extravagant figure.

If these men have deceived the people wilfully they are unworthy of being trusted. If they have sinned through ignorance they are incapable.

O. Bortle, of Manchester, Ontario Co. N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

LITERARY NOTES.

One of the most curious incidents in the history of African slavery in America is the life of Charles Stewart, a slave owned by the Johnsons of Virginia and afterwards by the Porters of Louisiana, both of them noted as possessors of remarkable racing horses. He was a born trainer and rider of horses, and during his long lifetime has riden the winning horse at many of the great races down South. He could not write, and knew nothing about figures, but was nevertheless trusted by his owners with the care and transportation of their stock, and the custody of bets and stakes and he seems always to have come out right. One of the ladies of the porter family recently took down the story of his life as told by himself and it will be given, in his own negro dialect, in the October Harper's, with a portrait of the hero of the turf.

SHE WAS FROM BOSTON.

'I can lik that snoozer that broke that wheelbarrow,' remarked Mildred's little brother. whenpon the high school girl reprovingly remarked;

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WHETHER the coming winter be open or severe it will be an unusually hard one for the poor. The depression of the past months has been such that many who fell behind last winter have been unable to regain their position. In many places workingmen have been idle for long stretches, and others have had to work short hours on reduced wages. The natural consequence will be a great amount of privation and suffering during the cold weather.

* * *

THE proposed Franchise Bill is alarming the Irish landlords. They do not relish the increase of voters from 230,000 to 500,000—over 200 per cent. This enlarges too much the electoral value of an Irishman to be palatable to the landlord. There is a comfort to the rest of the world, and to the Irishman in particular, in the reflection that the landlords cannot steal these political rights from their tenants as they have been in the habit of doing with improvements on their holdings.

* * *

THE WINNIPEG Times says the Dominion owes to the Canada Pacific Railway some 300,000,000 or 400,000,000 acres of the most fertile land in the world. We know it contracted to owe 25,000,000 acres, and we think it continues to owe the unearned balance of these 25,000,000. But Tory papers are not very particular about their figures, and it is not surprising that 10,000,000 should grow into 300,000,000 or 400,000,000 in the columns of such journals.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

IF HE WERE ONLY HONEST.

For a man who is in all probability a millionaire Butler uses very radical language.—Kingston News.

COME, BROTHERS, COME!

Will the great Sir John jubilee—minus 10—have the effect of bringing Brothers Stimson and Wilkinson out of the woods?—Globe.

SIR JOHN'S TRIP.

We feel, however, that he will disgrace Conservative statesmanship in Canada if he fails to charge his travelling expenses to the country. The public man of Canada who hires a cab, buys an umbrella, or takes a mint julep, without biding the charge in the public accounts under the head of "miscellaneous," wounds the sacred Tory traditions of this land. Sir John will not commit such a crime.—Halifax Chronicle.

FUN AHEAD'

There will be 'fun' in the Conservative camp when Sir John takes it into his head to abandon politics, or receives ad order to inspect the Canada Pacific Railway from a celestial point of view. The politicians are already quarrelling for his place, already taking steps to shuffle themselves into the chieftain's shoes. Sir Hector Langevin is highly wroth at his colleagues for favoring the appointment of Sir Leonard Tilley as acting Premier during Sir John's absence, thinking that his superior claims should be recognised.—Peterboro' Examiner.

'TWAS HARD TO REFRAIN.

Five ministers had to be reminded at the demonstration and at the banquet, that the presence of half the people present was purchased by the agreement to be silent on the question of politics—more, they had to take snubs on their canal policy, and were severely taken to task for an attempted hit at a public journal. So keenly was the rebuke felt, that Mr Bowell felt it necessary explain in an apologetic manner—Trenton Courier.

HEAVY DAMAGES

RECOVERED AGAINST THE GRAND TRUNK AT THE ST. CATHARINES ASSIZES.

ST. CATHARINS, Oct. 25.—The suit of Michael Judge against the Grand Trunk Railay. tried before Judge Armour at the Assizes here, is one of considerable interest. The plaintiff in this case is a young man who was in the employ of Mr. Wm. Winslow, hotel keeper, Thorold, On the 24th of May last, plaintiff was instructed by his employer to take the horse, Ned Hanlan to the races at Homer. His employer and a butcher named Houck preceeded him in a buggy. As they drove along by the railway crossing near Merritton towards noon a train going west came along. Winslow and Houck managed to get out of the way. but the locomotive struck the horse and vehicle which Judge was driving. The result was that Judge had his leg and his arm broken. The witnesses for the plaintiff all agreed that as the train came along at a pretty rapid pace there was neither a bell rung nor a whistle blown to indicate that a train was about to pass. The defence alleged that the statues did not require the railroad company to erect sign boards, nor to sound whistles and ring bells at crossings; but that this responsibility rested on the municipality through which the road ran, Moreover, it was urged that the suit should be against the Great Western, not against the Grand Trunk Company. The engineer and fireman both testified that the whistle was blown, and the bell rung by the fireman both before and after the accident. His Lordship held the Acts of 1878 and of 1884 applied to all railroads, and did not allow the Grand Trunk Brailway any special privileges, and he so ruled. The question His Lordship submitted to the jury was, simply, was the whistle sounded and the bell rung? The jury after an absence of about an hour, returned with a verdict for plaintiff for $5,000 damages.

A MOTHER HUBBARD.

GETS A YOUNG LADY INTO TROUBLE IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—While Fourth avenue was filled with promenaders the attention of every person was attracted by a young lady who came out of 418 and walked gracefully along the western side of the avenue. But it was not alone her beauty that attracted so much attention. The fair girl's form was encased in a white Mother Hubbard elaborately trimmed with rich lace. Policeman French, encountered her, and after gazing earnestly at the lithe figure walking along so demurely, he followed the young lady.

'Come with me, Miss,' exclaimed the office, as he laid a heavy hand upon her shoulder.

'Heavens!' ejaculated the fair promenader.

'What have I done? You have surely made a mistake.'

She almost sank upon the pavement in surprise and shame, but the officer roughly seized her and walked her along to the police station. A crowd of sympathizers followed the policeman and his prisoner.

The young lady was placed in the dock, where she hung her head and cried bitterly.

'What is your name asked Clerk Clinger, kindly, while Justice Foote looked over his spectacles at the prisoner.

'Mamie Allan,' she replied in a tremulous tone.

'What has she been doing?' asked Justice Foote.

'I caught her on Fourth avenue wearing this white Mother Hubbard,' said the officer, pointing to the offending garment. 'She also abused me when I arrested her.'

Miss Allan denied the latter charge, but had to acknowledge the Mother Hubbard. The spectators laughed at the unusual charge, but were astonished when Judge Foote fined Miss Allan $10.

A friend of the young lady called and paid her fine, and she returned home in a cab. Several well-known ladies will protest against Judge Foote's decision.

Meanwhile young ladies who own white Mother Hubbards are afraid to venture upon the street with them.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.

PETERBOROUGH ILLUMINATED BY ELECTRICITY.

Since the 24th of May Peterborough has had some of her streets lighted by electricity, and with such success that the experiment has worked satisfactorily and the patrons are jubilant. The Examiner says:—The citizens of Peterborough can congratulate themselves on having the cheapest, best, and, in every way, most satisfactory electric light on the continent, Beginning with very few paying lights, the company has now about fifty lights used by regular consumers, and, so far. the first complaint is yet to be made, whether the light is regarded with respect to quality of illumination, regularity of supply, or price. The company, encouraged by the favorable reception of the light, has added another dynamo to the first placed. and two more have been ordered, are on the way, and are daily expected.

FATAL THRESHING ACCIDENT.

MARKDALE, Oct. 24.—A most heartrending accident occurred on the farm of Mr. Geo. Hill, 11th line, Euphrasia, about 9 o'clock on Tuesday, where Stinson Bros. were threshing. Thomas J. Stinson was attending to the oiling of the machine when the gearing caught his clothes, instantly winding him up and literally tearing both legs off below the knees before the machine could be stopped. One of the feet had passed through the cylinder and the other was found near the place where the accident occurred. The unfortunate sufferer continued to sink until 10 o'clock in the evening when death ensued.

CARRYING WAR.
Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietry goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit,—Exchange.

Velvet ribbon loops and a bunch of feathers in front are almost the only trimmings seen on round hats.

A hat of black straw for fall wear is ornamented with a golden pheasant and a tuft of green and ripe oats.

Dark green velvet hats, with wreaths of nasturtions, are at once handsome and stylish for autumn wear.

In Paris dog collars are more than ever worn around the neck, and crosses and lockets are frequently attached to them.

Chenille and ribbon embroidery is used to enrich the costliest evening dresses, and also for ornamenting bridal toilets.

Daisy rosettes of narrow orange coloured ribbon, with hearts of brown plush, are used to trim brown felt or velvet bonnets.

Among the newest handkerchiefs are those made with red and black borders, on which are printed grotesque little imps in colors.

The newest slipper for house wear are made up in garnet and crimson alligator, kankoroa, or angola skins, which are durable as well as soft.

Little white frillings are now put inside the capote bonnets that are so fashionable. They are of fine white lace, and are very becoming to the face,

Black satin is very fashionable for street and carriage costumes, and is especially favoured by ladies past middle age. Chantilly lace is used as trimming.

Among the new fancies are the Italian apron made of silk or linen, with bands of lace insertions and edging, and Greek aprons of surah richly decorated with embroidery.

Little veils of coloured illusion are still worn over the face. When placed over bonnets and hats they are drawn up neatly in the back and tucked neatly underneath the brim.

Nun's gray, that is a soft shade of gray with a suggestion of cream in it, is handsomely combined' with a rich shade of Neapolitan red this season in pretty French toilets of Irish poplin, corded silk and cashmere gray, with knit facings, pearls, waistcoat and pelerine of of velvet in the red shade.

SPORTING NEWS.

Almost as many theories have been advanced to account for Hanlan's defeat by Beach, as for the cause of Sir John's departure. Here is the latest account of the event :—' Hanlan was taking it easy and laughing when the steamer bore down upon him. He seemed to consider for a minute whether he should run into it, but deciding not to do so pulled half a dozen strokes, and left Beach as if he were standing still! Hanlan then appeared to be looking round to find something else to run into, and finally pulled across Beach's bows. After that he began to make most desperate signs of rowing very hard, and being quite pumped—rounding his back, splashing, etc., in something very unlike 'Hanlan form.' '

Messrs. A. Dulmage, Wellington Cronk and M. Beasley have returned home after a three weeks hunting and fishing expedition in the north. As usual they met with grand success. The weather was fine and the trip heartily enjoyed by every member of the party. They shot six deer, caught about two hundred pounds of lake trout, and bagged over sixty partridge. A good record for three weeks.

The audience at the Opera House last night to see Roland Reed in 'Cheek' was not large. Mr. Reed gives a curious impersonation—that of a careless, cheeky, down-east, young Yankee. He never loses his temper, and in an encounter unvariably overcomes muscle with his cool cheek. The support was good, particularly Miss Vaughan, who assumed the role of Little Nell. She is an excellent actress and received a large share of the approbation during the evening.

THE DRY TONGUE.

Two Polish Jews were on a journey in a hot summer through the land.

'Have you anything with you, Jeinkew ?'

'Yes, a bottle of Hungarian wine! And what have you go ?'

'A dry tongue.'

'Good, then we'll divide our provisions.'

'Very good, begin,'

Jeinkew drew his bottle of wine out of his wallet, and its contents were honorably divided.

After this had been done, Jeinkew wiped his mouth and asked his fellow-traveller to bring forth his provisions,

'I ?' answered the other.

'Why, yes ; your dry tongue——'

'I haven't got a dry tongue any more !' was the little comforting answer.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Fernham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

CLARKE DROWNING ACCIDENT.

Frederick Duesbury Tells How it Occurred.

Ald. W. H. Biggar, Commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht club, and Messrs. W. Smeaton, W. Webster, J. D. Clarke, D. M. Waters, and others went down on the steam yacht Annie Gilbert yesterday afternoon to Hay Bay to bring home the body of James Clarke who was drowned while hunting early Friday morning. They returned to the city about 10:30 last night. The party was met at the wharf by a large number of relatives and friends, who took charge of the remains and conveyed them to Mr. Francis Clarke's residence, father of the deceased. The funeral will take place at 3:30 to-morrow afternoon under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity of which deceased was a member.

The despatch received yesterday stating that Frederick Duesberry was also drowned, proved to be untrue as the gentlemen on the Annie Gilbert found him in charge of Clarke's body when they arrived. To them Duesberry gave the following version of the accident:—He said about three o'clock on Friday morning they left the yacht to go across the bay to get a man who had promised Mr. Clarke his assistance duck shooting on that day. Duesberry put the deceased in the dingy and he got in a small boat when they paddled across to the opposite shore. The bay was calm, but a very slight ripple being noticeable on the water. In the darkness Duesberry led the way across, but on reaching the shore he discovered that they had landed some distance below the house they were in search of and the boats were shoved out again to paddle up the bay. Arriving at the landing spot Duesberry started for the house to awaken the man, shouting to Mr. Clarke : "All right Jim, come on." Clarke answered : "All right Pine, old boy, I'll be there." These were the last words he heard from the deceased, who then only appeared to be a few feet from the shore, paddling in about two and a half feet of water. Duesberry ran over to the house, supposing that Clarke would follow as soon as he landed, but he didn't. On returning the deceased could not be found and the men on shore called out several times, but no answer came. Their fears were then aroused and the men set out to search for the body, one going along the shore in one direction and the other man in an opposite course around the bay. Before daybreak they passed the body and two other men living in the vicinity discovered it as they came along the shore. The deceased was clinging to the rope on the dingy, which was upset. The supposition is that the boat struck a stone and capsized, and the deceased, being seized with a fit, drowned without crying for assistance. It was thought impossible for him to drown in such shallow water unless disabled in this way.

Duesberry is expected to reach home some time to-night in charge of the Iolanthe.

FALL ASSIZES.

The case of Weller vs. Proctor was an action for alleged false arrest and assault. The plaintiff lived in the town of Trenton and the defendant in Brigton. Weller is a brother-in-law of Proctor's, but they have not been for several years on very friendly terms. Proctor claimed the house in which the plaintiff lived and the Sheriff ejected him, but Weller took possession again, whereupon the defendant proceeded to forcibly remove his chattels from the premises. It was then the alleged assault took place. Proctor had a warrant issued for the arrest of Weller and his wife, and they were brought before the late Police Magistrate Thos. Holden for assault. The question of dispute as to the ownership of the land being raised the Magistrate committed him for trial. He was only in gaol a few days. When brought before the grand jury they found no bill against him and he was discharged, hence the action. Burdett and O'Rourke for plff ; Clute and Denmark for deft.

Verdict for defendant against Wellar and verdict for plaintiff, Mrs. Wellar, for $50 damages.

The jury in the Hoggard assault case brought in their verdict shortly after four yesterday afternoon, acquitting William Mills and finding James Huddlestone guilty of felony and Wm. Henderson guilty of unlawfully wounding. They will probably be sentenced on Monday.

The grand jury made their presentment this afternoon and were discharged. The docket will not be finished before next week.

KING'S EVIL.

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by nourishing exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so,

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Partly turning away, the other hastily pursued the writing.

It produced in her contending emotions which in a measure reflected themselves upon her features.

Brixham read them attentively.

It had been a night of strange adventures to him, but here in his mind was the strangest of all—the absence of elation—nay, the presence of almost pained regret in the elder sister at the chance of escape from Stuart Loring.

The Creole apparently conned the paper slowly twice.

The second time however was only a ruse to give her time to reflect how she must under the circumstances act.

The knowledge that Eustace was near and ready to rescue Pauline instantly made her a firm and no longer vacillating ally of the American.

She determined more resolutely than ever that these two should never wed and was ready, throwing all scruples aside, to place any obstacle in the way.

The question was how could she without incurring suspicion and drawing upon herself Eustace Belmore's hate?

How but by secretly informing Stuart Loring.

To do that by some means delay their flight till their return.

Bitterly she now blamed herself for forcing him to go.

Had he yet gone. She must discover at once.

'This is indeed news. As excellent as unexpected, Pauline' she exclaimed, her manner totally changed.

'Did I not tell you it was wrong to despair—that he would come in time? But at present I am filled with amazement as to how this has got into your possession. where is Mr. Belmore? Yet stay; on the verge of liberty it is wise to take every precaution. I will restrain the impatience that is consuming me, to first make sure that we are not disturbed. Return to your couch, while I tell the sentinel to deny entrance to anyone; as we propose retiring to rest.

Pauline unhesitatingly obeyed—she trusted implicitly to to the Creole' who hurridly left the tent.

'Go at once,' she whispered hurridly to the man, 'as you dread Stuart Loring's displeasure, and see if he is still in the camp; should he stay I must see him immediately and secretly. Quick.'

The sentinel at once departed.

Juliette waited.

From the corner of the tent to which he had crawled, Brixham had seen all, but had not heard a word.

His amazement was considerably increased.

Distrust for the Creole suddenly crept into his mind.

Yet what could be her purpose?

In a short space the sentinel returned.

'Whisper,' said the Creole in a low tone laying her hand warningly on his arm.

'Mr. Loring has left ten minutes ago; none knows for where,' replied the man.

'It is most unfortunate, Acquaint me immediately on his return,' she added aloud—'Remember, see no one disturbs us to night as we are about to go to rest.'

The man responded in the affirmative; the Creole entered the tent, while the trapper thoughtfully rubbing his chin, went back to his place of espial.

Juliette's purpose was now to learn as speedily as possible, all she could, so taking her place by Pauline, who was sitting on the couch, she ejaculated—

'Now, quick, quick, dear for this good news. However did you get that letter? Who was its bearer?'

'Of that I am as ignorant as you, Juliette,' was the reply; 'I have not yet seen him.'

'Not yet seen him?'

'No; though I have spoken to him. Listen, I will explain.'

'What?' cried the Creole, starting, as the other concluded, 'is this man here now?'

'He is close by. See, yonder is the slit he made, through which he put the paper. He said did we move, he would come at once.'

'It is not Eustace Belmore himself who is here,' remarked the Creole, much relieved.

'No, only his messenger, but he is not far off. Perhaps he may be in the adjacent forest waiting.'

'Then you don't know for certain where he is.'

'No.'

And his plan for our escape.

'Is alike unknown to me; the messenger says he must see and speak to us, to do so by the means of that slit would be too dangerous, as in the darkness anyone might approach and overhear.'

'How then. is it to be managed?'

'To arrange that way why I have been so longing for you to come, Juliette. You are so clever that you can surely hit upon some way.'

The Creole laughed.

'Let me tihnk, she said, 'by the door it is impossible; the sentinel is there, and although not near enough to hear if we converse in whispers, is sufficiently close to see anyone leave or enter. Wait.'

Leaning her head on her hand she reflected.

Pauline sat mute, deferential to her half sister's superior intellect.

Juliette's thoughts, however could she have read them, would have rather amazed her.

She was pondering whether it would be wise or not to meet the trapper.

She decided that it would.

The enemy is dangerous, when his plan of action is secret; when it is known, and his cards on the table, then the fight is rendered easy.

She must see this man as he desired, learn all his plans, where was Eustace, when they proposed they should escape, and thus making herself acquainted with everything find some means of frustration.

'We must wait until the camp is still,' she said, at last, 'then manage, Pauline, to raise a portion of the canvas and admit the messenger.

'But can this be done, Juliette,

It shall be,' was the firm rejoiner 'only we must be patient.'

Until a suitable time arrived the sisters examined the tent, and found the pegs with which it was fastened, could no doubt be removed by the trapper's superior strength.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co,s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wast by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. A NEW SONG TO AN OLD TUNE.

AIR—BONNIE DUNDEE.

To the Lords of Auld England 'twas Gladstone that spake,
This bill maun gae through thro' yer crowns should be broke!
Then each Englishman who loves honor and me,
Let him vote for the Franchise, the rights of the free.
Come pack up my axe, come pack up my pen;
Come pack up my trunk, an' let's off by the train;
We'll awa o'er the border, as fast a' we can flee,
And when we come back then we'll see what we'll see.

Gladstone he is mounted, the stump he has taen;
The Lords they just growl, an' stick to the bane;
But Gladstone, douce man said, 'just een let them be,
That bill will gae through; gin ye'll just bid a we.
Sae oot wi' my axe, an' oot wi' my pen,
We may need baith the twa yet, for aught that we ken:
'Gin the craws frae their nest in the fields winna flee,
Then the axe we maun lay to the root o' the tree,'

There are towns beyond London, an' lands beyond Forth;
If there s slaves in the South, there are men in the North,
There are bonnie brave Scotchmen three thousand times three.
Who,ll cry 'Hey! for the Franchise!' till a' the Lords flee
Then oot wi' your note-books, yer pencil, yer pen,
Report every word the 'Grand Auld Man' is sain;
Auld Arthur's seat rings wi' the cheers an the glee,
An' the echoes are waukenin' the folk by the sea!

Then bring oot yer Jeameses, yer flunkies, yer knaves,
Parade forty thousand puir spiritless slaves;
But tremble my Lords in the midst o' yer glee,
Ye hae nae seen the last o' the Franchise an' me.
Then pack up my axe noo, and lay by the pen,
We'll awa' back an' beard the auld Lords in their den
Wha-e'er cries peccavi it winna be me,'
For I'm bound the Franchise Bill I'll carry or dee.

TALK ENGLISH.

H. L. Charles in the Christian at Work, gives some amusing illustrations of the impurity of language by young people, especially boys. He says: Among the still more common errors in the usage of language are these: the mispronouncing of unaccented syllables, as terrable for terrible; the omission of a letter or short syllable, as goin' for going, and ev'ry for every, the running of words together without giving to every one a seperate and distinct pronounciation.

I know a boy who says 'don't wanter,' when he means 'I don't want to;' 'whajer say?' when he means 'what did you say?' and 'where de go.' when he meant 'where did he go?'

Sometimes you hear 'ficood,' instead of 'If I could;' 'wilefcan,' instead of 'I will if I can;' and 'howjer know?'

'And have you never heard 'm—m,' instead of 'yes,' and 'ni—ni' instead of 'no?'

Let me give you a short conversation I overheard the other day, between two pupils of our high school, and see if you never heard anything sim lar to it:

'Warejergo lasnight?'

'Hadder skate.'

'Jerfind th' ice hard'n' good?'

'Yes; hard'nough'

'Jer goerlone?'

'No; Bill'n Joe wetelong.'

'Howlate jerstay?'

'Past'ate.'

'Lemmeknow whenyergoagin, wonchor? I wanter go'n showyer howterskate.'

'—m, ficoodn't skate better'n you I'd sell out'n quit.'

'Well, we'll tryeronce'n' seefyer can.'

Here they took different streets, and the conversation ceased. These boys write their compositions grammatically, and might use good language, and speak it distinctly if they would try. But they have got into this careless way of speaking and make no effort to get out of it. Whenever they try to speak correctly they have to grope their way along slowly, and their expression seems forced or cramped, as though it were hardwork for them to talk.

Every one talks enough to keep well in practice, and those who try to speak correctly on every occasion soon find that the practice makes it just as easy to use the language at their command as to use the most common.

WHY WAGES ARE REDUCED.

Chicago Herald.

A manufacturer who [illegible] made high tariff speeches informed his men yesterday that they would have to submit to a reduction of 15 per cent. in their wages for the winter. One of the men stepped forward and said:

'May I ask you a question, sir?'

'Certainly, certainly, my good man. What is it?'

'Didn't I hear you make a speech up in the Twelfth Ward last night declaring that it was the tariff that kept wages up, and that was why manufacturers supported it?'

'I believe I said something of the kind.'

'Well, then, how is it that you are reducing wages now before there has been any change in the tariff?'

'I'll explain it to you. Ahem! That was politics. This here is business.'

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain successfully grapple withthe work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

'I fear, sir, that my noise has rather inconvenienced you,' said a somewhat boisterous politician, who had been taking a good deal to a more quiet occupant of a seat in a railway carriage, recently. 'Not in the least,' he replied. 'I thought,' remarked the noisy man, 'that you did not seem interested by my stories.' 'Quite the reverse, my dear sir,' said the quiet one, 'I am very much so. In fact, I am a bit of a liar myself.'

ONLY A GENTLE HINT.

Merchant Traveler.

A prosy minister in a country church, when he had reached his 'twelfthly' became thirsty, and not finding any water on the shelf under the pulpit, called to the deacon:

'Brother Brown, there's no water here.'

'Do you want some,' inquired the deacon.

'Yes, I'm mighty dry.'

A glass was brought and the preacher proceeded to gulp it down.

'Mr. Goodlove,' whispered the deacon, waiting for the glass.

'Well, what is it?' asked the preacher, stopping his libiation.

'Don't you think you'd better offer a little to your sermon?'

The discourse was knocked out in the next round.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitud, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

WHAT BLAKE WILL DO AND WILL NOT DO.

(Saturday's Globe.)

The people of Canada will transfer the control of their affairs to Mr. Blake because they know what he will do and what he will not do, and because they know him to be a man of high character, stainless honor, and great abilities.

The know that he will dispel delusions bring order out of chaos, release commerce from the shackles and fetters which have been placed upon it, restore confidence, reduce taxation and equalize its burden, abolishing the duty on coal and flour and other raw materials of manufactures, and readjusting the tariff so that the poor man shall pay no more in proportion to his means than the rich. He would reduce expenditure and take from the people only what was required for the public service. He would do all that could be done legitimately and safely to encourage the development of Canada's immense resources. He would do all that a wise liberal policy can do to people the Northwest with prosperous, happy settler. He would make the Senate elective.

And he would not:—Sell a great public charter, or share directly or indirectly in the profits of public contracts, or create monopolies, or assist speculators to rob the public, or become the centre of any ring or combination, or its patron, or humbug the people by pretending that an Act of Parliament could make them rich, or attack Provincial rights, or try to defraud any Province, or try to set Province against Province, or do injustice to any Province, or disallow Acts of a Local Legislature for the benefit of a great monopoly, or of an influential supporter, or gerrymander the constituencies, or employ such agents as Wilkinson, Bunting, Meek, and Stinson, alias Lynch, or spend the public money importing mechanics and operatives to compete with our workpeople in crowded labor markets, or make to an association or person any promise he did not intend honestly to fulfil, or endeavor to attach old men to him by bribery, or young men to him by methods worthy of Cataline, or ever be drunk in the House of Commons or on a public platform, or at any great crisis in Canadian history, or anywhere, or at any time, or bring disgrace in any way on Canada.

SURPLUS OF G. T. R. EMPLOYEES.

If we take the word of the Montreal Herald the Grand Trunk Railway is not doing a very rushing or paying business at present. It states that it is customary for the hands employed to be assessed so frequently under their mutual provident society for the killed and injured on the trains that some of the more impulsive in the St. Charles workshops have threatened to strike rather than pay the frequent and onerous assessments. On this language being reported to an official of the road his answer is reported thus:

> In regard to the threat of a general strike, the official smilingly remarked that perhaps the men would likely follow such a course in work at the fact that the majority are kept at sense of commi[illegible] by the company through a dull, and to dispense with the services of several thousand men for a couple of months would not prove amiss.

It may, or it may not, be the fault of the Grand Trunk management that accidents occur so frequently upon that road, but certainly its experience in the line of accidents, loss of life and destruction of property has been an unparalleled one during the past years. It certainly does seem a strange thing if the members of the benefit society find the demands upon them to make good the loss sustained by their fellow workmen in the service should be so frequent and heavy as to justify them in refusing to pay.

But another side of the question is equally strange. It is a remarkable thing, if true, that the Grand Trunk is employing some thousands of workingmen whose services it does not really require, and who are only employed out of a feeling of "commiseration." It indicates a much more generous spirit than the management of the Grand Trunk Company are usually credited with, and also testifies to the fact that traffic on the road has fallen enormously.

O. Bartlo, of Manchester, Ontario Co. N. Y. writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I have not been able to do previously to using the Oil.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

TORONTO'S FOUL SMELLS AND STREETS.

Nothing strikes a stranger visiting Toronto more than the dirty streets and alleys, foul smells from foul drains, and the uncleanliness generally which exists among the dwellings of the poor, and in the manufacturing districts.—Telegram.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value; we have plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with Bilious Fever and Indigestion as I think any one could be. I have taken three bottles and am nearly well, and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than ever I expected to to be. Free trial bottles at Jas. EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE STARTLING CHARGES made by Dr. Tuke with reference to the Quebec Asylums for the Insane will necessitate an enquiry and investigation by the government, and it is to be hoped that the investigation will be thorough and complete, and not be an occasion of covering up or concealing, instead of exposing the facts of the case.

ONE OF the boasts of the Tory party is their intense super-loyalty as evidenced by their abhorrence of a discussion of the severance of British connection. However, if Sir John succeeds in annexing Jamaica to the Dominion without the consent of the people of Canada it will certainly precipitate a discussion of the question whether the disadvantages of the proposed annexation do not greatly outweigh the real and sentimental advantages derived from a connection with Great Britain. There is not the slightest reason for Canada to be land hungry, and if there were, Jamaica is a very undesirable acquisition.

* * *

IN THE ENQUIRY before the coroner as to the cause of the collision at St. Clare by which one of the engineers lost his life, Mr. McMaster, who said he appeared for the next of kin to the deceased, was not allowed to ask any questions, and when he prompted the coroner to enquire if proper danger signals had been exhibited, the jury would not allow the question. In view of the fact that the engine of the freight train was standing foul of the main line when the accident happened it seems that either the jury were uncommonly stupid, or perversely wrong-headed to bring a verdict of "accidental death." The freight train entered the siding at a high rate of speed and was not stopped quick enough, either because brakes were not whistled for soon enough, or for want of brakesmen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—In the interest of science and of the public, we beg the aid of your widely circulated journal to ask the assistance of our country friends in the formation of a collection of the animals, birds, reptiles, fish, minerals and other natural productions of the district. The members of the Murchison Society have combined with the authorities of Albert College to form such a collection, the nucleus of which will be the present museum of the college, and they hope, with the assistance of those kind friends who may take an interest in the matter, to be able in a short time to accumulate such a number of specimens as may be valuable for the education of the students, the gratification of the public and the information of persons who may visit the locality with a view of settlement or of mining or manufacturing enterprise. We would therefore suggest to our farmers that they take advantage of the opportunities which their position affords them to secure specimens of animals, birds and other natural objects, and also any stone axes, gauges, arrow heads, pipes or other Indian relics, may of which are turned up by the plough. Specimens of any of the above which may be forwarded to W. R. Smith, County Treasurer's Office, Belleville will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged.

OUR NOBLE VOLUNTEERS.

CRITICIZED BY AN ENGLISHMAN IN THE UNITED SERVICE MAGAZINE.

A writer in the United Service Magazine, of London, Eng., has been writing in no very complimentary vein on the active milisia of Canada. He describes it as a semi-political organization poorly drilled, composed of insubordinates, whose captains and commanders are filled not with love of their country, but with the desire to secure the monetary emoluments consequent on their positions. The militia is a satire on military organizations; fines are never imposed. Few of the many ex-officers of the British army who reside in Canada will, except in staff, have anything to do with them. They look on them as 'something for mirth, yea, for laughter."

MAMIE THORPE'S MURDERER,

The Trial of Gilbert Hazeltine Now Progressing in Baltimore.

A Baltimore despatch says:—At least a quarter of an hour before the Criminal Court was called to order to-day the court-room was filled with men anxious to hear the trial of Gilbert W. Hazeltine for the murder of Mamie Thorpe on July 19, 1884, in the house of Pearl Snow, No. 102 North Street. Hazeltine was dressed in a plain black suit with a cutaway coat and standing collar. He is a very ordinary looking young man, with pasty complexion, narrow forehead, rather full lips, and such a chin as usually marks a weak character. His eyes and general appearance gave him the irresolute, dissipated look so often seen on young men who have nothing to do. His nervousness was apparent, for, though seemingly attending to the reading, his eyes wandered aimlessly from point to point. He was accompanied by his mother, a gray haired old lady, for whom much sympathy was felt. Deeply moved, she took a seat near her son's side in the dock. After some delay a jury was procured and the case began shortly after noon. The prisoner had several lawyers, the leading one being ex-Governor Pinckney White, the acknowledged leading lawyer in the state.

May White, the companion of the murdered girl, who was in the room at the time of the tragedy and was dangerously wounded by the prisoner, testified. The defence tried hard to break the force of the witness' testimony on the jury by assailing her character, but all this the suffering girl bravely withstood and firmly declined to reveal her true name, or anything beyond acknowledging that her parents were wealthy and live in Utica, N. Y. Her sins were on her own head alone.

She was in the room in Pearl Snow's when Hazeltine did the shooting; he was not intoxicated at the time, but became angered at her because she declined to give him her diamond ring to procure wine with, and upon her refusal shot her. Her companion, Mamie Thorpe, in alarm tried to escape from the room and was shot in the back. She died almost instantly. The witness was herself dangerously wounded.

Witness created some amusement by testifying that Hazeltine had once said in her presence that a man might kill half a dozen persons in Baltimore and never be punished—too true an assertion not to be appreciated by a Baltimore audience. The prosecuting officers didn't relish it, however. Upon the conclusion of Miss White's testimony the case went over until tomorrow.

THE GOLD FIELDS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

From the Victoria Times.

The reporter saw several miners who had come from the mining country on Lorne creek. They report he outlook exceedingly promising. A miner stated that some rich diggings had been discovered some miles this side of Lorne creek, but that miners were driven away by the Indians. The Indians made very bold threats and claim that if the Indian now in gaol in Victoria is hung, they will kill the first white man who makes an appearance among them. The Indians are well armed and it is thought would carry their threats into effect. The miners claim the country is rich in gold beyond a doubt.

IMPORTING BLACK WALNUT TREE.

F. W. Glen, M.P., of Oshawa, has ordered from the western states 5000 black walnut trees, four feet high. The cost laid down at Oshawa will be about 20 cents each, and Mr. Glen will distribute them in lots of ten to the farmers of his neighbor hood at actual cost. The black walnut is a rapid grower, a beautiful shade tree, and bears a delicious nut. The trees planted near Hamilton thirty years ago are said to be now worth $100 each to cut down for lumber.

A HEAVY FAILURE.

OSHAWA, Oct. 25.—The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, of Oshawa, is the big failure of to-day. The cause of trouble is a mortgage, originally for $14,000, but which through the accumulation of interest now foots up to between eighteen and nineteen thousand dollars.

Furred tongue and impure breath are two concomitants of biliousness remedied by Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. Heartburn, which harasses the dyspeptic after meals, and all the perplexing and changeful symptoms of established indigestion, are dispersed by this salutary corrective tonic and celebrated blood purifier.

CARRYING WAR.
Into the enemys country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietary goods sold here emanate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers from this discomfort to test its merit.—Exchange.

VISITORS FROM OSWEGO.

Saturday afternoon the steam yacht Ruth arrived here from Oswego with the following gentlemen on board: F. L. Cande, C. C. Buel, C. W. Pardee, W. B. Phelps, Jr., and Geo. N. Barte. They registered at the Dafoe and were wated on by Commodore Biggar and other members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, but the rough passage which they had crossing the lake caused them to postpone their proposed trip to Trenton on the Ometa. On Friday night they had a hard time of it on the lake; every one of the crew "thought their time had come," but the yacht brought them through safely. One of the small boats was carried away and the engine disabled, but after making repairs here they left yesterday morning for Ogdensburg. They towed the Iolanthe up from Telegraph Island. Mr. Phelps is the present owner of the Katie Gray, formerly of Belleville.

A FEROCIOUS FELINE.

A FEROCIOUS WILD CAT NEARLY TEARS A MAN TO PIECES.

A wild cat which did so much damage, and created such consternation here last fall, paid us another visit on Sunday last. The general supposition is that it entered the village some time during Saturday night and remained in some secluded place during the day. Immediately after dark, however, his catship sallied forth, entered the house of Thomas Rowane, and made a general onslaught on the entire family. It first made a spring a Mr. Rowane, who struggled manfully against such terrible odds, but being overpowed, he fell exhausted to the floor, torn and lacerated in a terrible manner. Seeing the position of Mr. Rowane, his wife and family heroically ventured their lives in his defence, and after a terrible struggle, in which all engaged were more or less injured, they succeeded in driving the beast away. Fearing its return, Mrs. Rowane ran for help, and soon a number of persons went to the relief of the family, which was found in a fearful state of terror and excitement. The animal afterwards attacked Chief Henry, on George Street, and, although terror-stricken, he succeeded in escaping with a few flesh wounds and some rough handling. The animal described by those who saw it as standing about 2½ feet high, but in proportion, and fearfully ferocious in appearance. It is thought that a large bounty will be offered for its capture.—Arthur Enterprise.

DANGEROUS IMITATIVE PROPENSITY

Indianapolis News.

Mrs. Renshler, of Madison, killed a chicken in the presence of her little boys by cutting its head off with a hatchet. The boys became interested in the proceeding and while the mother was in the house the old brother prevailed upon the younger to play the part of chicken, and actually had his head on the block and was in the act of chopping of h's head when an older brother accidently noticed the game and stopped the operation before any serious damage had been inflicted.

LATEST CITY NEWS

Challen inquest to-night.

It is expected the assize court will continue this week.

Six drunks and two tramps were in the cells over Sunday.

The Curling Club will hold their annual meeting at Hambly's to-night.

Anna McAuley, arrested a few weeks ago for stealing clothing at M. S. Retallack's, will receive her trial at four this afternoon.

Major Moore is said to be wealthy. The sales of the War Cry, of which he had control, amounted to over $50,000 per year, and the revenue from hymn books was also very large.

The drunks were disposed of at the police court this morning as follows:—Josiah Latta, Alex. Champlain, Alex. Frall, $2. Andrew Townsend, drunk, $4. Eliza Kelly, vagrancy, discharged.

At the opera house this evening H. H. Ragan will give steroptican views of Rome, besides a historical sketch of each scene. On Saturday evening he delighted an appreciative audience with scenes from other countries.

A clerk in a local bank a few days ago asked the manager for two day's leave of absence which was granted, but as the young man has not returned his friends are puzzled to account for his strange conduct. His books were found correct.

At the police court this morning the charge of larceny preferred against Lockie McEdwards was investigated. Metcalf, his room mate at the college swore that he slept with the accused on the night the money was stolen, and that after breakfast the $25 was gone. The case was continued until four o'clock.

Judge Fralick returned home on Saturnay from Long Lake, a hundred miles north of Belleville, where he spent twelve days shooting. He was accompanied by Thos. Stranger B. Ireland and E. Gould, of Colborne. They shot fifteen deer and several partridge, including one or two spruce partridge, a very rare bird in this section. Mr. S. B. Bardett who was with the party during the first day, shot the first deer.

Rev. Dr. Sexton, of London, occupied the pulpit of the Bridge Street Church morning and evening yesterday, and the audience listened to his eloquence and illustrations with wrapt attention. It is seldom our citizens have an opportunity of hearing a Christian minister and philosopher so profound and interesting, and in this city his lectures during this week, will have a most important and beneficial effect. He addresses a public meeting in Trenton to-night, but on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings he will lecture in the Bridge Street Church.

The night school at Ontario Business College will begin on Monday evening, November 3rd—one week from this evening. There are scores of boys and young men, yes and middle aged men too, who would be greatly benefitted by attending. Many men at business and at their trades feel the want of such knowledge as they can secure at the night school in a few months. Several young men are now filling good situations as the result of attending the night school in former years. Thefee is within nearly every one's means, and the subjects taught are those which everyone should be acquainted with. Ladies are admitted.

John J. Shea, city bill poster, has returned home from New York and will attend to bill posting as usual. He returns his thanks to the merchants for past liberal patronage and hopes for a continuance of the same.

American coal oil can be procured at Geen's either wholesale or retail, and will be delivered to any part of the city.

A large stock of pictures and frames just received at J. H. Ford's. Our photographing department is now much better managed than ever in the past, as we have in addition to our old staff of hands some very valuable assistance. Give us a call.

Mrs. D. Morrison, Fernham Centre, P. Q. writing about Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, says: George Bell used it on his son and it cured him of rheumatism with only a few applications. The balance of the bottle was used by an old gentleman for Asthma, with the best results. It acts like a charm."

SPORTING NEWS.

The Toronto yacht club has decided to build a new clubhouse at a cost of $8,000.

Toronto beat Montreal at football on Saturday.

The Ontario Lacrosse Club, of Toronto, and the Brants of Paris, played a draw match on Saturday.

The single scull race at St. Louis, Saturday afternoon between Teemer and Gaudaur for $500 a side, Teemer to give Gaudaur five seconds start, was rowed at Creve Coeur lake. The start was made at 4:30 p.m. Gaudaur getting away with thirty-seven strokes and leading two and a half lengths when Teemer started five seconds later. Gaudaur maintained his lead for a mile when Tremer spurted and gained a length. Gaudaur turned first, a length and a half in advance, Teemer spurted again and caught his antagonist in the quarter mile and in the next quarter mile gained a lead of a clean length, Gaudaur then drew up level with Teemer, and from this point, about half a miles from home, the struggle was persistant and desperate, each doing his best. and neither being able to gain the advantage. The finish was so close that the referee decided that neither had won. and the race is to be rowed over.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

Foretelling the weather is a useful science but relieving the effects of its sudden changes is a better one. Hagyards Pectoral Balsam cures coughs and colds, incident to its sudden changes.

FALL ASSIZES.

Royal Insurance Company v. John Beyers, an action for fraud was begun at noon on Saturday and finished this morning. The defendant had a loss by fire at Consecon some time ago, and was paid $3,600 by the plaintiffs, but afterwards it was alleged they learned that Beyers had made out a fraudulent statement of his loss. The action was brought therefore to recover the amount of insurance paid on that policy. The defence claimed there was no fraud in the transaction. Bethune, Q.C., and Clute & Williams for plffs.; Britton, Q.C., Dickson, Q.C., and Wright for defts.

His Lordship submitted the following question to the jury: Did the plaintiff overpay the defendant. A. No. Judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

Joseph Green v. W.H. Ponton, registrar of the county, a non jury case was tried this afternoon. It was an action against the defendant for not registering a will in the abstract index as required by the statute; through this alleged oversight it was claimed Mr. Skinner, solicitor for the plaintiff, searched the records and passed the title to the land, one acre in the township of Rawdon, and the assignment of mortgage was accepted. Osler, Q.C., Burdett and Skinner for plff.; Dickson, Q.C., Clute and W. N. for deft. Case still going on.

GONE TO HIS LONG REST.

The funeral of the late James Clarke, druggist, took place yesterday afternoon, and the cortege was the largest seen in Belleville in many years. The bearers were Messrs. W. H. Biggar, Dr. Farley, Dr. Abbott, D. B. Robertson, S. B. Balkwill and Angus McFee. The deceased was buried under the auspices of the Masonic order, over two hundred members attending the funeral of their late brother, besides the friends and relatives and over sixty carriages followed the remains to the cemetery. There was a large number of friends from a distance, including the following from Campbellford: Messrs. R. W. Turner, J. Waters and D. Waters. Rev. J. W. Burke conducted an impressive funeral service at St. Thomas Church, after which the long line of mourners wended their way to the cemetery to bury the remains of an honored and respected citizen, whose death will leave a vacancy not to be filled by every man.

The Toronto World says:—Toronto yachtsmen, and particularly those who visited Belleville this summer, have learned with deep regret of the drowning of Jas. Clarke, druggist of that city, in Hay Bay, last night. He was one of the most enthusiastic of those who welcomed the yachtsmen of this city to Belleville on the occasion of the late regatta. Belleville has lost a true yachtsman and Toronto yachtsmen a warm friend.

THE LYNAM INSANITY CASE.

The proceedings in the Montreal courts looking to the release of Mrs. Lynam from the Longue Point lunatic asylum resulted in Mr. Justice Jette, after hearing a mass of conflicting testimony, ordering a careful examination of the woman to be made by experts. One expert was named by the judge and the other two were to be named by the attorney-general, of Quebec. It was thought that this would be the best way of getting at the truth as regards the woman's mental condition. She has been confined in the asylum for two years, and it is alleged that she is sane, the supposed object for keeping her in the asylum being her husband's desire to get rid of her. At the trial five experts testified that she was perfectly sane, and that her confinement as a lunatic was an outrage. But those interested in keeping her shut up also brought forward five experts, who swore that she was crazy and unfit to be at large. The decision of Justice Jette to refer the question to disinterested experts, therefore gave satisfaction. But the attorney general has declined to allow his experts to make the examination. It seems strange in this age of enlightment, that it could be possible to keep a sane woman shut up for two years in an insane asylum. There must be other reasons at the back of this extraordinary affair. There is considerable jealousy between French and English experts and doctors, and the fact that the institution is in the hands of Sisters of Charity has no doubt also had something to do with the matter. In the meantime Mrs. Lynam is detained in the asylum, while her friends are fighting her case in the courts.

As a general thing Ladies who make any pretensions to refinement desire to have soft white hands. We believe that there nothing will tend more to produce this effect than the constant use of Murray & Lanmans Florida Water mixed with the water in the basin. It removes redness and roughness. The ladies of Cuba and South America were the first to discover the extraordinary virtues of this floral water as a cosmetic, and have long since discarded the use of all others.

THE HOP MARKET.

New York, Oct. 25.—The market remains very quiet. Shippers' wants as guaged by their movements are very light since the purchases made early in the week, and brewers' operations are moderate to say the best of them. As for dealers very few, if any, are figuring here as buyers, whatever they may be doing in the interior, For that matter, more samples are offering now than at any previous time the past fortnight, and instances are not rare of offers at 1c. under the lowest figures named early last week. There is no real weakness apparent, but the market is certainly devoid of anything that looks like positive strength. In short, it is what may be termed a barely steady matket.

CHEESE MARKET.

New York, Oct. 27.—The Commercial Bulletin of Saturday says:—Receipts to-day, 18,213 pkgs. Trade was dull and the market weakening. Strictly perfection of quality remained well in hand, and, if colored, was carried with some showing of steadiness; but buyers were not submissive, except upon direct orders, and for white flatly refused to pay 12½. Indeed, the latter was a rate only to be made when demand came out straight and natural, while desire to realize would compel a shading, and, indeed, 12½c was about a top figure for white goods. Other grades unsettled, but not showing much life, and the evidences are that a large amount of stock must carry over for want of customers, as the home trade has not afforded much relief. In fact, generally, the market had a tired and listless appearance at the close, and while the scarcity of fancy stock may keep the top rates steady, a shading on other grades, it is thought, must be made.

On Saturday the cable was 56 6, 228 boxes cheese, last half September. Sidney Town-hall Factory sold at 11½c. Holders asking 11½ to 11¾ for September cheese, according to quality, 10½c for finest August cheese. Medium grades 6 to 8c.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety, with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by helping exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS—THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

Thus assured, the Creole bade Pauline make the sign for him to approach.

On her doing so Brixham immediately notified his presence by inserting his fingers and drawing it apart.

Through it Pauline told him in a whisper what the Creole had planned, and described to him which part to essay that which they had selected having the couch between it and the entrance.

The trapper, had he chosen, might have said he knew already as he had lost scarcely a word of their conversation.

Moving away the sisters heard him at work unearthing the pegs.

It had been well driven in.

Finally, however, as the girls anxiously watched they perceived the canvas slacken then become loose.

A moment later it was lifted and the trapper's head appeared beneath.

Drawing himself along on the ground, Brixham brought his body after his head, and finally his feet.

Scarcely was he fully inside, when a death-like silence fell on the three.

They heard a step outside.

It was the sentinel making the round of the tent.

Two, at least of the trio listened to his slow tread with bated breath and beating hearts.

The trapper thrust his hand into the breast of his coat where lay his revolver.

The sentinel's life hung upon a single thread.

The sentinel passed on to his usual post and apparently, from the ring of his rifle laid down,

'Now I think we are safe for the few minutes we require,' said Brixham,

'Then don't let us waste them,' remarked the Creole.

'No, oh, please, no, whispered Pauline, tremulous with excitement; you say your plan for our flight is already formed.

'It is, miss.'

'What is it?'

'Simply this, that you make ready to start to-morrow night, directly I come for you. Horses will be near in the forest, waiting, and if we get a fair start, I defy Stuart Loring to track us.'

'To-morrow night!' exclaimed Pauline a little blankly, while the Creole's hopes rose in ratio. 'Don't think me ungrateful, or impatient, but why not now,

'Because miss, the horses aren't ready. I only wish they were. Besides, I can't stir without Mr. Belmore.'

'Where is he,' asked Juliette, abruptly.

'A few miles from here, waiting for me. When we came on your trail so fresh, that I knew you couldn't be far off, I left him with the horses while I pushed on to reconnitre, and pretty soon I must go back, or, I reckon there'll be the deuce to pay,' smiled the trapper. 'He's so impatient, and anxious to have all the honour of this affair himself, and I don't wonder, he interpolated glancing toward Pauline; 'that I'll wager he'll be foolish enough to try his way over the prairie alone, if I don't hasten. It would not quite do, either, to start without him.'

'Start without him? Oh, decidedly not remarked the younger sister. 'But when you have found him when you tell him you have found us, you will return.'

'Of course as soon as safety will allow, we will be with you.'

All this while the trapper had been talking to Pauline, nevertheless, from beneath his shaggy brows, he had, unobserved, been attentively watching Juliette.

She was a veritable puzzle to him.

He saw there was something under the surface he could not read.

Suddenly raising her dark eyes she addressed him.

'We owe you much for what you have already risked for us, and still more for what you are prepared to,' she said in musical accents; 'far more than we can ever repay. I see no difficulty in carrying out the plan you have formed for our escape. At what hour do you propose it should take place?'

The trapper considered.

'From what I've seen to-night,' he answered after a pause, 'these people get to bed, or at least into their tents, about 8 o'clock. The horses in that case would be ready at nine.'

'I do not fancy that advisable,' responded the Creole, quietly, it's too early. It be far wiser to make it later.'

'What time, then, would you advise?'

'At the earliest not before midnight.'

'Twelve o'clock. That's late isn't it?'

'Not too late, for it will ensure us against all possability of intrusion and our flight being discovered before morning.'

Brixham was silent.

'Well, he said at length; 'let it be so, a few hours can make small difference.'

'Indeed, they seem to me like centuries sighed Pauline. I wish they would pass like minutes. I am in constant terror while in this place.'

'Keep up your heart and don't fear miss said the trapper encouragingly; I've sworn to save you from that villian, and I will for I believe Heaven has heard.'

'I believe so too, and I trust in you with all my soul,' fervently extending her little white hand.

Brixham took it in his large palm, and while the girl held his fingers imprisoned, she bent her lips and kissed them.

'I owe you a life she murmured, for you have saved his.'

The color came to Brixham's cheek.

'You have more than repaid me for all I have yet done or may yet do,' he said, rather confused. 'I will save you for your own sweet sake, as well as for that of the fine, noble-hearted lad, Mr. Belmore. But at present, farewell. I must be off, it would be madness to risk detection, now that it is all arranged, by useless palaver.'

'Farewell,' said Pauline 'we will be ready and waiting for you to morrow.'

The trapper moved towards the entrance.

Turning he said—

'I suppose, miss, you've no word to send to Mr. Belmore? I'll be a trusty messenger.'

Pauline understood, and thanked him with a glance.

Using the same means Eustace had employed she wrote some fond words of affection of joyous hope; and assurance at the prospect of soon meeting.

Ending by a few words of praise of the trapper, she folded it and gave it to that kindly messenger.

DR. SCOTT'S PREPARED SPICE

For Horses, Cattle, Sheep & Swine.

It has no equal in curing Horses of the several ailments to which they are subject. For COUGHS, COLDS, ROUGHNESS of the HAIR, BOTTS SCURVY, &c., it is invaluable, and administered in smaller doses, acts as a Tonic, resulting in a healthy condition and fine appearance of the animal. Is also equally beneficial to CATTLE, SHEEP and SWINE. For sale everywhere.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent. For sale by all Druggists

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5,00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

TWO PREACHERS.

The preacher stood in the pulpit,
And spoke with large discourse
Of reason and revelation,
Nature and cosmic force.

He talked of the reign of order,
Of scientific skill,
And knowledge of the old key
To find the heavenly will.

And I wondered at the doctrine,
It seemed so strange and cold,
And I thought of saints that I had known
Weary and poor and cold.

For they nothing knew of science,
Praying on bended knee,
And from ancient superstitions
Were not altogether free,

Whilst lost in the maze of wisdom,
About the false and true,
There came to my eyes a vision,
Near as the nearest pew.

'Twas a vision dear and tender,
The sweet face of a child,
As weary with all the talking,
He lay asleep and smiled.

Nothing he cared for the preacher
Who spoke of law above;
But in his face was innocence
And words of truthful love.

I thought of a certain teacher—
The wise, the undefiled—
Who saw the kingdom of Heaven
Within the heart of a child.

'Tis good to be strong and learned
Good to be wise and bold,
But the best of everything that is
The preacher left untold.

SAVED HIS REPUTATION.

The Rev. Mr. Popplewell is a very nervous young man, and has lately been appointed to the curacy of St. John. He had never preached a sermon, and when the time came for him to face the congregation and make his first effort he fainted clean away as soon as he entered the pulpit. When he came to himself he was lying on a sofa in the vestry, of which place, with the exception of old John, the clerk and sexton, he was the sole occupant. He was in a dreadful state of trepidation and felt that his debut had not been an auspicious one.

'Oh! John,' he exclaimed, sighing deeply, 'this is terrible! what will the congregation think of my deplorable weakness? How can a man who thus swoons away when about to do his duty ever hope to impress his hearers? My influence is already departed.'

'Hoots, sir,' replied old John, who has no weakness but one, which may be guessed at from a glimpse of his nose, 'Ye've done nothin' amiss. They came enquirin' after ye, sir, but I satisfied 'em all. Ye're all right, and they don't think none the worse o' ye, sir.'

'You explained my sudden indisposition then, John, did you?' asked poor Mr. Popplewell anxiously. 'You informed them that my illness is not one of common occurrence. Thank you, John; what did you say?'

'Oh! sir,' replied John, with an air of conscious pride in having saved his new clergyman's reputation from the stigma of weakness, 'I just tell'd 'em ye were drunk!'

His reverence faints again.

Murray & Lanman's Florida Water is probably the simplest and purest perfume ever made, being absolutely nothing more than the delicious fragrance of rare flowers, preserved and made permanent, and it is doubtless to this purity of composition that its immense popularity is in a great measure to be ascribed.

THE MEANEST MEN.

"Talking about mean men," remarked a passenger from the West. "I saw a case in Iowa that beats anything I ever heard tell on. A young man lived in town and his wife's parents in the country. They were farmers, and whenever they went into town they would carry in some vegetables, fruit or something of the kind to their son in-law. There was some business dealings between them of some sort, and at the end of the year when they came to settlement the young man was surprised to find that all the vegetables, etc., were charged up to him at pretty stiff prices. He didn't say anything but put in his bill for 75 meals at 50 cents apiece. You see the father and mother had taken meals at his house when in town. The old man brought in an item 'to summer board for yourself and family, two weeks, $32. The son and his wife had visited their parents a couple of weeks. Then the young man charged his mother-in-law $14 for his wife's service in helping her mother make a dress. The old man came back at him by charging up 'to carrying you in my wagon to my house and back to town seven times $7; and your wife and children three times $5.' Thus they kept at it, and when I left they were having a lawsuit—the old man trying to collect $32 for his wife tending two her own daughter two weeks while the latter was sick, and the son-in-law trying to offset that with two weeks' board for the old lady at $6 a week and $20 for the dishes and things she broke during her stay. If they ain't the meanest men in this country I don't want to see the ones that can get away with them.—Chicago Herald.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. IF IT WERE POSSIBLE to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONATRIO

A SENSIBLE VIEW.

The speech of the Governor-General in reply to the address presented by the citizens of St. John, N.B., contained the following :—

"I wish, Mr. Mayor, that, standing as I do here to-day in the centre of a great commercial community, I had been able to offer you my congratulations upon the state of trade in this section, but I am afraid we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that lately this Province and this city have to some extent suffered from contraction of the usual activity of trade and commerce. This is chiefly the result, I am informed, of depression in the timber industry that occupies so important a place in your commercial system. These are facts which we have to look at in this city and I do not think any optimism can be more senseless than that which would seek to shut their eyes to their existence. At the same time, while regretting this to be the case, we have no reason for regarding the future with feelings of despondency. Sir, if we look out upon the rest of the world what do we see ? We see in other commercial communities a depression of trade similar to that which has prevailed here. We know that owing to the great rapidity of communication available at the present time, any weakness in any of the markets of the world speedily reacts on other parts, and any want of confidence in European markets is sure to make itself felt in Canadian markets as well."

We are very much afraid that for speaking the plain truth Lord Lansdowne will have the bitter hatred of all Canadian Torydom. He should know that to admit that anybody or anything in the Dominion suffers "from contraction of the usual activity of trade and commerce," stamps the person who utters such sentiments as too utterly unpatriotic and small-souled to be allowed to breathe free Canadian air. We do not believe in magnifying evils, neither is it wise to shut our eyes and say that certain unpleasant things do not exist because we do not see them. The wise and really patriotic course is to be watchful without perversely fault-finding, or blindly and stupidly ignoring the existence of indications of danger. Unfortunately, the timber industry is not the only one that suffers under a depression. There is hardly any industry that does not feel in some way or degree a depression or paralysis, and an optimism that can shut its eyes to the existence of such a state of affairs is senseless, indeed.

We know that it affords a consolation to the ordinary mind in misfortune to realize that others are equally unfortunate, but that should not prevent consideration or reflection to prevent a re-currence or intensifying of the cause, or causes, of such misfortune.

In the days of revenue tariff we were assured that the N. P. would be a specific against depression ; that never again should blighting want and poor pay be the heritage of Canadian workingmen. Alas, those promises were worse than broken reeds !

We are glad to notice the common sense view His Excellency takes of affairs, and that he says that while our things are gloomy here they are not much brighter elsewhere, and that the condition of the markets in other lands in a great degree influences our prosperty. This was an axiom ignored and contradicted by the Tory party and press in their praises of the N.P. They seemed to consider that by taxing all the necessaries and some of the luxuries of life a safe and sure method of overcoming all the ills that commerce and trade are heir to had been found. It is an argument analogous to that of the man who imagined he could raise himself over the fence by pulling on his boot straps.

When the Dominion gets down to common sense methods, lets go of its boot straps, and patiently climbs over the obstacles in the way of trade and manufacture without trusting to any such meretricious aid as the N. P., its prosperity will be more real and enduring than any lifting the N.P., may have appeared to give.

THE OPPONENTS OF LIBERTY.

The Popular Verdict Condemning the House of Lords.

London, Oct. 27.—A monster Radical demonstration in favor of the abolition of the House of Lords was held in Hyde Park to-day. Over 100,000 persons were present. A long procession with bands and flags marched through the principal streets. The marchers groaned while passing the headquarters of the Conservative Club.

Many banners were displayed bearing the inscriptions, 'Down with the Lords !' 'The Lords are the Opponents of Civil and Religious Liberty, and must be Abolished.

Speeches were delivered from nine different platforms at one time. Miss Jessie Craigen, a well known agitator, presided. Resolutions were passed declaring the House of Lords useless and dangerous, and ought to be abolished. No speeches were made by members of the Commons.

A TORY OUTRAGE.

A DASTARDLY TRICK TO INJURE THE CHANCES OF A REFORM CANDIDATE.

Special to the Ontario.

Word has been sent from Megantic, of a dastardly political outrage committed by the Conservative supporters of Dr. Hamel. The Tory clique in Montreal had prepared a cut of the Liberal candidate, Mr. White, dressed in Orange regalia, and had thousands of these struck off and distributed among the French and Irish Catholic voters. There being a very large percentage of Irish voters in the county, this trick has been resorted to try and weaken Mr. White's majority, for even the more honorable of the Conservatives admit that his return is certain.

DESERTION, MURDER AND SUICIDE.

POVERTY AND DESERTION IMPEL A MOTHER TO KILL HER CHILD AND HERSELF.

A Philadelphia despatch says :—A hard-working, uncomplaining young wife and mother named Annie Logan has lived at No. 1,208 Callowhill street for nearly two years. Driven to despair by the desertion of her worthless husband she murdered her 3 year old son and then committed suicide. Before committing the terrible deed she wrote the following pathetic letter to her relatives :—' I have lived quite as long as I could bear it. For two weeks I have suffered in misery, but before that I was happy. My husband has forsaken me and his dear little boy, who thought there was no one like his father, and was looking for his return. I gave up all for him and will die for him. I forgive and still love him. Howard would have been 3 years old the 8th of next March. Please bury him in my arms. Dear brothers, forgive me and bury me wherever you wish to. Good-bye to all and every one and to our dear Poppy. Howard used these last words.'

She then awakened the child, gave him a cup of laudanum which she had prepared, and then hushed the little fellow to his last sleep. Then the wretched woman took a deep draught of the deadly drug, turned on the gas, and, gathering the dying boy in her arms, composed herself for all eternity. The murder and suicide were discovered next afternoon by the smell of escaping gas, and this terrible social tragedy by a woman unsuspected of previous crime became part of the history of the day.

Mrs. Barnhart, cor. LITERARY NOTES.

Mr. Andrew Lang, who has recently become the English editor of Harper's Magazine, makes his first appearance in it as a prose contributor in a paper on Sydney Smith, to appear in the November number. As a Scotchman he resents pleasantly the Canon's assertion that it requires a surgical operation to get a joke into a Scotchman's head, and that Scotland is only the knuckle bone of England; and he goes on to show that Sydney Smith was not simply 'our most remarkable buffoon,' but a man of great and courageous eloquence, and a strong influence in political progress.

RESULT OF A COLLISION.

A Canada Southern Conductor Burnt to Death.

SEVERAL BADLY INJURED.

London, Oct. 27.—A collision occurred last night at Montrose Station on the C. S. R., resulting in the death of Conductor Herbert Thayer, of St. Thomas, and the injury of several other trainmen. Special train No. 16 composed of empty cars, reached Montrose at 5:30 p. m. and was mistaken by the switchman for a light engine and caboose. He switched it on a side track upon which four cabooses were standing. The back of the train struck these. The jar upset a stove in the second caboose where several trainmen were seated, and they were thrown from their seats. The stove fell on Herbert Thayer, pinning him to the floor, and the caboose instantly took fire. All efforts to rescue Thayer proved abortive, and he had to be left to his terrible fate. His brother Willard Thayer, brakeman on the caboose, kept hold of his hand as long as he could bear the heat, but finally was driven back scratched and exhausted, and pulled through the windows ; when assisted outside it was found his leg was broken. Brakeman Schofield was slightly hurt ; Condctour McGregor's feet badly burned. Three cabooses were completely burned. When Thayer's body was recovered it was charred to an unrecognizable mass. He was 21 years of age, and had only been married a few weeks.

$7,000 LOST AT SEA.

SEVENTY-ONE HEAD OF LIVE STOCK LOST IN A HURRICANE.

The steamship Toronto put into Liverpool Monday after a stormy twelve days' run across the Atlantic. Live stock was the vessel's staple cargo and the hurricane which was encountered in mid-ocean subjected a number of Canadian cattle shippers to a heavy loss. The sufferings of the animals during the time the storm was raging were intense. Many were smothered and crushed to a pulp in the stampede that took place between decks. One hundred and forty one head were thrown overboard by order of the captain, and the remainder of the cargo was landed in England in poor condition. Garret F. Frankland, of Toronto received a cablegram that out of 221 cattle shipped by him 71 had perished during the voyage. As he had no insurance, this means a loss of about $7,000, exclusive of the damage to animals which made the voyage safely. As the rates of insurance are now about six per cent. on the entire value of the shipment, it is thought no part of the live cargo was insured.

"OH DARN THESE GIRLS!"

THE FIRST WORDS SPOKEN BY A YOUNG WOMAN IN TWELVE YEARS.

Rochester, Pa. Oct. 27—Miss Ellen Ashworth, a young woman whose home is in Bridgewater, Pa., and who had for twelve years been unable to speak above a whisper, having lost her voice in an attack of scarlet fever, recently recovered her speech in a remarkable manner. She had established a milinary store at east Liverpool, O. A few days ago some of her employes grew rebelious and in her impatience Miss Ashworth surprised herself and those about by exclaiming in a loud voice :—"Oh, darn these girls." Her speech is now as perfect as before illness.

Most excruciating are the twinges which rack the muscles and joints of the rheumatic. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, by promoting increased action of the kidneys, by which the blood is more effectually depurated, removes through the natural channels certain acrid elements in the circulation which produce rheumatism and gout. The medicine is also a fine laxative antibilious medicine and general corrective.

HIS EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY.

Presentation and Birthd y Dinner to John S. Huffman.

A correspondent says:—I had the pleasure last Thursday, the 23rd Oct., of being present at the residence of Mr. John S. Huffman, Sidney, to a birthday dinner given by his children and grandchildren in honour of his eightieth birthday. Nearly forty sat down to a sumptuous repast, comprising all the delicacies of the season, after which the Rev. Hiram Williams, in a very touching manner addressed Mr. and Mrs. Huffman and presented them each with a beautiful silver cup and saucer, a gift from their children. It being a complete surprise Mr. Huffman was not prepared with a speech, although he very feelingly replied. Mr. Huffman is quite smart having been out that morning and done some ploughing, although his eyesight seems to be failing. Several guests from a distance were present and enjoyed themselves exceedingly. It is the unanimous wish of all present that he may be spared to see many more anniversaries.

A COMPREHENSIVE PLATFORM—SMOKING CARS OBJECTED TO.

In the Women's Christian Temperance Convention recently held in St. Louis, Mrs Millard reported a platform affirming the principles of total abstineneace; of Gospel temperance and evangelic methods against high and low licenses; of Sabbath observances; of scientific temperance instruction schools in reference to the constitutional effects of alcohol and tobacco; of bands of hope and juvenile bands hope and juvenile temperance organizations; of temperance work in Sunday schools; of a temperance day in the week of prayer, against the liquor traffic carried on in the dining railway cars and calling attention to the objectionable proximity of the smoking compartment in palace and sleeping cars to the main compartment. A resolution favoring the ballot for women was referred back to the committee for amendment, and a resolution in favor of prohibition was laid over. A mass meeting followed.

LATEST CITY NEWS

A drunk was arrested last night.

Phillip Reddick, at the police court this morning was fined $2 or 30 days for being drunk.

Lockie McEdwards, accused of stealing $25 from Metcalf at Albert College, was acquitted by the Police Magistrate this morning.

Rev. Dr. Sexton, of London, Eng., returned from Trenton at noon to-day. This evening in the Bridge Street Church he will discuss the folly of Atheism.

A banquet, followed by a concert and literary entertainment, will be given at Albert College on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 5th, Thanksgiving Day. Proceeds in aid of repair fund.

Anna McAuley pleaded guilty at the afternoon session of the police court yesterday to stealing clothing and jewelry at Mr. S. G. Retallack's residence, and was sentenced to one week in gaol.

The remains of the late Mrs. James Fry, who died at Sarnia on Sunday, reached here on the noon train to-day and the funeral took place at 3.30 to the cemetery. Deceased was a sister of Mr. John Panter, of this city.

The charge preferred by one Robert Magee against Mr. H. Corby, of this city, of fishing in Hay Bay on Sunday, has been withdrawn. The informant in this case has no doubt found out when too late that he was transgressing on dangerous ground.

Rev. D. F. Bogert has secured the services of Miss Florence Marryatt, the novelist and reader, for an entertainment in aid of St. John's Church, on the 26th of November, in the city hall. This will undoubteply be the greatest literary treat that the people of Belleville have had for some time.

GONE TO THE PENITENTIARY

Wm. Henderson ane James Huddleston, convicted of assaulting Geo. Hoggard, were sentenced this morning by Justice Galt, the former to two years, and the latter to four in the Kingston Penitentiary, Huddleston, when asked if he had anything to say, stated that he was not guily of striking Hoggard with the bottle. The impression is that Henderson was the man who did the injury and not Huddleston, but it is probable the Minister of Justice will grant the latter's discharge at the expiration of two years.

A CURLER'S CONFERENCE.

At the annual meeting of the Curling Club last night, Mr. A. McFee, President, in the chair, a resolution of condolence was passed, expressing their deep regret at the death of James Clarke, an active and enthusiastic curler, and sympathizing with his bereaved family. The officers elected were: W. H. Ponton, Patron; Mrs. W. H. Ponton, Patroness; Thomas Ritchie, President; D. M. Waters, vice-President; W. H. Biggar, Secretary; D. Pitceathly, Treasurer; Revs. M. W. McLean and D. Mitchell, Chaplains; Committee of management, John Wickett, F. Dolan, H. McIninch, John Jellett, Jas. Laurie, J. W. Johnson, Wm. Smeaton, E. Force, D. Pitceathly; representative members, A. C. Hutcheson, D. Brown, Montreal, and H. S. Ferguson. A resolution of thanks was passed to their late President, Mr. Angus McFee, for past services, and the club expressed the wish that his health would allow him to play many more friendly games on the ice in the future.

PROSECUTIONS AT PICTON.

PICTON, Oct. 28—"Five dollars and costs" in each case was the Police Magistrate's decision, in five prosecutions entered by Mr. Wm. Johnston, Inspector of Weights and Measures before Police Magistrate Curray for violations of the Weights and Measures Act. Four of the defendants were bakers in Milford, South Bay, Bloomfield and Wellington, in whose possession old "Wine" mersures were found, and the fifth, a farmer name Arthurs, at Consecon, who was in the habit of selling produce and weighing it with a steelyard, which was shown in court to be unjust, a load of fifteen pounds on it weighing seventeen and a half, and fifty pounds indicating fifty-three pounds.

Mr. W. B. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville writes: "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have ever used in my stable. I have used it for bruises, scratches and wind puffs and cuts, and in every case it gave the best satisfaction. We use it as a household remedy for scalds, burns, &c., and it is a perfect panacea. It will remove warts by paring them down occasionally."

To-Day's Probabilities.

Lakes—Winds mostly westerly; fair, cool weather.

Mrs. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes. "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caused a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Mr. Popplewell, Chemist, of our city to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

A council of doctors declared Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of 372 Exchange St, Buffalo, incurable. Her liver was badly disordered; she vomited green matter; could retain no food, skin yellow and full of humors. She was rapidly sinking, but Burdock Blood Bitters cured er.

THE CHALLEN INQUEST.

What the Deceased Said to Ald. Macoun after the Accident.

The inquest into the circumstances attending the death of the late Arthur W. Challen was continued in the Council Chamber last night before Coroner Farley.

Benjamin Austin, who resides near the spot where the accident occurred, stated that he heard a scream and turning around saw the train, which he thought was running at ten or twelve miles an hour. He thought it strange that if an accident had occurred the train did not appear to be slackening in speed. He saw three or four cars pass and then walked off over the hill. His daughter was going to the post office about the same time, and she noticed the train coming up Pinnacle Street as she thought very fast. She thought the train was running about as fast as freight trains usually run on the Grand Trunk line between Donnelly's bridge and the crossing on the second concession line in Sidney. She did not hear any bell or whistle. She crossed over the railway at the Bank of Montreal just before the train came up. It was running so fast, she said, it frightened her for a moment.

Geo. H. Trumpour, liveryman, Pinnacle Street, deposed that the train was running faster than usual in front of the Dafoe House. He thought it would take a good travelling horse to keep up with the train that night night, about ten miles an hour.

John Grant, boot and shoe merchant, Front Street, looked up Campbell Street and saw the engine pass, which he thought had hard work to get up the grade.

Wm. Stapley, when the train was stopped, heard the deceased say that he could not hold the horse.

Thos. Hunter saw the horse passing Austin's house on a slow trot.

A young man named Hawley, clerk in Haines & Locket's, refused to take the usual oath, stating that he was a christian and his word ought to be sufficient. His evidence was not taken in consequence, as the law makes no exceptions for christians, other than Quakers.

James Macoun, foreman of the jury, sworn, said: On the night of the accident I saw the deceased in Dr. Tracy's office, he put out his hand and said, "Mr. Macoun they have smashed my leg all to pieces," I asked him how it happened. He answered: "They were running very fast and not ringing the bell and I did not see the train until I was on to it." Some one in the room said the bell was ringing; Mr. Challen said if it was he did not hear it. This was half an hour after the accident.

Mr. Clute on behalf of his client, the engineer, objected to this evidence on the ground that the statement made to Ald. Macoun was not made at the time of the accident and there being a seperation the law said such evidence could not be taken in a criminal action such as this. The coroner noted the objection.

Several other witnesses were examined who knew very little about the accident. One of the men riding in the van thought the train was running about two or three miles an hour when he accident occurred.

The jury adjourned at eleven o'clock until Wednesday evening.

MURCHISON SOCIETY.

At the meeting of this Society last night the President, Mr. Thos. Wills, read a paper on "Singular coincidences." This brought on an interesting discussion, several members giving accounts of events that had happened to themselves which although no reason could be given for their occurrence, and bordered on the marvellous, were none the less true. It would be an interesting subject for any one to take up, and get together all such events which could be proved. The question of holding an open meeting was taken up and it was finally decided that one should be held on the 8th of December, when efforts will be made to have one of extra interest. The additions to the museum consists of fifteen specimens of copper ores &c., from Bruce mines Lake Superior, Mr. T. O. Bolger, 10 specimens of rocks and minerals from Rocky Mountains section of C.P.R., Mr. J. C. Jamieson; Wilsons snipe, gallinago wilsoni, Mr. Rufus Curlett; loons, colymbus torquatus, Mr. Griffith Davis and Mr. J. Morgan; screech owl, scops asio, Mr. L. Masseo; a fine golden eagle, aquila chrysætus, Mr. J. C. Jamieson; grebe podiceps carolinensis, killder plovdr, aegialitis vociferus, Mr. John Pringle; Wilsons snipe, Mr. R. S. Bell; Indian stone axe, Mr. J. L. Bontelller; hair worm, gordius agnaticus, Mr. R. Elvins; sarvis of appletree moth, attacus cecropia, Mr. E. Philpot; insects, Mr. H. Greenleaf, pod of beans 28 inches in length Mr. D. Mills.

TELEGRAPHIC FACILITIES.

The report of the Public Works Department points out that Canada possesses greater telegraphic facilities than either the United States or any European country. The number of offices in Canada is 2,259 or one to every 2,500; in the United States one to every 3,700; in Germany, one to every 4,300; in France, one to every 6,231; and in Great Brittain, one to every 6,508.

FIGURES WON'T LIE.

The figures showing the enormous yearly sales of Kidney-Wort, demonstrate its value as a medicine beyond dispute. It is a purely vegetable compound of certain roots, leaves and berries known to have special value in Kidney troubles. Combined with these are remedies acting directly on the liver and bowels. It is because of this combined action that Kidney-Wort has proved such an unequalled remedy in all diseases of these organs.

Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for all humor and skin diseases

TORONTO TERRORS.

A BOOKKEEPER KNOCKED SENSELESS AND RELIEVED OF HIS MONEY.

On Saturday night James T. Housaman, bookkeeper for Messrs. Harris & Oldham, Yonge street, was relieved of $13 in cash, a check for $22, and a silver watch and gold chain, besides being beaten and clubbed in a most brutal manner. He had just turned onto St. Patrick from Denison avenue, when he was grabbed and thrown to the ground by two men while a third threw a coat over his head to muffle his cries. He struggled with all his strength, and, being a powerful man, got on his feet several times, but he was finally deprived of his senses by receiving a blow on the head with a piece of board. When he become conscious it was nearly midnight, and he could find no trace of the thieves.

SURPLUSES.

The following extract from a speech delivered in New York, on the 9th inst. by the Hon. Roswell T. Flower, applies quite as forcibly to Canada as to the United States.

'Who among you would vote for a Supervisor of a town who would collect $50,000, yearly more than was needed and keep the surplus in a bank while you yourself were borrowers? Who would vote for a mayor who would countenance the levy of 1 per cent. more taxes than was necessary while you yourselves were striving to to pay bills past due? Who would vote for a Governor or Comptroller who persisted collecting from you five millions per annum in excess of what was needed for an economical administration of the State government? I am glad to think that there are comparatively few men in this great city who will vote to continue in power a party which for the past four years has been collecting nearly one hundred milions per annum over and above the requirements of Government and Sinking Fund while we have not been able to pay our debts and the evidences of our wealth have been turned to ashes in our strong boxes. (Loud cheers.)

The candidate of the Republican party declares in his letter of acceptance that the surplus revenues accruing from the excessive taxation is wisely being applied to the the extinguishment of public debt. Previous to this utterance he advocated the distribution of the surplus among the States, with a view of making them more subservient to the General Government and aiding the weaker ones at the expense of those in which the revenue are collected, but there is an easier way out of this difficulty than the one he proposes. Let the people keep their own money and spend it as they please.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

Polson's Nerviline, the great pain cure, never fails to give prompt relief in the following complaints:—Sprains, bruises, cuts, tic doloureux, rheumatism, spinal pains, neuralgia, toothache, lumbago, sciatica. Buy to-day at any drug store a 10 cent sample bottle and test it in any of the above complaints. It never fails, for Nerviline is composed of the most powerful pain subduing remedies in the world. Get a bottle at any drug store. You will be made happy. Ten and 25 cents a bottle.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by such ng exhausted nature just when she needs such succor

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

The Creole watched this proceeding with an agony beyond description.

The probability of soon seeing our hero had brought back her love with all her former violence.

She in the same ratio watched her happier sister and envied her the pleasure of corresponding with him.

As these feelings controlled her, she had believed herself unobserved.

But Brixham had not moved his eyes an instant from her face.

Its expression was a revelation.

His honest heart gave a great gasp.

'By Heaven!' he thought, 'she loves him also; I'm mortal sure of it. Poor child! Then these two are rivals.'

Putting away the paper, the trapper took his leave.

Each of the sisters warmly shook his hand.

Juliette's he raised to his lips.

He was touched.

Suspicion was changed to pity.

He felt he had read her secret.

Sinking on the ground, he quitted the tent in the same manner as he had entered it, fastened the peg in the earth as it had been before, plunged into the forest found Prairie Belle, mounted her, and cautiously rode away from the encampment.

In the meantime the sisters had retired to rest.

Pauline to fall asleep and dream of liberty and Eustace, whose brief note reposed on her bosom.

Juliette to lie awake in agony of jealousy and suffering, planning for the morrow, and vowing again and again that Pauline and Eustace should never be man and wife though she and her sister should remain for ever in the hands of Stuart Loring.

CHAPTER XLVII.

BRIXHAM REJOINS EUSTACE—THE FLIGHT—THE CREOLE BETRAYS THEM.

As Brixham wended his way back to where he had left our hero, his mind was full of thought.

Many pass on their way though life indifferent to the crowds of human beings flowing by them, until suddenly a face arrests their attention and becomes a study.

The Creole was a study to the trapper.

He admired her superb beauty but he feared her.

That is, to use a Scotch expression, he felt there was something about her 'uncanny.'

One question puzzled him.

Was she friend or foe?

Why could she be the latter?

There could, in his opinion be but one cause.

That he believed he had discovered.

She loved Eustace Belmore.

Pauline, he was certain, was unaware of it, perhaps our hero also, but it was none the less true.

'And of what is not woman capable when he loves in vain,' philosophically remarked the trapper, 'especially when she is of Creole blood.'

Such reflections occupied him until he reached the place where he had left Eustace, where too, he hoped to find him, for he had some fears to what that young gentleman's impatience might lead him to.

His doubts however were relieved by the sight of a dusky form leaping to its feet directly Prairie Belle's light tread sounded on the sward.

'Is that you Brixham?' demanded a voice.

'Yes, lad, it is, and no mistake. Here I am,' responded the other, dismounting and relieving the faithful mare of her saddle; 'safe and sound.'

'What news?' proceeded Eustace, I'm sure not bad from the ring of your voice.'

'Bad, not a bit. Good, lad, good. I have seen the ladies. They are safe and well, and ready for the flight I have arranged.'

For a second our hero was too moved to speak.

He caught the trapper's hand pressed it between his own.

At last he said—

'However shall I thank you Brixham? I never never, can. Tell me how she is She—she really is safe?'

'Safe and well; lad' she as bright as a dollar when she got that slip of paper. By the way that reminds me the young lady sent a word of answer if you had only a light to read it by.

'A note from her,' ejaculated Eustace, tremulously; give it me, there's a good fellow.'

'There it is, lad,' smiled Brixham, 'and while you return to it the kisses the young lady gave to yours, I'll turn my head away and strike you a light.'

'You are a generous, noble-hearted fellow,' exclaimed Eustace, fervently; and he did seize the opportunity of the darkness to do what the trapper said.

Kneeling, by the help of tinder box and a heap of dry touchwood the trapper soon made a tolerable blaze, after which he retired to give Eustace five minutes of solitude to devour Pauline's epistle.

Then, coming back, he said—

'Now, lad, I suspect you would like to hear all about the trip.'

'Yes, indeed. I am all anxiety, unless you can tell me on the road.'

'Not easily. As we shall not start from here for several hours. You see lad I'm not in love, and though I've done without a great deal of rest lately, I can't do without it altogether.'

'Forgive me, I'm awfully selfish, that's true, or rather forgetful. Let me make amends. Take the rest you must so require, I will wait for your recital until afterwards.

'No, I'm not such a brute as that comes to. If you will listen I'll just relate all that has happened before I go in for a snooze.

Naturally our hero acquiesced, and Brixham told everything save his belief respecting the Creole.

'Then we must leave here in time to reach the encampment a little before 12 to-morrow night,' said Eustace.

'No, lad; I've been thinking it over, and stick to my first idea that our flight must take place earlier.'

'You fancy it best?'

'I am certain of it. Be sure the ladies will not keep us waiting.'

(To be continued.)

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. WAS NOT HIS ARM.

The other evening a young lady with a white swiss skirt, black Jersey jacket and white cape, and her beau were promenading on East Washington Street, when it suddenly became apparent to them that there was something unusual about them. Men stopped and looked after them, girls giggled and boys hooted.

'Sylvia, what on earth is the matter with everybody this evening?' queried the beau.

'I don't know, and what is more, I don't care,' snorted Sylvia.

'What ails them?' asked one girl of another, just as they passed the unhappy couple.

'Don't know, unless she's sick and he has to hold her up,' answered her companion.

'Take off your arm!' cried a boy.

'Pull down the blinds!' shouted his chum.

'Gosh! Ain't they lovin'?' bellowed a third.

The young man was angry, and the young woman was mad, and the boys were following at their heels and saying all manner of impertinent things. Two of the little rascals slipped up behind her, and one of them slyly put out his hand and as the girl and her beau separated, the urchin bawled:

'Lord! He ain't got his arm around her! That's where her black wescot sticks out from under her white shawl!' and then the young folks knew that the black streak of Jersey around her waist had been mistaken for his sleeve, and the girl went home to change her clothes.—Bloomington Through Mail.

Murray & Lanman's Florida Water is probably the simplest and purest perfume ever made, being absolutely nothing more than the delicious fragrance of rare flowers, preserved and made permanent, and it is doubtless to this purity of composition that its immense popularity is in a great measure to be ascribed.

A DOSE OF HIS OWN MEDICINE.

Just as Tom Merry was hanging up his office coat last Wednesday, this note was handed to him:—

MY DEAR TOM: As I was economically cleaning your Prince Albert this morning with a cheap solution of castile soap and ammonia, in order to prevent the necessity which you were deploring, of immediately purchasing another, as the run on the New York banks had temporarily strained you, I discovered in the pocket an acceptance to your little "toot" at Commercant's this evening. What is sauce for the gander is sauce for the goose. Don't lie awake waiting for me if you get home first, as I have a latch key in my pocket. Your loving wife.

DAISY.

No one had ever seen Tom Merry's jaw drop so low except his wife. He always wore it low at home. But he is a devil of a fellow abroad, and an immense favorite. The "toot" did not come off. Five minutes before he received the letter Tom did not expect to strike home till somewhere about five in the morning. Five minutes later he was half way there.

'No one knows,' says Tom, 'the peace and policy of a virtuous married life till he's got into a box. No more rackets for me.'

Daisy was not there when Tom got home, and he went wildly in search of her. Like a suspicious man he took her at her word and made the tour of the restaurants. Like a husband in a French play he borrowed the waiters coats and napkins, and thus disguised, invaded the cabinets particuliers, but all in vain,

When he went home in the grey of dawn defeated and perplexed, he cast himself on the bed and howled with woe and remorse. But this tale has a good ending, Daisy came in smiling and fresh, somewhere about the breakfast hour, to open the windows and air the linen, Tom rushed at her, looking like a ghoul after a debauch.

'Woman, woman!' he cried, grasping her shoulders fiercely, and glaring at her with his wild red eyes, 'where did you pass the night?'

'In the spare room,' said Daisy simply, sweetly and truthfully.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money.—Druggists sel

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public, Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

THE ERA OF DEFALCATION.

If the question in the Shorter catechism, "What is the chief end of man?" is answered by what man's course of action in the present day day would indicate as his ideal of the end and object of his existence, the answer would undoubtedly be, "The chief end of man is to obtain wealth." Mammon holds almost undivided sway over the hearts of all ranks and conditions.

In other ages wealth was coveted. The rich man was honored and envied. Hoards of gold and silver, broad acres, marble halls, and all the concomitants of ease and luxury were eagerly sought after. Yet we cannot find in all history such a universal craving, hankering and mad race for wealth, as characterizes the present age.

The electric current daily and hourly chronicles the fact of some breach of trust, swindle, or wholesale peculation, or robbery by which coveted gold has been snatched from its rightful owner by the greedy hand of some trusted official whose cupidity could not be satiated by the reward of honest toil.

All classes and all occupations seem to be permeated with a tendency to glorify, as the summum bonum of worldly attainment, the possession of money, obtained it matters not how. The defaulter who flies with the hard-earned money of bank depositors is honored and caressed when he crosses a boundary line over which the arms of the law cannot reach him. The politician who barters principle for pelf and raises himself on a pedestal formed from the spoils of office is honored with the adulations of even those who profess to be guided by the teachings of honor and religion.

The people honor a false ideal and worship at a false shrine. Honesty and integrity are valued in the abstract, but successful grasping after gold, no matter how unlawfully or dishonestly, is almost deified in every department of life. The defects of humanity are traded upon by the majority of the people with varying success.

The millionaire is regarded as a demi-god. He may be coarse and ignorant; he may have acquired his hoards by every species of dishonesty; still the mere fact of possessing wealth raises him up to be honored and caressed even by the professed exponents of religion and virtue.

It is no wonder then, when even the church herself too often shuts her eyes to the manner in which wealth has been acquired and seems to regard riches as a passport not only to the society of the saints on earth but to be the very gate of heaven, that struggling clerks peculate, clever swindlers beguile their victims, bank cashiers abscond, and breaches of trust abound on all sides. The honest man is esteemed a fool, for his honesty may earn a fair competency but it never can in a life time accumulate millions.

If in every home honesty and strict integrity were held up as deserving of the highest honor, if breach of trust were regarded as debasing and degrading in the sight of God and man, and that to live within one's income was not only a duty but one of the highest virtues the succeeding generations would hardly be cursed with the wholesale robberies, corners, gamblings, and swindles that characterize the present day and render a man fearful to trust his nearest friend, lest his designs may be for his own pecuniary aggrandizement and inimical to ours.

It may be argued that we should leave to religion to correct this evil. Well, if religion embraces and inculcates the virtues which would destroy an inordinate thirst for wealth and the dishonest acquisition of it, we agree with this view. But the religion that condemns the poor, starving, shivering outcast for petty pilfering, and condones the offence of the successful stock gambler or bank defaulter is not the religion that will bring about a better state of things.

A beginning must be made at the bottom, and the foundations of a better moral superstructure in political and general public life must be laid in our homes and schools and in every avocation of life. And this must be done or civilized and professedly Christian peoples and nations will be drawn into a vortex of inevitable destruction, moral, social, and religious.

THEN AND NOW.

Two short years ago the Mail said:

> "Let us take three products of a single farm—and a small one, too—for one season, and see. On 400 bushels of oats under the N. P. he gets 25 cents per bushel more than he got before he had the N.P. That makes $100. On 400 bushels of barley he gets 60 cents more on each 100 lbs. That makes $140. (Quite an arithmetician). On 800 bushels of wheat he gets 30 cents more a bushel. That makes $240 more. On 800 bushels of corn he gets 20 cents more a bushel. That makes $160. In all, he gets $740 more under the N.P. than he got before the N.P. was adopted.

Alas for this fanciful sketch, the farmers find that the prices here mentioned have gone the way of all Tory promises. Here is another:—

> "The N. P. is an infant Hercules. What it has done for Canada since 1878 is but a small morsel compared with the enormous spurt which it will impart to the life of the Dominion in another decade. We are only at the portals of the glorious future, which nothing but an insane return to the abject and aimless Reform rule can obliterate or delay."

Alas for the "Infant Hercules". It is another decayed (pardon the pun) and debilitated short-lived sample of a foolish attempt to galvanize inanimate objects into life. Poor little Infant! The "Portals of the glorious and future" and the "Infant Hercules" have proved mere "apples of Sodom" while every contention of Reformers on the subject have stood the test of time, and every prediction has been verified. And now just hear the Mail in the present year of grace:—

> "It is only too true that here, where nature has done so much for human happiness, the direst poverty is to be found. There are weak and wan wives and children in the new world as well as the old, nor is the cry for food unfamiliar. But what measurable connection exists between that and the tariff?

Oh, yes! "Say what you like, do what you please, only spare, oh, spare our "Infant Hercules," he's cutting his teeth, perhaps. And again:—

> "But if it (Protection) does not create prosperity, neither does it impose misery upon the masses. It would be just as reasonable to contend that free trade is responsible for that death in life to which tens of thousands of Englishmen are doomed from their birth. The causes of poverty are infinite in number, but it is saying little for popular intelligence to argue that one of them is an ordinance passed by the people themselves, and repealable at their pleasure. Poverty exists where there are high tariffs, and curses lands where there are no tariffs."

Alas, where now are the diatribes on poverty producing free trade and encomiums on wealth-breeding protection that we used to hear. They have stumbled through the "portals of a glorious future," and are smothered away down in the limbo of forgetfulness beyond even the power of even the Mail to resurrect them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE MIKADO of Japan has created a peerage. If he had waited a little while he might have got a second hand one as good as new for a mere song. The British think so little of theirs that if they cannot get it taken off their hands they will pitch the whole concern out of doors some of these days.

* * *

A GREAT deal has been said and written about destitution in Ireland, but Rev. Father Riordon, who went to the Emerald Isle to prevent reckless emigration to America, says:—"In no part of Ireland did he find such utter wretchedness as exists among some of the same nationality in New York."

* * *

IT IS NOT improbable that the British Government may be perfectly willing to get rid of the disagreeable and difficult task of governing Jamaica. But if Jamaica is annexed without allowing Canadians to have a say in the matter the mistake will be found to be a serious one.

* * *

CONSERVATIVES—even our Canadian specimens—are loud in their denunciations of Gladstone's Distribution Bill, which they designate a "gigantic gerrymandering scheme." And yet they really don't know what that scheme is, for the plan stolen by the London Standard is only one of the several schemes outlined. But their recollection of Sir John's tactics and how he "packed the jury," renders them remarkably suspicious.

AN UNFORTUNATE TOWN.

Winnipeg Sun.

Rat Portage is an unfortunate town. It has been worse afflicted than Job of old. The boundary dispute for a time made it the scene of intercine strife, and paralyzed business. The mining boom raised the expectations of the inhabitants and then collapsed. The Rainy Lake Lumber Company's mills, the main-stay of the town, were burned. So also was the round house of the Canadian Pacific. One-half the business portion of the place was reduced to blackened ruins, and the other half not long after met with a similar fate. About this time the Portagers began to realize the necessity of fire protection, and a purchase was recently made for a fire engine, followed by the organization of a suitable company. Now, apparently, the fire fiend might come when it chose, and be dared to do its worst. Night before last it came. The brigade responded with alacrity to the call, but when an attempt was made to bring the engine into use it was found that the pumps were frozen, and for all practical purposes the Winnipeg Field Battery might as well have been called out. It is to be hoped that the lesson will not be lost, and that the Progress of next week will contain a modernized version of the parable of the foolish virgins.

Mrs. Barnhart, cor. Pratt and Broadway, has been a sufferer for twelve years through rheumatism, and has tried every remedy she could hear of, but received no benefit until she tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; she says she cannot express the satisfaction she feels at having her pain entirely removed and her rheumatism cured. LOVE'S TENDER LINES.

Lord Norbury, when once charging a jury in a breach of promise case, noticed that the letters of the faithless defendant had been so long in the plaintiff's pocket or so often shown to her sympathising friends that they were greatly frayed at the folds and almost in tatters. "Gentlemen," said Lord Norbury, carefully holding up one of the epistles to the gaze of the jury. "It is easy to see that these are love letters, because they are so exceedingly tender.

TERRIBLE FATE OF TWO CHILDREN

THEIR FATHER FEARFULLY BURNED IN ATTEMPTING TO RESCUE THEM.

A Portland Me. despatch says: A thrilling scene was witnessed Friday evening at a small tenement in the rear of Quebec street where William T. Pancoast resided with his family. Mr. Pancoast had put his two youngest children to bed, and after kissing them good night placed a lamp near the head of the bed turned and the lamp down low. He then started for his store, and when about half way there heard the cry of "fire," and turning back found his house in flames. His wife with two of her elder children had just gotten out safely, and Mrs. Pancoast screamed to her husband, "Save the children, Will; for God's sake save them." Mr. Pancoast rushed the staircase and into the room, but was at once overpowered with smoke and fell to the floor, which was all a blaze. He at first gave himself up for lost, but making a superhuman effort, dragged himself on his hands and knees over the burning floor to the hallway, and thence made his way to the street. As he staggered out the spectacle was a shocking one. His clothing was blazing, his hair and whiskers had been burned off, and the flesh on his arms and hands were roasted and dripping with blood. By this time the firemen had arrived, and in response to the agonizing appeals of Mrs. Pancoast, two of them made their way to the chamber where the children were and brought out their burned corpses. Mr. Pancoast though terribly burned, may possibly recover.

A TERRIBLE TYPHOON.

THE TOWN OF YOKOHAMA—MANY VESSELS LOST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—A steamer from China and Japan brings further details of the great typhoon of September 15th. The storm came up so rapidly and with such tremendous fury that no precautions could be taken. The entire lower part of Yokohama was completely wrecked, Not a house was left standing. The inhabitants fled for their lives to escape drowning from the rushing waters driven on to the land by the fury of the wind. In the higher portions of the city several of the largest and most substantial buildings were swept away, as if built of pasteboard. In that section 128 houses were destroyed and 399 damaged. The loss of life on shore was less than at sea. Out of 80 sailing vessels 53 were lost, with 223 persons. Twelve vessels with 120 persons were still missing. Of five life boats that went to the rescue of the drowning crews four were swamped and ten persons drowned. The typhoon was the severest since 1870.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

William J. Scanlan, as Carroll Moore, will hold the boards at the Opera House next Monday evening. An exchange says:—William S. Scanlan is an acquisition to the rank of those comedians who, in adition to their dramatic abilities, find their way into the hearts of the public, he acts nturally, sings pleasantly, and immediately becomes a favorite with the audience. All his songs were excellently received, and Peek a Boo fairly took the house by storm. It is worthy of the popularity it has attained.

BAKER AND FARRON.

"The Emigrants," is a rolicking piece of dramatic writing, which introduces very clearly the well known and popular dialect actors Baker and Farron in a very acceptable manner. It will be played at the Opera House on Tuesday night. The songs and dances of the two stars are deserving of the crowded houses which greets them in every city The play itself has a good plot.

THE FOLLY OF ATHEISM.

Rev. Dr. Sexton's lecture last night in the Bridge Street Church, the caption of which was 'The Folly of Atheism.' attracted a crowded house, who received a rare treat. In the absence of Dr. Jeffers, Rev. J. B. Clarkson occupied the chair. The lecturer captured his audience and held them spell bound. His style is the unrivalled excellence of animated conversation, clothed in pure Saxon and made bright and brilliant by the most felicitous illustrations. But this is not all. The entire theme, which calls for the clearest reasoning, was welded together by logic's strongest links, which displayed the rare analyzing power of the distinguished lecturer, when the heaviest themes can be reduced by this incomparable method, and with such perspicuous ease made living and luminous, the highest style of address has been reached. No scientific lecture ever drew so large an attendance in Belleville, and no audience could be more thrilled. The Dr. lectures again this evening, subject, 'Prayer, its Relation to Science, Natural Law and Modern Thought,' To-morrow evening the subject will be 'History's Testimony to Christ.'

Mr. W. B. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville writes: "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have ever used in my stable. I have used it for bruises, scratches and wind puffs and cuts, and in every case it gave the best satisfaction. We use it as a household remedy for scalds, burns, &c., and it is a perfect panacea. It will remove warts by paring them down occasionaly."

DROWNING ACCIDENT.

An eight year old son of Wm. McCaskey was drowned in the ferry slip this morning. His body was in the water about two hours before it was found by Thomas Ryan, who with Mr. P. J. Shannon and a pike pole, pulled the body onto the wharf, where it was identified. Constable Hayes soon arrived and notified Coroner Burdett, but he thought an inquest was unnecessary. It appears the unfortunate lad accompanied his father to the ferry intending to cross the bay for a load of pine blocks, but changing his mind, fell between the crib-wood of the pier unnoticed, and was drowned. This was where the body was found shortly before noon.

The city should cover the pier on the north side of the slip, as it has always been considered a dangerous place for children, and at night unsafe for any person.

AN ANSWER WANTED

Can anyone bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permantly cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by B. Templeton.

To-Day's Probabilities.

Winds mostly southerly ; fair to cloudy weather to-day, with local showers by night, higher temperature.

Mrs. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes. "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caused a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Mr. Popplewell, Chemist, of our city to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

A council of doctors declared Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of 372 Exchange St, Buffalo, incurable. Her liver was badly disordered; she vomited green matter; could retain no food, skin yellow and full of humors. She was rapidly sinking, but Burdock Blood Bitters cured her.

Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for all humors and [illegible] disease

FOXBORO' NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Foxboro is to have a new baker.

Mr. Barnum has disposed of his property to Mrs. J. W. Sills,

Dr. Sexton's lectures were attended by a number of the villagers.

A. B. Faulkner is collecting some fine stock for transportation to the N.W.

There are three families soon to settle in our midst. A vacant house would be a curiosity in Foxboro.

The new sidewalk extending to Mr. Benedict's is quite an accommodation to the southern pedestrians.

Thanksgiving day will be observed here by a service in the Methodist Church in the evening of that day.

Messrs. Palliser and Roots are off on a hunting expedition north of Coe Hill. We'll call around for the venison.

Mr. Jno. McEwan, while milking, was unfortunately kicked by a cow. He lies at present in a very critical condition.

The regular quarterly meeting of this circuit will be held in Foxboro on Sunday, Nov. 9th. A large attendance is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Leitch are cosily settled in their new home. We believe their stay with us will be pleasant to themselves and profitable to the community.

S. Westover purchased a lot from Dr. Faulkner. He will erect a brick dwelling next spring. This will add greatly to the appearance of the village.

The Scott Act is the only topic of conversation. A branch of the Dominion Alliance has been formed here with a view of engaging in a campaign throughout the county. Delegates attended the Stirling and Madoc convention. The committee is strong and the members pledge themselves to do all in their power to secure the adoption of the Act by a large majority.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Oct. 28.—Michael Byrnes, aged 18, last evening demanded a cent from Chauncey St. Martin, aged 13. The latter refused to give in when Byrnes knocked him down. St. Martin ran for home. As Byrnes was about to overtake the boy he turned and stabbed him to the heart. He was arrested.

Yesterday Clarence Walsh, of Niagara, by the accidental discharge of a gun was frightfully wounded in the thigh.

On the Quebec Central Railroad a few days ago, Louis Jacques had his leg badly cut by a ballast train, and his son lost his arm at the same time.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Oct. 28.—Wm. T. Grier a Professor in Lewisburg University, suicided last night, cutting his throat with a razor while delirious. He leaves a wife and two children.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 28.—Wm. M. Rogers, a wealthy resident of Newport, R.I., cut his throat in a stable here yesterday. He was probably insane.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Oct. 28.—Frank Peckert, superintendent of the coke works was fatally stabbed last night by a young man named McCormack, in a quarrel over a dog.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 28.—H. B. Smith, a prominent young jeweller, and Alice George, of Mobile; were drowned yesterday by the capsizing of a sail boat.

TORONTO NEWS.

The national character of the Sir John Macdonald demonstration. so much blown about by the Mail is shown in the fact that that all the members of the several committees are local men.

At Osgoode hall yesterday morning a motion was made to restrain the Minister of Agriculture from hearing the application of the Toronto Telephone Co. to cancel the Bell Company's patent on the ground that he had no jurisdiction, the clause in the act giving him jurisdiction being ultra vires. The motion was enlarged until the 7th November.

An important decission was given at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning in Guy vs. Grand Trunk Railway Company, to the effect that the company cannot be sued in Division Courts.

FIGURES WON'T LIE.

The figures showing the enormous yearly sales of Kidney-Wort, demonstrate its value as a medicine beyond dispute. It is a purely vegetable compound of certain roots, leaves and berries known to have special value in Kidney troubles. Combined with these are remedies acting directly on the liver and bowels. It is because of this combined action that Kidney-Wort has proved such an unequalled remedy in all diseases of these organs.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At midnight the inmates of a boarding house were aroused from their slumbers by the agonizing cries of a boarder. He had eaten cucumbers for supper and the result was Colic. As usual no remedy was at hand; the sufferer was speechless with agony for sometime. At last he gasped out "look in my valise!" A friend did as he desired, and beheld a bottle of STAR RELIEF, the internal and external Pain Slayer. A teaspoonful in water was at once given to the sufferer. The spasms ceased and sleep ensued. Death was averted and recovery complete. Of all dealers 25 cents.

AGAIN.

BY S. E. LOWELL.

So soon, so soon the Summer leaves are turning
To red and crimson. gold and russet brown,
So soon again the maple fires are burning,
Lighting the hill tops like a burnished crown.
Far off within the shadowy mist
Gleam purple, gold and amethyst.

So soon, so soon, the summer leaves are dying,
The fair, green leaves, that lived their little day
In joyous freedom, now around us lying,
Fading like many an earthly joy away ;
And fluttering through the charmed air
Frail, golden splendors everywhere.

All gorgeous hues, all dyes of Tyrian splendor
Blossom and burn beneath the Master's hand,
They thrill us, fill us with a joy so tender
We reverent walk, as in some sacred land ;
Or stand with clasped hands to gaze
Upon the glory of these sad, swee days.

Oh ! far off hills, methinks your mistly glo
Leads upwards to th' Eternal hills of gold,
Where earth's decay, nor sins unhallowed story
Can vex no mar the souls that ne'er grow old.
Oh ! Summer Land, we long for thee
Bend down that we thy gates may see.

THE CHINESE.

Toronto Telegram

The report of the Chinese commission is not likely to bring much comfort to the working classes of the country. It will be presented at the forthcoming session of parliament, and from what can be learned in regard to it we are safe in saying that it will not recommend the exclusion of the Chinese. nor was it expected that it would. Sir John Macdonald has pursued a temporizing policy in regard to every subject with which his Government has dealt. His plan is invariably one of procrastination and put off, and it may be taken for granted that he will not take any definite step in regard to the exclusion of the Chinese as long as he can palter with the subject. But this will not prove satisfactory to the working classes. The construction of the Canadian Pacific railway gives emploment to several thousand Chinese. What is to become of them after the railway has been completed? The most natural thing will be for them to swarm down on the railway to the other provinces, where they will underbid white labor in the labor markets of the country. The outlook for white labor is therefore not encouraging. The working classes should urge their representatives in parliament to look after their interests when the report comes up.

KING'S EVIL.

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying nfirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. ---

OLLOWAY'S PILLS: THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills horoughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, heathily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Hollaway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

You don't think I shall oppose an earlier start, said Eustace 'you had better get to sleep old fellow.

The trapper made no further delay.

In a few minutes he was asleep, and snoring loudly while Eustace—

'Well he was treating Pauline's letter in about the same manner as she had treated his.

When he did slumber, he dreamed of her as she was dreaming of him.

Who can explain the mystery of sleep, that sweet reflection of grim death?

In these dreams did not those two souls regarding space as naught meet and converse in the etherial essence of a pure love.

As morning dawns bright and brilliant, we must return to the sisters.

They rose early, for to sleep longer was impossible when their minds were occupied.

Of the two, the Creole was by far the most anxious, though she concealed it under her usual calmness of demeanor.

She watched and even helped Pauline to make some necessary preparations for their flight, though she be ieved and n'ended the labour lost.

'Why she asked herself mentally a hundred times does the American not return.

Secretly she had calculated the distance he had stated Rotchampton to be, and the time which must elapse before he could return.

It nothing happened he might be there long before dark.

Instantly on his arrival he had promised to communicate with her

She did not doubt that immediately he arrived, did he really have the power he professed he would make her his sister.

Thinking thus, Juliette watched the the bright happy girl, whom joy so rapidly cured, and upon whose lips a smile once rested, and feared—yes feared noting the change, that her strength was returning and thus diminishing Stuart Loring's power.

The hours slipped by slowly to both.

With all her firmness of character, the Creole was excited to the very highest degree.

Every sound in the camp caused her to start and listen but Stuart Loring did not arrive.

'Yet he may be here in time,' she pondered, Why do I agitate myself thus? Oh, she cried mentally pressing her hands together, that fate had not destined me to love Eustace Belmore—that I could have loved someone else. How different might my life have been—how different she repeated bitterly. ,What, and I the child of of a slave? No one could have loved me with love I could have accepted—only Eustace; and he is so generous and noble enough for any self-sacrifice. Oh Heaven, how shall I meet him?'

She covered her face with her hands.

Her cheeks were crimson.

They must meet now, there was no avoiding it.

But the Creole felt it was the cruelest ordeal she had yet to go through.

Night came.

Seven; eight, passed.

Still no Stuart Loring.

The camp sank into silence.

What could keep him?

Would be be too late?

'Thank Heaven,' she pondered, 'I insisted in deferring our flight until twelve. He must be here before then.'

Even as she spoke, a slight noise attracted both the sisters' attention, who by Pauline's earnest pursuation were prepared in their travelling dresses for their flight.

'What is it? Can it be they?' whispered Pualine.

'It is Stuart Loring at last;' thought the the Creole bending forward.

Yes, there was someone outside, and not the side where the trapper would come.

What was it?

It sounded like a struggle.

Juliette half rose, intending to ascertain but Paaline held her back.

'Oh, pray don't show yourself,' she whispered, 'it may ruin all. What can it be?

Could the side of the tent, after the dramatic rule been drawn away, this is what the sisters would have beheld.

A dark form emerge from the forest, and advance like a snake, Indian, fashion, toward the sentinel.

Stoppidg within a few feet of him, it waited.

Then as the sentinel turned his back the dark form noiselessly arose to his feet, and by one leap caught the other in a grip of iron.

At the same moment the cold barrel of a revolver was pressed to his temple, and a fierce voice whispered in his ear——

'If you utter a sound or resist, you are a dead man. Be still, and not a hair of your head shall be harmed. No harm is intended you. Lie down.

Thus taken at a disadvantage, the man was helpless.

He laid down, and Brixham; for it was he in an inconceivably short time, had both gagged and secured him.

That was the sound the excited sisters had heard.

While they yet listended, the canvas door was raised and to Pauline's delight, and Juliette's consternation, and the amaze of both the trapper stood before them.

'How have you managed to enter?' ejaculated Pauline. The sentinel—

'Is,' interrupted the trapper with a smile 'past the power of intruding upon us.'

'Oh, cried the girl turning pale, 'surely you have not killed him.'

'Killed him! Not at all; he is only gagged and secured. He will remain very quiet till the day dawns and his friends will release him, for by then we shall be far enough off.'

'How is it that you are earlier than we arranged?' inquired the Creole.

'Because, Miss Beauchamp,' he answered, looking at her attentively as he spoke, though he smiled, 'there is no arguing with lovers. They never are or will be amenable to reason. Mr. Belmore would have come alone, if I had refused to accompany him.

He marked her form tremble as he spoke.

Turning away she abruptly sat on the side of the couch.

'Are we really then, to go at once, asked Pauline exciteduly.

'At once if you are ready.'

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Cos. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

CHARMED BY A BOA.

'Have I had an experience with snakes?' Well, now, do I look like a man who has spent 30 years knocking around the earth looking up varmints, and 'never saw snakes? 'Ive had them all over me—rattle, cobras, milk snakes, all slippery things, from the spitting adder in the green brier district of old Tennesee to the mottled anacondas of Brazil.

'But tropical snakes are not what I should like to handle myself,' said the listener.

'Oh, I got used to cobras and kept my weather eye open for all jungle reptiles. A female cobra will put out and follow the bloody trail of her dead mate and the chap who slew him all day and for many days as tireless as a peddler's dog, and there's going to have fun when she catches up, mind me. Talk about magnetizing—your big, lusty, timberbacked boa constrictor is the chap for that when he is on the rampage for food. I remember a little bout I had in Africa once with a boa; I shan't forget that in a hurry, and I got my first dash of grey hairs that day. I wonder I didn,t get as grey as a badger, my teeth were as loose as a string of beads for two weeks. Folks thought I had the old home in Illinois ague, I shook so whenever anyone sung out 'boa coming.'

'I was with a party of Englishmen hunting tigers, jaguars and leopards, and after an unsuccessful tramp through jungle and morass we stopped for a cold snack from the hampers. I grew infernally sleepy and lazy afterwards, and the party left me to smoke. I had a mind to follow and then again a mind to take a rest, as the spreading trees made a grateful shade, and I was safe there fom prowling beasts the natives said. Soon I began to have the pleasantest dreams a man ever had and saw the most glorious visions. Talk about hasheesh and opium smoking; they ain't a patching to my feelings. My head dropped lower, and I felt as if in the seventh heaven. I wasn't exactly asleep, nor exactly awake. Suddenly I came to myself just as sound as a nut, and knew that I had been magnetized by a boa. I swept my hand across my eyes, and there he was hanging from a limb near me, his bright, glitering, serious eyes wide open charming me while making ready to drop on me. Although I saw death yawning for me, I was in a nightmare, and couldn't move to save my life. Then I felt with a thrill of unutterable horror that he had begun to wrap himself around me in that last embrace. My limbs grew cold, and one little squeeze made me scream out in agony. My God! Would no one come? already that strong musky odor made me faint and sick. Another coil was half made when I felt a rude shock, the boa tightened his grip for an instant, and then loosened it as his head was violently jerked by the lasso thrown by Capt. Luxbridge, an old tiger slayer. Bang! bang! went four guns, and the boa lay dead—a monster fourteen feet long and as thick as a young tamarind tree. I wanted to come home and I did.

But I went back to India after snakes the next year. There,s a sort of charm in it you see.

REMARKABLE LUMINOUS SHRUB.

There is a most remarkable tree or shrub in a small gulch near some springs about twelve miles north of Tuscorora. It is about six or seven feet in height, with a trunk which, at its base is three times the size of a man's wrist. It has innumerable branches and twigs, and resembles somewhat the barberry tree or bush indigenous to certain localities in the Eastern States. But its only remarkable characteristic is its foliage, which at certain seasons of the year are so luminous that it can be distinguished in the darkest night at a distance of more than a mile, while in its immediate vicinity it emits sufficient light to enable a person to read the finest print. Its foliage is extremely rank, and its leaves resemble somewhat in shape size and color those of the aromatic bay tree of California. The luminous property is probably parasitic and consists of a sort of gummy substance, which upon being transferred to a person's hand, imparts to it the same apparenently phosphorescent light, while that on the leaf entirely disappears. The only reasonable explanation for this phenomenon that we can imagine is that the leaves possess some qualities which either generates or attracts phosphoric matter. The indians regard it with superstition, and will not approach it even in the day time if they can possibly avoid it. They have a name for it which literally interpreted signifies "witch tree." An old Shoshone informed the writer that there were but two others in the entire country, but the closest questioning failed to elicit the slightest information in regard to the localities he would only shake his head gravely and ejaculate, "bad medicine,."—Tuscarora (Nev.) Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain or successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sel

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public, and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so; but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHAT MR. PAGE SAYS.

A week ago to-day we were favored by our esteemed contemporary with nearly two columns of matter, which ostensibly referred to some statements of ours criticising in a very mild way the selection of the Presque 'Isle route for Murray Canal.

If any person took the trouble to wade through the long rigmarole it would readily be seen that by multiplying words our contemporary seeks to obscure the real point at issue. Our main objections were and are: 1st, unnecessary expense involved in constructing the canal by the route selected. 2nd, much greater length and tortuousness and, we may add, the difficulty of entering it in a storm.

Our beloved "friend and brother" looks upon Mr. Page as an oracle, and talks about what he "says" and "thinks" as being proof positive and even waxes agonizingly funny and sarcastic over our remarks on the subject. We charitably hope he didn't strain himself, for evidently humor is not his forte—unless it be ill-humor.

Here are a few extracts from Mr. Page's report to the Senate, dated March 6, 1883:—

"In 1846 Mr. Lyons made a survey for the Murray Canal from the mouth of Dead Creek on the Bay of Quinte to Weese's creek at Presque 'Isle Harbor' a distance of nearly five miles."

The northern boundary of this county (P.E.) is formed by the Bay of Quinte, a long crooked arm of the lake, which stretches for about fifty miles in a general westerly direction, from what is termed the "Upper Gap," (twenty-three miles from the city of Kingston), to its head about two and a half miles above the village of Trenton, near which point its waters are only one and three-quarters miles distant (via the "Carrying Place" road), from those of Weller's Bay on Lake Ontario.

This opening into Weller's Bay is now fully three-quarters of a mile in width, but for the greater part of the distance it is shoal. About its centre there was, however, found to exist (in October last), a channel way of fully 300 feet in width, and a depth of fully 14 feet.

In 1857, this opening is represented to have been 100 rods wide, with a channel 150 feet wide and 14 feet in depth, and, in 1861, the channel appears to have been 200 feet in width and a depth of fully 14 feet.

It will thus be seen that from the time when the opening was first made, the channel has continued to increase in width.

East and north from the lighthouse at Presqu' Isle Point is an extensive shoal called the "Middle Ground," which bars the direct entrance to the harbor for vessels of a large class, and causes the channel at this place to be all but on the north side.

About three-quarters of a mile inside the main light, at what may be termed the neck of the harbor, is Salt Point light, which is erected on a bar of shingle thrown up by the action of lake, and extending outwards about a quarter of a mile from the shore of Presqu' Isle ridge.

This light when built was placed near the end of the spit, but the shingle has now formed outwards about 800 feet beyond it, and to that extent contracted the channel, which is at this place not much over 200 feet in width, the north side be occupied by "Shoal Point Shoal."

About 1,000 feet west south-west from Salt Point there is another small light built on the north side of the ridge. These two lights form a range which serves to guide vessels entering the harbor, clear of the outer end of the "Middle Ground."

Were the channel through Presqu' Isle harbor made, the unavoidable difficulties to be encountered in navigating it would still present an unsuperable objection to the adoption of route No. 1.

In this view of the case, it appears that the selection lies between routes Nos. 2 and 3, or some modification of them.

As already stated, the expense of forming an entrance at the Bay of Quinte end, would be about the same on both these routes, and there is reason to believe that the one would be equally as accessible as the other.

Although the dredging of the entrance of route No. 3, would be through mud, the channel would unavoidably be crooked, and at its immediate entrance would be nearly parallel with the shoal at Bald Head; thus rendering access to it in some measure uncertain, whilst it is questionable whether the deeper channel would remain open unless protected by pierwork. If this became necessary it would doubtless interfere with the only channel into Consecon Bay.

As a whole, route No. 2 appears to be preferable to No. 3 in regard to ease of access, general direction and economy of construction.

The estimated cost (of each route) is respectively as follows:—

Route No. 1	$1,290,000
" No. 2	860,000
" No. 3	940,000

These sums represent the total value of the various classes of work, the quantities having been extended at fair and reasonable rates—due allowance being of course made for each contingencies as are likely to arise during the execution of works of this nature and extent.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE PETERBOROUGH Review compares Hon. Mr. Mowat to a wolf, and Sir David Macpherson to a lamb. Rather an aged lamb, we reckon. It would hardly do for the Review to address the doughty knight as "Your Muttonship." If the old gentleman wouldn't "kick" at such an appellation, it would be because he is a better "butter" than kicker. The Review should choose some more felicitous comparison.

REPORTS continue to come in from private and other sources that Riel is likely to create trouble among the half-breeds at Prince Albert. Of course, if these half-breeds have grievances they should be readjusted, but Riel's methods are likely to be, as in the past, those of a bloody-minded demagogue, and will only lead to disaster. Its a great pity that "Wish-to-God-I-could-catch-him," did not succeed, or that the sentence of banishment was not for life. He is only a mischief maker, and one of the worst kind.

BURNED TO A CRISP.

A Drunken man Cremated While Alive in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg Sun.

James Cunningham, a man of 54 years of age, died at the Winnipeg general hospital after a brief period of most horrible suffering. The singular manner in which he met his death is as follows: The deceased has been for some time employed on the eastern division of the Canadian Pacific railway as a watchman. He received his pay and started off to Rat Portage, where it appears he got on a spree. He returned to Hawk Lake intoxicated. He got off the cars at his destination, and was observed to enter the waiting room and lie down behind the stove. About an hour afterwards one of his acquaintances came to the operator, who occupies a room adjoining the waiting room, and asked him if he had seen Cunningham. The operator told him he was asleep in the waiting room. On opening the door both men were horrified to find the room full of the frightful odor of burning flesh. Seizing a lamp they rushed to where Cunningham was lying, when a terrible spectacle revealed itself to their horrified gaze. The unfortunate man was burned to a crisp. His clothes were a mass of smouldering rags, and one side of his body from the hips to the top of his head, were blackened and burned away. One eye was completely destroyed and there were other fearful injuries too sickening to mention. He appeared to be in a stupor, and beyond his stentorous breathing, made no noise. The doctor pronounced his case almost hopeless, and advised his removal to the Winnipeg hospital. As soon as he was moved he waked to consciousness and pain. His cries were terrible, and he constantly cried out: "Shoot me for God's sake." On raising him from the floor a pipe was found lying in the ashes of his clothing, and as he was smoking when he first entered the waiting room, it is supposed he must have put it in his pocket whilst still lighted, and it set fire to his clothes. Deceased came from the vicinity of London Ont., and is supposed to be married. His mother who is 92 years of age, resides with his brother at Pearce City, Mo.

ABOUT PRAYER.

Its Relation to Science, Natural Laws and Modern Thought.

BY REV. DR. SEXTON.

Dr. Sexton's lecture on the above subject in the Bridge Street Church last night was well attended and listened to with interest, and his clear and incisive mode of dealing with the question and the able manner in which he handled the subject made it an unusually interesting one.

Rev. Dr. Jacques, Principal of Albert College, occupied the chair, and after the opening service of prayer and praise he introduced the lecturer. We will endeavor to give a concise synopsis of his remarks, but necessarily imperfect.

In opening, he remarked that this subject was a fitting sequel to the last subject, for if there is a God who controls the universe, it is right for us to know our relationship with him. Many who believe in the existence of a supreme power will not acknowledge that it is right or proper to pray to him, because even supposing he hears prayers he violates his laws if he answers them. Some tell us there is a conflict between religion and science that the

or that if religion survives it differs from that of our forefathers. We must be more alert to defend our positions from such false friends who would lop off one by one the branches of our faith rather than against open enemies who would root the whole up. Prayer is a mode of communion between God and man. There are

TWO THEORIES

by secularists about prayer. One is that we must confine ourselves to asking for spiritual benefits. The other theory is that we do not actually receive answers to prayer but that the benefit is from a reflex action on him who offers the petition—a sort of spiritual intoxication. Some scientists object to prayers for temporal blessings because the granting of such requests would over-ride the laws of nature, and amount to a miracle. If we must only pray for spiritual blessings it is necessary for us to know the boundaries or the line of demarcation between the material and the spiritual, an impossible thing as we are constituted. Man is a spiritual as well as a material being, and as shown in the previous lecture, material laws are subject to mental or spiritual influences. For instance, sudden joy or grief often causes death, just as truly as a dose of prussic acid. If a man is ravenously hungry and hears of a calamity to a member of his family his hunger

NO LONGER EXISTS.

It has been destroyed by a mental cause. Prof. Tyndall tries to show that such causes are material by supposing the case of a merchant receiving a telegram of the failure of a friend. He orders his carriage and goes off to find if his position is injured and finding that it is not comes back and resumes his seat. Tyndall argues all these causes are material and show no spiritual influence. But it is not the paper on which the message is written that is the cause of action, but the intelligence, dictated by an intelligence at the other end of the line. The theory of secularists is that we cannot avoid certain acts, that we are a piece of the machinery of the universe, or

COGS IN THAT MACHINERY.

A friend said he was not responsible for his acts, he was just like a clock. When the clock run down he wound it up. When he ran down he wound himself up by taking a meal or rest. He did not take into account the fact that the clock did not wind itself up, as he had the power to do with himself. The material universe, as shown in last lecture is an effect; causes are spiritual. If I pray for changes in spiritual matters that will involve changes in temporal or material things. Secularists tell us to pray for spiritual blessings while they tell us there are

NO SUCH THINGS.

Unless we are shown that we can receive no benefit we should pray for temporal as well as spiritual objects. The Bible teaches us this. Witness the cases of Hannah, Isaiah, Elijah, David, Hezekiah, Daniel, and our Lord Himself. The Lord's prayer contains six spiritual petitions and one temporal one in the midst. Sceptics have asserted that the

LORD'S PRAYER IS NOT ORIGINAL,

but copied from the Talmud. They are ignorant of the fact that the part of the Talmud containing it was written about A.D. 300. Where the copying came in is obvious. Reference was made to a proposal made by Prof. Tyndall some years ago to make a test of the efficiency of prayer by taking two wards of an hospital, praying for one and not for the other, and if these prayed for recovered first then prayer would be proven to be effectual, otherwise it would it. Leaving aside the impiety and audacity of such a proceeding it was shown that secularists would never have accepted the results of such a test. They would talk of the effect of imagination and cite such cases as that of a woman whose dress was bitten by a dog and who simply through the effects of imagination. In mental and physical science and logic, in order to find the true cause we must eliminate all others. In this case it could not be done. For instance those in either ward must have the same disease, in the same stage, be of the same sex and age, have the same father and mother, the same husband or wife and be surrounded by the same circumstances, as any small difference would militate against the success of the experiment. If some one had prayed for the one ward, what guarantee that none would pray for the other, and surely they would pray for themselves. Prayer may be tested but not by the clumsy apparatus of scientific men. If the benefit of our prayers are simply reactionary we should not pray to God but to ourselves and thus fall into the worship of self. Prayer is not words only, it is the aspiration of the soul after God.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA,

MOST DEGRADING SYSTEM OF IDOLATRY,

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire
  Unuttered, or expressed,
The motion of a hidden fire
  That trembles in the breast.

Prayer is the burden of a sigh,
  The falling of a tear,
The upward glancing of an eye
  When none but God is near.

Prayer is the simplest form of speech,
  That infant lips can try;
Prayer, the sublimest strains that reach
  The majesty on high.

Prayer is the Christian's vital breath,
  The Christian's native air,
His watchword at the gate of death,
  He enters heaven by prayer.

An objection against prayer is that it implies an overthrow of fixed laws. But laws involve government by will, and then, what we call the fixed laws of nature are only theories or hypotheses after all. The law of gravitation cannot be explained. The apple

'FALLS BECAUSE IT FALLS.'

What we assume to be laws may by future discoveries be proved to be fallacies. A balloon rising in the air would appear to be contrary to the laws of gravitation, but a knowledge of all the forces shows that its rising is only a proof of gravitation. If a handkerchief is released it will fall to the ground because of gravity, but man's will can prevent its falling by the exercise of force and thus prove stronger than this law of nature, and still this is no miracle. We are told that it is contrary for a law of nature for water to run up hill, and yet men by a knowledge of nature's laws force water to run up hill. Nature's laws say a man at the bottom of the ocean will drown; man's will makes a diving apparatus and he can remain at the bottom of the ocean for hours in safety. If men say that God cannot answer prayer without and upsetting nature's laws they do not reflect that it is possible for even man to direct these laws to new issues and no miracle is wrought. When Paul was shipwrecked he was given assurance that in answer to prayer he would be given the lives of all on board, and these were not saved by an overturning of nature's laws, but some on boards and some on broken pieces of the ship, &c. All causes have their origin in the mind. If we need help and relief comes, we may enquire how it happened and we can always trace it back through the connecting links to a strong impulse on the mind from a spiritual source. God does answer prayer without working miracles. Prayer itself is a law of nature. The

WORKING MIRACLES

YOUNG OF ALL ANIMALS PRAY

to their parents for food and get it. The child prays to the parents instinctively and is heard. The instinct of prayer to a spiritual power is implanted in every human being and if it is not answered it is an anomaly in nature. Where we see wings there is air. Where we find fins is water. And where wants exist there are means of supplying those wants. In its relation to God David says: When I consider the heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and stars which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou are mindful of him, or the son of man that thou visitest him? The answer is, 'Thou has made him a little lower than the angels (God). Man's true worth

COMES IN HERE.

It is objected that if God answers prayer He either has not done His best or else He will not do it. But we do not know, nor can we understand, God's methods of dealing with us, except what we have from revelation, and that shows us God is our father, and as children are told they will get certain things if they ask and do not get them because of not asking, so it is with us in our relation to God. Prayer in its relationship to man is accused of interfering with work by taking up time, but those who do not pray certainly do no more good to the world, are neither better, wiser, more cultured, or well informed than those who do. Their whole time at work is not better than the half time of those who pray, and it argues either the benefit of prayer or a deficiency of capacity in the non-prayers. The men who pray are those who do the work to benefit the world. The best test is

THE TEST OF EXPERIENCE.

and 999 out of every 1000 men who pray will testify to its benefits. Those who do not pray know nothing about it. Let them go away and pray and then come and tell us about it. The

MORAL INFLUENCE OF PRAYING

is great. If there were more of it there would be less bickering, discord and quarrelling. We do not pray enough. If prayer is allowed to lose power religion will follow. Let us keep it up.

O, thou by whom we come to God
  The life, the truth, the way,
Teach us the way thyself hast trod,
  O, teach us how to pray!

THE CHALLEN INQUEST.

Important Testimony by Frank Wills and Others.

The Challen Inquest was continued last night before coroner Farley. The following evidence was important:

J. Blakley thought the train was running from twelve to fifteen miles an hour when it passed the post office on the night of the accident.

Frank Wills saw the rig in which deceased was driving going down Hotel street very fast. He heard the engine strike the wagon and the conductor whistle for brake, afterwards the engineer reverse the engine and blew the whistle. He thought the train was then running eight or ten miles an hour. He thought the horse was going down the hill at a reckless rate. The bell was ringing on the engine, and he thought those in the rig ought to have heard it, though he knew from personal knowledge that it was difficult to hear a sound in a conveyance like Ritchie's delivery wagon.

Frank Beamish said he was on the train on the night of the accident. He jumped on when the train went down and when it started to come up the van was opposite the stove foundry. He jumped off the train at Hotel street. He got off the flat car at Campbell street and stepped on the van, but he would not trust himself to get off there. He got off the van at Hotel street before the whistle blew for brakes. The train was then running three or four miles an hour. The witness did not see any other boy on the flat cars.

The inquest then adjourned until Friday night to hear the evidence of John Roblin and have the measurements made by the surveyor. The inquest will then be closed.

BANK DEFALCATION.

R. Yarwood and W. W. Scott the Absconders.

THE MERCHANT'S BANK.

The Amount of Embezzlement Estimated at $10,000.

CONDUCT OF TWO SWELLS.

THE ONTARIO a few days ago chronicled the suspicious departure of Robert Yarwood, teller, and Walter Scott, book-keeper, of the Merchants' Bank, but at that time their accounts were reported to be correct. Since then more light has been thrown on the subject, and it is believed now they have stolen large sums of money from the bank, aggregating probably $10,000. There is a great deal excitement in the city over the affair, and the bank has put detectives on the trail of the two youthful absconders. Scott and Yarwood, were well known in Belleville. They had been employed in the bank for some time and the manager appeared to have confidence in them. But their conduct, after hours when he had no means of watching them, was suspicious. They spent money lavishly at the saloons and billiard parlors, and were seen almost every night at the theatre. In short they aspired to be "swells" and they succeeded. But those who knew the salary which the dudes received from the bank were convinced that it would not support such extravagant youths, and their predictions proved true. Yarwood received a salary of $500, and Scott, it is reported, got $400.

Yarwood asked for two days' leave of absence, and the manager, Mr. Hamilton, consented. The time was spent fishing around the bay, but when the bank opened on Monday morning the teller was missing. He had spent the two days fishing, but left on Saturday or Sunday for the other side. His books and cash were at once examined and found correct so far as could be ascertained then. Later in the week Scott was granted permission to go to Consecon ostensibly for the purpose of visiting his uncle, but he likewise forgot to return. And thus the bold pair got out of the country with the funds of the bank, but just how much they stole time alone will tell. The inspectors of the bank arrived and a thorough audit of the books was begun. Already a parcel of money sent by a depositor from Napanee, containing $2,500 and marked 'private' is missing. It is presumed Scott took this. How many more parcels of this character stolen it is hard to say, but there is a firm belief in the minds of those who ought to know that the swells got at least $5,000 each.

Yarwood's father, an honorable citizen, died suddenly of heart disease a few months ago on Hotel street. Since then Robert has been leading a fast life, and has caused his mother a good deal of anxiety. She was one of her son's sureties to the bank.

At present there is no means of ascertaining how the money was stolen from the bank, but some are of the opinion that the two worked in consort for some time, accepting deposits and giving credit for the same on the depositor's book but not on the ledger. This was the plan adopted by Putnam, who was a defaulter for a large sum several years ago in the same bank. If this was the modus operandi adopted by Scott and Yarwood it can only be ascertained from the depositors themselves the exact amount of their embezzlement

Mrs. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes: "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caused a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Mr. Popplewell, Chemist, of our city to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

CONVENTION OF TEMPERANCE MEN.

Organization of a County Association at Stirling.

From our own Correspondent.

STIRLING, Oct. 30.—A county convention, to discuss the Scott Act, met here yesterday. Dr. Bolton was called to the chair, and Mr. A. McClatchie acted as secretary. In order to get the business on a firm foundation the following, moved by Mr. Wm. Stoddard and seconded by Rev. W. J. Young, was unanimously adopted by a standing vote:—That we, delegates from different sections of the County of Hastings, in convention assembled, regard the present a favorable time for inaugurating a Scott Act campaign, having in view an early submission of the Canada Temperance Act to the electors of the county, believing, as we do, that the adoption of the Act would prove of incalcalable advantage, and be conducive to the best interests of all classes of our people. The convention then proceeded to name conveners for local organizations as follows:—Dr. Boulter, Stirling; Rev. A. Wilson, Marmora; Rev. O. Lambly, Rawdon; Rev. J. A. McCanmers, Huntingdon; Rev. Mr. Howard, Thurlow; Rev. W. J. Young, Hungerford; Rev. D. O. Crosley, Deseronto; Mr. Hanley with Rev. J. C. Ash alternate. The following were elected as officials for a county association:—A. F. Wood, M.P.P. President; Rev. F. B. Stratton, Secretary; E. D. O'Flynn, Treasurer. After some further routine business the convention adjourned until the mass meeting, which was held in the evening.

FIGURES WON'T LIE.

The figures showing the enormous yearly sales of Kidney-Wort, demonstrate its value as a medicine beyond dispute. It is a purely vegetable compound of certain roots, leaves and berries known to have special value in Kidney troubles. Combined with these are remedies acting directly on the liver and bowels. It is because of this combined action that Kidney-Wort has proved such an unequalled remedy in all diseases of these organs.

MADOC NEWS.

From our own Correspondent.

As per announcement a meeting was held on Tuesday last in the basement of St. Peters church re the Scott Act. In the absence of Mr. Wood, Mr. Mackintosh, I. P. S., was called to the chair, this gentleman drove 30 miles in order that he might be present. Mr. O'Flynn was appointed secretary of the meeting. It is to be regretted that a meeting had been called for Stirling for it hampered the progress of the Madoc one to a certain extent, for really the iniatory step was taken here.

Mr. F. S. Spence, Secretary of the Dominion Alliance, was called upon to enlighten those present on the mode of proceeding in beginning a campaign of this sort; this he did in a very logical manner, after which this meeting appointed conveners for meetings to be held in the various municipalities to the north.

The following gentlemen were heard concerning the feeling in the different localities, viz.: Messers Tuttle and Taylor, of Bridgewater; Rev. O. R. Lambly and J. H. Thompson, editor of the News Argus, of Stirling, and Messrs. Empey, Allan, Devotin and Johnson, of Madoc Township, and others. All of these gentlemen reported favorably for the cause of temperance and the ultimate passage of the Scott Act.

The meeting adjourned at 5 p.m. to meet again at 7:30 in the body of the same church. Also on motion, it was decided to meet in Stirling on Wednesday.

At the meeting in the evening a large crowd was present. After routine business Mr. Spence was called upon, who for over two hours held the audience spell bound with his able arguments in favor of the Scott Act, and against that Act which which allows the carrying on of a traffic which is so hurtful to the human race.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was unanimously tendered Mr. Spence for his able lecture. A collection was taken up to defray expenses and the meeting adjourned.

By what has been said to-day a great many who went to the church having doubts concerning some of the phases of this Act or rather the working of it, but after hearing the able lecturer's exposition of the different questions at issue, they left with their minds fully settled upon the matter.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabim, of Eglington, says: "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns."

UNIVERSAL TESTIMONY.

Cannot be disputed, and the case yet to be heard from in which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has failed to perform a perfect cure. This with painless and rapid action and freedom from annoyance during use. The great corn and bunion cure stands unrivalled. Sure, safe, and painless. Beware of frauds offered as substitutes for the great corn cure, Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, proprietors. Use no other.

A MARVELOUS STORY

[illegible] TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "20 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882.

Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

CHOLERA

—IS—

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa. Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared there soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered.

Believe me dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours, J. M. JOHNSON, Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. y 2md&w

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompaning "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by reviving exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Oh yes; indeed we have been waiting. Are you ready Juliette?'

'Yes, quite, responded the Creole briefly.

She was trying to still her fluttering heart, so steady her whirling brain which burnt like fire, so that she could consider what she should do.

Should she rouse the camp?

No.

That would prove her complicity in all that had occurred, and render her a being to be loathed instead of loved.

Then should she go with them?

Should she not rather fly away?

Why should she not keep among these people?

Could she support even for a time seeing Eustace and Pauline together, perhaps in each other's embrace

She must endeavor to.

She must go.

To the end she must play her part.

But there was hope yet, if by some means she could acquaint Stuart Loring with the route they were to take.

She had to conceal these reflections from her companions, been pretending to tie up a small parcel.

Now completing it she rose.

'Yes, she said, calmly, I am quite ready. In which direction are we to proceed?'

'I fancy,' said the trapper, 'it will be best to make towards Santa Fe. From there I can easily get help to reach New York.'

Pauline had her hat on by this time and was moving towards the door.

But Brixham stayed her.

'One moment young lady not yet, he smiled, I will return in two minutes. Don't fear, there's no danger.'

So saying he passed out.

His absence presented the opportunity the Creole needed.

Requesting Pauline to do some trifling which necessitated her back being towards her, the Creole rapidly wrote on a piece of paper a few lines of explanation as to what had occurred also mentionioning the name of their route.

Swiftly raising the canvas she glided out.

Dimly she could discern the prostrate sentinel.

In an instant she was by his side pinning the paper on his coat as she whispered hurridly—

'Give this to Mr. Loring as soon as you are able.'

The next instant she was back in the tent.

'Is he coming?' asked Pauline turning and perceiving her enter.

'I cannot see him replied the Creole, coming further away.

Scarcely had she spoken when a quick step sounded outside.

The canvas was drawn back, and Eustace agitated, trembling with joy stood in the tent.

One little cry of ecstasy, and Pauline was on his breast.

He had only eyes for her, while his quivering lips exclaimed——

'My love—my own darling, do I after all this fearful interval hold you to my heart once more my own darling?

A bitter moan rose to the Creole's lips, and her face became deathly white.

She staggered to her couch.

Her veins ran as if molten lead; her brain beat to bursting.

'Why will he not come,' she groaned, and part them. Why will he not?'

'Time is up, we must delay no longer, Mr. Belmore,' whispered Brixham looking in. Remember we are not yet out of danger. It would not do to lose all by a foolish risk, come.'

'Oh, yes, come dear Eustace,' implored Pauline, slipping her hand on his arm and lifting her pretty face, with a sudden renewal of alarm upon it, to his. It we are discovered, we are ruined. This man is terrible, and these people are his friends.

'But Juliette, where is she?' asked our hero. 'I must see her; my dear, brave sister.'

'No, exclaimed the trapper, who had strode into the tent, perceiving how matters stood. 'Be off lad, I will bring the young lady.'

'Oh she is ill,' cried Pauline, running back.

'Oh, she has had a lot of anxiety' remarked the trapper, dryly. 'and the sudden prospect of liberty has overcame her. I tell you go, and leave her to me Mr. Belmore.

He spoke authoritively, and they were forced to comply.

Then the trapper raised the Creole gently in his arms and bore her after them.

Dispite his burden, Brixham easily kept up to them and it was not long before the reached the forest where the horses were waiting.

Bidding Eustace help Pauline into her saddle and taking the lead, the trapper mounted Prairie Belle; placed the Creole before him, and holding the bridle of the horse, followed, proceeding at a slow pace until they could get far enough away from the camp to have no fear of being heard.

It was not until nearly three hours after when Stuart Loring who had been detained owing to a brief absence of the minister returned to the encampment, accompanied by the Reverend Theophilus Seveall.

His first act naturally was to proceed to the sisters' tent.

The absence of the sentinel, at once attracted his attention.

His suspicions were aroused.

Going to the canvas door no requested permission to enter.

No answer was returned.

He looked in and guessed the truth.

A cry almost a scream of rage escaped his lips.

He again started forth, and in doing so nearly fell over the sentinel who had rolled himself towards the tent.

'Who are you?' he demanded fiercely, as stooping, he clutched the man's shoulder.

The gluttural sound which fell upon his ear was another revelation.

Rapidly he dragged the sentinel into the tent and in releasing him, beheld the note.

In a second he had understood and mastered its contents.

In less than quarter of an hour after; he at the head of a party of picked men had started on the track.

As he went, Stuart Loring swore an oath that both the sisters should not escape him.

He would call one his at least.

(To be continued.)

DR. SCOTT'S PREPARED SPICE

For Horses, Cattle, Sheep & Swine.

It has no equal in curing Horses of the several ailments to which they are subject. For COUGHS, COLDS, ROUGHNESS of the HAIR, BOTTS SCURVY, &c., it is invaluable, and administered in smaller doses, acts as a Tonic, resulting in a healthy condition and fine appearance of the animal. Is also equally beneficial to CATTLE, SHEEP and SWINE. For sale everywhere.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in th market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent. For sale by all Druggists

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me" that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

THREE LITTLE BLOSSOMS.

SOMETHING THAT MADE MR. HARVEY FEEL UNUSUALLY PROUD AND HAPPY.

Mr. John Harvey, a young Irishman and an ardent admirer of Mr. Blaine, is about the height of the great Napoleon, five feet two inches. Something happened on Saturday last that made him feel at least a foot taller. The results of the happening were resting contentedly in a crib alongside the bed of Mr. Harvey's handsome black eyed wife last evening.

Their little heads are as like as three pink peas, and they have the indefinite physiognomy and the eccentricity of motion peculiar to young babies. They weigh about seven pounds a piece, are healthy and well formed, and have lungs of considerable power. When a reporter looked at them yesterday they were huddled so closely together that it was difficult to tell which baby owned any pair of the six wee fists that protruded from under their blanket.

Mr. Harvey, assisted by his wife's aunt, introduced the babies to the reporter. They evinced a disinclination to be separated, and opened their eyes to such a small extent that they probably didn't recognize their visitor. They all wore long, white dresses, and each had a different colored ribbon on his arm for purposes of identification. One ribbon was white, one red, and the other blue.

'They are American babies,' said Mr. Harvey''and that's why they are decorated with the national colors. We have had eight babies since our marriage, six years and nine months ago, including a pair of twins, I'm a twin myself. The one with the red ribbon I shall name Blaine Harvey, and the other little boy I will call Logan, and the little girl will be named Harriet Stanwood, which is the maiden name of Mrs. Blaine.'

Mrs. Harvey's aunt lifted up the babies as their names were called. When she put them back again they went to sleep simultaneously and as quickly as Dickens' fat boy.—Sun.

ANXIOUS FOR THE ANTIQUE.

LARGE PROFITS IN VENERABLE FURNITURE MADE BY INGENIOUS YANKEES.

Herald Interview.

'How's the trade in the 'antique?' inquired a reporter of a man who supplied æsthetic fashionables who sigh for what is old and time-worn,

'Like everything else nowadays'' he said, 'overdone. You see when it first became en regle to have old furniture, old china, and indeed old things in the place of that which is new and shiny-looking, the people who went into business to supply the demand had a 'soft snap.' The trade was almost entirely among the rich, who didn't care what they paid if they only got what they wanted and what was fashionable, and as a consequence the profits were enormous. Why I know of a man who started here in a little out of the way place where hardly anybody but the poorest kind of people ever went, but whose family is now is in independent circumstances, and all as the result of only a few years' work. He began by selling old brasses, candle-sticks, fenders, etc' Then the 'antique craze fell in in full blast and he branched out with a large store on North Charles street and made money like a mint. But the big profits attracted too many and the business has been all cut to pieces.

'Where do you get your supplies of old furnature?'

From all over the world, but more particularly the older portions of this country and from England and Scotland. At first we got our stock almost entirely from this countsy, but when the supply began to grow slack we sent over to Europe.'

'How do you buy?'

'By agents whom we send through the country and who know just what we want. As a rule, though, the real treasures in the way of old furniture are in the hands of old families in the country who prize them as heirlooms, and will not sell. I have had my eye for a long time on some pieces which I have not yet abandoned all hope of getting. The New England and middle states have been pretty throughly canvassed, but among some of the old gentry of the south there are still some rare pieces which we would like very much to have.'

'I should think by this time the supply would have been exhausted.'

'Ha! ha! ha! Well, now that's too good. Why, didn't you know that there are a number of factories in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maine where they make nothing else but old furniture out of new wood. The Yankee is too cute to let such a chance go by. One factory in Connecticut turns out hundreds of grandfather's clocks every day. They make them out of the same kinds of woods that were used 100 years ago, stain and smoke them to make them look real old. Yes, sir, even down to the nails and screws used to put them together are the same as in the old ones. It takes a practical eye to note any difference, and then you'll probably have to look on the inside for some new wood or something of the kind. In Maine there's a place where they make chests, cupboards, tables, chairs, settees and beds. They very often take one of the immense old-fashioned beds and high solid posts and make two or three smaller ones out of it. Oh! no, there's no danger of the supply giving out as long as the demand keeps as brisk as it is now.'

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

to get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring diseases, langour, lassitud, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which everyone feels during this season, we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendary messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking The Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting the Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by unreliable, worthless preparations. It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so, but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of the Shaker Blood Sprup impresses itself upon the people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHAT THE RESULT HAS BEEN.

When the doctrine of Protection was preached in 1878, a good many Reformers were led astray by the casuistry and sophistry of the exponents of the N. P. This was particularly the case with some of our manufacturers.

It seemed to them that if their line of business was "protected" by having such a heavy tariff imposed on such articles as they manufacture coming in from a foreign country, that their fortune would assuredly be made in very quick time.

As it seemed to promise such a golden result to them they could not see how it could be objectionable to any one else, even to those who would have to pay so much more for those products, the price of which was raised by protection.

It is in no unkind spirit that we refer to one example among several of such cases where the party, not satisfied to be placed on an equality with his fellow citizens of other occupations, grasped at the idea of being protected in the pursuit of wealth, and the peradventure of failure removed, and has fallen from affluence to poverty—not in spite of the N.P., but because of it. The Ottawa Free Press thus gives the history of one case in point :—

"The failure of Messrs. Barber Bros., of Streetsville, one of the oldest and most reliable manufacturing firms in Western Ontario, is much to be regretted. Three brothers, all industrious, hard working men, commenced about 30 years ago on the west branch of the River Credit at Georgetown to erect a carding and fulling mill on a light water-power. They extended to manufacturing blankets, flannels and tweeds, and were very successful. A few years later, when the Grand Trunk was constructed and ran through the village, wealth began to accumulate. They built a paper mill, which proved very profitable. The water-power not being equal to their requirements, they purchased a tract of land and water on the main Credit, below Streetsville, and erected a large and expensive cloth factory, Two of the brothers (Robert and William) removed there to reside, and left James at Georgetown, to continue the paper factory, which he did very successfully. A few years afterwards they dissolved partnership, and James continued to run the paper mill until his death.

The brothers were very prosperous and considered to be worth $400,000, when they dissolved partnership. They made all this without protection, and up to that time they were sound reformers. The oldest brother ran as such for the county of Peel and succeeded in defeating the Tory nominee for the Local House. The firm obtained a Government contract for furnishing blankets also the paper contract for supplying Parliament and the Government. The protection policy cry commenced. The firm allied themselves with Sir John A. Macdonald and became Tories. All went on well for a few years under the protection policy—they extended their operations. The junior member of the firm ran in the Tory interest, for Peel at the last general elections and was defeated. Under protection their wealth has dwindled away, and the announcement that the Barber Bros. have assigned has surprised every one. Such is the result of over production and paternal legislation. Had these men been contented with the wealth acquired under a low revenue tariff the probabilities are they would be now, as they were fifteen years ago, the wealthy leading men of that prosperous county. This is only the beginning of the end with many industries stimulated to over-production under protection, and the experience of the Barber Bros. should be a warning to other manufacturers.

CHINESE IN AMERICA.

Pamphlets have been written and distributed in many countries, and emigration agents have done their best to induce the people of the old world to come out to America. but no such means have been used to induce a Chinaman to leave the flowery kingdom and take up his residence on this continent. Such an idea would most likely be scouted as absurd.

If Chinamen came here at their own expense, as their own masters, and not simply as slaves to the company that sends them out, they might be received with some degree of complacency. But nineteen-twentieths of those who come to California or British Columbia are literally slaves, and the traffic has been a very thinly disguised slave trade. These poor creatures are not free to do as they please, or to make what bargains they like about labor. They come ignorant of the language of the country and are in debt to the company and are bound to pay over to it a certain per centage of what they earn. They come here hopelessly ensnared in the trap of the slave dealer and cannot help themselves. It is therefore the fault of the vicious system under which they are brought out that they occupy the position they do with regard to the labor. This system must be stopped before so many Chinese swarm in and destroy the labor market for free Caucasian, laborers. We want men, not slaves. The fact that the horrible and loathsome disease of leprosy has been brought to the western shores of the continent by these Mongolians should not be passed over heedlessly. We have misery enough of our own without having this dreadful disease introduced among us. Some stringent regulations should at once be passed before the evils complained of as attending the immigration of the Chinese become a very serious matter, indeed.

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to obtain? successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. —Druggists sel

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE ABSURD custom once prevailed in some old world countries of taxing windows—or the comfort, light and health of the public. But after all, what great advance have we made on this custom when we tax our coal and other necessaries of life? Such taxes are a disgrace, and only serve to mark the stupidity of those who enact them.

ON THE basis of representation by population Ireland would be entitled to 95 members in the House of Commons instead of 103; Wales to 25 instead of 30, and Scotland to 69 instead of 58. On a rough estimate the seats given up by Ireland and Wales would make up the deficiency in Scotland. England's representation almost tallies with its population, and would only require to be properly distributed. The above is thought to be the basis of the Redistribution Bill.

THE Mail the other day published an imaginary conversation with a statue in which the latter said, "When it comes to putting Mowat against John A."— and then suddenly stops. That sudden stop showed more wisdom than all the Mail's editorials for a year. In two general elections all the forces at John A's. command were brought to bear against Mowat in vain. Not satisfied with that he has been completely knocked off his pins four times in succession before the Privy Council. When it comes to putting Mowat against John A. it's a dark night for the embryo peer.

JUST READ this and see why the innocent Solomon of Jamaica wants to have the island annexed to Canada :—

"Confederation—or the admission of Jamaica as a Province of Canada would give us an open market for all our products. We in turn would have to take the products of Canada on like terms; there would be a loss to us of the revenue from customs and excise, and there would be a loss to Canada of the duties at present imposed by their tariff on what we sent to them. It may be asked how are we to make good the loss of so much revenue, but if any one will refer to the British America Act, Vic. cap, iii., he will find that the Dominion Government pays a contribution to each Province and also contributes to the expenses of the Government.

The ingenuousness of the last clause is simply astounding.

Here is what Labouchere has to say in Truth about the dynamite crank :— I had always been under the impression that in the United States the letter of the law is tempered with the spirit of common sense, and that whenever there is a general feeling that a citizen is rendering himself a shame and a nuisance to the neighborhood in which he resides he is dealt with in a summary fashion. Sometimes he is hanged, and sometimes he is ridden on a rail in a garb of tar and feathers, O'Donnovan Rossa, I see, boasts that he had a hand in the blowing up of the Parliament House of Quebec. It is impossible to know whether this be true, for the man is alike capable of the crime, and capable of boasting of having committed it, though he may have had nothing to do with it. In either case I would venture to suggest to New Yorkers, and in these I include all decent men of Irish extraction, if it is fitting that such an unmitigated rascal should be allowed to live in peace amongst them.

THE MAIL LIBEL SUIT.

In the Canada Shipping Company's suit against the Mail the jury awarded $100 damages. The alleged libel was contained in the following, in the issue of June 29th, 1882 :—

'The steamer Lake Nepigon, of the Beaver Line, a vessel formerly used exclusively for carrying cattle, sailed from Liverpool on the 4th May, 1882. having on board five hundred emigrants of all nationalities, the majority being English and Irish; when about ten days out they ran short of provisions, which was owing no doubt to the negligence of some officer, and had to live on one biscuit a day, meantime the ship had become terrible filthy, not being originally intended for the use of passengers, the steerage passengers were crowded in the hold and not even permitted to come on deck, many of them sickened and died from being cooped up in such a terrible manner. The ship, not having been cleaned out once during the passage was entirely unfit for human beings to live in. Amongst the passengers who came to Ottawa are a Mr. B. Girling and his wife and family, who are all now down at the Protestant hospital with typhoid fever, which, according to a city doctor's certificate, was contracted on the voyage from over-crowding and the filth of the vessel. Two other emigrants who arrived in the city a short time since are laid up with typhoid fever from the same cause.'

In answer to a question submitted to them the jury said that there was no evidence submitted to prove the allegations contained in the extract to be false.

THE NOBLE SAVAGE.

GERMAN HUNTERS HAVE MORE SPORT THAN THEY EXPECTED.

An Ottawa dispatch says :—Since the arrest of an Indian for the murder of a trader named Youmans, at Forks of Skeena River the Indians in that part of British Columbia have shown signs of strong hostility toward white settlers. Word has just been received that a party of four German hunters, who left Victoria some two weeks since for the north, had a narrow escape with their lives from the Indian Reserve, 40 miles below Metlakatlah. It appears the hunting party on landing were met by a party of Indians, who wished to look at their rifles. While one of the Germans was showing his weapon it went off inflicting a wound in the leg of one of the Indians. Believing the shooting to be intentional, the Indians took the guns and revolvers from the hunters. The latter immediately rushed for the shore. where a boat was lying, and getting in pulled for their lives. The Indians manned canoes and gave chase and finding they were being left behind opened fire on on the Germans, one ball penetrating the boat, The Germans proceeded to the headquarters of the Indian agent to report but instead of assisting them to bring the Indians to justice the agent arrested the German who did the shooting and sent him to Fort Simpson. The agent who caused the arrest is the man Duncan who is endeavering to secure a good following of Indians to drive Bishop Ridley out of the Indian country.

THE QUEBEC ASYLUM.

The Week.

Mr. Tuke's formidable impeachment of the management of the Asylum at Long Point, receives its answer in the bold assertion that 'the Sisters of Charity are the incarnation of the providence of God.' Dr. Tuke thinks the practice of the Government in farming out the lunatics is a mistake, and the defenders of the Sisters profess to have found the reason of his objection: Les sœurs, c'est bien l'incarnation de la providence de Dieu. This is a defence which, its validity being admitted, should end all parley; but around the citadel numerous defensive works of a minor character are erected. Against Dr Tuke all sorts of crimes are charged. He is a Methodist, and as such must be a fanatic; he is a man of science with the specialty of an alienist, and therefore should not assume to understand the management of lunatics. The denials are so numerous as to cover nearly all Dr. Tuke's charges; and to ascertain the true state of the facts an official enquiry becomes all the more necessary. Whether this Asylum be an earthly paradise or a veritable pandemonium is a question to which a dicisive answer will have to be given. If the goodness of the motives of the Sisters be admitted, it does not follow that the efficient administration of an over grown asylum for the insane falls within their vacation, or that they possess the necessary qualifications for so onerous and difficult a task. It is quite possible that, in their desire to do good to their suffering fellow creatures, they attempt to much, and that the fiscal economy which is the chief boast of their administration leaves many needs unsupplied. For each of the nine hundred and twenty-six patients the Sisters received from the Government one hundred dollars a year, one-half or one-third of what it would cost to support them in an institution under the control of the Governments. This is the defence set up to show that the nuns are not justly liable to the charge of selfishness; but it is open to the suspicion of proving too much. The small proportion of cures the large proportion of deaths are not causeless, and nothing could be more unwelcome than the discovery that they are in some measure due to this vaunted economy. Does this religious order, in one form or another, make a contribution of one hundred thousand dollars a year towards the maintenence of these lunatics? If it does not, the apparent economy must represent some unsupplied wants: and this alternative is made probably by the report of the observations of Dr. Tuke. It is impossible to believe that Dr. Tuke could have any motive for misrepresenting what he saw, and of his competency as a judge of the deficiency and the maladministration of the institution there is not a reasonable doubt. That he may have made some minor mistakes is probable; but he has not set up an impossible standard of perfection for the purpose of denouncing a departure from it; he does not go so far as Dr. Buck and other alienists in Ontario, who reports that in actual practice they have for some years been able to dispense with physical restraint: all that he insists on is that such such restraints should be sparingly used. A single resident physician is a small allowance for nearly a thousand patients, and the value of a medical visitor will depend not only more upon the nature and extent of his duties than upon the way in which these duties are performed. Of the inspectors, two of the three being medical men, the old question must once more be asked: Who inspects the inspectors?

A LIVELY YOUNG LORD.

GETS ON HIS DIGNITY AND PUMMELS THE POLICE.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The other day a young scion of the nobility, Lord Roland Sutherland Gower attacked one of the sentinels of St. James' palace with his cane. A policeman who interfered was also struck by his lordship. It is understood that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of the young lord, but it has not yet been served. Lord Gower claims that he was wantonly insulted by both the sentry and the policemen.

UNIVERSAL TESTIMONY.

Cannot be disputed, and the case yet to be heard from in which Putnam's Painless Corn Extracter has failed to perform a perfect cure. LATEST CITY NEWS

Hallow'een.

The Challen inquest will be continued to-night.

Jacob Allen was arrested drunk last night. He was discharged by the magistrate to-day.

Rev. Dr. Sexton addressed another large audience in the Bridge Street Church last night on 'History's Testimony to Christ.'

A regular weekly meeting of the Hastings Reform Club will be held to-night. As there is business of importance to transact all who can should be present.

A meeting of the Board of Works of the City Council was held last night. The following accounts were passed:—Pay sheet, $282,78; B. V Foster, $1.25.

Rev. T. W. Fyles was announced to deliver a lecture in the City Hall on 'Insect, Friends and Foes,' but as the audience was so small the address was not delivered.

The Whig says that Mr, Meagher, of the Custom House, and Mr. Davis, of New York, intend going to the Indian woods, near Tyendinaga, on a shooting expedition.

Those whose gates have withstood the ravages of the summer campaign had better put them away carefully to-day before the mischievous sprites of Halloween are abroad.

Last night some malicious persons destroyed the show bills on four stands in the city, at a great loss to the Scanlan Company and Baker & Farron. In their absence Manager Tammage offers a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party.

A correspondent at Rossmore writes:—The Eagle Mill shut down for three hours at noon yesterday to give the men a chance to go to the poll. On resuming work at three o'clock every man was promptly at his post. Mr, Murray says that in his experience of forty years amongst workingmen, this incident is unique.

There are no more developments in the Merchan't Bank embezzlement. Yarwood and Scott, the defrauders, are no doubt enjoying life's happiness at some fashionable hotel across the line, where they can chuckle over their luckly escape from Canada. The amount of cash missing is not known yet, but already a shortage of $4000 has been found in Scott's accounts.

An attempt was made yesterday to burglarize the office in the Grand Trunk freight shed but no money was secured. When the freight shed was closed for noon it is supposed that the thief secreted himself until the men had left and then entered the office. The till was broken open, but unfortutately for the burglar the clerk had removed the money to his pants pocket before leaving.

"Shang" Clark, a notorious cracksman who has served several terms in the Penitentiary, has been seen in the city lately, but left a few days ago for the east. People will know him by the following description:—Medium build, about 5 ft. 10 in.; pale complexion, with heavy lines on face; greenish eyes and scowling look on face; head perfectly bald; slightly stooped; age about 46.

At a meeting of the Legal and Literary Society held last evening in the Shire Hall Mr Adam Scott tendered his resignation as Premier of the House, and the Government elected J. McGregor Young, B. A., Premier. Mr. S. J. Young, B. A., was elected speaker of the house. The following gentlemen were admitted as members:—Messrs. E. Foster, F. Macoun, W. Mikle and S. Daily. The next meeting will be held on Thursday the 6th inst. at Shire Hall at eight o'clock, when the government will submit the bills for the ensuing session.

To-morrow will be All Saints' Day, and will be celebrated with special services in the Anglican and Roman churches. The following day, the 2nd of November, is the day on which falls the 'Commemoration of All Souls but as that date will fall on a Sunday the services which are appointed to be held in all Catholic churches throughout the world will be transferred to the Monday following. As the Anglican as well as all the other Protestant churches reject the doctrine of 'purgatory' it goes without saying that no observance of the day is made in the way of religious services.

American coal oil can be procured at Geen's either wholesale or retail, and will be delivered to any part of the city.

AROUND ABOUT US

The stage connecting Campbellford with the C. P. R at Havelock has ceased running.

Campbellford claims to be a perfect paradise for the absence of tramps and burglars.

Most excruciating are the twinges which rack the muscles and joints of the rheumatic. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, by promoting increased action of the kidneys, by which the blood is more effectually depurated, removes through the natural channels certain acrid elements in the circulation which produce rheumatism and gout. The medicine is also a fine laxative antibilious medicine and general corrective.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner.

HALLOWE'EN.

Hallowe'en is really one the old Roman Catholic reminiscences which survive in Scotland, all unknown as it is to the majority of that country's population. We refer to All Saints' Day celebration which follows it. It would be easy to multiply quotations from Burns and descriptions of the old Scottish customs observed on that event. It has always been the occasion of certain popular usages in Christian countries, such as the performance of spells by young people to discover their future partners in life. Nearly everybody who cares to read about Hallowe'en knows that the event is one almost sacred to Scotland. The nut burning tests; the lonely vigil in the garden in expectation of seeing the face of a future husband; the test of three dishes, one with dirty water, one with clean water, and the third empty, are well known to everybody. There also is the ceremony of ducking for apples and other ceremonies.

In Belleville, of course, it is not to be expected that the occasion will be one of general observance. The small boy will probably celebrate the evening by a more than usualy large amount of frolicking. Middle aged Scotchmen who are disposed to conviviality will not feel bound to limit their inclinations on such a night. In the suburbs where the sway of the cop is less felt, the pranks peculiar to the anniversary will have free latitude. Fences will be broken down, doors demolished and carried away and bells rung with the orthodox amount of judicious indiscrimination.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES

The remains of fourteen victims of the Uniontown, Pa., mine disaster were buried Wednesday.

Robert Hager, of Gainesville, Ga., has been arrested, charged with burglary and bigamy. Four women who have married Hager, are now alive in three States.

Andrew Swain, a prominent citizens of Gleason. Tenn., died from the effects of poison administered, it is supposed, by a man named Taylor, who has been imprisoned.

Joseph Dibrell, son of Congressman Dibrell, of Sparta, Tenn., was fatally shot last night by Gus Gear. Dibrell was endeavoring to separate Gear and one Hickey who were fighting.

In Rabun county, yesterday, engineer Beck, while intoxicated, shot and killed his wife and fatally wounded his sister-in-law. He then fell into a drunken sleep after which he was jailed. Lynching is feared, CLEVELAND, Oct. 30—Adam Seitz keeper of a barber shop at Union Club went home yesterday undressed himself and placing two pillows on the floor shot himself. Despondency over money matters was the cause.

A man named George Brewster, returning from Missouri to visit friends at Rothsay, Ont., was killed at Palmerston, Wednesday night by the train passing over him, He had money and notes on him amounting to about $400.

At Parkerville, S.C., on Sunday, at the dedication of a church, a crowd of negroes disturbed the exercises by firing pistols. An officer, who attempted to make an arrest on Monday, was fired upon by the negroes from a barricaded house and killed. More trouble is feared.

A terrible accident occurred at noon on Wednesday on the Wilmington & Northern Railroad near Reading, Pa. A passenger train fell from a bridge into the Schuylkill River. The engineer and fireman were killed outright. It is reported that a number of passengers have been killed and injured, but particulars are lacking.

Some fiend in human shape tried to wreck a train on the London, Huron & Bruce railway yesterday morning, by placing a large tie across the track between Hyde Park and Ilderton. The obstruction was observed in time to prevent a catastrophe.

BRITISH INTERVENTION.

At the request of the Dominion Government a British war vessel has proceeded to the northern coast of British Columbia, where some irritation exists among the Indians owing to the arrest of one of their number for murder, and the attempt of Bishop Ridley, to remove Rev. M. Duncan a missionary in whom the natives have implicit confidence. No serious trouble is considered likely to occur.

Mrs. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes. "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caused a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Mr. Popplewell, Chemist, of our city to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

CHICAGO, Oct 30.—Joseph Cavazell, an employee of the Commercial Hotel, while attempting to kill Peter Miller, head laundryman, stabbed himself in the leg. He died yesterday from the effects of the wound and bad whiskey.

M. W. R. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville writes: "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have ever used in my stable. I have used it for bruises, scratches and wind puffs and cuts, and in every case it gave the best satisfaction. We use it as a household remedy for scalds, burns, &c., and it is a perfect panacea. It will remove warts by paring them down occasionaly."

FIGURES WON'T LIE.

The figures showing the enormous yearly sales of Kidney-Wort, demonstrate its value as a medicine beyond dispute. It is a purely vegetable compound of certain roots, leaves and berries known to have special value in Kidney troubles. Combined with these are remedies acting directly on the liver and bowels. It is because of this combined action that Kidney-Wort has proved such an unequalled remedy in all diseases of these organs.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882.

Yours gratefully,
HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:—

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the PAIN-KILLER, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed recovered

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attend the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety with certain success, provided a moderate attention bestowed on their accompanying "Directions" Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by aiding exhausted nature just when she needs such succor.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THE GREAT NEED The Blood is the life and on its purity depends our health, if not our existence. These Pills thoroughly cleanse this vital fluid from all contaminations, and by that power strengthens and invigorates the whole system, healthily stimulate sluggish organs, repress over-excited action, and establish order of circulation and secretion throughout every part of the body. The balsamic nature of Holloway's Pills commends them to the favor of debilitated and nervous constitutions, which they soon resuscitate. They dislodge all obstructions, both in the bowels and elsewhere, and are, on that account, much sought after for promoting regularity of action in young females and delicate persons who are naturally weak, or who from some cause have become so.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

THE FLIGHT—THE POWER OF LOVE

Before our little party of fugitives had proceeded for,the Creole recovered consciousness.

'What is all this?' she exclaimed in surprise, regarding the darkness around her.

'Your strength has been overtaxed,miss, and you fainted,' said Brixham quietly; 'therefore as we could not risk waiting, I took the liberty of carrying you till you were again yourself. Do you think you could mount your own horse?'

'Yes,' replied Juliette.

It was too dark to see her face, but the trapper was struck by the change in her tone.

It was subdued, low.

He helped her into her saddle and she said gratefully—

'Thank you.'

'Would you like to join your sister?' he asked.

'No, no, she responded quickly; I will recover first. My head is still giddy I would remain here, awhile,'

He made no answer, but rode a little in advance.

Now and again he heard a stifled sob.

He knew she was weeping.

Yes.

That force of character and strong determination of character which had so long upheld her had suddenly collapsed at the failure of her purpose—at the sight of Pauline in Eustace's arms.

It had struck her a blow.

In her own mind, ill-fate had pursued her, and her spirit, brave as it was seemed broken, and no longer able to resist.

'I was accursed from my birth,'she murmured; 'accursed unto my death, shall the cruel destiny I was born to pursue me. Oh how can I dare to look on his face?

As morning dawned, she was compelled to, but the trial had been softened by his addressing her when darkness had concealed the features of both.

He had ridden back to make inquiries and resisting Brixham's reqqest that he would not yet join her, took his place by her side speaking with the fond affection of a brother.

She found no difference in him, save he was kinder.

He spoke as if they had been in Lady Dudley's drawing room,

Did she deserve it?

His solicitude was reserved for her.

Hearing she was weak and ill,he insisted remaining with Juliette while Brixham escorted Pauline.

'Oh, gracious,' groaned the trapper, 'he is only making matters worse,

In that he was wrong.

Juliette loved Eustace with a passion that could never be twice experienced.

It was a love all-absorbing, that would almost rather be scorned than not noticed.

Eustace's presence made her a better woman.

Her purer feelings dominated the bad.

She could plan in his absence, in his company his spirit entered into hers.

If he had only given heart for heart, she would have been a woman to have been admired in every way.

Or, if Pauline had not lived.

'Yes, she began to think that if her half sister had not lived she could have supported seeing him wedded to another, it being for his happiness.

But Pauline had carried all from her—birth, wealth and love.

So thinking,hanging on Eustace's words they journeyed on through the night.

Pauline was content to ride and chat with the trapper.

It was enough to her her that she was safe, free, from Stuart Loring, and with our hero.

Oh, magical power of love.

Better to have loved and lost,than never to have loved at all.

Better to have loved and suffered.

For who does not suffer?

How heartrending are love's hopes,tears and doubts.

How an unconscious slight from these adored ones creates a whole night of agony

Yet how we hug the agony to us—content to moan, to sigh, rather than cease to love.

Thus with the Creole.

Her affection from the first had been doomed to suffer, yet she loved on the object daily growing more dear.

The anxiety she had gone through, the severe mental strain,had, when apparently failure followed all her efforts had considerably weakened her.

A touch of our hero's hand, a kind expression in his eyes caused her throat to swell her eyes to dim with moisture.

Her energy succumbed.

There was ever an eager constant cry in her heart—

'I am weary, my trouble has borne me down.

She had suddenly lost interest in everyone save Eustace Belmore.

His brotherly talk and attention were to her as cordial to the dying man—his bright happy face a support.

So much did it come a necessity to her that she forgot what rendered it so happy—she only knew it was so.

His voice was as life; listening she forgot her miserable birth.

'Were he to frown;' she thought, like one of these insects that live but in sunshine,'I should die,

It never occurred to her, that at any moment the feature she so rejoiced to gaze upon might be changed to agony, tortured by a great pain, and of her causing.

Was not Stuart Loring, by her connivance, following them with a force, no doubt, to aid him in their capture, which would render resistance on their part useless.

A slight incident made her remember this,

They were camping in a wild portion of the forest, for the trapper had avoided all beaten paths, when abruptly, Brixham had risen on his elbow listening.

'What is it?' asked Eustace,instantly on the alert.

'Nothing, I fancy, but it's well to make sure,' was the reply, as the trapper got to his feet.

'What do you imagine it is?' persisted our hero.

'The sound of someone stealthily approaching among the bushes,' whispered Brixham, glancing toward the spot where he believed the sisters slept.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.
